

Chapter 2691 Relaxing Together

Upon receiving Solon's reply, the crown prince promptly gathered all available information on the ship Victorious.

"Matthew, I have the answers. The Victorious is one of Seraphis' top ten giant ships, but it sails in Highsea all year round."

"Which faction does the ship belong to?"

The crown prince opened the information to confirm his answer before responding. "It belongs to the Kellers and is primarily used as a casino. Every three years, a public gambling event is held there. There are no restrictions on the participants. As long as you can provide the corresponding gambling capital as collateral, you can exchange it for a boarding pass."

Matthew was slightly taken aback. "Just for gambling? Why does it need to be so grand? And why only once every three years?"

For someone like him who has no interest in gambling, it is difficult to comprehend such an event.

"Of course not. According to my intelligence, the main purpose of boarding is not to win money but rather to obtain the prize arranged by the Kellers—a mysterious black box! The person who wins the most money that night during this grand event can obtain this box. However, the contents of this black box are still unknown and require further investigation."

Matthew stared at the information in his hand, looking puzzled. The fact that the Keller Family can earn over 15 million from each event indicated that there must be a considerable number of participants.

"Even with so many participants, the information is still tightly kept under wraps. This suggests that this item is extremely valuable to those who know about it. It's quite intriguing!"

The fact that hundreds of wealthy people are fighting over it instantly sparked Matthew's interest.

"There's no rush for now. We'll find out when we go to the scene." Matthew put down the document and stretched lazily. "Let's go back to the hotel. These past few days have exhausted me!"

Several days of continuous consultations could be tiring, even with his strong body.

"You guys take care of the clinic. If there's anything you can't handle, contact me anytime!" After giving instructions to several old alternative medicine practitioners and apprentices, Matthew and the crown prince walked towards the hotel together.

As soon as they entered, Matthew saw the hotel manager gesturing toward him and then nodding toward the side. Following the gesture, Matthew saw Ivy sitting on the couch with puffed cheeks.

Matthew has been busy with the affairs of the clinic, so he could only arrange for Ivy to stay at the hotel under the care of the hotel manager and the crown prince's subordinates. However, it was obvious from her appearance that she was not happy.

Matthew smiled knowingly and leisurely approached her.

"Ivy, what happened? Who made you unhappy?"

"Hmph!"

Ivy ignored him and angrily turned her head to the side.

"You left me alone, Matthew! I will never forgive you."

This time, she was determined and would not easily forgive!

"It seems that you really are unhappy. I was planning to go fly kites with you in the countryside, but it seems there is no chance of that now. I wonder who can accompany me? I feel so lonely."

Matthew pretended to be regretful and shook his head while preparing to leave. But just as he turned around, a childish voice came from behind. "I-I'll go! I'll accompany you, Matthew."

Before she could finish, he turned around and lifted her.

"Let's go! Let's go fly kites together."

Ivy, sitting on his shoulder, giggled happily.

The crown prince was dumbfounded by this smooth and seamless series of actions since he had never expected Matthew to have such a hidden talent.

"Matthew, if you like children so much, why not have one? Then I can be the godfather."

Matthew responded with a kick. "Go away, Ivy is right here. Don't say such inappropriate things."
