

Chapter 2716 The True Function Of The Victorious Cruise

After enduring a series of continuous blows, the Anivara Keller Family's reputation plummeted, and the mansion was filled with a thick atmosphere of sorrow.

The funeral of the eldest son of the Keller Family had not yet been completed when news arrived of the death of their third son, Fabian Keller.

As the owners of the Victorious Cruise, the Keller Family was undeniably partly responsible for such a tragic event.

"The head of the Durham's branch family is calling!"

"Put them on!"

As soon as the call was connected, a voice on the other end inquired, "Can the Keller Family handle things properly? Seraphis' reputation has been completely tarnished by your family. The gambling event went well before, so why did such a serious incident occur this time?"

The Victorious Cruise's gambling event brought in huge profits every year, and as one of the major shareholders of the Victorious Cruise, the Skargness Durham Family's branch naturally made a fortune.

Lying on his sickbed, Hugo gestured for the butler to leave, and with a sense of grief and indignation, he began to explain.

"Mr. Durham, our family is also a victim. Our third son, Fabian Keller, died tragically, and I am also at my wits' end."

As he spoke, his voice choked up.

Originally, he had planned to use Jude's method to ask Fabian to intensify the conflict between Matthew and Solon, ideally resulting in a fight to the death. However, the plan was never implemented, and the entire cruise ship's crew was killed, including his third son.

His pitiful state did not move Zacharias, as feelings were not important in the face of interests.

"How do you plan to resolve this matter? You should know that my father is quite dissatisfied with your ship's affairs."

Victorious Cruise had such a tragic incident, and if it was not handled properly, not only would this year's event be unable to take place, but every subsequent event would also be severely affected.

Hugo cursed the vampire in his heart and then spoke up.

"Mr. Durham, rest assured, we can handle this matter. We will not owe the Durham Family a single penny of the dividends that you deserve."

After pausing for a moment, he added, "The same goes for every future gambling event!"

After receiving a satisfactory response, Zacharias changed his tone.

"Mr. Keller, the dead cannot be brought back to life. Please accept my condolences."

After Zacharias finished speaking, he quickly hung up the phone and continued to enjoy the company of the attractive woman beside him.

Whether the Keller Family lived or died had nothing to do with him as long as it did not affect his own profits.

Hugo's face was extremely gloomy. However, he was helpless in the face of Zacharias, this vampire. After all, the Keller Family owed him a favor.

On the surface, the Victorious Cruise of the Keller Family was a casino on a ship, but in reality, it was a super-sized salvage transport ship.

Every year at this time, the ocean currents changed, and the Keller Family would take advantage of this opportunity to secretly salvage a treasure underwater.

However, this treasure was located in the waters belonging to the Durham Family. The Keller Family could only secretly excavate and salvage under the guise of cooperation with the Durham Family.

In order to ensure the smooth progress of this project, the Keller Family paid a huge fortune every year to silence the members of the Durham Family who were aware of the situation. To be more precise, they used money to cover their eyes.

After sighing, Hugo's eyes gradually filled with worry.

It couldn't be helped. Although the Keller Family did not murder anyone, people had indeed died on Victorious Cruise.

What he was most worried about was whether the news of the treasure would also be leaked, which would attract retaliation from the Durham Family.

In his state of annoyance and confusion, Hugo summoned the butler.

"Spread the news that Matthew is insane and sees human life as worthless. The Keller Family and Matthew are at odds and will not stop until one side is destroyed!"

However, from the perspective of the news, the Keller Family's announcement was somewhat belated. After all, Osiris, the eldest son of the Keller Family, was killed by Matthew. Now, declaring this opposition made it seem like they were a bit slow to react.
