

Chapter 2718 Clearing Suspicion

While addressing the camera, Matthew uploaded the photos and videos of the crime scene on the cruise ship to the internet.

Initially, Olivia believed that Matthew was doomed, as he publicly claimed to be the true culprit behind the Victorious Cruise incident.

However, as she listened to Matthew's explanation, her eyebrows furrowed even more.

The viewers watching the live stream were also perplexed. What nonsense was Matthew talking about? Covering four hundred nautical miles in half an hour at a speed of eight hundred nautical miles per hour? Killing over two thousand people in a minute? It was utter nonsense.

However, when everyone saw the photos and videos online, they were instantly shocked. It was actually true.

Many of those who died were renowned wealthy tycoons from around the world.

Millions of viewers who were watching the live stream went into a frenzy, and the content spread like wildfire.

Many people living near the area where Victorious Cruise was immediately went to the sea in their own boats to investigate.

The news that was originally only circulating among the upper class quickly became known to everyone.

Investigation Report:

"The Victorious Cruise tragedy!

Time of death: between 10:30 and 10:35, with only one survivor named Solon Durham out of 2,100 passengers.

According to the surveillance footage of Concordia Pier, Matthew set sail at 9:57.

At the time of the incident, the distance between the Victorious Cruise on the high seas and Concordia Pier was 467 nautical miles.

The list of casualties is as follows:

..."

"Updates on the latest progress of the investigation will be posted on the official website."

This was an investigation report released by the World Security Association, so its authority was unquestionable.

Compared to the kidnapping of Solon by Matthew, the murder case of those on board the cruise was evidently more intriguing, making it the center of attention worldwide.

Through word of mouth, the news that was originally only circulating among the upper class became widely known.

Olivia stared at the investigation report, gritting her teeth.

"D*mn you, Matthew! You used me to sensationalize the Victorious Cruise incident!"

In her anger, she smashed her phone. It was impossible to cover a distance of nearly 400 nautical miles in half an hour, even with a helicopter, let alone Matthew's two weak warships.

With the release of this investigation report, Matthew's suspicion was completely cleared, and everyone knew that he was not the killer.

The biggest contributor to Matthew's completion of this task was none other than the generous and righteous Olivia.

Although this exclusive news brought her great achievements and several world-class top-ranking newspapers reached out to her to hire her, just the thought of being foolishly used by Matthew made her extremely unhappy.

"D*mn it! Just you wait. One day, I will make you fall from grace."

Olivia stared fiercely at the newspaper in front of her, and the soda can in her hand already crushed.

On the other hand, Solon's situation was not any better.

"How about it? Surprised?"

After locking his tablet, Matthew had a wicked smile on his face.

In front of him, Solon, lying on the hospital bed, was already in despair. In just a day or two, he went from being the leader to the number one suspect, and he was even under house arrest. It couldn't get any more tragic.

Solon looked at Matthew's victorious smile, and a surge of anger rose within him.

"Don't glare at me, it's useless. I have already distanced myself from the center of the storm. Besides saving you, I have nothing to do with the Victorious Cruise, but you are in a miserable state. Instead of futile anger and roaring, you should think about how to face the consequences of the powerful forces behind the deceased."

Solon was taken aback and turned his head to look at Matthew. "What do you mean?"

Matthew smiled, picked up a fruit knife, sat on the couch, and leisurely started peeling an apple.

"I have cleared my name. So, as the only survivor of the Victorious Cruise, your identity is awkward."

"D*mn it! I am also a victim. Look at these injuries on my body! I almost died. They can't just push all the blame onto me."

"You can't say that. As long as you don't have solid evidence to prove that you are not the killer, you'll never be able to clear your name. There's nothing you can do. After all, you are the only one left alive on the entire cruise ship."

After tossing the fruit peel into the trash can, Matthew took a big bite.

"Mmm, so sweet!"