

Chapter 2796 Stubber Family Reception

The "Overseas Marine Project" was executed exactly as Matthew had described. Within two days of his announcement, the port of Concordia was bustling with cruise ships, and luxury cars arrived in droves. Witnessing this momentum, the Stubber and Perryvall Families worked overnight to establish a new parking lot, ensuring the parking needs of all guests were met. These were just the first group of guests, and many more were still on their way.

When Matthew came to inspect the arrangements at the Stubber Family, which served as the primary reception venue, everything had been cleared and spruced up. The entire family estate looked as if it had undergone a thorough renovation, appearing refreshed and renewed.

All the rooms had been prepared as guest accommodations. The Perryvall Family had done the same, with their members staying in hotels. Unfortunately, in a remote and economically modest place like Concordia, there were only two or three upscale hotels, all of which had been fully booked, leaving no room for them to stay. If there had been enough time, Mr. Stubber and Tavish Perryvall would have even considered building a luxury hotel on the spot.

As Matthew observed the bustling activity of the servants, his expression suddenly froze. He unexpectedly spotted an old acquaintance, Warrick Stubber, among the reception staff.

"Holy Doctor Larson, what brings you here? These people are so disorganized that they don't know how to receive you."

Turning around, Matthew saw Mr. Stubber approaching with a warm smile.

"Hey, somebody, get Young Master Larson some tea! In a split second, he changed his tone and said, "Forget it. These people are clumsy. Let me prepare the tea." After Mr. Stubber spoke, he briskly went to prepare the tea.

Seeing Mr. Stubber, the person who once desired to kill Matthew, now having to bow and scrape before him, showed how ironic and lamentable the situation was.

"Isambard, don't bother. I just came to take a look and will leave soon."

"Hehe, it's no bother at all. It's just pouring a cup of tea. Here, Young Master Larson."

After receiving the tea, Matthew thanked Mr. Stubber for organizing the reception.

"Young Master Larson, we are more than happy to have the reception at our Stubber Family. How could we consider it a bother? However, after this matter, I hope Young Master Larson can overlook the previous incident."

Towards the end, his tone becomes hesitant as the former bodyguard had transformed into Master Burke, who can destroy the Keller Family. The difference in power made Mr. Stubber approach Matthew Larson with trepidation.

Matthew naturally understood his implication. "After this matter is settled, consider Maria's issue water under the bridge."

Initially, under Enzo Gavell's leadership, Mr. Stubber and Tavish Perryvall also wanted to kill Matthew. However, Matthew had been preoccupied with various matters and did not have the chance to deal with them. As a result, the Stubber and Perryvall Families were completely subdued by the crown prince and posed no threat to Matthew.

Upon hearing these words, Mr. Stubber was overjoyed. He poured tea more skillfully with the heavy burden lifted from his heart.

"Thank you, Young Master Larson. You're magnanimous. I assure you, the reception will be handled with utmost care."

Mr. Stubber and Tavish Perryvall arranged for their family members to work as waiters to prevent any unforeseen incidents. Undoubtedly, they had put a lot of thought into the event.

"Alright, Mr. Stubber, I am grateful for handling the reception. The first meeting tomorrow at noon will be a simple introduction. There's no need for too much formality. When it comes to the formal banquet, we'll count on Mr. Stubber then."

"Young Master Larson, rest assured. I'll coordinate the specific reception arrangements with the crown prince's team."

Through this invitation for cooperation, Matthew aimed to deal with the Keller Family, establish his network, and eliminate them through this operation.