

Chapter 2803 The True Identity Of Rocco Santon

"Mr. Larson, I apologize. We didn't know any better. Please give us another chance."

After witnessing Matthew's extensive network of connections, the remorseful guests wanted to try again, hoping to align themselves with this influential figure.

However, he paid them no attention.

"I already gave you all a chance just now, but you didn't appreciate it. Do you want to backtrack now? Don't you think it's childish?"

He understood the pursuit of interests by businessmen, but he couldn't accept this kind of mockery from those who had switched sides after benefiting from him.

The crown prince couldn't believe they were shamelessly standing their ground, seemingly wanting to fight for another chance. His temper flared up instantly. "You all better leave. If it weren't for Matthew's intervention, I would have broken the legs of you traitors."

The people in front of him, who had witnessed the ruthless actions of this man, were instantly shocked. Seeing that there was no hope in appealing to Mr. Larson, they could only leave the scene dejectedly.

The remaining few guests had a different mindset. If nothing unexpected happened, they would have already found a powerful figure to support them.

Matthew was extremely polite to them. After filtering out those who had switched sides, the few people in front of him became his future collaborators.

"Thank you all for your support. Now that it's just us few, there's no need to continue this first meeting.

Everyone can take a break for now. Let's discuss the plan to bring down the Keller Family in detail during the formal banquet in a few days."

At this point, he no longer needed to hide anything.

"Well, Mr. Larson, you're busy, so we'll take our leave!"

Although the conflict of the first meeting had come to an end, everything that had happened here proceeded at lightning speed. Some forces within Seraphis who were originally observing the situation decided to join Matthew's camp, while those who were still on their way increased their speed in their desire to arrive at Concordia as quickly as possible.

The situation in Seraphis was turbulent, and the Montiria Royal Family was equally unsettled.

As the helicopter landed, a young man dressed in a black robe emerged. As soon as he touched the ground, a maid quickly approached to greet him.

"Mr. Rocco, the crown prince is waiting for you!"

Rocco, dressed in a black robe, nodded calmly and followed the crown prince's personal maid into the luxurious villa.

After he entered, the tall and handsome prince was already waiting. "Mr. Rocco, please have a seat! You've worked hard during this period!"

Rocco was an important part of Seraphis' plan, and his outstanding abilities and strategies were highly valued by the prince, so he was always addressed as "Mr."

"Your Highness, you are too kind. It is my honor to serve you."

After a polite remark, Rocco began to report all the recent intelligence and mission progress.

"Nowadays, Gadel's naval forces have almost mobilized completely, using the pretext of training exercises to completely block the Keller Family's maritime transportation."

Toby sighed lightly after hearing this.

"Prince Gadel is quite unlucky. Not only can I not send him off, but Matthew also escaped from his clutches. By the way, I have observed Prince Gadel's composure. It seems that he already knows that the Keller Family is behind this. Otherwise, with his temperament, he wouldn't be so eager to take action against them."

Rocco understood Toby's meaning, and as soon as the prince finished speaking, he explained, "I only revealed a little information to the Keller Family, so he's only aware that I'm working for a prince. He can't guess it's you, Your Highness."

The prince nodded in satisfaction. "Mr. Rocco, I trust your abilities! By the way, how is the situation in Druira?"

In recent years, Druira had also been eyeing the Montiria Royal Family. The reason was that the current king of Montiria was in his twilight years and could pass away at any time, but he had been stubbornly clinging onto the throne and refused to designate a new king.

Once he died suddenly, the several princes would definitely fight for the throne, and it would be a good opportunity for Druira to invade Montiria when the Montiria Royal Family was in chaos.