

Chapter 2817 The Astonishing Effects Of The Longevity Pills

Matthew stepped onto the podium, meeting the gaze of countless eyes. After spending so much time in Seraphis, he finally had the opportunity to implement his plan.

"Firstly, I would like to thank everyone for attending this banquet I hosted. I hope you won't mind the small token of appreciation."

As he spoke, the waitstaff brought delicate medicine boxes into the banquet. It was Matthew's previous promise, the Longevity Pill. Accepting it meant silently agreeing to join Matthew in opposing the Keller Family.

The guests were well aware of this, but none of them hesitated. They were here either to gain favor or benefit from the Keller Family's downfall. Of course, many showed a conflicted expression after receiving the pill. Who would not want to live a few more years? However, the ease of obtaining the pill made many skeptical.

"Young Master Larson, does it truly have the effect of prolonging life?"

It had always been like this: people had the tendency to underestimate things that were easily obtained.

"Certainly, the pill is known as the 'Longevity Pill.' While it cannot guarantee a hundred years of life, it can extend your lifespan. I can vouch for this with my reputation as a Cathay Holy Doctor."

His identity as a Cathay Holy Doctor was well known to many forces in Seraphis, so it was not surprising when he mentioned it again. Upon receiving his answer, the guest who questioned nodded and said no more. They had no idea how valuable the title of Cathay Holy Doctor was, but they knew it would not deceive them. They were just unsure about the pill's effectiveness.

"To add on, it's best to take this pill when you return to your residence or home."

Matthew's reminder surprised several guests who had already taken the longevity pill. Why did he not choose to mention this earlier? The guests were trying to have a quick gulp, but it was too late. The pill was already in their stomachs.

A few seconds later, these people felt their intestines churning. The rumbling noise caught the attention of others. By the time everyone's gaze shifted, these people had already rushed out of the scene, clutching their stomachs. Before anyone could ask questions, Matthew explained the guests' reactions toward the pill.

"The principle of the Longevity Pill is to expel negative energy and impurities from the body, thereby improving the body and achieving longevity."

He did not remind everyone at the beginning because he had his intentions. How could others be convinced without anyone testing the pill and witnessing its effects? How could he take the lead in the subsequent negotiations? Merchants were driven by profit, and mere threats would not make them submit. The necessary incentives still need to be provided. After waiting for a while, the guests who had left finally returned. But when they rushed back into the venue, everyone looked surprised.

The few who became the center of attention were confused. What happened? Was it necessary to pay so much attention just because they went to the restroom?

"Old Master Telk, you seem to have become much younger!"

"What nonsense are you talking about? I just went to the restroom. How could I become younger?"

As he said this, he looked at Matthew with resentment. If it were not for Matthew's late reminder, he would not have been embarrassed in front of many peers. However, his thoughts changed when several female guests handed him a mirror.

Staring at his reflection in the mirror, he was too stunned to utter a word. He did appear considerably younger. The white hair on his head had significantly reduced, and the wrinkles around his eyes had faded. His rejuvenated face was a miraculous tonic to him.

"Mr. Matthew Larson, is there a way to purchase this medicine?"

"Young Master Larson, our Seraphis Pharmaceutical Group wants to be the distributor of this Longevity Pill. What would be the cost?"

Witnessing the phenomenal results of the Longevity Pill, the guests were overjoyed, enthusiastically pursuing more of the pills for their age-defying purposes.
