

Chapter 2871 Sasha Comes To Concordia

"Not necessarily!"

Mortimer, who sat on the side, spoke up. "Our spies in Druira and Montiria haven't found anything unusual."

The thought of the evidence left at the scene that day made his face turn extremely serious. The cost of kidnapping a Summit Warden was too high, as it was a blatant provocation to the Martial League. Various possibilities flashed through his mind, but he couldn't guess who was behind it.

After contemplating for a while, he finally spoke.

"I think we may have gone in the wrong direction. Could it be that Matthew has been taken into the deep mountains?"

Everyone fell into deep thought. Half of Seraphis' territory, which spanned millions of square kilometers, was occupied by mountains, so what Mortimer had said was not unreasonable.

"What are you waiting for? Hurry up and take your comrades into the mountains to find him! How am I supposed to explain this if my sister-in-law finds out?"

The crown prince was as troubled by Sasha as ever. He and Matthew were technically superiors and subordinates, but in reality, they were like brothers. Now that Matthew had gone missing, how was the crown prince supposed to explain it to her?

These past few days, the crown prince had received several calls from her, but he could only say that Matthew was in seclusion for cultivation in order not to worry her. However, the crown prince couldn't keep this from her forever; he had to find Matthew as soon as possible.

Just as Fitz was about to set off, the door was pushed open. The crown prince was shocked and stood up after seeing the visitor.

"Sasha, why are you here? Matthew is in seclusion for cultivation and won't be able to see you for a few days," lied the crown prince, secretly cursing his luck. It was exactly what he had been afraid of.

"Well, I'm already here. Are you still planning to hide this from me?"

The crown prince was taken aback. "Sasha, you already know about this?"

"I didn't at first, but seeing how flustered you are, I'm sure that something has happened to Matthew."

Sasha had been feeling uneasy, and Matthew hadn't contacted her for several days, so she had a bad feeling. Seeing the crown prince's nervous expression, her heart thumped, and she couldn't help but feel a lump in her throat. However, she didn't cry and managed to hold back her tears after taking a few deep breaths.

The crown prince felt like slapping himself for messing up at this crucial moment, but when looking up at Sasha, who didn't seem panicked even if she looked tired, he felt slightly relieved.

"Sasha, it's my fault. I couldn't take care of him properly, and he was kidnapped."

"How did my husband go missing? Can you tell me in detail?"

Sasha forced a smile on her face. She was more worried about Matthew's disappearance than anyone else, and her strong appearance was just a facade. After all, she had come all the way to Concordia to help, not to cause trouble.

It wasn't until the crown prince had finished explaining the situation that night that she felt slightly relieved. "Since they only took my husband away, they don't want to harm him. Crown Prince, you don't have to blame yourself; if they could take him away, you wouldn't have been able to stop them anyway. Could you please give me a copy of the search information?"

She shouldn't be fragile and seemed extraordinarily strong at this moment.

"Alright, Sasha. You can go upstairs and rest for a while. I'll let you know as soon as I have any news."

"Thank you for your hard work!" Sasha greeted and thanked everyone present, then went alone to Matthew's room on the second floor.

Opening the wardrobe, she looked at the ordinary clothes inside and smiled faintly. "You still don't care about appearances!"

After murmuring to herself, the tears in the corners of her eyes finally couldn't hold still and slowly fell. No matter how strong she pretended to be, she was still Matthew's wife.
