

Chapter 2898 Protecting Ivy's Celebration From Interference

Sasha, an ordinary person, persevered throughout the journey, even when faced with the exhaustion of the crown prince and others. However, her mental strength had long been depleted and she would have collapsed if it weren't for her belief. Now, as she witnessed Matthew, whom her group had tirelessly searched for, getting married to another woman, her belief instantly crumbled, leaving her feeling completely drained.

Her limbs weakened, her vision darkened, and tears streamed down her face as she collapsed. Kasen, who was beside her, acted quickly and supported her.

"Miss Cunningham, what's wrong? Please wake up."

However, at that moment, Matthew was being guided by his attendants to perform the wedding ceremony. The lively cheers from the crowd drowned out Kasen's cries for help. Moreover, Kasen had no medical skills. Upon seeing Sasha faint, the panicked Kasen immediately supported her and intended to seek Matthew's assistance.

But just as he was about to move, two unfamiliar figures suddenly appeared before him.

"Sir, you seem unfamiliar. You're probably not from our mountain, right?"

"Yes. We're here to find Mr. Larson. I am his subordinate, and this lady is Mr. Larson's wife. We urgently need Mr. Larson's help in treating someone."

The two guards glanced at each other and saw a hint of surprise in each other's eyes. It was embarrassing to discover that this young man was already married. However, after a moment of hesitation, they decided not to interfere with the joyous occasion of Ivy's wedding.

"Sorry, but today is the wedding day for Mr. Larson and Miss Ivy. Let's discuss any matters tomorrow."

In their hearts, the two guards had already made up their minds. Regardless of whether Kasen's words were true or false, they would not disturb the joyous occasion of Miss Ivy's marriage.

"But... this is Mr. Larson's wife and she is currently unconscious..."

Before Kasen could finish speaking, the guard's expression darkened. "Sir, I don't know how you managed to enter, but since today is Miss Ivy's wedding day, we won't pursue it. However, if you insist on causing trouble, don't blame us for being impolite."

As soon as one of the guards finished speaking, a terrifying aura emanated from the two guards.

Kasen knew that he was no match for them. He glanced at Matthew in the distance with a look of unwillingness, then quickly picked up Sasha and rushed toward Paintaker's direction.

"As husband and wife, you may now enter the bridal chamber!"

As the ceremonial emcee finished his sentence, Matthew was escorted into a brand-new thatched house. The cheers behind him never stopped. Although the wedding was simple, the atmosphere was lively.

After the doors and windows of the thatched house were closed, the crowd slowly dispersed toward the direction of the banquet. Of course, the congratulatory voices for the sect master did not cease during this time.

The interior of the thatched house was simply decorated, with everything being new, except for the two red candles on the table as the only decoration.

Matthew was still in a hazy state of consciousness, as the potency of the wine had almost sealed off all his acupoints, leaving him with no room to defend himself despite his extraordinary medical skills. Just then, a woman's voice of complaint suddenly reached his ears.

"Dad got you drunk and didn't even think to force the alcohol out of your system, making us the laughingstock."

As soon as the woman finished her sentence, Matthew felt a warm current surging into his body, gradually releasing all his acupoints along its path.

First, he moved his fingers, then clenched his fists. The strong smell of alcohol was instantly shaken off his body and he sprang up from the bed like a carp leaping out of water.

After taking a few steps back, he looked at the unfamiliar woman before him and asked, "Who are you?"
