

Chapter 3021 Timely Intervention

Matthew listened to Leanna's briefing as he swiftly reviewed the documents.

His face turned gloomy as he processed the implications.

"Their objective is clear. They intend to act promptly and manipulate the Cathay coastal cities so that they can gain profits."

Leanna nodded in agreement. "Exactly."

"At first, they are using Montiria's construction project as a cover to pour in substantial investments. These companies will expand their factories to fulfill the orders. However, they were not aware that Montiria is actually faking equipment manufacturers."

It was only the first step of Montiria's global strategy.

As major enterprises increased production, the market would become flooded with products.

The enterprises had put all their resources into developing their business. Once the international agents halted their purchases, there would be a lot of unsold goods in warehouses.

Consequently, there would be an impending crisis.

When the enterprises couldn't suffer the loss, the international agents would take the opportunity to acquire surplus at low prices with different identities and eventually gain profits.

Shivers ran down Matthew's spine as he thought about the situation. It was a calculated plan that trapped the involved companies.

"Can we secretly reach out to these companies without being discovered by Montiria?"

Leanna frowned upon hearing Matthew's words as she nodded. However, she then shook her head and replied, "There's a possibility, but these people are driven by greed. Besides, many of them bet on everything. It's hard to convince them to stop. The success rate is low."

Businessmen were like gamblers. Once hooked, they wouldn't stop.

As Matthew listened to Leanna's explanation, his fingers drummed on the table swiftly.

The atmosphere in the office became oppressive.

After much consideration, Matthew let out a long sigh as he said, "Quickly spread this information and present all the evidence. If they don't want to stop, we'll force them."

In fact, he never wanted to resort to such measures. However, each passing day meant more companies would face ruin.

"Also, convene all members of the Seraphis Great Commercial Union. We're going to have an online conference."

Leanna gestured in agreement and quickly contacted the members.

Five minutes later, the news of fake orders spread in the industry through the Creative Cloud Group and various publications.

Upon learning the news, some observant enterprises halted production and sold their inventories.

The multinational agents quickly reacted. They pretended to defend themselves and persuaded the Cathay suppliers to continue the production.

Nevertheless, they secretly stop all collaborations.

By the next day, the hesitant manufacturers realized that they had been deceived. As they looked at the surplus stockpiles, they fell into depression.

Meanwhile, Leanna had some new information.

"They're acting fast. Once the news was spread, the multinational corporations instantly reacted."

Matthew shook his head. He knew that if someone acted carelessly while confronting this kind of financial battle, it could lead to disaster.

"What's the situation?"

"It's not really good. There are 267 affected companies. Only 29 of them make profits, while the others are all deceived. From a rough estimate, the agents from Montiria managed to earn three million from this scheme. This is happening despite our efforts to interfere."
