

Mia is Not 29

Chapter 29: Mia Changed Her Name

After Amelia gradually calmed down, Old Madam Walton said: "Mia, are you feeling better now? It's indeed Sister Emma's fault. Mia didn't do anything wrong.

Old Master Walton also said, "That's right. Mia is very good. Mia is a very sensible child."

Old Madam Walton continued: "Mia is Grandma's precious baby." It was like a relay between the two of them, complimenting Amelia one after the other.

This was the first time Amelia was complimented like this. She shyly hugged

Seven and said: 'Grandpa and Grandma are also precious babies.'

Old Master Walton and Old Madam Walton were stunned for a moment before bursting into laughter.

George was having a meeting in the study, and he didn't know that Amelia and Emma had a fight until he came out. He frowned and stood at the door to watch Old Master Walton and Old Madam Walton play with Amelia, his heart hurting slightly.

Seeing Dylan walk over, George said in a low voice, "Second Brother, you have to resolve this matter." When Sarah Wilson first married into the family, although Dylan did not have any feelings for her, his days were passable because he already had a son, Harper. It was only when Emma was born that everyone knew the truth. Dylan wanted a divorce, but the Wilson family refused. The Walton family was also exhausted from looking for Helena because of her sister's disappearance. Dylan's divorce had dragged on until now.

Dylan said in a muffled voice, "I know, but the two children are already so old now. I'm worried that the divorce will affect them." No matter what, Harper and Emma were his children. Although they did not spend much time together, he could not bear to part with them.

George nodded. Every family had their own difficulties. He could not make a decision for Dylan's life. He only said, "Deal with it as you see fit."

The two of them looked at Amelia's room again, and she was in a much better mood now. She was discussing the name change with Old Madam Walton, and she said, "Mommy hoped that I can live a peaceful life without experiencing any hardships, so she named me Amelia." She sounded cute and serious, as if she wanted to recite what her mother had said word for word.

Old Madam Walton felt a lump in her throat. "Mia's name is good. Your mother's surname is Walton, and her name is Helena. In the future, Mia's surname will also be Walton, and your name will be Amelia, okay?"

Amelia Miller, no, now Amelia Walton, nodded happily. Her last name was Walton, the same as Mommy, she was very happy.

As she spoke, Old Madam Walton asked again, "Is Mia three years old this year?"

Amelia thought for a moment. "I think so, but I think I'm almost four years old. My birthday is on March 17th. Mommy said that I'll be a year older after my birthday."

Everyone paused. March 17th? That would be a week later. In a week, Mia would be four years old. Old Madam Walton said, "That's great. We can hold a birthday party for Mia and buy a super big cake for Mia, okay? Mia can make a wish in front of the cake."

Amelia's eyes lit up. "Really?" She could have a big birthday cake too?

When Old Madam Walton saw Amelia's happy expression, she couldn't help but ask, "How were Mia's previous birthdays celebrated?"

Amelia shook her head. "Mia has never celebrated birthdays. Daddy said that he doesn't have time to celebrate for me. Moreover, my new mother doesn't like cakes. She said that she will vomit if she sees cakes." Every time it was her birthday, she would carefully tell her grandparents that she was not greedy and just wanted a small cake. However, her grandparents would say, what cake? Did they think that everyone was not busy enough? Therefore, Amelia had never celebrated her birthday and was looking forward to it.

She heard from other children that there was cake to eat on their birthdays and they could make wishes in front of the cakes. She wanted her Mommy to lead a happy life with Sister Cloud, Grandpa Sun, and Grandma Moon in the sky. She hoped that her grandparents would be healthy and live a long life. She hoped that everyone would be happy.

When Old Madam Walton heard Amelia say that she had never celebrated her birthday, her eyes turned red and she almost cried again.

At dinner time, everyone in the Walton family returned. This was the first time the Walton family was so lively after four years. At the dining table, Old Master Walton told them about Amelia's name change and also about Amelia's upcoming birthday. He asked everyone what they thought and how they should celebrate. This stumped the eight uncles. The big shots who were usually all-powerful racked their brains. For a moment, the dining table was terrifyingly quiet..
