

Chapter 171: I Want to Trust Him Once

Liam was still somewhat surprised as he observed Suzy's uncompromising demeanor.

He had never seen Suzy so adamant before.

At work, although she wouldn't get close to any of her colleagues, she wouldn't hold grudges against them, focusing all her thoughts on work.

However, thinking about it, it's not hard to understand! After all, considering the circumstances, it wasn't hard to understand! It was normal for her to dislike Sophia.

"Don't worry, once we can prove she's the culprit, the company will administer appropriate punishment."

"Yeah, I trust you."

Suzy didn't want to constantly argue with Liam because of Sophia.

After all, there were still many problems she had to deal with today, and Melissa was one of them.

...

Standing outside the hospital, Suzy looked up at the building, pondering how to break the news to her mother.

Grace couldn't accept their relationship while Melissa wasn't in the best of health.

After much deliberation, Suzy gritted her teeth and stepped inside.

When Suzy first arrived in the morning, Melissa was undergoing rehabilitation to strengthen her weakened leg muscles. So, Melissa didn't notice anything wrong with her daughter.

It wasn't until they were leaving the rehabilitation room that Melissa noticed Suzy's unusually quiet demeanor, while Suzy was supporting her.

"What's wrong?"

Suzy tensed up, shaking her head. "Nothing, it's nothing."

"You've never been good at lying. Spit it out, what's happened?"
Melissa stopped and looked at her.

The hospital corridor was bustling with people coming and going. Although nobody paid attention to them, it still added invisible pressure on Suzy.

Seeing her hesitate, Melissa suddenly asked, "Have you broken up with that Mr. Park?"

"Mom, between him and me..."

"Don't tell me you've developed feelings for each other!" Melissa cut to the chase, after all, she raised her daughter and understood her somewhat.

"Suzy, I've told you before, we shouldn't aspire to enter high society! Don't seek wealth through relationships! We're not in the same league as those upper-class folks. If they were to get tired of you one day, you wouldn't have the means to defend yourself!"

Melissa had experienced and understood the reality of society over the years.

If her natal family had been of higher status than the Chase family back then, they wouldn't have dared to treat her like this!

Unfortunately, she not only fell short of surpassing her family background but also found herself confronted with a significant disparity in status, resulting in relentless bullying at their hands.

Now, her daughter was following in her footsteps, choosing a man with an even more prestigious family background than the Chase family's.

How terrifying that was!

Melissa was well aware that if her daughter were to suffer injustice, bullying, or oppression in the Park family, even if she were to risk her life, she wouldn't be able to seek any justice for her!

At times, there were numerous things that one simply couldn't accomplish, not due to lack of will, but because they were genuinely impossible.

The Park family could effortlessly hide everything, not only within Northorn City but also across the country. To put it bluntly, her daughter could meet a tragic fate in the Park family, with no recourse for justice.

"Mom, he's really good to me."

"Do you think, if your father hadn't been good to me back then, I would have married him wholeheartedly?"

Suzy was speechless.

Melissa sneered. "Men, when they're passionate about you, there's nothing they won't do, no vows they won't make. You're still young, so you're being blinded by him!"

Suzy had expected her mother to say these things, but this time she didn't waver.

"I want to trust him once."

"As expected of my daughter." Melissa's expression turned grim. "Fine, if you choose not to break up with him, then don't bother visiting me again. Don't see me, and don't even call me mom."

Comments

Support