

Chapter 178: Our Home

Liam had grown accustomed to waiting for Suzy.

He had waited all these years, so waiting a short while like this meant nothing to him.

As the sunset's fading light dimmed, Suzy looked up at him.

Years had gone by, but his face showed no signs of aging; he still looked youthful.

"You should smile more often, don't always keep a straight face."

"Mm, okay." Liam nodded, and only after Suzy had gotten into the car did he move to the driver's seat.

Today, he hadn't brought along his assistant. The drive home made Suzy feel as if they were just an ordinary couple, returning home from work together, cooking dinner together, and then falling asleep in each other's arms.

Unfortunately...

Liam was no ordinary man.

Chapter 178: Our Home

Suzy wanted to ask about his mother, but after much thought, she decided against it.

She didn't want to break the peaceful intimacy of their moment together.

Upon arriving at Easter Bay, Liam changed clothes and headed to the kitchen, with Suzy following him.

"Let me cook today, you take a rest."

Though he always claimed he wasn't tired, the fatigue was evident on his face! Suzy knew how much responsibility lay on his shoulders each day at Park Group, and despite his busy schedule, he still made time for her.

"I want to spend more time with you." Liam didn't leave; instead, he continued preparing the vegetables.

Suzy smiled and joined in, both enjoying their time alone together.

However, this pleasant moment was short-lived, as soon a doorbell rang from outside.

Liam paused what he was doing, and he instinctively looked towards Suzy, who hesitated before speaking, "Should I hide? Is it someone from your family?"

"No matter who's at the door, there's no need for you to hide."

"But..."

"Suzy, this is your home, our home."

His words inexplicably gave Suzy a lot of courage.

She nodded. "Okay, then let's go to the door together."

As they approached the entrance, the intercom system showed the visitor—it was Sophia.

Liam's brows furrowed, and Suzy could feel his reluctance to see Sophia.

After a brief pause, Suzy spoke softly, "You talk to Miss Burn. I'll go cook in the kitchen. Even if you're not fond of her, let's keep things peaceful for now to help keep your mother calm. You should avoid having any conflict with her."

She didn't want to see Sophia, so she preferred to leave.

Suzy had spent more than half her life taking care of Melissa, so she empathized with Liam's current situation. He still had to be concerned about his mother's health, placing him in a tough spot.

It was just that he never complained.

"Okay." Liam felt it wasn't the right time for them to meet, so he agreed.

Watching Suzy return to the kitchen, Liam then opened the door.

However, he made no move to invite Sophia inside, merely standing at the doorway.

"What is it?"

"Mr. William just told me that you agreed to pretend to be a couple with me."

Liam's brows furrowed deeply. "I didn't say that."

"Oh, then forget I came! Mr. William told me you had agreed, and he asked me to come find you so we could visit your mother at the hospital together. Since that's not the case, I'll just leave." After saying this, Sophia turned to leave.

Suddenly, Liam called out to her.

"Miss Burns, Clive mentioned that I should remember your contributions to Park Group and show you some grace."
