

Chapter 180: Sophia's Strategy

As if sensing her presence, Liam instinctively looked in a certain direction and immediately caught Suzy's gaze.

"I'll wait for you."

After sending the message, he promptly opened his work application to review documents.

Ever since Suzy came into his life, Liam no longer wanted to return to Easter Bay alone! He felt that it only felt like a home when it had its lady of the house.

As he started his work, he was ready to pull an all-nighter, intending to take only a short nap in the morning before heading to the office. His main concern was any problems that might arise for Suzy that he couldn't handle immediately.

Time ticked by, and close to midnight, Liam was surprised to see Suzy hurrying out of the hospital entrance!

She saw Liam's car and quickly walked up to knock on the window.

"Surprised? Bet you didn't expect me to come out!"

Liam smiled and stepped out of the car, "Yes, is your mother alright?"

"There's not much problem; she just had a heart attack after getting scared, but she's asleep now! There are doctors and nurses looking after her, so I came out."

Suzy had seen the "I'll wait for you" message from Liam on WhatsApp, and knew if she didn't join him to return to Easter Bay tonight, he would have planned to wait at the hospital all night.

So after taking care of her mother's situation, she immediately came down!

Given Liam's heavy daily workload and his already scarce rest, she wanted to let him go home and rest properly.

"So, can you leave now?"

"Yes, let's go home."

After speaking, Suzy got into the passenger seat.

Liam looked at her profile and suddenly asked, "

"How is your mother's condition now? Should we consider transferring her to another hospital?"

Suzy was startled. "The surgery's already done, why move to another hospital now? She's just undergoing rehabilitation and can be discharged once she's able to take care of herself."

"I was thinking about moving her to a better place for recovery."

"No need, she's used to it here."

Suzy didn't think much of it, and feeling exhausted from all the busyness, she soon fell asleep.

On the way back, she spoke only a few words to Liam before drifting off.

When the car arrived at Easter Bay, Suzy was still asleep. Liam carried her to the bedroom.

Seeing the figure curled up on the bed, he felt a strong sense of ownership. This was why Liam was so eager for their intimate moments.

It seemed only by holding her in his arms, being with her, seeing her cheeks flush for him, could he affirm that this wasn't a dream, but reality.

Chapter 180: Sophia's Strategy

The person he had longed for since his youth truly belonged to him now.

The next morning, Suzy was woken up by a call from Wendy.

"Sophia has resigned voluntarily and even posted a long article on social media, admitting that it was her who accidentally leaked the documents!"

Upon hearing this, Suzy immediately went online to check it out.

As Suzy had expected, Sophia's admission did not put an end to the matter, but rather sparked new debates!

The comments were filled with people consoling Sophia, the perpetrator, suggesting she might have been threatened, or even praising her for being overly compassionate. Some claimed she confessed to the leak to prevent harming the employee's future!

The post didn't explain how the sabotage happened, and even the motive was vaguely and weakly described, making it appear deliberately fabricated.

This was Sophia's strategy—she knew how to advance by retreating.

By using such a strategy, even if it were later proven that Sophia was framing Suzy, some might suspect that the evidence was fabricated, just a tactic to clear Suzy's name.
