

The Miraculous Simone Gray by Opal Reese Chapter 301-310

Chapter 301 Unaccustomed

Jodie and Andrew found themselves in a situation they were not used to and had no choice but to stay. The female shop assistant treated them like regular colleagues, leading them to the display area and saying, "These clothes are for models to wear and showcase. You can pick a few to try on yourselves."

Jodie's expression turned sour as she asked the shop assistant. "Have we to pick them ourselves? Then, why do we need you?" Isn't this person here to serve me?

The female shop assistant was initially puzzled. She didn't expect this person to speak so harshly. Is he treating me like a servant?

She frowned and replied, "We are all working here. I brought you here to choose clothes, not serve you. Besides, I'm afraid you won't like what I pick. After all, the two of you have much going on in the live variety show."

Jodie was unhappy with the shop assistant's response. "Didn't the boss lady ask you to bring us here and help us choose clothes?" As a star and a daughter of a wealthy family, coming here to work as a model, he felt superior to this female shop assistant.

"We wouldn't need you otherwise." She was furious at the shop assistant's attitude and felt that it was outrageous as she thought the shop assistant should be serving them.

The shop assistant had dealt with many customers and was particularly repelled by Jodie's condescending attitude. She said, "Wait until you become the customer god another day, then we'll talk. This isn't the Gray Family. This isn't a place where you can act like young masters and young ladies. If you're not happy, you can leave anytime. Here, we don't necessarily need you to be models."

When no customers were in the store, they would watch live variety shows with the boss lady.

They hated this fairy-like Innocent Lily, followed by Mr. Andrew, who was self-righteous.

Then, there were the other two brothers from the Gray Family.

These two were not customers, so the shop assistant refused to serve them.

They were just employees. Who did they think they were, acting like pampered young masters and mistresses, needing a servant by their side?

The Innocent Lily thought too highly of herself.

The boss lady disliked them, so the shop assistant wasn't afraid.

Jodie didn't expect a shop assistant to have such a bad attitude.

Chapter 301 Unaccustomed

She was furious. "We're not familiar with the clothes in the store. That's why we asked for your help."

"Otherwise, we wouldn't need you."

The shop assistant glanced at her and said, "Innocent Lily like you, I can't find clothes that match your style. So, choose on your own, wear whatever you like. After all, everything here is acceptable. When you're done, change into them yourself. Then, find the makeup artist to do your makeup, and you can start working. I have to greet customers, so I'm leaving."

After saying that, she turned and left, clearly not wanting to serve the two of them.

Jodie couldn't hold back and stomped her foot. "What kind of service attitude is this? It's too much. With this attitude, you would have been reported long ago in other places."

Another staff member overheard the conversation and said, "Please understand that we are all just working. No one is superior to anyone else. So why do you have the right to order others around? You have hands, feet, and eyes. Can't you do it yourself?"

This Innocent Lily is so funny, acting like a customer god.

If it were a customer causing trouble, they could endure it, but facing this annoying Innocent Lily? They couldn't patiently serve her with kind words, especially since she was also mysterious and capable of borrowing others' luck.

If they got along well, what if she suddenly borrowed their luck?

Jodie was choked. "You're bullying me."

The female shop assistant innocently said, "We're just telling the truth. How are we bullying you? Unlike your good brothers who pamper and indulge you in everything, we're not men. You stop pretending and quickly choose your clothes to change, then go to work. You have a daily base salary of 45 dollars. I hope you can live up to that price."

Jodie was furious but didn't know how to argue back.

After all, they were indeed here to work.

guys

She took a deep breath and said, "Fine. We'll choose on our own. Who cares if you help or not

The female shop assistant smiled. That's right.

It would have been great if they had this awareness earlier. There would be no need for disputes. This happened when a lady was used to being pampered and liked to act high and mighty

They weren't used to it.

Jodie didn't say anything more and pulled Andrew to choose clothes.

Andrew's expression was also not good. He had never experienced this kind of disdain and treatment before.

Now, he had to endure it and felt quite aggrieved.

He regretted participating in this variety show even more.

It felt like nothing was going smoothly, and everyone was against them.

He wanted to mess things up, but Jodie persuaded him and helped him choose a few sets of clothes to try on.

She also selected a few sets for herself.

Later, they would speak through their performance and prove themselves to those two female shop assistants.

After choosing, they went to find the makeup artist.

Although the makeup artist's attitude was cold, she cooperated and matched the makeup and accessories according to the clothes they had chosen.

Once they were done, they went downstairs.

Zac and Keira were already there, asking the staff about the materials and details of the clothes. Jodie and Andrew didn't join in, as they didn't think it was necessary. They believed that since they weren't in this line of work, there was no need to ask so many questions.

After Zac and Keira roughly understood everything, they officially started working.

When customers arrived, Zac and Keira took the initiative to approach them, showing them the clothes they were wearing and recommending other options. Many customers specifically came for them. They followed behind, listening to the introductions, and then tried on the recommended clothes.

Observing this, Jodie said to Andrew. "Andrew, let's also attract some customers."

Andrew nodded. "Sure."

The two of them went to greet customers.

Jodie for used on male customers, while Andrew mainly attracted female customers

Chapter 301 Unaccustomed

However, there was a noticeable difference in their approaches. Andrew seemed lazy and didn't put much effort into recommending clothes, mainly because he didn't understand them well.

If someone disliked it, he would no longer recommend it.

Naturally, customers turned to Zac, who had a better attitude toward appearance and could genuinely recommend clothes.

Andrew began to slack off and wandered around in the clothes.

Regardless, he still received a basic salary despite being unable to sell the clothes.

On the other hand, Jodie was extremely enthusiastic and introduced and recommended clothes to male customers.

Once she caught someone's attention, she would encourage them to try on clothes.

Most male customers felt uncomfortable refusing.

Then, she would pull them and insistently have them try on several outfits, resulting in some people making a purchase.

Zac and Keira attracted customers, but if they sensed the customers' unwillingness, they wouldn't pressure them.

However, they had learned a lot from the store employees beforehand.

So, when customers asked questions, they could answer some of them.

For example, whether the clothes were breathable or if they would cause discomfort.

Their good looks and attitudes wouldn't annoy or make customers unwilling, resulting in genuine purchases.

The viewers watching the livestream also had a better impression of Zac and Keira, especially Zac. Everyone felt that his performance exceeded their expectations.

It made everyone feel that he had become more grounded.

He was no longer a vain top star, but more people liked him.

As for Jodie and Andrew, they disgusted people even more.

They came to work, but instead of working, they wanted to be served and acted superior

They didn't even bother to learn from the store employees.

Chapter 301 Unaccustomed

When Andrew encountered something he didn't know, he let the customers ask other store employees for help

Jodie would persistently deceive customers, using what she believed was a charm to bother them.

This was a situation that many customers disliked when they entered the store.

And everyone noticed that she specifically targeted male customers.

Keira and Zac didn't specifically choose customers. They approached whoever they encountered.

As a result. Jodie faced more criticism.

Inside the store, Jodie had just seen a male customer who had made a purchase.

Suddenly, she heard someone calling out. Jo. She turned around, and her face first showed surprise, then she broke into a smile. "It's you." It was a decent-looking young man.

He smiled wide and said. "What are you doing here selling clothes?" Wasn't Jodie a wealthy girl? Had she fallen on such hard times: This person had been preoccupied with other matters lately and didn't enjoy watching live variety shows, so he was unaware.

Jodie smiled and replied, "I was on a previous variety show, working to earn money for meals. and accommodation"

She then asked. "Would you like to buy some clothes too? Let me pick out two outfits for you." The man's eyes affectionately lingered on her. "Sure. I trust your taste."

Chapter 302 The Appearance Of A Big Shot

Andrew noticed a familiar face entering the room. He asked, "Who is this?" Jodie replied, "He is my college classmate."

Although Andrew and Jodie studied abroad, they didn't attend the same university. However, he suddenly remembered something.

There was a period when Jodie often went out with a group of people, and it seemed like this person was among them. Because he was also from a wealthy family and enjoyed a lavish lifestyle, Andrew had some impression of him.

He greeted the man, who politely returned the greeting. Since they weren't close, they didn't engage in any conversation.

Then, Jodie took the man to choose clothes. She picked out the most expensive outfits for him to try on, and he bought everything she approved of

While they were at the cashier, the man's gaze toward Jodie carried a hint of flirtation. It was evident that they were familiar with each other.

Although they had no intimate physical contact, they appeared very close.

The viewers in the live chat room began to speculate. Could this man be another suitor for Jodie?

Luca and Titus were watching the live stream. Salma wasn't present today. She had been feeling unwell and was resting in her bedroom.

Seeing the affectionate behavior between Jodie and the man, Luca couldn't help but ask, "Could there be something more than just a normal friendship between her and this male classmate?" It didn't seem like a typical student relationship.

Titus replied, "Do you even need to ask? This is another suitor.

The

way he looks at her with such flirtatious eyes. It's clear that he's a playboy"

I just wonder if Jodie has fallen for his charms."

Luca hesitated for a moment and said, "Ah. It can't be. She seems so innocent when she's outside, right?" When she was at home, she never went out to socialize with other men.

Previously, their mother had asked Jodie if she wanted to find a boyfriend, and she offered to introduce her to eligible men from their social circle..

However, she declined, saying she would wait until she met someone she liked.

Chapter 30% The Appearance Of A Big Shot

The Gray Family supported Jodie but never considered arranging a marriage for her or had any strict requirements regarding her relationships.

So, she should be involved with other men while she's outside.

Titus chuckled and said, "Who knows?"

"I just don't think she appears as innocent as she seems. Otherwise, she wouldn't always be so lectionate with us."

"I think she's intentionally guiding us to be close to her."

After contemplating, he added, "But it's possible that she doesn't engage in such behavior with others while outside."

"It seems like she hasn't had a boyfriend outside before."

“Is it true what those outsiders are saying, that she wants to treat us like father figures? As soon as this was said, it felt so absurd.

Luca also felt embarrassed and said. “No way.”

“But if she’s being so intimate with us while also getting involved with other men. It does seem a bit strange.”

It’s not that we’re jealous, but if that’s the case, we won’t be special to her anymore.

Titus felt a bit disgusted and consoled himself. “It shouldn’t be.”

From now on, they would keep their distance from her and not be so intimate anymore.

So be it if she wanted to be intimate with any other man.

That

way, they wouldn’t feel absurd anymore.

Luca nodded in agreement. “It shouldn’t be.”

In Simone Studio.

When Mr. Wills saw this man appear, along with the speculations in the live chat, his eyes lit up.

He had been thinking about how to find an entry point to reveal Jodie’s secrets.

Now, it had fallen into his lap.

Indeed. Mr. Eric was still formidable. He had anticipated this.

302 The Appea

So. Mr. Wills immediately instructed his team to take action.

After a while, people started to leak information one by one.

Headlines like “Toy Boys: Unveiling Jojo’s suitors” and “Exposing the men behind the Sea Queen” were intriguing.

Could it be that besides Andrew and others, there were other suitors for Jojo?

Once they clicked on the posts, everyone was amazed.

Every post had intimate photos of Jodie with different men and some videos.

Although the faces of these men were blurred, their body shapes, clothing, and hairstyles were different.

And from the videos, it was clear how wild Jodie could be.

She would publicly strip and end up in just a bikini.

She would drink with different men and kiss the loser in front of everyone.

She often lost, so her carefree attitude was evident in the photos and videos.

Different photos and videos also reflected Jodie’s appearance at different stages of her life.

There were even several foreign men, with timestamps indicating her time studying abroad.

There were also hotel room photos.

Embracing and being intimate throughout the night.

They would only leave the next morning, parting ways at the hotel entrance.

Her partners in these hotel rooms changed constantly, covering domestic and foreign men.

Among them was the man who went shopping with Jodie today.

She and this man had fun not only at bars or parties.

There were also photos of them in a hotel room.

This man was a playboy from a wealthy family who openly stated that he would never get married, so he always had a different female companion by his side.

He didn't care about exposure and often posted photos with his female companions on his social media accounts.

Chapter 302 The Appearance Of A Big Shot

The short videos were also widely shared, and she gained some fame.

Therefore, Mr. Wills' team did not blur her face.

At the same time, the exposé also briefly mentioned the identities of these people, and they were all extraordinary.

For example, there were second-generation wealthy individuals, small business owners, self-made entrepreneurs, and investors.

Simone discovered all of this while investigating Jodie.

Simone was surprised then, as she hadn't expected Jodie to be so open-minded and playful.

She then looked into these men's backgrounds; without exception, the worst among them were second-generation wealthy individuals.

Not only were there young men, but also successful middle-aged gentlemen in their thirties and forties.

However, after being with Jodie Gray, these men would have a streak of bad luck for a short period.

It seemed that while Jodie was having fun, she also used a method similar to "double cultivation to steal some of their luck.

However, due to this method, she could not steal much luck.

The impact on these men would not be too substantial.

That was why nobody had discovered it all along.

It was not surprising that with the assistance of her master, she had not experienced a continuous streak of bad luck after Jodie stole her luck.

Jodie's luck was becoming stronger and stronger, to the point where she could even help the Gray Family brothers seize opportunities.

In addition to relying on the favor of the Gray Family, it should also be because she stole the luck of these men.

Although she did not steal a large amount of luck each time, it had accumulated over time.

Simone wanted to not only fully expose Jodie but also reveal this matter.

She wanted to prevent Jodie from using the same method to steal luck in the future.

Chapter 302 The Appearance Of A Big Shot

Unless it was true love, those men would not be foolish enough to give their luck to Jodie willingly.

After all, the misfortune that Se*mbag No. 4 experienced during the live stream was still fresh in everyone's memory.

During the live stream, she suggested that Sc*mbag No. 4 should try not wearing the bracelet to demonstrate the consequences to the viewers.

To see if those men would dare to engage with Jodie in such a manner again in the future.

Once this major scandal was exposed.

Jodie's previous trending topic from yesterday had not completely disappeared. Today, a new trending topic had reached the top.

Chapter 303 I Really Can't Afford To Lose That Person

The live broadcast room audience was also shocked by the trending topic.

“Wow. Jojo is truly amazing. She can truly be herself.”

‘Oh my god. Jojo is not just a small pond. She’s the ocean. She truly is the Sea Queen.’”

I counted. There seem to be more than ten men exposed.”

“Add that to the five sc*mbag brothers of the Gray Family and her ex-boyfriends. That’s over twenty.”

“There must be more that hasn’t been exposed yet, so the number is astonishing.”

“I never expected her to be so unrestrained in private.”

“If she wasn’t unrestrained, how could she have played around with the Gray brothers?”

“That’s true. I wonder what the Gray brothers will think after seeing all these scandals.”

“This is not just a case of being cheated on. They might feel like they’re in a vast grassland on their heads.” After that, many people went to Luca’s and others’ Facebook pages to ask for their thoughts.

Gray Family.

After Luca and Titus finished reading the trending posts about the scandals, their faces showed discomfort.

Luca frowned and said, “Are these people crazy? Jodie and I don’t have that kind of relationship. Why drag us into this?”

Titus glanced at him and said, “Didn’t you also appear in the trending topic because of intimate photos with Jodie? Haven’t you heard what people say? We’re just Jodie’s toy boys.”

He then said with a serious face. “But it’s embarrassing. We were saying that she wouldn’t do something like this.”

“Who knows, she can do anything we can’t imagine.”

At this moment, he felt particularly fortunate that he had rejected Jodie’s advances before. Otherwise, he would feel disgusted and sickened.

Luca also sighed. ‘Indeed. It’s embarrassing

15

Chapter 303 I Really Can’t Afford To Lose That Person

“I used to think she was innocent, but after knowing how cunning and scheming she is. I never thought she would be this kind of person.

“She’s shameless, always pretending to be innocent in front of us as if she doesn’t understand anything.”

Who would have known that she understands much more than anyone else?

He looked at Titus and asked, “Titus, you don’t have as many female companions as she does. right?” Titus had a black line on his forehead and said. I’m not a playboy, so of course, I don’t have that many

“I have about one or two a year, never more than three.”

“How many does she have? Please don’t compare me to her. I admit defeat.”

He truly admired Jodie. Her skills were impressive, incomparable.

Luca pointed upstairs. I wonder if Mom will be so angry that she falls ill again.” Titus replied, “That’s for sure.”

“Mom’s face looked terrible when I returned from the old house this morning. Grandpa and Grandma must have scolded her before the other elders.”

“She hasn’t recovered from the previous embarrassment, and now this happens. She probably won’t leave the house for a while.”

Luca nodded. “That’s true. Not just Mom, even I haven’t plan on going out recently.”

“I can’t afford to lose face. When he went out for dinner with friends, he was constantly teased about the situation between him and Jodie.

Some people couldn't stand it and made sarcastic remarks about these matters.

Now, Jodie was the one making headlines with her scandal. Internet users were dragging all of us brothers into it.

People in our circle would bring it up when we went out to socialize.

It was so embarrassing. I needed to go into seclusion for a while.

Saying that he posted a message on his social media circle, saying that he would be in seclusion recently and not to disturb him.

Little did he know that there would soon be many replies.

They asked if he was feeling down and needed some time to recover from the blow.

Chapter 303 I Really Can't Afford To Lose That Person

They asked for his opinion on the online scandal.

Luca didn't feel down, but he felt embarrassed. These people are so nosy."

"Titus, how about we go abroad for a trip?"

"I don't want to stay in the country recently. Otherwise, whenever I go out, I feel like I'll be mocked and ridiculed."

Although they have never had a relationship with Jodie that went beyond boundaries.

They have never had romantic feelings for Jodie.

But others didn't believe it. and they couldn't explain it.

Titus was in a similar situation.

He posted nothing on his social media circle, but his phone buzzed with notifications.

Various friends came to greet him, asking if he was okay. They joked about his "prairie" hairstyle and asked for his thoughts.

Some even asked about the taste of Jodie.

This made him furious. How would he know the taste? He never had a taste of it.

And he and Jodie were not a couple. He didn't have a "prairie" on his head.

His image had disappeared entirely in his social circle.

This was the first time he had suffered such a humiliating defeat, and it was all because he was being scapegoated. It was so unfair.

"Alright. I'll go and book the tickets. After the variety show ends and the heat of these scandals dies down, we'll come back."

He finished speaking and took out his phone to book the tickets.

Both brothers were like this. Salma was lying on the bed, overwhelmed by phone calls and messages from relatives and friends. She was on the verge of a breakdown.

She never expected that Jodie would be like this outside.

The difference between being at home and being here was huge.

Especially when it involved her sons, it was so embarrassing.

She called Steven and asked him to book a plane ticket for her when he goes abroad in the afternoon.

She wants to go abroad with him to avoid hearing news about Jodie and her sons.

The situation on Steven's side was not any better.

Not only did people call and ask if he knew about Jodie's secret actions.

Some people even directly asked him if he had an intimate relationship with Jodie.

After all, if her sons were like that, as a father, he probably wouldn't be so serious either.

This made Steven furious.

Even if he's not severe, he wouldn't do anything to Jodie.

Besides, his mind was focused on his career, and he had never been with any other woman except his wife.

It was like a pot hitting his head, making him unable to catch his breath.

So, he booked a plane ticket and prepared to take his wife abroad.

And Jodie could no longer stay.

Once the variety show concluded, Jodie would return, and he would ask his wife to send her away.

He no longer concerned himself with the geomancy master behind Jodie.

He could not afford to keep that person around.

Having such trouble right in front of him was genuinely unsettling.

It would be better to send her away and avoid any any further annoyance.

Thus, Steven and his wife decided to go abroad, along with Titus and Luca.

Only Reuben remained in the country, enduring the greetings from relatives and friends.

Everyone assumed that he and Jodie had an inappropriate relationship.

Reuben found it challenging to defend himself.

Even his ex-fiancée posted on social media, insinuating that it was fortunate they broke up. Otherwise, she would have been disgusted by him and Jodie,

Chapter 304 I Feel Relieved With Your Words

In the shop.

After bidding farewell to her former companion, Jodie attended to several male customers.

However, she gradually noticed many people whispering and pointing at her.

She began to feel uneasy as if her luck had been weakened and drained.

After a while, she started feeling uncomfortable in her body.

She went to the restroom.

To her surprise, she found spots appearing on her body again.

It wasn't very noticeable on her face because of her heavy makeup.

She looked at herself in the mirror, her skin not as fair as before, and felt frustrated and desperate.

How could this happen? Why was her luck weakening and draining again? She hadn't done anything wrong. Could it be the backlash caused by the exposure of yesterday's video from the foreign hospital? But she felt that it shouldn't be the case.

She suddenly didn't know what to do.

She calmed herself down in the restroom and then walked out.

Just as she reached the door, she overheard someone outside talking.

"I never expected Jodie to be so promiscuous. How many men has she been with? She used to present herself as Jojo, but now she's using her real identity as the Sea Queen. She can gain some fans."

“When I watch her livestream, she takes that guy to choose clothes with her, and they seem so affectionate.”

No wonder more people were in the traditional attire shop before, and many were constantly stealing glances at her.

They whispered and pointed at her.

It turned out that she had become a hot topic again, with photos and videos of her with her previous companions being leaked online.

She was furious and didn't know who could be so despicable.

Most likely, it was Simone causing trouble again.

Why couldn't that woman leave her alone? It really infuriated her.

Jodie retreated to the restroom and waited until those girls left before coming out.

Afterward, she no longer actively approached customers to sell clothes but remained absent-minded and lost in thought.

Andrew noticed this and couldn't help but ask with concern. "Jo, what's wrong with you?" Jodie snapped out of her thoughts and forced a smile. "I feel a bit unwell."

"I sold a lot of clothes before, and the commission I received should be enough for us to eat and stay at the inn."

"Andrew, can you take me back to the inn to rest? I feel uncomfortable, and my head is spinning"

She didn't want to stay outside like a monkey, constantly being watched and pointed at by people.

And she was also worried that Andrew would hear what those people were saying and learn about this.

So, having him return to the inn with her was a good excuse.

Andrew didn't want to stay here anymore.

He noticed a lot of strange looks from the people in the shop toward him as if they were looking at some big idiot or fool.

He nodded "Okay. I'll let Zac know and then take you back

Zac was speechless. "You guys have the most things to do every day."

"After you get paid, you can care for your dinner and accommodation at night."

They were two teammates who couldn't be relied on.

Andrew could tell that Zac looked down on them.

He was speechless. "Don't worry. We won't take advantage of you."

Zac smiled. "With your words, I can rest assured."

Andrew remained silent. How could this person, who came from a top-notch family, be so stingy?

He didn't know what else to say. Anyway, he couldn't get along with Zac.

He didn't say anything but went to find the boss lady and told her about Jodie's illness.

The boss lady had already seen the hot search and naturally guessed that Jodie was faking her illness.

But she didn't deliberately make things difficult.

It was better to leave early so as not to feel uncomfortable.

So, not only did she agree to let them leave early, but she also gave each of them half a day's wages and the commission from selling clothes.

Jodie had sold a lot of men's traditional attire before, and the commission alone was worth several hundred.

The 45 dollars they earned in half a day was enough for their expenses today.

After receiving the money, the two returned to the inn and didn't come out again.

On the other side, many young ladies wanted Simone's help with makeup and styling yesterday.

Among them, a large majority were Simone's fans.

They also left their contact information with the production team, saying that if Simone wanted to set up a stall for makeup, they must contact them.

So today, to repay these fans, Simone continued the activities from yesterday and had the Simone's fans were moved and felt their idol spoiled them too much.

The young ladies were also excited and came running when they received the call.

The other three continued to generate buzz around them.

Bailey stopped playing the harp and instead switched to playing the clarinet and flute.

In terms of skill and emotional resonance, his flute playing surpassed Leon's.

Leon couldn't show off his flute playing anymore and could only rely on his looks, just like

Aaron, to attract customers.

Then, Bailey and Simone played a song together on the banjo.

He also played a tune on the ocarina.

In his hands, these ancient instruments seemed to come alive with emotion.

This attracted a large crowd of onlookers, who couldn't help but exclaim how amazing it was.

Simone's makeup session was fully booked, with no slots available for latecomers.

Leon and Aaron felt a pang of jealousy.

Aaron sighed. "It feels like we're just tagging along!"

As performers, they couldn't compare to the multi-talented geomancer, which was truly embarrassing

Trying to attract people was pointless because as soon as people saw Simone, they would excitedly rush over without needing their help.

With Bailey's noble and talented image, the area around them was completely crowded.

They were unable to utilize their appearances. Leon forced a smile and remarked. "Yeah. We're just dead weight now."

He couldn't help but complain. "How could Zac be so proud and show off while being carried. and lying flat? I feel a bit embarrassed."

Aaron agreed. "Exactly. Zac's ability to endure criticism is much stronger than ours,"

Someone nearby overheard their conversation.

Unable to contain their disdain, they looked at the two and said, "It's not that Zachy has thicker skin than you. It's that his wife willingly indulges him and spoils him on purpose.

"What he enjoys is the process and enjoyment of being spoiled and carried by his wife, not that he's shameless and unwilling to do anything."

They also desired to experience this kind of enjoyment.

Then, they added, "After Zachy left his wife, he became the one being carried by their group."

"As for you two, regardless of which group you join, you're simply burdened.

“The crucial point is his wife never wanted to carry you and finds you repulsive.”

“She only tolerated carrying you two deadweight teammates because she was forced to be in the same group as you.”

“You truly lack self-awareness, yet you dare to complain about Zachy.”

Another person chimed in. “I believe they’re just envious and resentful of Zachy

This elicited agreement from the people around them. “Certainly. But unfortunately, their envy and resentment won’t change anything.”

“Zachy is now his wife’s new favorite, and they are nothing.”

Aaron and Leon were speechless. It’s enough for these people to know. Why do we have to reveal the truth and hurt ourselves?

Simone spent the day applying makeup once again.

Then, she announced to everyone that she would no longer wear makeup starting tomorrow because she would participate in a polo match.

She also planned to find other ways to make money.

Although the girls who hadn’t seen Simone’s makeup skills were disappointed, they all expressed their support and promised to cheer for her tomorrow.

Eric and his three friends in another group became waiters at a restaurant.

Apart from Andrew and Jodie, everyone else went out for dinner together in the three groups.

At the inn, Jodie’s face and skin had become slightly darker.

She still had spots on her face and hands.

She covered the exposed areas with foundation before going to a restaurant with Andrew.

While eating, she contemplated what to do.

Seeing her like this, Andrew asked with concern. "Jo, are you still feeling unwell? Should we go to the clinic?" In the Cubilis, there were no modern medicine hospitals, only traditional medicine clinics.

For emergencies, there was a hospital outside the Cubilis.

Jodie shook her head and said, "No need to go to the clinic. I still feel dizzy, but it's much better than before."

She added, "It might be the aftereffects of fainting from blood loss."

Seeing her like this, Andrew began to doubt whether he had overthought things before.

It seemed like she did faint from blood loss, and today, she still had some aftereffects. So, he said, "Then, let me take you back to rest."

He asked, "Can you still participate in the polo match tomorrow? If you can't, just let them know and withdraw."

It wouldn't be a joke if she were to faint and fall off the horse.

But obviously, Jodie didn't think it was a big deal.

She shook her head and said, "No need. I should be able to participate."

She had to rely on her performance tomorrow and find an opportunity to deal with Simone. She couldn't withdraw.

However, her luck had been weakened and drained, and she didn't know if any would happen tomorrow.

She needed to come up with a compromise.

Do I have to use that thing?

accidents

Seeing Jodie lost in thought, Andrew asked worriedly. "You don't look well. Are you sure everything is okay?" Jodie was annoyed by his fussiness, but she sweetly smiled and replied, "Andrew, don't worry. Everything is fine."

"If I still feel dizzy tomorrow, then I'll withdraw,"

Only then did Andrew nod and say, "Alright."

They returned to the inn.

Jodie removed her makeup and saw that not only did she have more spots on her face, but she also had wrinkles.

She wanted to smash the mirror.

She needed luck now.

What should I do?

If she borrows from Andrew again, he probably won't give her anymore.

Unfortunately, she's participating in a variety show. Otherwise, she would bother a few other brothers and find a way to borrow their luck.

She can only endure the variety show and figure out how to make up for it when she returns to Cebros.

Taking a deep breath, she no longer dwelled on it and removed a jade pendant from her Suitcase.

This was given to her by her brother's geomancy master friend before she came to the Cubilis as a mystical tool.

If the other person willingly wears it, she can absorb their luck using a special method.

But this is considered plundering, and the backlash will be severe if it is deciphered.

The other person won't fare well either.

Initially, she intended to use this thing on a few other brothers.

She would borrow their luck in a friendly manner, and if they still heartlessly refused, she would have to take it forcefully.

They couldn't blame her for being unjust if they were not righteous.

But now, she had to use it in advance.

She thought to herself. She'll let Andrew use it for a few days. There shouldn't be any problem. After all, Andrew has been so unlucky a little more won't make much difference.

She'll wear it during the variety show for a few days, not absorbing too much of his luck, just enough to maintain her current state.

The more she thought about it, the more feasible it seemed.

Since she could only use this pendant on a few other brothers anyway.

It was a good opportunity to test it on Andrew.

That was settled then. Andrew spoiled her so much he shouldn't blame her.

If worse came to worst, she would spend more time with him to make up for it.

The next morning, Jodie knocked on Andrew's door.

Andrew had just woken up, rubbing his sleepy eyes as he opened the door. "Jo, we're leaving so early?" The other groups said they wouldn't arrive at the polo field at 10 a.m., and his alarm hadn't even gone off yet.

Jodie smiled and said. "We still have two hours before departure."

"I suddenly remembered that the master who gave me the bracelet also gave me a pendant.

"Since we're going to play polo today, and you're the main player, I'll bring it over for you."

"If you wear it, you'll have an extra layer of protection."

Upon hearing this, Andrew couldn't help but feel touched.

He smiled and said, "I have the bracelet to suppress any issues."

"Aren't you prone to dizziness? Please wear it yourself. It's also safer."

He genuinely wanted what was best for her.

But Jodie found him indecisive and couldn't help but feel impatient. However, she said on the surface, "I'm not dizzy today, so it's more suitable for you to wear it."

"At that time, I will rely on you for protection," she said.

She continued saying many words, meaning she was doing it for his own good.

If he refused, it would mean rejecting her goodwill, and she would be heartbroken.

Andrew then hung the pendant around his neck, raising his hand to touch Jodie's head.

"Alright. I'll accept Jo's goodwill."

"I will protect you today as well."

Seeing him like this, Jodie thought that Andrew was indeed the best.

She originally wanted to hug him out of habit, but she restrained herself because they were outside the inn room.

She rubbed her face against his hand, touching her head, saying, "Andrew is the best."

Andrew was so good after she gathered some luck and stabilized herself today.

She should take the pendant back tonight and give it to Aaron.

Aaron was not treating her well at the moment, and with Simone's instigation, he probably wouldn't be willing to lend her his luck.

So, she decided to take extreme measures and rely on Aaron for the next few days.

Afterward, they both returned to their respective rooms.

Jodie took out a talisman, wrote down Andrew's birthdate, and burned it with his hair.

Then, she followed the person's instructions and recited a spell.

An hour and a half later, Jodie felt that she was much better, so she put on makeup and went downstairs in a good mood.

Andrew had been called downstairs by Aaron several times before he reluctantly came down.

Aaron noticed he didn't look well and jokingly asked, "Did you go stealing last night?" Andrew yawned and replied, "You're the one who went stealing. I didn't sleep well yesterday, so I'm not feeling too good today."

"Go to the polo field later to wake up, and you should feel better."

At that moment, Simone and Bailey, sitting not far away, glanced at Andrew.

Bailey was slightly surprised, then wore a playful smile.

Simone noticed the pendant hanging around Andrew's neck and thought that Jodie had targeted Sc*mbag No. 4 again.

She naturally wouldn't remind him now.

She wanted Sc*mbag No. 4 to experience Jodie's "deep sibling affection" and then him.

After everyone made money, they took a carriage to the polo field.

The polo field was spacious, with four grandstands, and in the center was a large area for the competition.

Many people who visited the Cubilis were fond of polo.

Therefore, there were numerous participants in today's polo competition.

Polo had its specific attire, and participants couldn't wear their usual traditional clothing, as it would restrict their movement.

They could purchase their polo outfits, and the shops were outside the polo field selling them.

Andrew and Jodie didn't buy their outfits yesterday, so they decided to buy a set now.

Simone, Zac, Bailey, and Tina had bought theirs at Zac's store yesterday.

The castanet shop's boss lady helped them choose their clothes and gave them a discount.

She even selected bright red polo outfits for them, all in the same style.

Zac and Simone looked confident and unrestrained in their outfits, while Tina exuded an elegant sweetness.

Bailey had a different charm from her previous ethereal white attire.

All four of them were attractive, so when they emerged wearing their outfits, they caught the attention of almost everyone.

In the group chat, Zac had previously mentioned that they should buy red outfits.

This way, spotting each other on the field would be easier.

Now, Andrew and Jodie had bought red polo outfits.

However, whether it was the style of the clothes or their appearance and demeanor, they were overshadowed by the other four.

After they finished changing their clothes and came out, they saw the other four wearing the same polo outfits and felt very unhappy.

Jodie whispered resentfully. "They've gone too far.

“We’re all on the same team for the competition, and they deliberately isolated us by wearing the same clothes.”

Although their clothes were also chosen to look good, they felt inferior compared to Simone and the others.

Being compared to this made her particularly unhappy.

After hearing this, Andrew became even more upset. “Exactly.”

He walked over to them and asked, “Are you guys taking it too far?” Zac raised an eyebrow. “What’s the matter with you guys?” Andrew said, “You all coordinated your clothes but deliberately left us out? Even if you don’t like us and want to isolate us, you should consider the timing, right?”

“We are a team competing now. Can’t we let go of past grievances and work together? Zac chuckled. “Did we deliberately leave you out? It seems like your eyesight is a bit poor.”

“I asked you in the group chat yesterday if you wanted to buy clothes together.”

“You said Jodie was feeling dizzy and sick, so she wanted to rest at the inn and couldn’t come. You can buy it after you come to the game.”

“I specifically reminded you to buy red ones if you buy them yourself.”

“Are you saying that we intentionally isolated and ignored you?” Simone looked at the two speechlessly and added, “You guys are not pleasant, and you still blame us for isolating you. You’re good at turning the tables.”

Jodie protested, “But you didn’t say anything yesterday either. You all bought the same thing.” Simone raised an eyebrow. “When we said we would choose clothes together, wasn’t that the meaning? What kind of understanding do you have? Besides, you’re not sick, so why must you rest at the inn? Zac asked you in the group chat. It’s not like we intentionally hid the clothes we bought from you.”

“You didn’t come yourselves, and now you have the nerve to be upset.”

Jodie choked. They did see Zac's message in the group chat yesterday.

In general, Jodie would pretend to be kind and considerate and wouldn't express dissatisfaction so directly in front of the live camera.

If something like this happened, there was only one possibility. She had ulterior motives and wanted to cause trouble.

Jodie didn't expect Simone to see through her thoughts.

"By isolating and excluding us like this, it's not beneficial for anyone to form a team."

"If that's the case, we might as well split up."

She didn't want to be on the same team as Simone and the others.

If they won the competition, the viewers watching the live stream would say it was all thanks to Simone and the others.

She didn't want to be in a supporting role like that.

After the videos and photos were continuously exposed online, she experienced the weakening and loss of her luck.

She was sure that Simone was behind it.

If she had photos and videos of Simone like that, she would expose them.

She couldn't swallow this anger and wanted to retaliate.

And she had a feeling in her heart.

Only by getting rid of Simone could she return to the days when she was praised and avored.

Her luck wouldn't be weakened one after another.

So, if they didn't compete in the same team, she would have a chance to make a move. Yesterday, she considered finding an excuse and reason to switch teams.

Today, she realized this was the opportunity when she saw the four of them wearing the same team uniforms.

While feeling unhappy, she took the opportunity to cause trouble and switch teams games with us?" Jodie felt wronged and said, "You guys went too far first. We were just unable to accept being isolated by you."

Zac laughed in frustration. "Alright. I can see through it now. You're deliberately picking a fight, wanting to switch teams."

"Fine. If you don't want to be on the same team, we don't want to either."

"Let's just disband now and find two new teammates."

"You two should also go find find a new group.

In this kind of competition, people who didn't have a fixed team but still enjoyed playing polo would come to the competition venue to find a team.

If a team didn't have enough members, they would find someone to join temporarily.

So, there was still time to reorganize teams.

Jodie had this idea in mind.

She pretended to be angry and said, "If you want to find someone, go ahead."

After saying that, she grabbed Andrew's arm and said, "Andrew, let's not tolerate this anymore. Let's go."

She also realized that her online reputation was deteriorating after experiencing so much.

Since she would face criticism anyway, there was no need to pretend anymore.

This also meant that she would become angry and retaliate.

When they later became opponents on the field against Simone and the others, it was natural for her not to hold back.

By causing conflicts and tearing their relationships apart now, it was just setting the stage for future trouble.

Andrew was perplexed.

He didn't expect things to escalate like this just because of a set of clothes.

But naturally, he sided with Jodie.

So, he nodded and deliberately said, "Alright. Since they're treating us like this, let's not play with them anymore

Then, he followed Jodie and left.

Seeing them leave. Tina, who intentionally positioned himself in front of the live camera, said, "They must have planned to separate from us beforehand."

Zac said, "Definitely. Just look at Jodie's demeanor. She was prepared and couldn't wait to find new team

Tina asked, "Why would they want to separate? Simone knew she was asking on purpose.

So, she said, "They might be afraid that we will steal the spotlight, so they wanted to separate"

Tins agreed. "I think so, too."

"But this is too much. They should have informed us earlier so we could be prepared."

"They suddenly pulled this stunt, catching us off guard."

The three of them deliberately wanted to expose Jodie's scheming

Otherwise, if the other side turned the tables and portrayed themselves as being bullied and forced to reorganize teams, it could easily lead to misunderstandings

And this kind of behavior was too despicable, so it had to be exposed, letting everyone know about Jodie's scheming.

Chapter 307 Can't Get Over This Joke?

As anticipated, confusion spread among the audience in the live-stream room.

Even Jodie's actions had misled them, leading them to believe that Simone and the others were intentionally targeting the audience.

Upon hearing the explanations from the trio, the audience realized they had misunderstood the situation.

Jodie is so cunning. She wants to rearrange the teams and deliberately finds faults to blame on Simone and the others.

"Zachy reminded them and asked them yesterday"

They chose not to go. How did they become isolated and bullied?"

Jojo is now acting innocent'

These two are a perfect match. I think they should stick together!

Jojo wants to switch teams, which actually makes sense. With Simone and the others, it's true that they would steal the spotlight.

'But if they can steal the spotlight based on their abilities, can't Jojo and Mr. Andrew do the same?

'So, psychologically, they feel like they are lost."

"They feel like they can't compare to Simone and the others, so they want to switch teams to gain the spotlight.

Jojo is truly a woman who can manipulate the Gray brothers.

'She truly deserves to be the playgirl. Her ability to scheme is strong

Upon reading these live chat messages, the audience, initially misled by Jodie, now felt disgusted.

Upon reflection, it became evident that Jodie had intentionally focused on this matter from beginning to end.

Had it not been for Zac's reminder in the group chat, the idea of intentional isolation and bullying might have appeared reasonable. However, in the current context, everything seems Tar-fetched

The entire situation appeared to be a setup to switch teams and manipulate misunderstandings. She almost succeeded.

Even the audience members had been part of this calculated move, and their perception of Jodie took a hit.

They became curious to witness Jodie's performance in another team and whether she could still steal the spotlight.

Meanwhile, in a leisure area of a hotel abroad, Titus and Luca were sitting, watching the live stream and reading the live chat.

Luca wore an expression of speechlessness. "Why do these people always have to bring the three of us into it?"

Every time they were mentioned, it was suggested that they were being manipulated by Jodie. He felt embarrassed.

Titus also had a wry smile. "Yeah, can't we get past this joke?"

Every time it was brought up, he felt like they were being dragged out for public ridicule.

It was as if they were really pets that Jodie kept. It was truly embarrassing.

Luca sighed. "When will this end? My concert, which was originally postponed due to the previous trending topic, is affected even more now. Recently, because of Jodie and Andrew constantly trending. I have also been affected by their troubles. This morning, my agent called me and said that there have been quite a few fans returning tickets for my concert these past few days."

He felt really down at the moment.

The previous variety show failure was embarrassing, but it ended up boosting Harry's popularity instead.

Harry's new song had been topping the charts on various apps recently, firmly holding its position in the top five.

Not only did one of his songs become a hit, but with Simone's help from the previous season and his own clever moves, Harry had become popular as well.

On the other hand, Luca's new song didn't do well in terms of recording and distribution due to the previous variety show incident.

Now, even the concert had turned out like this. He had no clue what to do.

This was the most miserable experience he had had since his debut.

Titus glanced at him. I'm not doing any better than you. The vice president of the company personally called me yesterday. He told me to take a good rest and not to rush back to work. The implication is that I shouldn't return to the company to embarrass myself."

As a top-tier agent, it was really embarrassing to receive a call from the company's higher-ups, politely asking him not to come back to work.

Luca looked at him sympathetically. "Titus, it seems like you're even worse off. After all, I haven't lost my job. You seem like you have failed. Why don't you quit being an agent and start a new career? I think even if you go back in the future, there might not be any artists willing to work under you.

With Titus' current reputation being so bad, the artists might also be criticized along with him.

Titus remained silent for a moment. Then, he added, "Actually, I think you should also consider a career change. As long as Simone is there, she will overshadow you with Harry. And with Jodie constantly holding you back. You, as a top singer, will soon become a has-been. By that time, when you hold a concert, there will only be a few people watching; that's when it's truly embarrassing."

Come on, if you want to hit where it hurts, I can do that to you as well.

Luca fell silent. He retracted his sympathy for Titus. He doesn't deserve it.

In order to avoid hurting each other's feelings, he decided to change the topic.

"What do you think, besides wanting to show off, does Jodie have any other motives for suddenly wanting to switch teams?"

Ever since he discovered Jodie's many schemes and calculations, he didn't know if it was just his imagination, but he felt like she was up to something, and her motives were never simple.

Titus had a similar feeling. "Maybe she wants more than just attention. I have a feeling that Andrew might be in trouble today"

After all, every time Jodie caused trouble, it was always the Gray brothers who got hurt. Andrew, the fool, seemed like he had been fooled by Jodie again. He was the unlucky one.

Luca nodded. "I also think Titus might have a tough day today."

He added, "Let's just sit here and watch the live stream all day: I don't feel like going out to play anymore.

In another hotel room in a different country, Steven and Salma also tuned in to the live stream together.

Neither of them felt like going out today; they just weren't in the mood to play.

Steven hadn't had time to watch the livestream before. But since he didn't have work until tomorrow, he wanted to take this opportunity to watch it properly.

If another embarrassing situation occurred, he could quickly turn off his phone.

Simone and the other four needed to find two more people to complete their team, so they headed to a specific area.

There were numerous individuals here in search of teammates.

There were also nearly full teams in need of temporary members.

Upon arrival, they discovered that there were quite a few people seeking teams.

Zac asked, "With so many people, how should we choose?"

Simone pondered for a moment and glanced at Bailey. "Why don't you go and choose, Bailey?"

Bailey was highly capable and should be able to identify someone who suited them at a glance. She also wanted to see if he would select the right person or someone who would cause trouble.

Zac chuckled and agreed, "That's a great idea. Bailey is more adept at choosing than us."

Tina also smiled and said. "I support that. Bailey should select two individuals who get along well."

Bailey gazed deeply at the three of them and did not refuse. "Alright, since you trust me, I'll go and choose."

He surveyed the individuals seeking teams and pointed to two of them. "Those two appear to be a good fit for our team. You guys can go and invite them yourselves."

He did not wish to deal with the rest.

Thus, he approached and extended invitations to the two individuals Bailey had pointed out.

Initially taken aback, Zac burst into laughter.

It dawned on him that since entering the entertainment industry, his fans affectionately called him Zachy.

The mention of the name Zeus brought back nostalgic memories, but now he preferred the nickname Zachy because Simone often used it.

He smiled and reached out to them to pat their shoulders.

“Let them envy us. There’s even more for them to envy. I can carry you guys in the game, and Simone can carry you in polo.”

As fans who admired Zac, they had been avid viewers of his live variety shows and held Simone in high regard, considering her a goddess.

Zac’s statement about being carried by Simone sparked excitement in their eyes.

“Being carried by Simone, surely more people will be jealous of us

The prospect of teaming up with their idol and being carried by the goddess thrilled them.

Simultaneously, they couldn’t help but notice that Zeus was indeed Simone’s advocate.

He consistently brought Simone into every conversation. This observation extended to the live chat, where fans playfully commented on Zac’s unwavering admiration for Simone.

“Wow, everything is about Simone. Zachy is beyond saving.”

‘Before meeting Simone, Zachy was a walking hormone. But after meeting Simone, he turned into a Simone’s advocate.’

Listen to his proud tone. It’s like he’s praising his wife!

“Haha! Why is Zachy so adorable? Simone is amazing; he’s even prouder of her than himself.

“Being sweetened again! I’m so into their pairing.

‘Be together! The two of them match perfectly!

A chorus of fans was even urging the two to be together, emphasizing the perfect match they made.

On this day of the week, as long as no one in the family was out of town, they returned to the mansion to have dinner with the elderly couple.

Usually, they came around ten in the morning and sat together to chat.

Originally, they talked about work or things at home. But suddenly, Old Mr. Turner had an idea.

“Zac participates in a live variety show: why don’t we watch it?”

Old Mrs. Turner smiled and said, “Sure, let’s watch it together.”

Then she looked at her children and grandchildren and said, “Whenever your father and I are free, we tune in to Zac’s live variety show. It is quite interesting.”

They loved their youngest and charming grandson the most.

She hadn’t planned on watching Zac’s live variety show.

But after learning that Zac had fallen into the water and was rescued, she became extremely nervous.

She decided to keep an eye on him and started watching the variety show live..

Who would have thought that once she started watching, she would get hooked?

After Old Mr. Turner watched the previous episode with her, he got hooked as well.

Before their children and grandchildren came to the house, they watched the live broadcast. together.

Everyone in the Turner family knew that Zac was the apple of their eyes. So naturally, they didn’t go against the suggestion.

Zac's parents were usually very busy and didn't have time to watch variety shows.

Now, upon hearing Old Mr. Turner express a desire to watch Zac's live broadcast, they also felt a bit curious.

After all, not only did the elderly couple cherish Zac, but they also cherished their youngest son.

The Turner Family was united internally, and there was no conflict between siblings. On the contrary, their relationships were very good.

The whole family loved Zac, the youngest of the third generation. So, no one was unwilling.

It was inappropriate to watch it on a phone since the entire family wanted to watch it together. Therefore, they turned on the TV and watched together.

During the live broadcast, Zac and his team were searching for someone to join.

Subsequently, Zac extended an invitation and started the role of Simone's advocate.

Zac's cousin, who was one year older than him, had always been watching this live broadcast.

Upon seeing him like this, she couldn't help but laugh and say, "I knew it! He's going to be Simone's advocate again."

Juliet asked with curiosity, "What does 'Simone's advocate' mean?"

Zac's cousin pointed to Simone in front of the camera and explained, "This female celebrity in their group. Her name is Zac's cousin pointed toe. Zac always promotes how amazing Simone is wherever he goes in variety shows, highlighting her talents. So many fans call him 'Simone's advocate.'

She opened the live chat on her phone and showed them the various jokes and blessings from fans.

Juliet took the phone and perused the comments, visibly surprised.

However, she was familiar with the name Simone.

She had wanted to visit and thank her as her son's savior before.

However, her son insisted on repaying Simone himself and asked her not to go.

That was why she refrained from going in person, thinking that if Simone needed their help in the future, they would lend a hand.

She said with a wry smile. This little brat, no wonder he doesn't let me go and thank Simone. He even said he was afraid of scaring her; it turns out he wants to repay her like this."

As a mother, she could see through her son's intentions.

She had never seen him praise anyone before, especially not with such a proud expression.

It was also the first time for everyone else to see Zac praise someone like this.

Zac had always been a little tyrant since he was young. So, for him to praise someone like this, it's like the sun rising from the west.

Zac's younger uncle asked, "Is Zac in love with that girl?"

Zac's parents were very busy with work, so they sent Zac to the mansion to be taken care of.

At that time, he also lived in the mansion, so it can be said that Zac was raised by him, and their bond is naturally different.

He thought that with Zac's proud and sarcastic nature, it would be difficult to find a girl who would suit his taste. He couldn't imagine what it would be like for Zac to get along with a girl; it would be like a battlefield.

He thought Zac would be arrogant and sharp-tongued, but he never expected it to be like this.

Zac's cousin smiled and said, "I've watched every episode of the variety show. He definitely likes Simone; he really likes that type. Not only is he Simone's advocate, but he also cares about Simone a lot. He is more attentive and considerate, completely different from his usual domineering self."

Then she added, "But Simone is indeed very good; her personality matches well with Zac's."

She herself is a fan of Simone and has joined the fan group. However, in front of the elders, she naturally couldn't call her affectionately.

Old Mr. Turner smiled and said, "Zac has indeed undergone a significant transformation since joining this variety show. In this episode, I saw him being separated from Simone and working as a shop assistant in a clothing store. He performed exceptionally well. I'm impressed. And the girl, Simone, I think she's remarkable. She is grounded, confident, and independent, making her a perfect match for Zac."

Apart from the elderly couple, no one in the family could handle Zac's difficult temperament.

Now, it seemed that Simone would be a valuable addition, which was fantastic.

Old Mrs. Turner also smiled and said, "I've watched three episodes of the variety show, and I really admire Simone. Her straightforward and determined personality is just my cup of tea."

She looked at Philip and Juliet and said, "If Zac pursues Simone, don't interfere or stop them."

Philip was a handsome man with a commanding presence. He appeared to be around 40 years old, but he was actually close to fifty.

He looked at Old Mrs. Turner helplessly and said, "Mom, our family has never insisted on our children marrying someone from a similar background. So, as long as Zac likes her, we will definitely not interfere or object. Moreover, opposing what Zac wants to do is meaningless.

Old Mr. Turner and Old Mrs. Turner were not the only ones who spoiled Zac.

Even Philip, Juliet, and their three daughters indulged Zac, contributing to his domineering personality.

Juliet was a beautiful woman. With a gentle and intellectual demeanor, she smiled and remarked, "Yes, as long as Zac likes her, it is fine. Besides, a girl that both of you like couldn't be bad."

With a gentle expression, she looked at Simone on the live broadcast and added, "I really like this girl; she is beautiful and cheerful. I even hope that Zac will pursue her and bring her home soon."

They had never meddled in their daughters' relationships, let alone Zac's.

She used to worry that Zac wouldn't find a girlfriend because of his personality.

But now, seeing that there was hope for Zac to be in a relationship, she not only didn't oppose it but also supported it.

Their family didn't prioritize the background of Zac's future wife as long as her character and personality were good.

Old Mrs. Turner smiled and said, "Yes, I am also looking forward to it. I hope Zac will bring Simone home soon."

Upon seeing how much Old Mr. Turner and Old Mrs. Turner liked Simone, everyone in the Turner Family was surprised.

After all, the elderly couple had never expressed any opinions on their grandchildren's relationships before.

It seemed that this girl truly pleased the two elders.

Then, the whole family didn't chat much but focused on the live broadcast.

They were eager to see what kind of girl could change their little tyrant in the family and make him fall for her.

On the Cubilis polo field. Simone remained unaware that Zac's family was watching her on the television screen with curiosity.

As Zac brought two men over, she greeted them with a smile.

The two of them excitedly shook hands with Simone upon seeing her.

In their hearts, they were even more amazed, realizing that the goddess was even more beautiful up close than on camera. A truly natural beauty without the need for any beauty filters.

After that. George Liam and Yusuf Taylor introduced themselves.

Simone smiled and asked. "Are you acquainted?"

George replied. “Yes, we are childhood friends. Several years ago, we came here for tourism and fell in love with polo after watching a match. Afterward, we learned polo at the polo field. Every year, we come to join in the excitement of polo matches. If a team wants us, we participate; if we don’t get selected, we become audiences.

Their primary motivation was their interest and passion for the sport rather than just the competition.

Simone nodded and

1. “Being acquainted is great: it will help us coordinate better. Since we’re a team now, let’s go register first and then choose our horses.”

George and Yusuf agreed, stating. “Okay, we’ll rely on you, Simone, to lead us.

Simone knew it was Zac who informed them, and she no longer needed to be modest. So, she laughed lightly and said. “Okay. I’ll lead all of you.”

The

group proceeded to register and then headed to the stable in the back.

Although the polo field provided horses for the competition, participants had to choose their

With over a hundred horses available, they could pick whichever one they liked.

As long as the problem was not caused by the horse itself or any other safety issues on the competition field, they had to take responsibility for themselves.

During registration, everyone had to sign a safety agreement.

Upon approaching Simone, Zac asked, “Simone, can you help me choose a horse?”

Simone looked at him with a half-smile. “Can’t you choose it yourself?”

Zac happily replied. “The horse you choose must be the best. I trust your judgment.”

Simone couldn’t help but laugh. “You!”

However, she didn’t refuse and continued to indulge him, “Alright, I’ll help you choose a horse too.”

Zac’s eyes filled with a sweet smile as he expressed, “I knew you were the best.”

Upon watching the live broadcast, Zac’s family felt a tinge of jealousy.

Zac’s cousin remarked, “Wow, I never thought our little tyrant could be so affectionate.”

Another cousin said, “I remember Zac started learning horse riding before he was ten. He even raised a few purebred horses in the family’s stable. He can’t choose a horse? Is he kidding us?”

The previous female cousin said, “Otherwise, why would he be called ‘Simone’s advocate’?”

“Haven’t you heard him say that Simone chooses the best?”

Another cousin sighed. “This is love!”

He laughed and added, “I know you are the best. Is this really the Zac I know?”

Everyone exclaimed, “I’ve never seen him like this before.”

The female cousin chuckled. “What do you guys know? Zac is what we call a ‘little puppy, the one who can most evoke Simone’s affectionate heart, especially this cheerful and strong girl.”

“I used to think Zac might be the hardest among all the male cousins to find a girlfriend. Who would have thought he’s actually the best at it? He can easily switch between being a domineering man and an obedient boy. And with such a handsome face, which woman can resist him?”

Simone was tough with her ex-boyfriend and brothers. With other people, she maintained a good relationship with them. It might be considered kindness but not affection.

But when it came to Zac, Simone really spoiled him.

All of Zac's male cousins were stunned. "I didn't expect Zac to be like this. He's really good at

They couldn't do it themselves-being both domineering and obedient.

The female cousin looked at several single male cousins and smiled. "That's right, you guys should learn from Zac in the future."

The single male cousins laughed and cried. "Alright, we'll make time to watch his livestream and learn from him."

The elders were also surprised and found it amusing. Zac really opened their eyes.

Simone and the other five entered the stable.

Suddenly, a robust and majestic white horse galloped up to Bailey, affectionately nuzzling his shoulder.

Bailey responded by patting its head before gracefully mounting the horse.

Upon addressing Simone and the others, he declared, "This is my horse, and I won't choose. again. Feel free to pick your own."

Simone observed Bailey riding the white horse in astonishment.

While the horse displayed gentleness toward Bailey, its eyes and aura exuded fierceness, reminiscent of legendary steeds like Red Hare or Black Steed.

As she observed him, Bailey's temperament seemed to take on a more mysterious and aloof quality while astride the horse.

The more she looked, the more she sensed an air of enigma surrounding him.

In her heart, an incredulous suspicion began to arise.

Bailey noticed Simone's gaze and calmly locked eyes with her. He queried, "Have you found a horse you like?"

With Simone's keen eyesight, she must have chosen one earlier when she visited the stable."

Simone's eyes returned to normal, and she smiled, replying. 'It seems you know me well. I did find one that I like. Let's go choose now."

Bailey nodded, saying, "Alright."

Simone proceeded to assist Zac in choosing a purple-red horse while she opted for a black one herself.

Upon sensing a unique atmosphere between Simone and Zac, Tina refrained from seeking Simone's assistance and independently selected her horse.

The others also found horses to their liking, completing their selections swiftly...

After the registration process, Jodie and Andrew entered with a group of people.

Upon spotting Simone's group, the two didn't extend greetings but instead engaged with their teammates while selecting horses.

Upon noticing Jodie and the others joining this team, George and Yusuf expressed surprise.

After covering some distance, Simone inquired of the two, "Do you know this team?"

George replied. "Yes, they were the champions of the previous two polo matches."

He continued in a hushed tone, "This team is notorious for its ruthlessness. Many opposing teams end up with injuries after facing them. Always tactically inflicting harm on others, they make it appear accidental to avoid penalties.

We competed against them last year and were eliminated. Two of our teammates sustained injuries, and it seemed intentional. However, they are careful not to leave any trace, making complaints futile.”

Simone asked, “Do their team members change as well?”

George replied, “Yes, only four are permanent members. The other two are recruited on the spot, often used as bait. In the previous matches, these temporary members also suffered injuries. They keep ninety percent of the prize money for themselves, allocating the rest to the others. Dissatisfaction is met with consequences, so participants in polo matches avoid their team. They consistently recruit new members, and I wonder if Jodie and the others were recruited or if those two approached them.”

Chapter 310 Walking Into the Lion’s Den

Zac was familiar with Jodie,

He remarked, “Considering Jodie’s personality, it’s highly likely that they’ve already sought information about the strongest teams. Upon noticing the previous championship teams were only two players short, they took the initiative to join. While they have ample financial resources and aren’t concerned about the prize money, their main focus is overpowering us and clinching the championship.”

Jodie’s intentions were glaringly obvious.

Tina concurred, saying, “I think so too. If they’re forming a team, they naturally want a strong one to stand a chance at winning.”

Simone smiled and added, “If they want to play with-fire, let them.”

Upon observing the four of them, it was evident they weren’t on good terms with each other. One, in particular, had a menacing look, rebellious hair, and a sinister expression—clearly, a bold and cunning character.

Jodie voluntarily brought Andrew into their fold, effectively walking into the lion’s den.

However, it was Jodie's own choice, and she would have to face the consequences.

It was a sentiment shared by the others.

A team of people prepared for the upcoming matches by riding horses.

Those in the live broadcast room heard their conversation, praising Zac for seeing through Jodie since everything he said proved accurate.

Before forming a team, Jodie inquired about the strong teams.

Despite well-intentioned warnings, Jodie persisted in seeking the strongest team, revealing her eagerness for success.

Consequently, not many people held high hopes for her and Andrew.

After all teams completed their registration and were approved, the polo field organizers, announced sixteen participating teams.

Opponents would be determined by drawing lots, competing directly to advance to the final for the championship and runner-up.

was contingent on strength and luck.

Simone was responsible for her team drawing lots.

In the first round, Simone drew a relatively weak team, aligning with her expectations.

Given Jodie's desire to change teams, they were likely to face each other in the final.

During the initial game, their strategy focused on improving team coordination rather than rushing to win.

If there were any issues, Simone and Zac would immediately bring them up for everyone to make improvements.

As a result, they won the first match, and everyone's coordination became more cohesive.

Moving to round eight, Simone's team faced an average-strength opponent.

They continued steady play by concentrating on enhancing coordination, leading to another swift victory.

The quarter-finals and semi-finals brought stronger opponents, but the six-member team's cooperation improved, securing consecutive wins with Bailey, Simone, and Zac's outstanding abilities.

Jodie's team also advanced, relying on their strong teammates and cunning tactics.

In several matches, their opponents suffered injuries.

In the last match, where Jodie and her opponent vied for the ball, the opponent fell and got injured when his club accidentally hit the horse's leg.

However, it did seem to fall within the category of normal accidents just by looking at it.

Upon watching the incident, Simone could see that Jodie did it intentionally.

Sure enough, following the ruthless and evil teammates, Jodie's evil side was completely exposed.

As expected, the remaining two teams were Jodie's and Simone's.

As anticipated, the remaining two teams for the championship were Jodie's and Simone's.

Excitement spread among the audience in the live broadcast room.

They marveled at the fact that both teams had been lucky enough to avoid each other and directly meet in the championship match.

George remarked. "We've been fortunate. We haven't faced them before. From their matches, their strength seems even greater than the previous two years."

It had to be acknowledged that despite Jodie's seemingly soft and weak appearance, she displayed fierceness in polo.

Andrew's skills also ranked among the better players, adding to the team's overall strength.

Tina smiled. "It's quite a coincidence that we can avoid each other and meet in the final."

She didn't believe it was a mere coincidence; there must be someone behind the scenes manipulating things.

Simone also deduced that influential people were backing Jodie with far-reaching influence.

Not only did they manipulate the variety show grouping, but they also influenced the matches.

This also signified that the webcast was extensive, and the network of connections was quite strong.

She looked up toward the distance, in the direction of the headquarters of the geomancy association.

This was the territory of the geomancy association, where manipulations could occur.

It implied that within the geomancy association, there were undoubtedly people backing Jodie and her team, possibly even high-ranking individuals.

Once the variety show concluded, she planned to investigate further within the geomancy association.

In the opposing rest area, Andrew perceived it as a coincidence.

Upon contemplating competing against Simone, he felt conflicted. If I encounter Simone, should I give my all or take it easy on her?

After some thought, he opted to go easy on her. After all, she was his biological sister.

On the other hand, Jodie was brimming with excitement.

As she anticipated the upcoming match, she was eager to have her first real showdown with Simone in the match. She was determined not to lose.

As she strategized, she considered various ways to impede Simone on the polo field, contemplating breaking her hands and feet under the horse's hooves or directly harming her.

After a half-hour break for both teams to rest and adjust, they mounted their horses and took the ball sticks provided by the organizers onto the field.

The final match spanned sixty minutes, divided into two halves of thirty minutes each, with teams switching sides.

Upon entering the field, the stands erupted in cheers.

"Come on, Simone! Zachy, come on!"

"Simone, we love you!"

"Daughterling, come on, we're rooting for you!" "Granddaughter idol, go for it! Take first place!"

"Tina, go for it."

"Bailey, let's go! We love you!"

"Master Shawn, let's go!"

The geomancy association was located in Cubilis-a place frequented by geomancers.

Thus, every polo match attracted numerous geomancers to watch.

Among the attendees were Simone's fans.

Many senior geomancers were astonished to see Bailey on the field.

He was the favored disciple of the association president. Not only did he possess immeasurable strength, but he also always secluded himself, adding an air of mystery.

It was surprising to them that he would participate in such an event.

Admiration for Bailey's strength and the president's endorsement led them to shout a few umes in support.

Simone and Zac had a large following, with fans comprising two-thirds of the entire stands. This made Jodie and her teammates struggle to keep their smiles.

Jodie even silently complained about the noisy fans. This is a polo match, not a fan gathering. Why are these fans shouting so loudly? Nonetheless, it has its advantages. Once I defeat Simone, I'll have the perfect opportunity to prove these people wrong. Following Simone's loss, perhaps people will start to unfollow and criticize her. As Simone loses her fans and faces criticism, her luck will decline, and mine will rise accordingly. That's great.

As Jodie confidently looked at Simone on her horse, she declared, "Simone, we will give our best to defeat you,"
