

I Love You, Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard)

Chapter 1101 - 1110

Chapter 1101

Yasmine did not even care that Bonnie was a "man." A hint of awkwardness flashed in Yasmine's eyes, thinking it was inappropriate to ask a man such a question.

She cleared her throat and composed herself before saying, "I meant to ask where you're going next. Do you have a place to stay? If you don't, I can make some arrangements for you since I have connections in District Nine."

"That won't be necessary," Bonnie rejected her, "I have a place to stay, so just give me an address, and I'll send you there."

Realizing Bonnie was uninterested, Yasmine did not insist. Instead, she told Bonnie the address.

Bonnie nodded and said, "Got it."

Then, she took her phone and texted Collin. About five minutes later, he appeared before them in a Ford Raptor. "Get in the car. The District Nine organizations sent plenty of men to search for you two. They're leaving no stone unturned.

"Worse, they've also dispatched countless drones to pinpoint your location. We need to leave now, or they'll find you."

"All right," Bonnie responded while helping Yasmine into the vehicle.

Since the address Yasmine provided was nearby, they arrived quickly. Bonnie decided to help Yasmine out of the car. "We're here. Can you walk on your own from now on?"
"Yeah, I-"

Before she could respond, Bonnie hopped back into the car and waved. "Adios!"

"I-I guess I'll see you again..." Yasmine instinctively waved back.

Then, Collin drove off and turned a corner, disappearing from Yasmine's sight. She could only watch as the car left. Then, something hit her.

'Damn it, I think I forgot something important. How'd I forget to ask what his name was?! He saved my life, after all. I want to know his name and phone number.'

However, Yasmine could not act on her thoughts since her foot was injured. She also had no time to enter the garage and get her carnet

She deeply regretted her forgetfulness and smacked her forehead.

Yasmine muttered, "How can I forget to ask about something as important as his name? I'm such an idiot. If only I could rewind time. Too bad that ship has sailed, and can do nothing about it."

At that moment, Ivor showed up with Floyd. The former exclaimed, "Yasmine, are you okay?!"

He strode toward her and saw the gauze around her thigh. Ivor frowned and questioned, "Did you hurt your leg? Who dressed your wound? Also, why did your communication device get cut off? Didn't you have a spare?

"Why didn't you contact me? How will I explain myself to your late brother if something happened to you?"

Ivor had no intentions of repeating the same tragedy to Yasminee. Her brother had died because he saved Ivor's life. The latter would not know what to do if he failed to protect Yasmine, too.

His barrage of questions flustered Yasmine. She felt disheartened when Ivor mentioned her brother. She pursed her lips and said, "Calm down, Ivor. Look, I'm okay."

Chapter 1102

Ivor wanted to say something but realized there were too many passersby. He looked at Yasmine and whispered, "Let's go inside. This isn't the place to talk." "Okay." She limped inside with Ivor and Floyd in tow while the rest of his men holed up nearby.

Once inside the apartment, Yasmine lay on the couch and yawned. "Go ahead and ask me anything you want, but do it quick. I want to sleep as soon as you finish. I'm exhausted." Ivor looked at her bandaged wound and asked, "How'd you get hurt?"

"I got shot," Yasmine responded as if it was not a big deal.

"You got shot?!" Ivor frowned. "You should've been able to make a safe getaway according to the escape routes I prepared for you. How'd you get shot? Did you get exposed?" Yasmine recalled what she experienced earlier and felt a shiver down her spine. She frowned and said, "It's not about that. Billy has been suspicious of me and set me up.' She never expected that to happen.

After some thought, Ivor asked, "Did you have any run-ins with him?"

"Not exactly. Billy used to have nasty ideas about me, but I slipped through his fingers several times. However, I got your orders this time and drank the spiked wine during the party. I let them take me to the underground market and auction me off to the highest bidder.

"Then, I followed the plan and hypnotized Billy. I thought I executed the plan flawlessly, but I didn't know he and Micah set up the whole thing. Billy and his men would've caught me if I hadn't encountered the guy who saved me. I wouldn't be talking to you now if it weren't for him."

Yasmine became excited when she mentioned her "savior."

"Boss, you have to find the guy who saved me. He brought me home safely, but was an idiot not to ask for his name. I didn't even get a S chance to thank him properly. R want to miss out on getting him."

Yasmine was so worked up that her complexion turned red. Even so, she did not make much sense to Ivor.

He asked, "Who is this guy you're talking about? How'd he save you? What are the odds of him appearing in the same place as you? Do you think he saved you because he has an ulterior motive?"

"He must want to get closer to you to gain information. Also, did you honestly tell him your home address?"

The more he spoke, the more he thought the guy had tricked Yasmine to lure her into an even deeper trap. "Could you be more careful next time? Why would you trust a random person so easily?"

Yasmine pursed her lips and grumbled, "Stop it, boss. He's not a bad guy or anything."

'Yasmine's usually vigilant and will never trust anyone so quickly. That means I can't take her "savior" lightly. After all, he won her trust with seemingly no effort.'

Ivor frowned, looking solemn as he asked, "What made you think he's a good guy?"

"He saved my life! Did I forget to tell you he almost died doing it? Why would he have done that if he was a bad person?" Yasmine could not help but smile when she recalled how handsome 'Bonnie' was.

"Besides that, there's something crucial that I've yet to tell you, boss."

Chapter 1103

"The guy who saved me is drop-dead gorgeous! I'm pretty sure everyone I know will be angry about how stunning he is." Yasmine thought of 'Bonnie's' handsome face as she spoke, thinking she was meant to be her boyfriend.

"Why would someone as handsome as him be a bad guy, boss?"

Ivor's lips twitched as he replied, "You always lose your senses whenever you encounter good-looking guys. When will you fix that flaw of yours?"

"Everyone loves handsome men. Why would I change that about myself?" Yasmine scoffed lightly. "Also, he's worthy of my adoration, and you're too old-fashioned, boss. You won't understand it."

"You're beyond help, Yasmine." Ivor helplessly rubbed his temples. "I'll post a team around your apartment for now. I want you to tend to your wound quietly. You're not allowed to go out and cause more trouble for me."

"Ugh, fine." Yasmine pursed her lips, not bothering to hide her displeased expression.

Ivor stood from the couch and said, "I can tell you're tired, so we'll leave you to rest."

Suddenly, Yasmine remembered something as he left. Immediately after, she called out to him, "Boss, wait!"

She hobbled over as Ivor frowned. "What is it?"

She blinked and said, "You have a wide network, right? You're also an influential person. That said, I need you to search for my savior."

"Yasmine, it's not that I don't want to help you, but I have reservations about him. What'll I do if he has ulterior motives? I won't risk the organization by trusting him," Ivor spoke solemnly. "W-Well, will you please keep an eye out for me, then?"

'Although might think my savior doesn't have ill intentions, Mr. Ivor makes an excellent point. I guess I should forget about asking for his help. Maybe I can only ask him to keep an eye out for me.'

"You'll have to tell me what he looks like."

Ivor was suspicious of the guy who saved Yasmine. Since she asked him to keep an eye out, he could use it to investigate the guy instead. If "Bonnie" turned out to be an enemy of the Dark Knights, Ivor would show "her" no mercy.

"You mean his looks?" Yasmine frowned and rubbed her chin. After some thought, she said, "I don't know how to describe his looks, but I know he's stunning."

Ivor was speechless.

Yasmine noticed it and could not help but giggle. "Just keep an eye out for him, boss. Tell me if you run into a gorgeous Arvandorian in District Nine, and I'll be there to see if he's indeed my savior."

Ivor detected a keyword and asked, "So, an Arvandorian saved your life?"

She nodded. "Yeah, he's a stunning Arvandorian!"

Ivor thought about it before agreeing to her request, "Fine, I'll tell everyone to look out for that guy. You can go and rest now, Yasmine."

Chapter 1104

Yasmine was overjoyed after receiving Ivor's word. "You got it, boss! I promise to behave and stay home for now. I won't go out and cause you any more trouble!"

"Mhm," Ivor responded dryly before leaving. Once outside, he asked Floyd, "What do you think about Yasmine's 'savior'?"

"Although Yasmine's quirky, her mind is sharp. I don't think she'd make mistakes about anyone's good intentions." Floyd observed his boss's expression before asking, "Don't you think you're being overly cautious this time, Mr. Ivor? Maybe that person is a good guy."

"It's hard to say." Ivor shook his head. "After all, he timed his appearance perfectly. I can't help but find it suspicious."

Floyd looked at his boss questioningly. "Should I tell the men protecting Yasmine to be extra careful so no one can sneak up on her?"

"Sure, tell them to look out for any suspicious characters and report to me immediately when they find something," Ivor said. Suddenly, he remembered how rowdy Yasmine could be.

He reminded Floyd, "Tell them not to take their eyes off Yasmine. Otherwise, she might sneak out and look for her so-called savior herself! That's our priority, got it?"

'Yasmine might be capable, but she can give me a headache.'

Floyd quickly replied, "Understood, Mr. Ivor. I'll emphasize it to them."

Meanwhile, Bonnie felt the cool breeze on her face as she sat in Collin's Ford Raptor. She instinctively sighed in relief, saying, "It's been a while since I worked out that much. What happened just now wore me out."

"You're tired? Anyone else would've died if they were in your shoes." Collin recalled what he saw from outside and felt a shiver down his spine. You have no idea how many people the District Nine organizations sent to catch you two.

"I almost rushed inside to save you several times, but I was worried I'd be a burden instead. I could only bite my nails and wait for you. Your escape under such circumstances is impressive enough, but you saved Yasmine, too."

Collin was thoroughly impressed as he continued, "You're more formidable than you've ever been, Chief. I might need to stop slacking off and start training when I return." Bonnie chuckled and asked, "Can you be any more dramatic?"

"You escaped so many people, saved someone, and got away in one piece. Don't you know how skillful and ferocious you are, Chief? No one else could've done what you did." Collin thought Bonnie was humble bragging.

She scoffed and then remembered something. Then, she said coldly, "I heard Yasmine hypnotizing Billy and asking him about the chip when I hid in the room. I can't help but wonder if she's an ally or an enemy."

Collin was stunned when he heard that. He frowned and asked, "If so, why'd you save her? What'll we do if she's an enemy? It'll look like we're asking for trouble, no?"

"I saved Yasmine because she's an Arvandorian, like us. I sympathized with her because it's tough to be out here in a foreign country alone."

Chapter 1105

After a brief pause, Bonnie thought of something and said, "I'll consider my actions as my good deed for the day. If Yasmine turns out to be our enemy, I'll show her no mercy if we meet again. Besides, it's not like I learned nothing from rescuing her."

Her mature thinking impressed Collin. He became interested when she said she learned something. He asked, "Did you make an extraordinary discovery or something, Chief? Quick, tell me what it is."

Bonnie responded, "Based on what Yasmine asked Billy after hypnotizing him, I know he has it. Furthermore, he doesn't know Falcon has the 1.6 billion dollars, either."

"That's cunning! Falcon knows the whole world is aware he stole the chip. He can't hide from it and doesn't dare to lie about it. He must've stashed away the money and maximized his profit!" Collin sneered. "I must admit he's intelligent. Still, he's misusing his talents!"

Then, something occurred to him, and his eyes sparkled. "Chief, should we tell Billy's men that Falcon has the money to make them fight each other? That way, we can reclaim our chip amidst the chaos!" Bonnie squinted. After some thought, she responded, "That's an option, but I don't want to do that unless we're forced. After all, it's our organization's business, and I want to handle it myself."

"Then, should we discuss it with the Dark Knights first? We can give them something in return if they help us. I think they'll agree," Collin tried probing Bonnie.

She yawned and said, "Let's put a pin in it. I need you to find out which organization Yasmine is working for. We can devise a plan for the rest later."

"Understood, Chief."

The first thing Collin did after returning to the hotel was arrange for his men to use the organization's network to investigate Yasmine. After much effort, he finally received concrete information the following day.

QUMS

"Chief, I have news! Yasmine is a member of the Dark Knights!"

Bonnie raised a brow, apparently shocked. "She's one of them, huh? I'm surprised."

"I thought their leader signed an agreement and promised not to act without discussing it with us first. Now, he sent Yasmine to dig for n more information about the chip. Does that mean he breached our agreement?"

Collin was never fond of the Dark Knights. He added, "I knew they wouldn't stay put! It looks like I was right, after all."

"Oh, they have undoubtedly breached our agreement." Bonnie grinned bitterly. "I'll have to call their leader and question him!"

When she made the call, Ivor answered, "Did the sun rise from the west? Why would the Nidhoggs leader call me? Are you finally ready to retrieve the chip?"

Bonnie sneered. "I thought you guys tried that already. Are you sure you need my help? Breaching our agreement was a terrible move!"

Chapter 1106

'I can't believe the Nidhoggs already found out we acted alone.'

Ivor was surprised but did not admit it. Instead, he feigned ignorance and said, "How did we breach our agreement? Who would do that?"

"Hmph!" Bonnie sneered and hung up the phone before blocking his number. After all, Ivor could not honor his word or their agreement. Since that was the case, she no longer wanted to talk to him.

On the other hand, Ivor only heard beeping from the other end of the line. He tried calling her again but received a voice telling him the line was unavailable. He frowned in puzzlement as he muttered, "What just happened?"

Floyd explained timidly, "I think he blocked your number, Mr. Ivor."

"Is he honestly taking it this seriously?" Ivor did not expect things to be so dire just because he feigned ignorance.

'My organization is pretty capable, so it's not like the Nidhogs are a challenge for us. Still, I breached our agreement. Also, I desperately need one of their chip's functions to complete one of our projects. What will I do now that their leader is angry with me?'

Meanwhile, Floyd noticed the changes in his boss's expression. The former could not help but ask gingerly, "What will you do now, Mr. Ivor? He no longer wants to work with us since he blocked you."

After some thought, Ivor said, "We need to move now. Let's go to the hotel where the Nidhogs' leader is. We must explain ourselves to him."

"Understood, Mr. Ivor. I'll prepare the car now," Floyd said before leaving.

At that moment, Ivor heard Yasmine's voice, "Are you going to see the Nidhogs' leader now? I want to go, too!"

Ivor turned and saw how she hobbled over with a crutch. His lips twitched as he said, "You should be resting. Why do you want to tag along instead?"

"I'm curious about what their leader looks like heard so many things about him but have never met him." The more Yasmine talked about "Bonnie," the more curious she became.

"Take me with you, boss," she said while

3 at Ivor, "I promise to be and behave while bet

I won't get you into any trouble."

Considering how carefree and forthright Yasmine was, Ivor thought she was a wild card and rejected her, "That's not happening. Rest and tend to your wound instead. You're not coming with us."

"Oh, come on, boss! Take me with you! I swear I won't cause you any trouble." Yasmine raised a hand as if making an oath.

Chapter 1107

Although Yasmine looked sincere, Ivor knew she was just putting on airs. He could not predict what kind of mess she would create if he took her along. That was why he disagreed.

Ivor shook his head and said, "That's not happening. Now, return to your room and tend to your wounds. If you're that curious about what the Nidhoggs' leader looks like, I'll take you to meet him once you've recovered fully."

Yasmine pouted and growled, "You're not fooling me, boss. You're just saying that to brush me off."

"I told you to rest and tend to your wound, Yasmine. You shouldn't be wandering around." Ivor stood his ground.

"Come on, boss! You-"

She was about to retort, but Floyd interjected, "The car's ready, Mr. Ivor. Are you ready to leave?"

"Let's go." Ivor brushed past Yasmine and approached the door.

Floyd took after him, saying, "Right away."

Yasmine could only watch as they left. At that moment, she forgot about her leg injury and stomped on the ground. Immediately after, she felt an excruciating pain spread to her whole body, and she yelled, "Ouch! That hurts!"

'It's just not my day today! Mr. Ivor refused to take me with him, and I pulled my wound!

Ivor heard her yelp and paused momentarily. Then, he continued walking.

Floyd instinctively turned and glanced at Yasmine, noticing the pain she felt. He could not help but say, "Aren't we being a little too cruel, Mr.

cruel, Mr. Ivor? She got injured

1.n

during the mission, y'know. Is it okay for us to ditch her?"

Ivor glanced sidelong at him. "It'll be troublesome for us to bring her along."

"What do you mean?" Floyd was puzzled.

Ivor looked at him condescendingly. "You've been working with Yasmine for a while now. Have you learned anything about her? She tends to say things she doesn't mean to get what she wants, whether it's safe or not.

"She also acts on her emotions. No one can control her if she's unhappy, not even me," Ivor rubbed his brows as he spoke. He would always get a headache whenever he discussed Yasmine's character.

"This can't be a worse occasion to bring Yasmine along. The Nidhoggs' leader blocked my number, and things might get rowdy while we're there. Yasmine's too impulsive and might ruin everything. That's why I refuse to bring her."

Although Yasmine had significant flaws, she was still the best in Ivor's organization in terms of hypnosis and undercover missions. He would not have kept her around if she had no extraordinary skills. Floyd nodded understandingly. "You're right, Mr. Ivor. She is pretty impulsive. Since you mentioned it, I agree that she should stay at the hotel."

"Good thing you understand," Ivor responded faintly, "Also, I'm willing to bet her leg doesn't hurt that much. She's just yelped like that because she's trying to gain my sympathy, so I'll take her with us."

It was not Yasmine's first time pulling a stunt like that. She had stuck to the same tricks too many times, and Ivor could tell at a glance.

Floyd's eyes widened. "Is she that cunning? I'll have to be more cautious the next time she asks me for anything. Otherwise, I'll unwittingly fall for her tricks."

Chapter 1108

"Good thing you realize that now," Ivor said as he checked the time, "It's getting late. We should clear the air with the Nidhoggs' leader as soon as possible." Floyd nodded. "You got it, Mr. Ivor."

Yasmine overheard everything. She pursed her lips and muttered, "So, Mr. Ivor thinks I'm nothing but a troublemaker. I might've yelled loudly on purpose earlier, but he didn't have to say all that about me.

"Hmph, does he honestly think I'm helpless just because he refused to bring me along? That doesn't matter because I can always go by myself."

She took her phone and secretly called for a cab. Then, she told the driver to follow Ivor's car.

Meanwhile, Ivor looked at the rearview mirror and noticed the cab following them. He frowned and asked, "Floyd, is that cab tailing us?"

Floyd frowned and saw the cab before saying, "That car is a common cab in Yale, Mr. Ivor. It's probably just using the same streets as us to get to its location. I don't think it's following us."

Still, Ivor could not help but think something was amiss. "Keep your eyes on it. If something doesn't seem right, shake it off immediately."

Floyd nodded. "Understood, Mr. Ivor."

Meanwhile, Yasmine hid in the backseat and peered at Ivor with a binocular. When Ivor turned to look back, she knew he had discovered her. So she quickly devised a plan, saying, "Hey, mister, I need you to take the back road now."

"You got it, ma'am." The driver did not question Yasmine's intentions and did as she asked.

Several minutes later, Ivor looked at the rearview mirror again. "It I like you were right about the

It

Floyd glanced behind and said, "Great, now we won't have to take a detour. Is it okay to go to the Nidhogg's leader's hotel now?"

Although he had already planned his next move, he still asked for Ivor's opinion. Floyd would not do anything without his boss's permission. Ivor agreed, "Okay, take us to the hotel."

"Right away, sir." Floyd stepped on it.

Simultaneously, Yasmine had already hopped into another car and continued to trail the duo.

Ivor was sharp and perceptive. If anyone else had tried to pull that stunt, he would have immediately caught them. Even so, Yasmine knew him too well and was knowledgeable about how his mind worked. That was why she successfully tailed him while remaining undetected.

About ten minutes later, Floyd pulled over at the hotel entrance.

Chapter 1109

Before Ivor could exit the car, one of Bonnie's men recognized it. The latter hurried to her room and told her about it, "Chief, the Dark Knights' leader is here. What are your orders?" "He's here already?" Bonnie raised her brow. "Don't interfere, and let them find their way in."

Collin, standing beside her, was confused. "I thought you called him and gave him a piece of your mind, Chief. Why are you letting him in?"

He could not understand Bonnie's actions. If she wanted to see Ivor, it would render her previous phone call pointless.

"Do you honestly not understand why I'm doing this?" Bonnie knew Collin was smart and fully expected him to understand her actions.

He scratched his head and thought about it. Still, he needed clarification. "I-I still don't get it, Chief."

She flicked the side of his head and questioned, "How are you so dumb?"

He palmed his head and yelped, saying, "I know I'm dumb, but you didn't have to do that. Don't you think I'll become dumber if you keep flicking my head?" Bonnie could not help but laugh. "What a surprise. It looks like you know your place, after all."

Collin rubbed the side of his head and said, "Stop making fun of me, Chief. Just explain why you're letting the Dark Knights' leader in. I want to learn from you."

Bonnie said, "I have two reasons for calling their leader and questioning him about breaching our agreement. Firstly, I did it to remind them how much I hate those who break their promises. Secondly, I want to use this opportunity to show him his recklessness has repercussions.

"I'll be so furious that I'll refuse to let him access the chip. That's why their leader is desperate to see me now. Do you think he's afraid that I'm mad? It's not about how I feel, but it's about the chip instead."

Collin's eyes widened as he listened. "You're brilliant, Chief! I wouldn't be so dumb if you could share even half your knowledge with me."

His words made Bonnie laugh, "Hahaha! You haven't learned a thing for the past several years. The only thing you improved a lot on is sweet-talking."

"That wasn't what I was doing, Chief. No one is as smart as you are. Otherwise, you couldn't have developed the " He got so excited that he almost blurted out the most crucial information. Bonnie glared daggers at him when she realized he was about to blab. "Mind your words, Collin."

He also realized it and quickly covered his mouth. "I'm sorry, Chief. I didn't mean it."

Although everyone in the room was a member of the Nidhogs, Collin was the only one who knew that Bonnie was also Bonita. Still, there could be another traitor like Falcon in the room. That was why Collin needed to keep that sensitive information a secret.

'Thank goodness the chief stopped me in time, or I would've made a massive mistake.'

Bonnie said sternly, "Just be more cautious next time. You can't mention such things so openly, even though everyone in this room is one of ours. Do you understand?"

Collin understood the magnitude of the situation. He nodded and said gingerly, "Loud and clear, Chief."

Soon after one of Bonnie's men brought or and Floyd into the room. She casually sipped her tea and asked, "To what do I owe the pleasure, gentlemen? Are you here to discuss something important?"

Chapter 1110

Ivor sat across from Bonnie and apologized to her, "I'm sorry for acting without first consulting you. I wouldn't have done that unless it was necessary. I did it hoping to speed up the process." "So, you're saying you have a good reason?" Bonnie raised her brows in disbelief. "How about you try to convince me?"

"I just got married, and my wife was reluctant to let me go when she discovered I had to travel so far for so long. She even cried under a blanket. Although I was unwilling to leave her, I still came to Yale.

"That said, I don't want to go home and find out she wants a divorce because she's mad at me. That's why I was desperate to speed up our process. I want to go home and be with her. I constantly risk my life, so it's hard for me to find a wife."

Ivor told a white lie shamelessly, even though he only exaggerated some parts of the story.

Meanwhile, Floyd was so shocked by what he heard that he choked. "Cough, cough, cough!"

'I guess Mr. Ivor wasn't lying about Ms. Bonnie being reluctant to let him go. Still, he lied about her crying under a blanket. He even said she might want a divorce, which is ridiculous. Ms. Bonnie would never do that. Even imagining it doesn't seem right.'

With that in mind, Floyd continued coughing. Immediately after, he saw Ivor glaring at him, causing his heart to pound. Floyd lowered his head and strained to suppress his cough.

Meanwhile, Ivor turned to Bonnie and said, "Please excuse my assistant. He hasn't been feeling well lately. I hope it doesn't bother you."

Bonnie waved and said, "That's okay."

Ivor looked at her curiously and said, "So, what do you think about my reasoning?"

She raised her brows and said, "You mean your concern about your wife divorcing you for being away for too long?"

He felt a little embarrassed when she spoke so bluntly. He cleared his throat and feigned calmness as he responded, "Yeah."

She stared at him and tapped the desk but did not respond.

'How convenient that I'm facing the same issue as this guy. Ivor and also just got married, but we have to be apart because of this damn chip. I'm not as emotional as he is, but I can understand how he feels now.'

After some thought, Bonnie said, "Since you're in such a hurry, I'll try to settle everything quickly so you can return to your wife."

Even so, everything depended on the situation. If Bonnie could choose she would have taken her time to retrieve the chip and catch Fafeon. After all, she wanted to teach him a lesson he would never forget.

'I'll consider this guy's words and speed things up without compromising my plans.'

"I appreciate it." Ivor knew just how wise and capable the Nidhogs' leader was. The latter could have made her move long ago if she wanted to.

'I realized something after sending Yasmine to probe the situation. I can't take the chip and the money by solely relying on my organization.

must work with the Nidhogs. That's why Trushed over. I needed to know their leader's stance.'
