I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 226

Chapter 226

The lobby manager's servile attitude puzzled everyone.

Daken and Avril exchanged glances. They knew Bonnie had an extraordinary relationship with Hamish and Tang Fusion Studios. However, they did not understand her relationship with Jade Horizon Hotel.

Considering the lobby manager's demeanor, he seemed to hold Bonnie in high regard.

Although Bonnie received strange glances from the crowd, she did not bother explaining herself. Instead, she said, "We arrived first. Who do you think the private room should go to?"

"You, of course. Please, the private room is this way, miss." The manager realized he had inadvertently offended Bonnie earlier. Now, he bent over backward to please her.

Meanwhile, Dermot's expression darkened as he stopped the manager, saying, "Robert, shouldn't you give me the private room instead?"

The manager knew Bonnie and Dermot's family were at odds, so his attitude toward Dermot turned sour. "Mr. Dermot, you're a prominent figure. How could you stoop so low and try claiming someone else's room?

"I must've been blind to be so friendly toward you before. From today onward, I want no further dealings with you."

Dermot trembled. "Robert, what's gotten into you?"

“That’s enough, Mr. Dermot. Please take care,” the manager said indifferently.

Dermot’s expression turned grim. He wanted to leave with his family, but he would feel even more embarrassed if he did.

“What, he’s just a lobby manager, isn’t he? How dare he speak to you like that, Dad. How he spoke would make others think his family owned Jade Horizon Hotel,” Brittany said despite herself.

Dermot relaxed when he heard that.

‘Yeah, he’s just a lobby manager, and I own a publicly listed company.’ It’s all about showing respect if I can be on good terms with the hotel owner.’

“Robert has overstepped his boundaries!” Dermot decided to get close to the hotel’s higher-ups and make the lobby manager regret his actions.

Ultimately, Bonnie did not go to the private room because they felt the spacious ambiance was better in the lobby. As Bonnie and the others took their seats, Dermot and Brittany took theirs. Coincidentally, there were only these two neighboring tables remaining in the lobby.

“What a mood killer.” Avril felt annoyed seeing Brittany’s family.

Brittany glared at Avril and the others.

“I’ve had it with them.” Avril wanted to roll up her sleeves.

22

“Don’t mind them. Let’s focus on our meal and let them focus on theirs.” Bonnie handed the menu to Daken, who appreciated Bonnie more and more.

‘Bonnie knows how to respect her elders. She’s nothing like the rumors state. She’s impeccable in my eyes. I thought my daughter was sensible, but Bonnie’s even more so. She considers things more thoroughly, and she’s talented.’

“Hey, Bonnie, I need to ask you something.” Avril poked Bonnie’s arm, looking curious. “How do you know the lobby manager?”

Daken was just as curious. While pretending to read through the menu, he listened intently to Bonnie's answer.

Chapter 227

"I know him because I used to come here often," Bonnie replied truthfully.

"Are you that rich?"

"I'll be honest. Someone else always footed the bill whenever I came. I never spent a dime myself."

Daken and Avril did not think Bonnie was the type to mooch off others. Instead, they saw her as genuinely talented and willingly let others treat her. The waitstaff served the food as the trio conversed.

"Wow, the dishes came so quickly! Whenever we came before, we'd have to wait for ages, especially for the Maine Lobster Thermidor the head chef makes. It's usually hard to get a reservation for it. My dad and I have never had a chance to taste it until now."

Suddenly, Brittany's irritating voice sounded, "Waiter, waiter! We arrived at the same time as them. Why did you serve their dishes first but not ours? We asked for the Maine Lobster Thermidor earlier, and you said we were too late to order it.

"The head chef only makes three Maine Lobster Thermidors daily. People reserved those three a week ago,

correct?"

The waiter replied smilingly, "I didn't lie to you, miss. Indeed, people have reserved those dishes a week ago."

"Then how come they have it?" Brittany pointed at Bonnie's table and yelled, "Don't tell me they booked it a week ago! I refuse to believe it! We came to the hotel together just now, and only one private room remained.

"She could have gone straight in if she reserved it. There's no need to reserve a room at the front desk, right?"

"Well, I—"The waiter looked embarrassed.

Brittany felt dissatisfied as she looked around. Many had arrived before them, yet some tables did not have a single dish. Some only had a few cold appetizers.

"Is this how you do things in such a prestigious hotel? Everyone arrived before Bonnie, so why did you serve them first? Did she bribe you or something? Since you refuse to answer, I must be right. I heard she often sells her body for benefits."

The other diners looked at Bonnie disdainfully when they heard Brittany's complaints.

"Damn it, Brittany! Why do you have such a foul mouth?! How dare you say something like that without proof! Apologize to Bonnie now, or I'll call the cops on you!" Avril wanted to rip Brittany's tongue off.

"Go ahead and call the cops if you dare." Brittany stood up. "I'm not scared of you or the cops. Bonnie is shameless!"

Boonie glared at Brittany saying “Don’t think you can trample on others just because you’re from a wealthy family.”

Brittany responded arrogantly, "I'll crush you like an ant, and you can do nothing about it. You're just a lowly country girl. I'm not afraid of you!"

Dermot and Na looked at Bowie as if they were superior to her.

Mearstile, Bonnie squinted and calmly said, "Your arrogance will be your family's downfall."

"Hahaha! That's hilarious! Like you can decide our fate. Come on, I'm waiting to see when karma gets me." Brittany laughed hysterically.

Then, Bonnie took her phone and made a call. "I no longer want to see the Dyngards in the city starting tomoTION."

"Oh my, she knows how to play make-believe! Is that the only way you can retaliate with your background and lack of status?"

"You're a foul-mouthed birch, Brittany!" Avril would have run over and beat Brittany if Bonnie did not hold her back "Don't stop me, Bonnie! Let me beat her up! I've had enough of her crap!"

Chapter 228

Bonnie held Avril and said, "Why would you get mad at someone so lowly and stoop to their level?"

Avril's mood considerably improved once she heard Bonnie's words. "You're right, Bonnie. Why should I even bother? I should just take the trash out."

Avril laughed more joyfully when she saw Brittany sneering. The latter felt humiliated and glared at the duo. Suddenly, she thought of something and quickly turned to the other diners waiting for their food.

“Are you guys satisfied? You arrived earlier than them, yet their dishes arrived before yours!” Brittany’s instigations caused those awaiting their food to direct their anger toward Bonnie, especially after considering Brittany’s claims that Bonnie sold her body for benefits.

“She’s so young and beautiful. She should have more self-respect.”

“Yeah, why would she do such a thing for a meal? It’s despicable.”

“I’m disgusted. Waiter, get your manager over here!”

Brittany felt satisfied with everyone’s reaction while Nia and Dermot looked at their daughter proudly. They were eager to see if Bonnie could recover from her shame.

Before the lobby manager could arrive, the head chef appeared.

“Huh, isn’t that the head chef? Why’s he here?”

“That’s weird. He’s carrying a dish, too. I’ve been here so many times and have never seen the head chef personally bring out a dish.”

“You’re right. Jade Horizon Hotel is one of the top establishments in our city, and it has a formidable, multi-award-winning head chef. Why would he personally serve his dish? No head chef would do that. Isn’t that a waiter’s job?”

Amidst the guests’ puzzled gazes, the head chef placed a freshly made dish before Bonnie, saying, Ms. Bonnie, please try this new dish I developed. I’d like you to tell me if I’ve improved.”

Avril and Daken were dumbfounded, especially the Dyngards. Meanwhile, those who had mocked Bonnie froze in awe.

Bonnie raised her brows and told the head chef, “I don’t recall taking you on as an apprentice.”

said my The head chef said sincerely, “Ms. Bonnie, I begged you to take me under your wing, but you skills were too poor. Since then, I’ve focused on nothing but studying culinary arts and developing new dishes. I hoped you’d one day change your mind and finally accept me as your apprentice.”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 229

Chapter 229

Everyone was stunned when the head chef showed profound respect toward Bonnie. The guests realized Bonnie's culinary skills surpassed even his.

Simultaneously, everyone understood why Bonnie's table got served first and why she received a coveted dish like the Maine Lobster Thermidor. With that, the guests began glaring resentfully at Brittany.

The guests would not have criticized Bonnie if Brittany had not insinuated that Bonnie had sold her bod for benefits. The guests had not only offended the head chef but also the establishment.

One of the guests smiled warmly at Bonnie, saying, "Hey there, Ms. Bonnie? We got your table covered."

The others cursed that person under their breaths before joining in.

"Let me take care of it."

"Don't even think about competing with me. I've got it!"

"You should all back off. I've already paid for Ms. Bonnie."

"Damn, you guys are fast!"

Bonnie glanced at Avril and Daken, saying, "See, I didn't lie to you, right? Someone always treats me to meals whenever I come here."

The father-daughter duo stared blankly at Bonnie. Meanwhile, Brittany and her parents were furious and pale with rage. They wished to tear Bonnie apart.

Before Daken and his family could even start their meal, Daken received an utterly devastating phone call.

“What did you say?!” Dermot trembled as he shot up from his chair.

Brittany and Nia instantly lost their appetite, turning to look at Dermot as he continued, “How’s that possible? Why did our stocks hit the down limit?”

His heart pounded with anxiety while his wife and daughter shook.

Avril looked at Bonnie, who was calmly chewing her food. The former said, “Their family’s stocks have hit the down limit.”

“Mhm.” Bonnie showed no emotion.

Avril was confused as she turned to look at her father. He looked away from Bonnie and then gazed at his daughter.

Dermot was on the verge of losing his mind. His eyes reddened as he exclaimed, “Why would Arbor Sky, Lumina Labs, Amplify Solutions, Wanderlust & Co., and EchoVox terminate their cooperation with us? Wh—what’s happening?”

Brittany and Nia were on the brink of tears. After all, things would not end well for their family if this continued.

Avril looked at Bonnie and said, “All those companies just terminated their cooperation with the Dyngards.”

“Mhm, I heard that.” Bonnie remained unfazed.

Chapter 230

Avril gupled. She suspected Bonnie had something to do with the Dyngards' misfortune. While the former started freaking out, Bonnie remained casual.

Dermot was still on the phone, questioning the caller, "How can this happen? Is this God's way of destroying my family?"

Nia grew anxious as she tugged at her husband's sleeve. "Wh—what's happening now, dear?"

Dermot looked beat, saying, "Our construction workers unearthed some artifacts from over a millennium ago. Government officials have intervened and halted the workers."

Nia's eyes widened in shock. "Doesn't that mean we'll suffer substantial losses?"

"Fuck!" Dermot cursed.

Even Bonnie was puzzled. She had just called Hamish and told him to kick the Dyngards out of the city. She did not know why the Dyngards' began hitting the down limit or why numerous collaborators began canceling deals with them.

Moreover, unearthing ancient artifacts from construction sites was unheard of. Bonnie wondered how Hamish pulled that off.

Meanwhile, Avril looked at her and stammered, "What's this about ancient artifacts? B—Bonnie, don't you think you're going overboard?"

Avril was confident Bonnie was behind the two previous incidents. However, the former thought the last one was insane if it were also related to Bonnie.

Bonnie's lips twitched as she asked Avril, "Do you think I did that?"

"Well, I—" Avril was at a loss.

Bonnie palmed her forehead. "Do you think I have superpowers or something?"

"Pfft! Hahaha!" Avril laughed, surprised by Bonnie's ability to crack such jokes.

Suddenly, Brittany remembered one of Bonnie's earlier claims. The former's eyes widened in shock as she whispered to her parents, "Do you remember what Bonnie said earlier?"

Dermot and Nia recalled the conversation and immediately dismissed it.

"Bonnie couldn't have done all this. She's a nobody!"

"Your dad's right, Brittany. Besides being a country girl, even her former family isn't this capable. The Shepards are far below our family."

Brittany frowned. "Do you remember those luxury cars that came to pick up Bonnie during Trina and Hadwin's engagement party?"

"So you suspect Bonnie has an influential figure's support?" Nia speculated.

Dermot shook his head. "You two are overthinking it. Although Bonnie has a sugar daddy, he can't go to such great lengths to destroy us. She can't do all this without connections, money, and influence, "Remember that our family's company is worth over a billion dollars. How much would it cost to ruin us? Besides, do you think Bonnie can bury artifacts under our construction site?"

"You're right, Dad. I must've overthought it. Bonnie can't ruin our family" Brittany sneered at Bonnie and continued, "What should we do now, Dad? If this continues, our family will collapse"

However,

Dermot felt incredibly troubled. "I'll contact Hadwin's mother first and see if the tthodes can help us." there was no answer when he called Demetria. "She's probably out playing poker again," Dermot had no choice but to call Hadwin. The latter answered the call, saying, "Mr. Dermot, I heard what's happening. Who did you guys cross?"

Chapter 231

“We haven’t crossed anyone!”

Hadwin analyzed the situation, “If it were just one thing, then we can consider it a coincidence. However, several things have happened simultaneously. Consider things carefully. Have you not offended anyone recently, Uncle Dermot?”

“Come to think of it, your collaboration with Tang Fusion Studios was a done deal, but they suddenly to the cancellation of the collaboration.”

Dermot’s heart dropped when he heard that. He remembered his daughter arguing with Bonnie when Tang Fusion Studios canceled their collaboration with his family. Back then, he dismissed the idea that Bonnie had anything to do with it.

With so much happening just now, he could not imagine Bonnie being the culprit. After combining these two incidents, Dermot agreed it was not all just a coincidence. He finally began to consider if Bonnie was behind all this.

Dermot whipped around to glare at Bonnie, eager to see if things were as he suspected. Meanwhile, Bonnie looked back at Dermot with a lukewarm smile. The latter grew increasingly anxious when he saw Bonnie’s casual demeanor.

A moment later, he muttered a name, “Bonnie.”

“What was that, Uncle Dermot?” Hadwin froze upon hearing the name. “Did you just say Bonnie’s name? Do you think she has something to do with this?”

“I—I don’t know. I-” Dermot stopped when his wife received a call from Tang Fusion Studios.

“Sorry to bother you, Ms. Nia, but I couldn’t reach your husband.”

Nia did not understand why Tang Fusion Studios would call so suddenly. She asked, “Is there something I can help you with?”

“You’ve been causing trouble for Tang Fusion Studios repeatedly. Mr. Hamish stated that the Dyngards and Tang Fusion Studios cannot coincide in the same city.”

Since Nia’s phone was on speaker, Dermot, including Hadwin, who was on the line with him, heard everything. Hadwin’s heart pounded as he asked in astonishment, “Is it all Bonnie’s doing? Why would Mr. Hamish do so much for an intern like her?”

“Bonnie’s an intern at Tang Fusion Studios?!“–

“Yeah, Trina and I went there to bid for a project a while back. It was for the same project they terminated with you, Uncle Dermot. We encountered Bonnie there, and she was the reason they chose to cooperate with the Swifts.

“She was also why Mr. Hamish told the security to throw me and Trina out,” Hadwin said through gritted teeth.

Dermot’s head buzzed as he gazed at Bonnie. Meanwhile, Hadwin added, “You mentioned Bonnie just now. Is she with you now? What happened between you two?”

Dermot felt bitter. After everything he and his daughter said, he might as well be dead if he believed Bonnie had nothing to do with his family’s downfall. He told Hadwin, “I’ll explain things later. I need to get through this crisis first.”

After hanging up the call, he gritted his teeth and approached Bonnie. “There’s no deep-seated grudge between you and my family. Why go to such lengths to kick us out of the city?”

Avril and Daken had exchanged countless glances at this point. They could see the overwhelming shock in each other’s eyes. Indeed, they realized Bonnie had something to do with those earlier incidents.

Still, the duo did not know how she managed it and who she was. It was as if the more they knew, the more mysterious Bonnie became.

stole

Bonnie calmly looked at Dermot, saying, “It’s amusing that you said that, Mr. Dermot. Would your daughter have criticized me if I wasn’t this capable? Do you think it would’ve been okay if you that private room from us if I were this capable?”

“What about the rest of you, who mocked me as a country bumpkin? You all looked at me with disdain. Brittany instigated you all into ganging up on me. I’ve shown enough mercy by allowing the rest of you to remain in this city.

“I simply can’t bother to deal with you all. Otherwise, I can send all your families to jail for slandering me.”

Dermot reddened with anger while Nia sneered at Bonnie. Meanwhile, their daughter, being so young, could not contain her temper. She scolded, “Don’t push it, Bonnie. My dad already apologized to you, yet you insist on being aggressive. Why are you so malicious?”

Bonnie’s patience grew thin for the trio as she said, “So, it’s okay for you to come at me, but I’m malicious for retaliating? When did your family get the right to dictate the rules?”

Brittany was about to retort, but her mother stopped her in time. Although Nia halted Brittany’s actions, the former’s gaze toward Bonnie remained disdainful. Even Dermot stood with forced tolerance, ready to avenge his family’s dignity when the opportunity arose.

Bonnie knew arguing with such despicable people was less effective than resorting to fists. She said, ”

I advise you to leave the city voluntarily, or I’ll bring this case to court tomorrow.”

“You despicable little bitch! I’ll rip you to shreds!” Brittany tried to break free from her mother’s grasp.

However, Nia and Dermot pulled her back together, saying, “Brittany! Don’t be impulsive!”

“Let’s leave.”

Avril felt satisfied as she watched the trio leave in a pathetic state. She watched until they disappeared wholly before turning to look at Bonnie. “Now you can admit you were behind those things, right,

Bonnie?”

Bonnie nodded and said, “Yeah, I’ll admit it. I notified Hamish about them. As for the sudden discovery of the artifacts, that wasn’t my doing. I texted Hamish just now, and he was just as surprised as I was.”

Avril was stunned and then burst into laughter. “Wow, it sounds like a natural disaster! I bet even God couldn’t stand Brittany and her family and had to intervene.”

Bonnie found the coincidence amusing.

“By the way, Bonnie, my mom is returning from her business trip soon. She’s been wanting to meet you. Would you like to visit my house sometime? My mom wants to cook for you.”

Bonnie felt she could not refuse Avril’s generous invitation and could only agree.

Meanwhile, the Dyngards sat in their home, looking miserable. Brittany whined, “Dad, I don’t want to leave the city!”

“I don’t want to, either, but Mr. Hamish is on Bonnie’s side. We’ll go bankrupt if we resist!” Dermot scolded.

Nia added, “No one would’ve expected Mr. Hamish to be Bonnie’s backer.”

At that point, the Dyngards would be idiots if they could not figure out who Bonnie’s benefactor was. Brittany gritted her teeth in hatred. Suddenly, she had a bright idea.

Chapter 233

“Mom, Dad, I heard Bonnie has a secret lover. Still, I don’t know whether or not it’s true. We can hire someone to follow her. If the rumor turns out to be true, we can catch them in the act and then inform Mr. Hamish.

“We can show him Bonnie’s true colors. She won’t be so arrogant then. Mr. Hamish won’t continue oppressing us once he sees that.”

Dermot and Nia lit up. One of them asked, “Is the source trustworthy?”

“A friend of mine told me about it. Bonnie’s classmate is spreading the word. There must be some truth to it, right? That’s why I suggested tracking Bonnie and contacting some of her classmates. We’ll find out the truth sooner or later.”

“At this point, it seems like the only thing we can do.”

Since Ivor’s birthday was on the fourteenth of August, Bonnie took a leave of absence from all her work to accompany him to the mall. Ivor brought her to a women’s clothing store, picked up a dress, and held it against her, saying, “This one suits you.

He then placed a pair of shoes near Bonnie’s feet and said. “These shoes will go perfectly with that dress. We’ll pick a suitable bag and some jewelry to complete the look later.”

He pictured how Bonnie would look after dressing up. Looking at Ivor bustling around, she said, “Today’s your birthday, not mine. I’m supposed to buy you gifts. Why are you buying me things instead?”

Ivor smiled. “What’s the difference? Whether it’s your birthday or mine, I want to be with you and make you the happiest person in the world.”

His words touched Bonnie, but she suppressed her emotions, saying, “I didn’t expect you to be such a smooth talker.”

“That’s where you’re wrong. That wasn’t smooth talk. It was just the truth.” Ivor looked at Bonnie indulgently.

“Whatever.” Bonnie could not bear his gaze, so she avoided it and went to the other side of the store.

Ivor smirked and then picked out a few more clothes to compare them to Bonnie.

“All right, let’s go.” Bonnie pulled his hand away. “I’ll take you to the men’s clothing store across the street. Since it’s your birthday, you can pick whatever you want.”

Ivor felt good when Bonnie held his hand. “You can help me pick a gift. I’ll pay for it.”

Bonnie glanced at him disdainfully. “So, you think I can’t afford to buy you a gift?”

Ivor knew he had hurt her pride and quickly explained, “Th—that’s not what I meant. It’s just that things in this mall are expensive, and you’re still a student. I feel bad experring you to pay for me.”

After leading Ivor to the men’s clothing store, Bonnie released his hand and said, “Don’t worry about the price, and pick whatever you want. I can afford it.”

Finally, Ivor remembered something. He said, “I forgot about the time you tricked Xavier into giving you so much money.”

Bonnie resisted the urge to roll her eyes again. “What do you mean trick? I told you I outsmarted him.

“Oh, right. You outsmarted Xavier. Sorry.” Ivor laughed and then looked at the clothes in the store. You can help me choose now.

Bonnie started carefully picking the clothes. She wanted to choose them based on Ivor’s temperament, but she realized handsome men looked good in anything.

Ivor tried on several sets of clothes she picked, and each one was stunning. Bonnie could not help but mutter, “You’re a male version of a femme fatale.”

“Hmm? What was that?” Ivor suddenly leaned closer to Bonnie.

Chapter 234

Bonnie's heart pounded as she tried to conceal her nervousness. She quickly grabbed a random piece of clothing and pushed it to Ivor, saying, "This one will look great on you! Quick, try it on!"

Ivor beamed, saying, "If you think it's good, then it must be amazing. Wait, I'll try it on for you." Bonnie patted her chest as she watched him enter the fitting room. "This guy's trying to seduce me," Suddenly, a familiar voice sounded, "Who's seducing you?"

Bonnie froze before turning, only to see Avril's curious and nosy expression. "Come on, Who's trying to seduce you? Also, who just entered the fitting room?"

When she came just now, she only saw Ivor's back.

tell me.

"He's, uh..." Bonnie frowned. Before she could properly introduce Ivor, Avril exclaimed, "I got it! I know who he is! It's the owner of the Maybach, right?!"

Bonnie was about to nod when Ivor opened the door and walked out, looking elegant and charming.

"Oh my God! He's so handsome!" Avril covered her mouth, her jaw almost dropping in shock.

Bonnie did not think Avril's expression was exaggerated. After all, Ivor's stunning looks were undeniable.

"Bonnie, you're so lucky! You have such a handsome boyfriend!"

Bonnie smiled and walked up to Ivor. "This outfit looks good, too, plus the dozen or so sets we bought earlier."

“How generous of you.” Ivor gave Bonnie a thumbs-up. “You’re splurging.

13

“It’s nothing.” Bonnie took out her card and approached the cashier, which puzzled Avril. She quickly caught up with Bonnie and asked hushedly, “Why are you paying?”

Avril was in disbelief, thinking Ivor was a gold digger for letting Bonnie pay. It was not that women should not pay, but the mall was well-known for its luxurious pricing. Every piece of clothing was costly.

“Today’s his birthday,” Bonnie explained.

“Oh, no wonder. Still, there are over a dozen outfits to pay for. That must cost quite a bit of money. Do you have enough? If not, I can lend you some.”

It was Bonnie’s first time encountering someone who offered to lend her money. She thought it was pretty novel. From that, she could tell Avril was a genuinely considerate friend.

“Hello there, I’m ready to pay.” Bonnie placed the dozen or so outfits on the counter as she spoke. After scanning the items, the cashier said, “Your total is 6,359.99.”

Chapter 235

“Whoa!” Avril gasped.

‘That’s a scary amount! It’s almost as high as my family’s monthly profit.’

She was shocked at the amount of money Bonnie had.

Beep!

The sound of the card swipe signaled success. Avril stared at the card Bonnie had just used in disbelief, stammering, “B–Bonnie, where did you get so much money from?”

“I earned it, of course.”

“You earned it? What do you do for a living?”

“Well, um, it’s hard to explain. I’ll tell you when I get the chance.”

“Okay, I won’t pry, Still...” Avril looked at Ivor, waiting at the entrance. She frowned and added, Bonnie, as a friend, I can’t help but say this guy’s handsome. Still, you can’t always be the one paying. You may end up suffering in the future.”

Bonnie was about to say Ivor had always been spending money on her. Instead, she said, “I’m living at his place now. I eat, drink, and use all the utilities without paying.”

“Wait, you’re living with him? Are you two housemates or something? Bonnie, although that’s normal these days, you mustn’t let him deceive you. When he uses all your money and uses your feelings against you, you’ll be heartbroken and desperate.”

Avril was genuinely concerned about Bonnie’s living situation.

The latter feared Avril would jump to conclusions and explained, “His grandfather has known me for a long time. I moved into their house because of our relationship.”

“Jeez, you scared me half to death. I thought he was taking advantage of you.” Avril sighed in relief and patted her chest.

Bonnie chuckled at Avril’s analogy. The former wondered how Avril would react if she realized she had accused the CEO of Knight Group of taking advantage of Bonnie.

Suddenly, Bonnie stopped and abruptly turned around to look somewhere. Avril asked in puzzlement, “What’s wrong? What are you looking at?”

Bonnie squinted. “Someone was taking pictures just now.”

“Who would be taking pictures?” Avril was stunned before running toward the direction Bonnie was looking. After turning the corner and looking around, she did not see anyone there.

“No one’s here. Are you sure you weren’t seeing things? Besides, we’re not celebrities. Why would anyone want to take pictures of us?”

Meanwhile, Bonnie stroked her chin, lost in thought.

Although Avril might not be a public figure, Bonnie's identity as Ms. Bonita was even more attention-grabbing than that of a celebrity. Very few people knew about her identity, and everyone who did was highly reliable at keeping it a secret.

Bonnie wondered who was taking her pictures and even thought Avril was the target. Nonetheless, the former could not discern the purpose behind it.

Avril said, "All right, let's not worry about that. It's not every day I get to see your boyfriend. Let's find a restaurant to eat at. My treat."

Ivor had an excellent impression of Avril when he heard the term boyfriend. He said, "How can I let a lady treat me to dinner? Since I'm Bonnie's boyfriend, I should treat you two to a meal instead."

Bonnie raised a brow at him. "You're my what now?"

"You will be soon enough." Ivor smiled.

'So, this guy isn't Bonnie's boyfriend yet. Still, I feel their relationship is moving fast, considering Bonnie didn't object to him being her boyfriend and how they interact.'

"You don't need to feel embarrassed. Bonnie told me it's your birthday today. I can't let you treat us to a meal. Besides, we're meeting for the first time, and I didn't prepare any gifts. I can't face you if you don't let me treat you."

Since Avril said so, Ivor did not argue.

Chapter 236

Afterward, the trio found a nearby restaurant and ordered food. Meanwhile, Hamish received photos of intimate moments between Bonnie and Ivor.

“Who’s spying on Ms. Bonnie?” Hamish muttered, and the phone rang

“Mr. Hamish, these photos were taken by someone I sent. They’re unedited. If you don’t believe it, you can have technicians verify them. I suggest you don’t waste time. Bonnie and that guy are at the Agate Hotel. If you come over now, you can catch them red-handed.”

Hamish frowned. “Who are you?”

“I’m Dermot from the Dyngard family.”

Now, Hamish understood what was going on.

Hamish continued calmly, “What’s your purpose in doing this?”

“Mr. Hamish, I know you and Bonnie have a close relationship. I was shocked when I saw her with another man. She’s even using your money on him. I couldn’t stand it, so I took these photos and sent them to you. I hope you won’t let Bonnie deceive you anymore”

The whole Dyngard family was relying on Hamish to put Bonnie down.

After tapping the table several times, Hamish asked, “Where are you all now? In Pyralis?”

Dermot suddenly became nervous, sweat dripping from his forehead. He was scared and dared not to answer. “I... I...”

“Don’t try to lie to me,” Hamish said coldly.

Dermot wiped the sweat from his forehead, trembling. “Mr. Hamish, we didn’t deliberately disobey your orders to leave. It’s just some things delayed us.”

Hamish narrowed his eyes, “Oh? Did you get delayed for so long? All right, you said Bonnie is now at the Agate Hotel?”

“Yes, Mr. Hamish.”

“Do you want me to go over?”

This question puzzled Dermot. He thought, ‘Bonnie is your woman. Your woman has already cuckolded you, and she even used your money to keep another man. Aren’t you concerned at all? Aren’t you anxious? Aren’t you angry?”

“All right then. You should come with me as well.” Hamish stood up, put on his coat, and headed out.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 237

Chapter 237

“Okay, Dad, I got it. Don’t worry, I won’t cause you any trouble,” Brittany assured.

“Let’s not waste any more time. Hurry up.”

Bonnie was still unaware of the situation between the Dyngard family and Hamish. With all the dishes on the table served, the three of them began eating.

Avril picked up a dish for Bonnie. “Try this. It’s their specialty. See how it tastes?”

“Okay.” Bonnie took a few bites, generously praising, “The chef’s skill is pretty good.”

“Right? So, for my mom’s fiftieth birthday, my dad specially invited the head chef from this place.”

Bonnie put down her utensils. “Your mom is turning fifty? Why haven’t you mentioned it before? Are we not friends?”

Avril hurriedly explained, “No, of course not. I didn’t mention it before because my mom didn’t want to celebrate her birthday. My dad only persuaded her several days ago, and they just decided on it.”

Afterward, she added, “Bonnie, you must come.”

“Okay, I’ll be there.”

Just then, there was a knock on the door.

“Is that the waiter? That’s strange. They’ve already served all our dishes. Why are they still knocking?” Avril muttered in confusion as she went to open the door.

After opening the door, Avril was instantly stunned.

It was Dermot, Brittany, and Hamish outside the door.

Bonnie was also surprised, looking at Hamish, who silently signaled to her, indicating there would be a show soon.

Seeing Bonnie and Ivor sitting together, Brittany couldn’t hold back and shouted, “Mr. Hamish, look! We didn’t lie to you. Bonnie is a fickle woman, cheating on you with other men, keeping a lover behind your back! She’s a disgraceful woman!”

With a sharp smack, Hamish mercilessly slapped Brittany’s face.

Chapter 237

Brittany’s face swelled visibly in an instant.

This slap left Brittany bewildered while Dermot stood in place like a stump, not moving.

At this moment, Dermot had sensed a hint of something unusual.

“Hmph! Brittany, your mouth stinks! You’re not bad-looking, but every word she says is offensive. Dermot, is this the daughter you raised?”

Dermot gulped. “Mr. Hamish, wh–why did you do this? You’ve already seen it for yourself. Bonnie is meeting other men. My daughter just spoke the truth. Wh–why would you hit her?”

“Dermot, are you blind? They are a perfect match. What’s wrong with them dating?” Hamish’s words once again stunned Dermot and his daughter. They didn’t know what was going on.

Hamish smiled at Ivor. “Mr. Ivor, sorry to disturb your meal. These people are relentless, always picking on Bonnie. To completely eradicate the problem, I had no choice but to come here with them.”

“Mr. Ivor? Which Mr. Ivor is this?!” Brittany exclaimed sharply.

Hamish looked coldly at Brittany. “How many Mr. Ivors are there in Pyralis, and how many people would I treat so politely?”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 238

Chapter 238

Dermot and his daughter trembled, their incredulous gaze shifting back and forth between Bonnie and Ivor.

Avril gulped and couldn't help but ask, “B–Bonnie, is he the CEO of Knight Group?”

In this situation, Bonnie had to reveal the truth.

“Yes, he is.”

Avril gasped. She finally understood. The person who drove the limited edition Maybach the night Trina and Hadwin got engaged was Ivor, the CEO of Knight Group.

While Brittany and Dermot were shocked, they felt fearful. They were trembling and sweating profusely, their clothes gradually soaked with sweat.

After a while, the two gradually recovered from their shock and fear. When they looked at Bonnie again, they didn't dare to look down on her anymore.

Hamish looked at the trembling duo and shook his head.

After tonight, there would be no more Dyngard family in Pyralis.

Hadwin called Dermot several times, but no one answered.

“Mom, do you think something happened to Uncle Dermot?”

“It shouldn’t, right? Didn’t your uncle say he wanted to find a way to deal with Bonnie?”
Demetria said so, but she still had some hidden worries in her heart.

Hadwin fell silent for a few seconds, his face becoming increasingly gloomy.

“What’s the relationship between Bonnie and Hamish? Could it be true what Uncle Dermot analyzed, that Bonnie hooked up with Hamish?”

Every time he thought about this, Hadwin felt deeply resentful.

If this matter were to spread, people outside would think it wasn’t him who dumped Bonnie but that Bonnie moved on to a bigger giant.

“This is impossible!” Demetria vetoed firmly. “That incompetent girl Bonnie, without any manners, is not even worthy to enter our Rhodes family’s door. Hamish is the CEO of Tang Fusion Studios. How could his family possibly look at Bonnie? As for why Hamish is targeting your uncle’s company, it has nothing to do with Bonnie. It’s probably because your uncle offended Hamish somewhere else.”

Hearing Demetria’s words, Hadwin nodded in agreement.

“Mom, you’re right, but why haven’t we been able to contact Uncle Dermot until now? We don’t know what’s going on?”

“Who knows? Your uncle said he wanted to catch Bonnie cheating. I told him on the phone that Bonnie couldn’t possibly be Hamish’s girlfriend. If she were, wouldn’t Bonnie be flaunting it everywhere?”

“But your uncle insisted on thinking that way. Now we can’t reach him. Who knows what the situation is? Hamish probably didn’t even go, and your uncle also realized he was wrong, so he’s thinking of other ways to turn the situation around. You should send someone over now to check.”

“Okay, Mom, I’ll send someone over now.”

Time was flying by, and school was starting in a week.

It was late at night, close to 11 o'clock. Ivor didn't come back today because of company matters.

Jim quietly arrived under Bonnie's room window, looked around, and swiftly climbed up the wall after confirming that no one was around.

His movements were very clean and neat, leaving no trace.

Just as Jim climbed up, Floyd emerged from behind a nearby tree.

Today, he was supposed to handle company matters with Ivor, but as they were about to leave, he suddenly had stomach trouble and temporarily stayed at the villa.

Hed

He didn't expect to witness such a scene.

He wanted to see if Tim was climbing Bonnie's window in the middle of the night, intending to do something indecent to her.

"Darn it, Tim! I treated him like a brother, and he wants to cuckold my boss?! Let's see how I catch you today."

Floyd also quietly climbed up to the second-floor window and saw Bonnie and Tim standing face to face. It seemed they knew each other. It wasn't as he thought. Tim had no intention of doing something improper to Bonnie.

'What are they talking about?' Floyd couldn't hear them through the window.

Jim reported on the work he had handled earlier. "Flynn wasn't sent abroad in the end. Sydney intercepted him in the city and even opened a bar to cover up. Do you want me to send him abroad and keep an eye on him?"

After two seconds of silence, Bonnie replied, "Forget it. Even if Flynn is worthless, he's still Mr. Sigmund's grandson. Out of respect for him, we'll let Flynn go for now. If he does anything bad again in the future, he'll be dealt with immediately."

"All right, I'll keep an eye on it. Oh, there's also the Dyngards. Hamish not only drove them away from Pyralis, but he also expelled them from the country," Jim continued the report.

"They brought it upon themselves," Bonnie said coldly.

Floyd, who was lying on the window, felt anxious. 'What are they talking about? It seems they're close! What's their relationship? Should he report this to the boss now, or should I wait a little longer?'

Currently, nothing happened between Bonnie and Tim. Even if he reported it to the boss, it wouldn't cause much of a stir.

'So it's better not to alert the enemy and continue to wait here. Maybe I can catch them red-handed.'

Jim rubbed his stomach. "I've digested all the food from tonight. Now, it's perfect for a late-night snack. Since Ivor isn't here, let's go for a late-night snack together, shall we? My treat."

"All right, I won't refuse your offer." Soon, the duo left the villa together.

Floyd followed stealthily, muttering, "What are these two doing out so late at night? Was my previous guess correct? Does Tim have ill intentions and wants to take advantage of Bonnie?"

Floyd became angry again.

'Tim's just a snake in the grass!'

Bonnie looked at Jim and stopped. "You should change back out of your disguise. If Ivor's people see you like this, they'll suspect your identity."

Jim touched his face. "You're right. It won't be convenient for me to stay with the Knights and guard you if they find me out."

"Just wait for me. I'll be right out." With that, Jim turned into a nearby public restroom.

Floyd scratched the back of his head. "Tim's identity? What identity? Isn't he just a bodyguard?"

Floyd stared at the restroom. Just as he was about to rub his eyes, he saw a familiar person walking out of the restroom.

Jim greeted Bonnie. "Okay, now Ivor's people won't find out."

Bonnie nodded. "Hmm, let's go for supper."

Whoosh!

A sound came from nearby. Bonnie and Jim immediately looked toward the sound, only to see Floyd emerging from behind the bushes.

He had followed them.

Floyd's eyes widened as he pointed at Jim. "Y-You're Tim?!"

The bodyguard the Knight family brought in turned out to be the King of Combat, Jim Ray.

It was as if it was some type of joke. Floyd would never believe it if he hadn't seen it for himself. Simultaneously, he thought of the scenes he had shared with his idol these days, feeling strangely awkward.

Jim turned to Bonnie. "He spotted us. Should I silence him?"

Floyd stepped back in fear.

Bonnie laughed. "It's a joke. Look how scared you've got him."

Upon hearing this, Floyd breathed a sigh of relief and walked up to Bonnie and Jim.

"I don't understand. Why would you pretend to be a small bodyguard at the Knight family?"

"Of course, it's to protect Bonnie," Jim replied truthfully.

Floyd's mouth opened and closed several times before he found his voice..

"No, Mr. Jim, aren't you Ms. Bonita's bodyguard? Y-You said you're protecting Ms. Bonnie?"

"Yeah." Jim nodded. "I've told you before, Bonnie saved my life. I'm here to repay the favor."

"But you're Ms. Bonita's bodyguard!"

"I've discussed this with Ms. Bonita and gained her consent to come here to protect Bonnie for two months. After two months, I'll leave and return to Ms. Bonita's side," Jim lied without batting an eye.

Jim was Floyd's idol. On top of Jim's superb acting skills, Floyd believed him.

"By the way, don't tell anyone about this for now," Jim said solemnly to Floyd.

Floyd frowned. "Including the boss?"

"Yes, including him."

"But-" Floyd was hesitant. "He's my boss! If he finds out one day, I won't be able to explain myself."

"You don't need to worry about that. There's still a week left. When Bonnie moves out, I'll leave the Knight family, too. Your boss will never find out."

Although Jim said so, Floyd still had some concerns.

"This..."

"Why are you so scared? It's just one last week, right? I've already said your boss won't find out. If you keep dawdling, I'll silence you."

As Jim spoke, he approached Floyd with a raised fist.

Floyd retreated in fear. Although he and Jim were an even match before, that was because Jim held back. Now, if Jim used his full strength, he would have no choice but to surrender.

"All right, I'll say it." Bonnie stopped Jim and then walked up to Floyd. "I don't want Ivor to know because he's suspicious and jealous. Jim and I are good friends. Our relationship is as pure as it gets.

"If he knew Jim had been with me all this time, based on your understanding of him, do you think he wouldn't cause trouble?"

Floyd had been with Ivor for many years and knew his temper well.

"Ms. Bonnie, I can help keep this secret for you, but there's one question I need you to answer truthfully."

Chapter 241

“Will your relationship not progress in the future?” Floyd was nervous, but not for himself. Instead, it was for his boss. After all, Jim was the King of Combat and one of the top ten bachelors in Pyralis.

Jim put his arm around Floyd’s shoulders, whispering, “Honestly, I think Bonnie and your boss are quite compatible. I genuinely support it.”

With Jim’s reassurance, Floyd felt relieved.

“What are you guys talking about? Why are you being so secretive?” Bonnie stared at Floyd and Jim with a puzzled look.

Jim smirked. “This is a conversation between men. It’s not suitable for you to hear.”

Bonnie raised an eyebrow and clenched her fist. “What, are you still perpetuating gender stereotypes? Is it because I haven’t practiced for a long time, so you think I can’t wield a knife anymore?”

“No, no, I’m just kidding,” Jim said awkwardly, patting his stomach. “I’m starving. Let’s grab supper. Floyd, care to join?”

Bonnie chuckled and shook her head at Jim’s swiftly retreating figure before following him.

Two days later, Bonnie received a message from Avril.

“My mom’s birthday is coming up soon. Everyone in the family is coming to celebrate. You must come!”

“Don’t worry, I’ll be there.”

After replying to the message, Bonnie changed her clothes and hurried to the auction.

venue.

Today was the annual auction in Pyralis, and she planned to bid on something nice to give as a gift to Avril's mother.

Heath was waiting at the entrance early. When he saw Bonnie, he hurried over.

"Shepard, you finally made it! I've been waiting forever."

Chapter 241

Mrs. Bonnie checked the time on her phone. "Isn't it only seven? I said I'd be here at seven, and I'm not late."

"Right, right, you're not late. I came early. But let's not talk about that. Shepherd, are you sure about auctioning off a visit to the divine doctor?"

"Yeah." Bonnie nodded.

Heath scrutinized Bonnie. "I heard that a divine doctor cured the boss's mother of the SR Alliance. He's even gone to the Knight family to treat the family head's grandmother. I'm curious. Why would that divine doctor auction his treatment through you?"

Bonnie smirked mysteriously. "Aren't you always boasting about how smart you are? Do you want to guess?"

Heath rubbed his chin. "You must've met that divine doctor at the Knight family, but I'm still puzzled. Even if you know that divine doctor, you wouldn't be familiar to this extent, right? Shepard, you're not pulling my leg, are you? It's an auction my family organized. Don't trick me. What if the divine doctor doesn't show up?"

Bonnie rolled her eyes at Heath. "You're acting as if I've tricked you before."

"Hehehe, I'm just double-checking and making sure." Heath chuckled awkwardly.

"All right, go about your business. I need to take my seat and prepare for the auction." Bonnie glanced at the time and headed toward the venue.

"Shepard, this is your seat." Heath handed her the number plate. "I'll go attend to other matters. I won't keep you any longer."

As Bonnie took her seat, she couldn't help but feel excited about what the auction might “Hmm.” Bonnie entered the venue with her number plate and found her seat.

She knew many familiar faces would be there today, but she did not expect to find Trina’s and Hadwin’s family sitting beside her. Bonnie would have suspected foul play if she did not know that Heath had randomly assigned the seats.

“Bonnie? How did you end up here? How did you manage to attend the annual large-scale auction?” Vera asked Bonnie with a hint of annoyance.

Gresham pulled Vera gently. “We have nothing to do with each other anymore. There’s no need to ask.”

Vera frowned at first but then relaxed. Her husband was right. Their family had no ties to Bonnie anymore. There was no need to get upset over her.

Demetria shifted his gaze away from Bonnie and looked at Hadwin, whispering, “Did Bonnie sneak in behind us? If that’s the case, she’s still not giving up on you. She hopes to please us through this opportunity and gain entry into our family.”

Hadwin hesitated. He used to think Bonnie liked him, but after experiencing one thing after another, he felt she had no feelings for him.

“Son, why don’t you take this opportunity to inquire about your uncle’s whereabouts? Although I don’t think it’s directly related to Bonnie, they had conflicts with Bonnie before his family disappeared,” Hadwin’s mother suggested.

“Okay, Mom.”

Hadwin had the same plan in mind. He got up and approached Bonnie.

“Let me ask you, do you know where Uncle Dermot and his family are?”

Bonnie raised her eyebrows lightly. “I drove them out of the country.”

“Hah!” Hadwin scoffed. “You dare to say that?”

“Why do I have to lie about what I did?” Bonnie retorted.

Demetria couldn't bear it anymore. “Do you have such power? Can you drive my cousin's family out of the country? If you're so capable, your family wouldn't have kicked you out of the Shepard family.”

Vera frowned. “Whatever it is, could you please not mention us when discussing Bonnie?”

Chapter 242

“I'm sorry. I understand where you're coming from. After all, you gave birth to such a despicable beast.”

Before Demetria finished speaking, Avril walked over angrily.

“I'm telling you, Mrs. Demetria, stop being so rude. Calling others beasts? The one who insults others like this is worse than scum.”

“You little brat, are you asking for a beating?” Demetria roared, baring her teeth.

“I think she is right. People who insult others are worse than animals. They are immoral and lack education. They are the scum of society.”

“Who do you think you are to say that?!” Demetria turned around fiercely. However, when she saw Kay approaching, she quickly suppressed her anger.

Kay's grandfather was Orson Steel, a renowned painter. As Kay was the most beloved granddaughter of Orson, she was someone that Avril, a small wealthy family's daughter, couldn't compare to. She was also someone the Rhodes family couldn't afford to provoke. “It was me who said that. What? Do you want to hit me? Come on, if you dare, go ahead! My grandpa is over there. If you dare to lay a hand on me, I'll go tell my grandpa immediately.” Kay stood with her hands on her hips defiantly.

Demetria didn't dare to provoke Kay and could only swallow her anger.

“Coward!” Kay rolled her eyes and then sat beside Bonnie, handing a milkshake she bought to Bonnie to please her.

“Ms. Bonnie, this is your favorite milkshake. I bought it for you,” Kay said, handing the milkshake to Bonnie.

Bonnie reached out and patted Kay’s head. “Thank you.”

Kay giggled, trying to act cute.

Vera furrowed her brows tightly. “Ms. Kay, although I am now an outsider, out of respect for Mr. Orson, I want to remind you. Bonnie isn’t a professional kickboxer. Don’t let her deceive you.

Kay turned to glare at Vera. “You said she’s not a professional? Have you seen her practice kickboxing? Let me ask you, have you ever seen it?”

Vera choked on her words. “I haven’t, but she grew up in the countryside and never had the opportunity to learn from a good kickboxing school. How could she be skilled?”

“Oh-

Kay drawled, “So you haven’t seen it.”

“I” Vera choked again.

“How can you make assumptions if you haven’t seen her? Does growing up in the countryside stop her from being good? So are you saying Trina, who is not your biological daughter, is talented because you raised her?” Kay continued.

Vera was rendered speechless. Each word from Kay seemed to hit Vera where it hurt.

Avril applauded. "Well said!"

Vera didn't dare to argue with Kay. While she acted arrogantly toward Kay, she was aggressive regarding Avril, glaring at her fiercely.

"Ms. Avril, don't think you'll soar to great heights just because you're collaborating with Tang Fusion Studios. It's just temporary. Once the collaboration is over, your family will return to its original state. I advise you to avoid Bonnie, or you'll regret it next time."

Avril glanced at Bonnie quietly. As long as Bonnie was around, she believed the Smiths. wouldn't return to their previous state.

"Mrs. Vera, the one who will regret it is you, not me. If you don't believe it, just wait and see."

Bonnie was on good terms with Hamish and was dating Ivor. Once the Shepard family knew about this background, they would regret it deeply.

"Hmph! Advising the ungrateful is a waste of breath!" Vera gritted her teeth.

Just as Vera spoke, a familiar face suddenly appeared before them. It was Jim. Vera became excited and looked at Gresham.

"Honey, it's Mr. Jim himself! I haven't seen him since the release conference of new nanomaterials Ms. Bonita held. I didn't expect to meet him on this kind of occasion."

2/2

"It's not surprising at all. Today is the annual auction in Pyralis. It's reasonable for Mr. Jim to join in the fun," Gresham said, his gaze following Jim's steps.

Jim was walking in their direction.

Seeing this, Gresham immediately came up with a plan and went to greet Jim.

"Mr. Jim, hello, I am the general manager of Shepard Group, my name is-"

Before Gresham could finish his words, Jim had already ignored him and passed by. It was so embarrassing.

Gresham caught sight of many people around them sneering, even gossiping.

“How can a small company like Shepard Group think they’re worthy of Mr. Jim’s attention? Even I wouldn’t dare talk to Mr. Jim so casually.”

“Exactly! It’s not Mr. Jim’s fault. With so many people here, if everyone acted like Gresham, ignoring their status and chatting with Mr. Jim, wouldn’t Mr. Jim be annoyed? Gresham should know his place.”

Gresham blushed with embarrassment. Indeed, he could not climb to Jim’s level.

However, considering the risks and benefits, Gresham had to converse with Jim earlier. As he was thinking this, he saw Jim sitting behind Bonnie.

“Bonnie has such good luck. Mr. Jim is sitting behind her,” Gresham exclaimed with envy.

Trina opened her mouth. She had long known about the close relationship between Bonnie and Jim. She had never dared to tell her parents about it, fearing they would redirect some of their kindness toward Bonnie.

Watching Bonnie sitting in front of her, Trina was sure that this was not just luck, as Gresham claimed, but something Jim had arranged instead.

Avril shook Bonnie’s arm excitedly. “Mr. Jim! It’s Mr. Jim! Oh my god! I finally saw him in person! I’m so excited!”

As she spoke, Avril exaggeratedly pinched her philtrum.

Bonnie looked at Avril with some surprise. “You’re just a girl and not into combat. Why are you so excited to see Mr. Jim?”

In response to Bonnie’s question, Avril looked at her with an incredulous expression.

“Bonnie, are you okay? Do I have to be into kickboxing to get excited about meeting Mr. Jim? He’s the King of Combat! Most importantly, he’s one of our city’s most eligible bachelors. Not only is he powerful, but he’s also handsome and manly.”

Bonnie detected a hint of something different in Avril’s tone and looked at her with a raised eyebrow. “Do you have a crush on him?”

Avril’s face instantly turned red. “What nonsense are you talking about? Gross, I just admire him. That’s all.”

“Oh? Since it’s just pure admiration, why are you blushing?” Bonnie teased.

“I’m not blushing!”

“In that case, I was thinking of introducing you two, but if you don’t like him, then I won’t do it,” Bonnie joked.

Avril’s eyes widened, staring at Bonnie. “Are you...Are you telling me you know Mr. Jim?”

Bonnie nodded with a smile. “Yes.”

“You... Are you kidding me? How could you possibly know Mr. Jim?” Avril couldn’t believe it.

“If you don’t believe me, I’ll bring him along, and we can grab a meal together after the auction ends.”

Avril continued to stare at Bonnie, unable to detect any trace of falsehood in her eyes.

“D–Do you know Mr. Jim?” Avril’s tone still carried a hint of doubt.

“You’ll find out after the auction ends,” Bonnie said mysteriously.

Avril glanced at Bonnie, then quietly turned to look at Jim.

“If you know him, why didn’t Mr. Jim come over to greet you? And you didn’t greet him either. You two acted like strangers,” Avril questioned..

“If we did that, it would be too pretentious. I don’t like being so flashy,” Bonnie explained.

Chapter 245

Avril’s mind started to feel muddled, unable to discern whether Bonnie was teasing her or truly knew Jim.

Soon, the auction began.

fice is

The first item up for auction was a pair bracelets.

“Wow! They’re so beautiful!” Avril’s eyes lit up as she stared at the items on the auction platform.

Bonnie examined them closely. “These bracelets are indeed nice. Do you like them?”

“Of course I do.” Avril stretched her hand toward Bonnie, jokingly saying, “Look at my wrist. It’s missing a jade bracelet like this one. However, these bracelets are expensive, so I’ll just admire them from afar.”

Bonnie narrowed her eyes slightly at the beautiful bracelets and then shifted her gaze back to the stage.

Trina, like Avril, had stars in her eyes. “Hadwin, those bracelets are so pretty!”

Hadwin affectionately wrapped his arms around Trina’s waist. “Since you like them, I’ll bid for them for you.”

“No, no, it’s too expensive. You don’t have to waste money,” Trina pretended to be very sensible, constantly eyeing the bracelets. She looked like she liked them but was unwilling to let him spend money.

“You’re my woman. Spending on you isn’t a waste. Wait, I’ll bid for them right away.”

Trina felt moved, leaning into Hadwin’s embrace.

“Ugh, I can’t stand this lovey–dovey stuff. It’s disgusting and inappropriate,” Avril said, rubbing her arms with goosebumps. Then, she turned to Bonnie. “Luckily, he broke off the engagement with you. Otherwise, that pig you’ve snatched you up.”

Bonnie glanced at the loving couple and said calmly, “Even if he didn’t break off the engagement, I would’ve broken it off with him.”

“Exactly. That kind of tasteless scum doesn’t deserve you at all,” Kay crossed her arms and scoffed.

Not long after, Heath stepped onto the stage as the auctioneer.

Chapter 245

In the private room, when Ivor saw Heath, he murmured, “Huh? It’s him.”

“Who?” Ged had been busy drinking tea and hadn’t noticed, but hearing Ivor’s confusion, he redirected his gaze to the auctioneer.

“Isn’t that the guy beside Ms. Bonnie when you challenged her to a chess game? He’s the auctioneer for this event? I remember his name being Mr. Heath. The Rice family organizes this auction yearly. It’s been around for centuries. He happens to have the same surname as the Rice family. What’s his relationship with them?”

Ivor pondered before responding, “I remember the Rice family has three daughters and one son.”

Ged’s eyes lit up. “Are you saying this Heath could be the eldest son of the Rice family?”

“It’s possible, but Rice is a prominent family, so he might not necessarily be the eldest son,” Ivor analyzed with narrowed eyes.

Ged took a deep breath. “Wow, the Rice family is no ordinary wealthy family. Their background extends back hundreds of years, and they’ve produced several powerful masters. With such a background, if he is the eldest son of the Rice family, then Ms. Bonnie is truly remarkable to befriend someone from such an illustrious family.”

Heath stood on the stage, scanning the room. When he saw Bonnie, he smiled and nodded.

“Huh?” Avril was momentarily stunned. “Bonnie, the auctioneer just now seemed to have looked in our direction.”

Bonnie replied calmly, “You must be mistaken.”

“Really?” Avril scratched her head. She wasn’t sure if it was her imagination, but she had indeed seen the auctioneer look their way just now, and she thought she had seen Bonnie nod in response.

However, after seeing Bonnie’s calm demeanor, she began doubting herself.

“The first item for auction is a pair of ice jade bracelets. There’s no need for an introduction. The starting price is four hundred grand, with no less than ten thousand increments. Let the bidding begin!”

“480 thousand.”

Many people were bidding.

Hadwin raised his paddle. “700 thousand.”

This statement immediately caused a stir.

“Wow! He raised it so high right off the bat. It looks like he’s determined to win!”

“Sigh, it’s one thing to compete at 400 thousand, but jumping straight to 700 thousand for a pair of ice jade bracelets? I’ll pass. Even if you’re rich, you shouldn’t be so reckless.”

“In the end, we just don’t have enough money.”

Hadwin accepted the envious or admiring looks from the crowd, raising his chin proudly, his vanity greatly satisfied. It was also the most crucial purpose of his bidding for the jade bracelets for Trina.

Trina felt moved. “Hadwin, thank you.”

As she threw herself into his arms, she glanced at Bonnie provocatively.

Vera and Gresham were also pleased with Hadwin’s performance. They were relieved that Trina had risen to prominence after Hadwin broke off his engagement with Bonnie. Otherwise, their family would have no one to cling to.

For a man to bid at seven hundred grand for a pair of ice jade bracelets, the Shepards knew they should not mess with him.

At this moment, Bonnie spoke up. “1.4 million.”

The entire auction venue instantly fell silent.

Followed by a loud buzz, everyone began to whisper, their curious gazes turning toward

Bonnie.

“Who is that woman? Is she crazy? She just doubled the bid?”

“You’re the crazy one. Bonnie’s just wealthy. What’s wrong with having a lot of money?”

Avril’s jaw dropped as she turned to look at Bonnie. “Bonnie, what are you doing? Where did you get so much money from?” Avril thought of Ivor and frowned.

Then, she questioned, “You’re not letting Mr. Ivor pay for you, right? Bonnie, I consider you a friend, so don’t get angry at what I’m about to say.”

Bonnie just looked at Avril.

Avril bit her lip. “Um, I remember you said that you and Mr. Ivor haven’t fully confirmed your relationship yet. Even if you become a couple, it’s best not to rely on men too much for money. What if things go south, and he asks you for money?”

“Well, let’s step back a bit. Mr. Ivor has plenty of money and doesn’t care about that little amount. But it’s not good for a girl to take money from her boyfriend.”

After hearing Avril’s words, Bonnie felt deeply touched.

Only a true friend would say such things. It showed how good the friend she had made was.

Bonnie patted Avril’s hand and smiled. “You’re right. Girls should be financially independent and shouldn’t treat men as ATMs. We have hands and feet, and we can earn our own money. Besides, who says women are inferior to men? Many men are not as good as women in their jobs.”

“Exactly! I completely agree with what you’re saying! It’s just ” Avril frowned, “What about that 1.4 million?”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 247

Chapter 247

Bonnie didn’t know how to react. “I never intended to spend Ivor’s money. I have my own money.”

“You have your own money? Where did you get the money from?” Avril was doubtful.

On the stage, Heath continued, “1.4 million once, 1.4 million twice, anyone else bidding?”

Hadwin looked at Bonnie resentfully. Bonnie now took all the limelight he had just stolen.

Trina’s family was astonished. The person supporting Bonnie let her spend 1.4 million to buy a pair of jade bracelets.

Hadwin was so angry his teeth were almost grinding to dust, and he was almost out of breath.

“1.45 million.”

Bonnie raised her paddle. “2.8 million”

The crowd gasped in shock.

Bonnie’s pocket ran deep. Compared to Bonnie, Hadwin looked like a clown.

At this moment, the embarrassed Hadwin hung his head low, ashamed. It was too embarrassing.

Trina’s family was even more shocked.

1.4 million had already made them pale, but Bonnie didn’t hesitate to bid 2.8 million.

They all wondered who was backing Bonnie.

“2.8 million, sold!” Heath declared with a final hammer strike. “The pair of ice jade bracelets belong to bidder number 98.”

After Bonnie paid, the ice jade bracelets were delivered to her.

“Here, for you, one each.” Bonnie handed one of the bracelets to Avril and the other to Kay.

Kay didn’t hesitate to accept it. “Thank you, Ms. Bonnie.”

Avril was stunned. Her mouth hung open wide. “You–You’re giving this to me?”

Chapter 247

Bonnie nodded. “Yes, didn’t you say you liked it? You even extended your hand to me, saying your wrist was missing such an ice jade bracelet.”

Upon hearing this, Avril’s head went blank.

Bonnie’s purpose in bidding for these jade bracelets was to give them to her.

As she thought about it, tears welled up in Avril’s eyes.

“Bonnie, you’re... you’re too kind to me. I don’t even know how to repay you.”

“What nonsense are you talking about? Aren’t we friends? Friends need to repay each other.”

Bonnie felt moved to see Avril shedding tears, so she took a tissue and wiped them away.

“But this is too precious,” Avril hesitated.

“Precious? It’s just 2.8 million.” Bonnie shrugged indifferently.

Avril stared at Bonnie blankly, realizing that the more she spent time with Bonnie, the more mysterious she seemed. She was full of surprises.

Trina, with jealousy burning in her eyes, looked at Vera. “Ah, Bonnie is something. She spent 2.8 million to buy a pair of ice jade bracelets to give them away.

Vera was already feeling uncomfortable, and after hearing Trina’s words, her eyes seemed to spew fire.

Even though Bonnie had no relationship with them anymore, they couldn’t help but feel resentful, watching her give away such expensive bracelets that she had bought.

“What does it matter? Also, she is not your sister. She doesn’t deserve to be your sister. Understand?”

Trina obediently nodded. “Sorry, Mom, I know.”

Halfway through the auction, Bonnie finally found a suitable item to give to Lisa.

“A hundred–year–old ginseng, perfectly preserved. Everyone can see its quality. It’s priceless. I won’t waste everyone’s time. The starting bid is 200 thousand,” Heath announced.

“The quality of this item is truly outstanding!” Gresham exclaimed. “I wonder which big shot will be able to take it home tonight.”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 248

Chapter 248

Demetria looked at Hadwin. “Your grandfather’s birthday is coming up. Find a way to win it.”

“Okay, Mom.” Hadwin raised his paddle.

“210 thousand,” he bid.

Before his words had even settled, someone else bid.

“2 million.”

“2.5 million.”

Before Hadwin could drop his paddle, the bid reached seven million.

“Damn it! What are you all fighting for?” Hadwin raised his paddle again. “Seven million.

“30 million,” Bonnie bid.

Hadwin remained frozen in the position of lowering his paddle, stiffly turning his head to look at Bonnie.

Bonnie bid such a large sum. She seemed to have no fear that her backer wouldn't give her that much money one would give their mistress such a massive sum.

It shocked Avril and Kay.

Then, Kay leaned over to Bonnie and whispered, "Ms. Bonnie, if you can't come up with that much money, I can sponsor you. Of course, it's not free. When you have time, teach me a few more moves."

Kay knew Bonnie had a strong sense of pride and didn't like taking advantage of others, which was why she said that.

Bonnie looked at Kay calmly. "No need for your help. I can manage."

At this time, another bidder entered.

"35 million."

Chapter

Bonnie immediately followed up. "70 million."

Gasps filled the room.

In the VIP room upstairs, Ged's gaze turned away from Bonnie.

"Ivor, Bonnie stole the show today. But from what I know about her, she probably won't ask you for money, right?"

"She has it." Ivor lifted his teacup, enjoying the sight of the girl's stunning beauty while sipping his tea.

"You mean the money she tricked out of Xavier last time?" Ged recalled and asked.

Ivor corrected severely, "She didn't trick Xavier. She outsmarted him."

"Tsk tsK tsK-" Ged clicked his tongue. "I didn't expect you to be so defensive. Okay, okay, she didn't trick him. Bonnie outsmarted him with her intelligence.

"Speaking of which, I'm curious. How did Bonnie make Xavier lose so much money? He didn't even come knocking at her door afterward." Ged raised his brows.

Ivor raised his eyebrows thoughtfully. "I asked her about this before, but she didn't explain much."

During their conversation, another bid instantly caught their attention.

"140 million."

"Who dares to challenge your woman? They're courting death." Ged followed the sound of the voice and was stunned when he saw the person's face. "Xavier? Xavier is fighting with Bonnie for the item. Is this his way of taking revenge?"

"It's unlikely. Since Xavier didn't come to trouble Bonnie, he must have some concerns. It's unlikely that he is here to cause trouble for Bonnie in such a public place. Even if he wants to, he should do it behind the scenes."

"In that case, Xavier wants this hundred-year-old ginseng?" Ged felt that Ivor's analysis made sense.

On the first floor, Bonnie turned her head to look at Xavier, and their eyes met, with a hint of flattery in Bonnie's gaze.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 249

Before Bonnie could understand, Xavier approached with a smile and stood before her.

Trina and the others all stared at this scene, utterly confused. They wondered why the CEO of Sheffyn Entertainment would approach Bonnie.

"What are you doing here?" Bonnie looked at Xavier with a cold gaze.

Xavier maintained his friendly smile. “Ms. Bonnie, please don’t bid for this ginseng.”

Bonnie raised an eyebrow, her tone cold. “Are you trying to compete with me?”

“No, how could I compete with you? I want to bid for this ginseng and give it to you.”

His words shocked everyone.

“How... how is that possible?” Gresham’s mouth hung open.

Xavier wanted to give Bonnie this priceless, hundred-year-old ginseng.

Moreover, Xavier was the CEO of Sheffyn Entertainment. They were comparable to the Knight family in Pyralis. No one could find a connection between him and Bonnie and why he was trying to please her.

Bonnie nodded. “How sensible. Okay, I’ll accept it.”

Xavier breathed a sigh of relief. “Thank you, Ms. Bonnie, for your kindness.”

Bonnie waved dismissively. “You can go now.”

“Okay, I won’t bother you anymore.” Xavier quickly left.

This scene confused everyone. Xavier was acting so submissive toward Bonnie.

Gresham felt a sense of regret, but it was only fleeting. Despite Bonnie’s current glory, everyone would revile her once someone exposed her identity as a mistress. The higher she climbed, the harder she would fall.

Avril looked at the ginseng in her hand with admiration for Bonnie.

“Bonnie, this is such a valuable item. You should keep it safe.”

Bonnie replied, “I plan to give it away.”

“What?!” Avril was so surprised that she accidentally raised her voice several notches.

Feeling the strange gazes from those around her, she quickly covered her mouth.

“You want to give it away? Who are you going to give such a precious thing to?”

Bonnie smiled mysteriously. “You’ll know in the future.”

In the private room on the second floor, Ivor stood up.

“Mr. Ivor, where are you going?” Ged looked at Ivor and asked.

“I’m going to find Bonnie.” Ivor smiled and said.

Ged felt repulsed.

Ivor came to Bonnie’s side and looked at Kay. “Excuse me.”

Kay did not react. She didn’t understand why the CEO of Knight Group was asking her to move.

Thinking of this, Kay looked back and forth between Bonnie and Ivor and came up with a conclusion.

“Here. sit.” Kay smiled and gave up her seat before staring at Bonnie and Ivor nosily.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 250

Chapter 250

This was groundbreaking news. She never expected Ivor’s rumored fiancée to be Bonnie.

Bonnie turned to look at Ivor. “Why aren’t you staying in your private room? What are you doing here?”

“You’re not in my private room.” Ivor’s deep black eyes were full of affection.

Bonnie sighed and rubbed her forehead. "You have no shame. You can come up with flirtatious remarks anytime, anywhere."

"Thank you for the compliment."

"Haha."

Ultimately, Xavier won the hundred-year-old ginseng with a bid of 140 million and had it sent to Bonnie.

Ivor glanced at the ginseng box and couldn't help asking, "It seems like Xavier is a little afraid of you."

Bonnie could sense that he was testing her. "Really? I didn't notice."

"I won't ask if you won't tell. I believe that one day, you won't treat me as an outsider anymore and will tell me everything." Ivor said in a firm tone.

Bonnie looked Ivor up and down. "This has nothing to do with being an outsider or not. Everyone has their secrets, and you must have secrets that I don't know either."

Ivor leaned close to Bonnie's face and whispered, "What secrets do you want to know? I'll tell you everything. Even if you want to understand me, I don't mind being a model for you. I can lie on the bed motionless and let you do as you please."

His words formed an indescribable scene in Bonnie's mind for a moment.

Bonnie blushed, and she wanted to punch him.

"You have no shame!" Hadwin looked at Bonnie and Ivor, who were getting along intimately. "You're so close in public. Aren't you embarrassed?"

Hadwin's voice was not low, and his intention was obvious. It was to embarrass Bonnie.

Trina joined in, echoing Hadwin. "Bonnie, Hadwin is right. What you did just now is unsightly."

Chapter 250

Bonnie turned to look at the pair. "It's embarrassing for us to be this close? You two were being intimate with each other just now. Hadwin, you even reached under Trina's skirt and rummaged around. I wonder what you'll find down there."

“Trina, you intentionally rubbed your chest against Hadwin’s arm. Could it be that there was an unscratchable itch that you needed Hadwin to help you with?”

Hadwin and Trina were both about to spurt blood. Bonnie’s words were so venomous.

“Enough!” Gresham glared at Bonnie. “How can you say such things about her in public? Aren’t you afraid you’ll bully her into suicide? You’re so malicious!”

“Malicious?” Bonnie sneered. “So, people can criticize me, but I can’t retaliate? How does that make sense? Besides, they did what they did, so I dare to say it.”

“You, you-” Gresham was trembling with anger.

Vera pulled Gresham. “Let me talk to her.”

Vera looked at Bonnie and said, “I won’t argue with you. Sell the ginseng to me.

“You want me to sell the ginseng to you?” Bonnie was curious about Vera’s intentions. “How much are you offering?”

Vera thought for a moment before replying, “Trina’s grandfather fell seriously ill and needs medication. This ginseng happens to be useful for her grandfather’s health.”

“Why are you telling me all this nonsense? Just tell me how much you are willing to pay.” Bonnie’s patience was wearing thin..

Vera couldn’t stand Bonnie’s attitude when talking to her. Even though Bonnie was no longer her daughter, she still couldn’t tolerate Bonnie’s attitude..

Vera thought for a moment and replied, “Fifty grand.”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 251

Chapter 251

“What?!” Bonnie picked her ear and laughed, saying, “Xavier spent a billion on this ginseng, and you’re trying to buy it from with for fifty grand? You must have a screw loose, Vera.”

Avril and Kay exchanged glances. They were speechless because of Vera’s outrageous demand. Vera was furious as she said, “Are you honestly asking for more? Do you know how critical the condition of Trina’s grandfather is? Saving his life is the right thing to do.”

“I’ve done my part by offering fifty grand for the ginseng. I’m not even asking you to give it to me for free. You have your panties in a bunch.”

Bonnie could no longer bear her estranged mother. The former had decided to leave the Shepards because she knew Vera and Gresham’s character too well. Once she left, she would have nothing to do with them.

“Fuck this, Bonnie! I’m sorry, but she’s the biggest scumbag there is. I can’t stand her anymore. She’s the worst human being I’ve ever met.” Kay was so frustrated that she had to pat her chest to calm herself down.

Vera could not tolerate Kay’s insults. The former said, “I know you’re Master Orson’s granddaughter, Kay. Still, it doesn’t mean you can insult me.”

Kay retorted, arms akimbo, “Can you blame me? Even if Trina’s grandfather is ill, you can’t guilt trip Bonnie. She’s not obligated to save anyone in your family. Would you have demanded the ginseng if Xavier had it instead of Bonnie? You wouldn’t have guilt-tripped him, correct?”

Vera pursed her lips as her eyes reddened.

“I thought so. You wouldn’t dare if someone else had the ginseng. You’d never have offered fifty grand for it, either. You’re only doing it to Bonnie because you hate her. You never considered her your daughter.

“Whenever you see her getting something good, you try to snatch it. How can such a bitch like you become a mother? I’ve never met anyone so wicked. Bonnie must feel humiliated to have a mother like you!” Kay was irritated.

Meanwhile, Avril resisted her urge to clap in delight.

‘Kay tore Vera a new one!’

Although Vera wanted to retort, Kay was a member of the Steele family. The former could not fight with Kay and offend Orson. After all, it would hinder the Shepards' future. Even so, she was not about to back off and do nothing to Bonnie.

"It's between you and me, Bonnie. I'll meet you halfway and pay you a hundred grand for the ginseng. There, I doubled my offer."

Bonnie looked at Vera indifferently and said, "I won't sell it to you for that little. Here's an idea. Call the cops and tell them to arrest me instead. Tell them I refuse to sell you the ginseng for a billion dollars, and you offered me a whopping hundred grand for it.

"While you're at it, why not tell them how outrageous I am for not selling it to you? They might help you and put me behind bars."

"Why, you little-" Although furious, Vera did everything she could not to slap her former daughter.

Kay gave Bonnie a thumbs up and said, "That's a great idea, Bonnie!"

The latter frowned and said, "I'd much rather not be so harsh to the woman I once called my mother."

Kay wanted to say something but was at a loss. She thought it must be depressing to have a terrible mother like Vera.

'Bonnie might've moved on from them, but it'd be a lie to say she didn't feel anything about her former family. Surely, there's some lingering resentment for how they treated her. That's right! Bonnie might be an awesome lady, but she still has feelings.'

Meanwhile, Ivor's heart throbbed in pain when he sensed the helplessness in Bonnie's tone. He could not bear how soul-crushing it must be for her now. He held her hand to comfort her and turned her to look at him.

Chapter 252

Before Bonnie could speak, Ivor said, "Don't say it. I'm not letting go of your hands."

It was as if those words filled Bonnie's heart with warmth. She felt a sense of security as she looked at his gritty expression. Since she had always been independent and tough, she had never needed anyone to make her feel this safe.

It felt good to have someone to depend on.

Vera noticed Bonnie ignoring her. The former roared, "I won't ask you again, Bonnie! Are you going to sell me the ginseng or not?! If you don't, I'll tell your countryfolk parents that you left a poor old lady to die!"

Although Bonnie rarely got angry, she was furious this time. "My parents raised, educated, and cared for me whenever I got sick. They've never failed to give me birthday presents every year. You're no one to me.

"How dare you threaten to disturb their peace! If you so much as text my parents, I'll destroy your entire family."

"Hmplr, as if! Who do you think you are? Funny how you think you can destroy us."

Suddenly, Xavier approached and said, "Just say the word, Bonnie. I'll wipe the Shepards from Pyralis."

Vera was shocked while Gresham stood up. He was terrified, hastily saying, "Please look past this, Xavier. My wife is just a commoner. She doesn't consider things before speaking."

Xavier retorted, "What are you talking about? She's trying to buy my billion-dollar ginseng for a measly hundred grand. If anything, she's trying to take advantage of me. How dare you say consider things before speaking?"

she does

"I'm sorry, Xavier. My wife has overstepped. She'll apologize to you." Gresham hurried over and urged his wife to apologize.

Vera dared not disobey. She said, "I'm sorry, Xavier. I didn't mean to step out of line. I'm just worried about my mother. That's why I offered to buy the ginseng."

Xavier ignored the couple and asked Bonnie, "How do you want me to deal with them?"

Gresham and Vera's hearts sank. At that moment, the Shepards were at Bonnie's mercy. Meanwhile, the couple wondered why Xavier was respectful and protective of Bonnie.

Chapter 252

They even speculated he was her sugar daddy.

"Wait, Bonnie sat close to Ivor and even held hands. Xavier must've seen it, but he did nothing about it. He can't be Bonnie's sugar daddy. So, why would Xavier side with her if there's nothing between them?"

Bonnie glared at her former parents, saying, "I never want to hear you two insulting my parents again. I'll show you how merciless I can be if I ever find out you two disrespect or humiliate them."

Vera and Gresham disdained Bonnie even more now. However, they could do nothing about it. Now that the incident had concluded, the auction ended with a bang for the time being.

Chapter 253

Heath stood onstage and introduced the final item for the night, "Allow me to introduce the last item up for bids tonight. We saved the best for last. Of course, everyone knows about the miracle doctor who saved the mother of the SR League's owner."

Gresham and Vera were excited as that was what they came for. They hoped to bid on this item and buy the miracle doctor's services. Otherwise, Harold would not make it past the next few days.

Heath continued, "The miracle doctor can bring the dead back to life. I know it sounds exaggerated, but it's the most apt introduction for her. Although she saved the mother of the SR League's owner, she also helped someone regain their ability to walk.

"The miracle doctor is giving treatment to Ivor's grandmother. Ivor is the director of Knight Group. According to the latest information, Winnie, his grandmother, is doing much better now.

Although I'm grateful that no one in my family is ill, the miracle doctor said the organizer could not partake in the auction. If not for that, I'd do my best to outbid you all."

Everyone in the hall knew Heath wasn't exaggerating to please the miracle doctor or raise the price of her services. After all, falling ill was an inevitable part of life. Securing the miracle doctor's service meant saving their life whenever they needed it.

Bonnie looked at Heath and clicked her tongue. He would have also tried to bid for her service if he had not been the organizer. That was why she explicitly clarified that he could not join the bid.

After all, the two had been buddies for years. If anyone in Heath's family needed her help, she would do it for free.

"All right, let the bidding commence! We'll start with fifty million."

"Sixty million!"

"A hundred million!"

"They're bidding so high already?!"

Gresham and Vera grew pale. Although Harold was in a dire situation, the couple could not bid if the price went too high.

Chapter 253

“A hundred and twenty million dollars!”

“Two hundred million dollars,” Xavier uttered his bid.

Bonnie turned and looked at him. He met her gaze and was stunned for a while. Then, he smiled and waved at her.

Meanwhile, Graham grew anxious. He stood up and exclaimed, “Three hundred million!”

‘Ugh, that’s a lot of money. My wallet’s bleeding!’

A moment later, he turned and addressed everyone in the auction hall. He said tearfully, I’m the head of the Shepard family, and I ask that you all listen to my story! My father has a severe illness, and none of the doctors we hired could help him. They even told us to start planning his funeral.

“The miracle doctor is our last hope, everyone. I beg you to give us a chance this time. My family isn’t as prestigious as other esteemed guests here, but I ask that you believe me. In return, my family will help you if you need our help.”

He then bowed to everyone as his tears fell to the floor. Suddenly, Vera and Trina did the same thing.

“Please consider doing us this favor, everyone. My grandpa’s life is hanging by a threat as we speak.” Tears streamed down Trina’s cheeks. She was determined to be the most loving and thoughtful granddaughter. She knelt and clasped her hands, begging, “Please!”

She heard everyone muttering about her. They showered her with compliments and approval. Indeed, she had killed two birds with one stone. Firstly, she won the favor of everyone in the high society circle.

Secondly, she could secure the miracle doctor’s service for her family. Once Harold’s health improved, he would love and dote on Trina even more. In turn, that would further consolidate Trina’s standing in the family.

Meanwhile, Bonnie watched indifferently. She admitted that her former sister’s shamelessness was nothing she could ever compare to. Otherwise, Trina could not have attained her status in the family.

Naturally, that did not mean Bonnie could not beat her former sister. Instead, the former did not want to use methods similar to Trina’s. After all, Bonnie did not want to become someone she despised.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 254

Chapter 254

With Trina kneeling and begging, no one had the heart to bid against the Shepards for the miracle doctor's service. Moreover, no one in their families needed urgent treatment. Ultimately, the bidders let the Shepards win.

Once the auction ended, Bonnie and Ivor left the hall together. The latter said, "Wait here while I bring the car around."

"All right."

Immediately after Ivor left, Trina pranced around Bonnie and said, "Did you see how well I did in there? What do you think?"

Bonnie gave her a thumbs-up and said indifferently, "You're the best at embodying the word shameless."

11

Trina was furious. She wanted to boast about how great she was and hint at Bonnie that she would never let Bonnie rejoin the family.

"Hmph, you're just jealous! The miracle doctor will save Grandpa tomorrow. He'll feel indebted to me then. Imagine how gloriously he'll reward me." Trina held her chin up.

However, Bonnie laughed aloud, enraging Trina even more. "What are you laughing at?!"

"Oh, you'll see." Suddenly, Bonnie looked forward to treating Harold at the family's house tomorrow.

“You’re so full of it, Bonnie.” Trina hated that Bonnie could always brush off her tricks and act like it was no big deal.

The latter did not want to waste any more time with Trina. Instead, Bonnie would save her breath for when she saw the Shepards tomorrow.

Trina grew curious as she said, “Mom sent me to ask you how you got to know Xavier.”

Exasperated, Bonnie glanced at her and said, “Why does that concern any of you? You’re unworthy of asking me such a thing. You Shepards are strangers, as far as I know. Is that how you idiots behave? You nosy people must like asking strangers about their private lives.”

“Why, you little- Why won’t you just tell me?!”

Bonnie gave Trina a sidelong glance and said coldly, “I ain’t telling you shit. What are you going to do about it?”

Chapter 254

“Fine!” Trina stomped off.

Bonnie continued to wait, but Ivor never arrived.

“That’s strange. The parking lot isn’t that far. What’s taking him so long? I’ll walk over there and look for him.

When she arrived at the parking lot, she saw Rowena talking to Ivor. Rowena tried to dive into his arms several times, but he kept avoiding her.

“Stop avoiding me, Ivor. Am I not good enough for you? If so, how is Bonnie good enough for you? Why do you love her but not me?!” Rowena stared at Ivor tearfully.

However, there was nothing but coldness in Ivor’s eyes as he said, “Bonnie is better than you in every way. You don’t hold a candle to her.”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 255

Chapter 255

Bonnie became misty-eyed when she heard Ivor's words.

On the other hand, Rowena wept. "That hurt, Ivor. We've known each other since childhood. How could you choose someone you've only known for several months over r me?"

"What of it?" Ivor responded briefly.

Bonnie glanced at the weeping Rowena and pitied her. Even so, the former knew what kind of person Rowena was. Any pity would be a waste on Rowena.

"It's all Bonnie's fault! I'll make her pay for this! She will return you to me!"

Suddenly, Bonnie revealed herself and said, "Return him to you? You don't know your worth, Rowena. He has never belonged to you. You're just bullshitting."

Her words resembled salt in Rowena's wounds. Bonnie then approached Ivor and stood beside him, the couple looking like a perfect match. Rowena could no longer take it and ran away, bawling.

Meanwhile, Ivor grew worried that Bonnie might misunderstand the situation. He hastily explained, "She kept bugging me and wouldn't let me leave. I rejected her approach repeatedly, but she clung to me."

"Yeah, I can tell," Bonnie responded. Then, she noticed Ivor staring at her. She asked, "Why are you looking at me like that?"

Ivor frowned. "You don't look even a little jealous."

Bonnie realized he was dissatisfied because she was not jealous of Rowena.

'Jeez, he'd get upset and jealous if any guy gets close to me. Now, he's also upset that I'm not jealous of the ladies who get close to him.'

"Gosh, you're such a hopeless romantic, Ivor."

He smiled charmingly and pointed at himself, saying, "I'm only a hopeless romantic for you. No one else can bring out that side of me."

Bonnie did not have a good comeback for that. She opened the car door and sat in the passenger seat before saying, "Come on, let's go home. I have a busy day tomorrow."

Ivor got into the car and asked curiously, "You don't have school tomorrow. Why would you say you have a busy day?"

Chapter 255

He realized she would always leave the villa and not return until late at night. He had always been curious about it, wondering what Bonnie was doing outside all day. Still, he respected her privacy and did not send his men to follow her.

Bonnie squinted, saying, "I need to visit the Shepards' house."

Ivor was about to drive off but stopped when he noticed what Bonnie said. He asked, "Why would you do that? Do the Shepards have more bones to pick with you?"

He heard about the commotion when Bonnie went there to gather her belongings. That was why he was worried when she said she had to visit the Shepards.

"Not exactly." Bonnie was not about to tell Ivor that she would be treating Harold. If she did, she would expose her identity as a miracle doctor.

On the other hand, Ivor was perceptive. From her response, he noticed she did not plan to tell him everything. He asked, "How about I send one of my men to accompany you? Hey, I can send Tim with you. You're close with him, aren't you?"

"N-Not him! I'll go back there alone." Bonnie knew Jim would insist on following her if he ever knew about it.

Ivor squinted and said, "Fine, but I want you to call me if you encounter any issues.

"Of course."

The following morning, Ivor called Jim over. Meanwhile, Floyd pursed his lips when he saw Jim. The former had to remind himself that no one could know about Tim's real identity. No one could learn that Tim was Jim.

Chapter 256

Ivor noticed Floyd's strange behavior and asked, "Is there something on your mind?"

Meanwhile, Jim shot Floyd a look that said, 'You'll regret it if you open your big mouth.'

Floyd met his imposing gaze and answered Ivor, "Oh, nothing."

Ivor looked down as he fell into deep thought, but the other two could not read his expression. Then, he looked at Jim and said, "I have an important mission for you."

"What is it?"

"Bonnie just left and is headed for the Shepards. I want you to keep her safe," Ivor said while monitoring Jim's reaction.

The latter tried to hide his concern when he heard the news. Although subtle, Ivor caught it and said, "Stop waiting around. I want you to go now."

"Of course." Jim nodded and left the villa.

Ivor then looked at Floyd, saying, "Are you sure you're not hiding something from me?"

Floyd's heart pounded. "What do you mean, Mr. Ivor?"

He tried to remain calm. Although keeping things from his boss was inappropriate, he felt better knowing Bonnie had his back. After all, Ivor would turn into a pussycat whenever Bonnie put down her foot.

Ivor stared at Floyd for a good while before finally looking away and saying, "Take me to the company."

Floyd dared not sigh in relief because he did not want his boss to sense something unusual about his reaction. Hence, he only sighed internally.

'Well, that was scary!'

Harold lay in bed at the Shepards' villa. He looked shriveled and pale as death as his breathing became labored. It looked like he could pass away at any moment.

Meanwhile, Yolanda expressed her frustration with Gresham, “Where’s the miracle doctor you spent three million on?! Why isn’t she here yet?”

“Calm down, Mom. I’ll call her now.”

“What did you say?! Your dad can’t hold on any longer, yet you’re asking me to calm down. Are you eager for him to die so you can inherit his assets?” Yolanda trembled with rage.

Gresham was shocked. “How can you say that, Mom? Do you honestly think I’d do something like that?”

Grant, Gresham’s younger brother, said, “Don’t talk to Mom like that. She has a point. Since you’re the family’s firstborn, it’s only natural that you’d want Dad to die so you can inherit all his assets. Then, you’ll kick Kaysen and me out of here.”

“That’s a load of crap!” Gresham roared.

His youngest brother, Kaysen, said, “Why are you getting mad, Gresham? Grant must be right about you.”

“Are you two idiots working together to tear me down?!”

“We would never. We’re just speaking the truth.”

“Yeah, what he said.”

“That’s enough!” Yolanda gripped her cane and said, “Why are you three fighting at a time like this?! Your dad’s life is on the line, and all you care about is arguing.”

She looked at Gresham and asked, “Did you call the miracle doctor yet? When is she coming?”

A moment later, he received a reply and told his mother, “She’s at the door. Let’s go and welcome her.”

Chapter 257

“Thank goodness she’s finally here. Your dad will live!” Yolanda said as she approached the door.

“Mom, slow down. Your legs aren’t what they used to be.” Gresham and his brothers darted after their mother.

When the group reached the door, they saw no signs of the miracle doctor. Instead, they saw Bonnie. Gresham sneered, asking, “What do you think you’re doing here?”

She was about to respond when Yolanda interjected, “Why do you care why she’s here? Where’s the miracle doctor?”

The older woman looked past Bonnie but saw no one there. Yolanda asked hastily, “I thought you said the miracle doctor is here. Where is she?”

“Hold on. I’ll ask someone.” Gresham pulled out his phone and called Jamari, the person overseeing the bidding affairs. Gresham said, “That can’t be. The miracle doctor texted me and said she’s here.”

After some thought, he asked, “Do you think she went to the wrong house?”

Jamari replied, “Hmm, I’ll hang up and call her.”

“Sure.”

When Jamari hung up, Bonnie said, “I’m here. Let me in.”

‘Say what now?’

Everyone, especially Gresham, was stunned.

Ysable laughed, “Hahaha! Bonnie, it’s funny that you think you’re a miracle doctor.

That's absurd.'

Gresham and Vera reddened with fury. Though they had disowned Bonnie, they could not help but feel embarrassed by her actions.

"Shut your trap and leave, Bonnie."

Bonnie looked at Gresham indifferently, asking, "Are you sure you won't regret telling me to leave?"

"Whatever! Just get out of my face!" Every second he looked at her just made him angrier.

Chapter 257

Meanwhile, Vera glared at Bonnie. The latter raised her brows and said leisurely, "You'll all regret it soon enough."

Bonnie turned and began walking away. Suddenly, she stopped and turned, adding, "I won't refund your three million dollars, by the way. After all, I came as promised, but you denied my service."

Ysabel snorted. "You're committed to your act, huh? You must enjoy impersonating others. Do you even have any medical knowledge? Whatever, I bet you don't even know how to check a pulse."

Fernanda added to the mockery, "Although I'm no longer related to you, your actions still embarrass me. Thank goodness we disowned you. You're so reckless that you might get yourself killed someday. I hope you don't drag us down with you when it happens."

Yolanda glowered at Gresham and Vera. She said, "We shouldn't have brought this country bumpkin her in the first place!"

The couple felt humiliated and glared at Bonnie.

'Why the hell did she come here?! We're getting scolded because of her.'" Soon, the couple inevitably resorted to criticizing their estranged daughter.

Chapter 258

“You’re shameless for coming here after we disowned you. Why’d you come back?”

“As far as we’re concerned, you’re no longer our daughter. You can die for all we care. Stop coming here and disgracing us with your presence!”

Bonnie had long become numb to their harsh insults. At that moment, she was unfazed. Suddenly, her phone vibrated.

Buzz, buzz, buzz.

She answered Jamari’s call, and he asked, “Did you go to the wrong address, miss? The Shepards said they didn’t see you.”

Bonnie looked at the family blankly and said, “I’m already here, but they’re in my way and not letting me in. Instead, they’re chasing me out as we speak.”

“What?! What’s wrong with these people? Give me a minute, miss. I’ll call them right now,” Jamari said, annoyed.

Ysabel rolled her eyes and said, “Grandma, she just can’t stop pretending. How did she become so shameless?”

Gresham noticed his mother’s grim expression and motioned to push Bonnie out of the property. However, he received a call from Jamari.

“Hmph!” Gresham glared at Bonnie and then answered his phone. Immediately after, his fury vanished. He smiled and asked Jamari on the phone. “So, what did the miracle doctor say?”

“Damn you, Gresham!” Jamari roared, “The miracle doctor is at your doorstep, yet you lied and said you don’t see her. You even tried to chase her away if that wasn’t bad enough. How dare you!”

“You and your family begged everyone at the auction to let you win the bed. Everyone tried to help you and your family, even though you’re nothing in the high society circle. What do you think will happen if they find out you squandered their compassion?!”

Gresham was terrified and was even on the verge of tears. “I—I didn’t lie, Jamari! I don’t see the miracle doctor at my doorstep—”

He suddenly stopped speaking and whipped around to look at Bonnie, who had already reached the front gate and was walking vide.

He suddenly stopped speaking and whipped around to look at Bonnie, who had already reached the front gate and was walking outside.

Chapter 258

‘Are you kidding me?! How’s that possible? Bonnie’s only in her twenties. How can she be the miracle doctor who treated the mother of the SR League’s owner? Does that mean she’s also treating the grandmother of the Knight Group’s director?’

Meanwhile, Jamari was outraged. “You’re still lying to me?! I just called the miracle doctor, and she said she was at your doorstep!”

That was when Gresham remembered Bonnie answering a call just now.

‘1—It must be a coincidence.’

“Can you give me the miracle doctor’s name?”

Jamari barked, “Bonnie Shepard!”

“What?!” Gresham gasped as his widened eyes turned to Bonnie. His jaw dropped as he yelled, “Bonnie, come back!”

Bonnie did as he said and looked at him wryly. “What’s wrong? Are you regretting it already?”

Vera was dumbfounded, asking her husband, “Why’d you call her back?”

Yolanda added, “I told you Bonnie’s nothing but a troublemaker. If you take her back, I’ll disown you!”

Vera grew anxious. “You’re misunderstanding him, Mom. He would never take Bonnie back. I bet he yelled for her to return to tear her a new one.”

Yolanda felt much better after hearing that. “That’s more like it.

At that moment, Gresham sweated bullets while Bonnie grew impatient. “It looks like you guys don’t want Harold to get better.”

“Do I have to get someone to chase you out with a broom?!” Yolanda scolded.

“Don’t do anything reckless, Mom!” Gresham stopped Yolanda.

“What do you think you’re doing? You’ve always had a soft spot for her!”

“That’s not it. Sh–she’s the miracle doctor!” Gresham turned red with “Wh–what did you just say?” Yolanda was shocked.

Vera gulped, saying, “Stop joking around, honey.”

anger.

“Yeah, Dad! How is Bonnie the miracle doctor?” Trina would rather believe Santa Claus existed than believe her former sister was the celebrated miracle doctor.

Gresham’s brows furrowed as he said bitterly, “I’m having trouble believing she’s the miracle doctor, too. Believe me. I wish it were a joke, but it’s the truth.”

Everyone fell silent as they looked at Bonnie in shock. Suddenly, Vera shouted, “Hey, she’s about to get in her car!”

Yolanda chased after Bonnie with her cane, yelling, “Don’t leave, Bonnie! Come back!”

Even Vera and Gresham joined in chasing Bonnie.

Meanwhile, Trina felt troubled about the unexpected turn of events, thinking, 'How did this happen? How can Bonnie be the miracle doctor?'

Bonnie had just gotten into her car when they pulled her out. She said, "I thought you guys didn't believe me. Didn't you want to chase me out with a broom?"

Gresham grimaced. "Why didn't you say anything earlier?"

Bonnie had waited until the Shepards disowned her before telling them she was the miracle doctor. The family wondered if she did that just to humiliate them.

Gresham's question made Bonnie chuckle. Even so, she was unsure if she was laughing at herself or Gresham. She said, "Really? I recall telling you I had medical knowledge when someone here fractured their bone a long time ago. I offered to treat her, but what did you tell me?"

"You accused me of lying and called me a troublemaker. You even grounded me and told me to reflect on my misbehavior. Also, Harold got sick a few years ago, and his health has been deteriorating since then.

Chapter 259

"I told you I could help him, but you shamed me. Don't say I never told you that I had medical knowledge. You just never listened."

Gresham and Vera grew grim as Bonnie spoke. Indeed, they recalled everything she said. Bonnie was right. The family had criticized and distrusted her.

'Are we guilty of distrusting her? Of course not. It's no one's fault. No would believe that such a young lady could possess such medical knowledge!'

"I've had enough of this shit!" Yolanda glared at Bonnie and commanded, "If you're the miracle doctor, do your job and start treating Harold now!"

Bonnie could not bear the family's atrocious behavior. She said, "Here's the thing, Yolanda. I'm no longer a family member, and sure as hell ain't your granddaughter. Since I'm the heralded miracle doctor, every wealthy family in Pyralis competes for my services.

"Are you sure you want to talk to me in that tone? You were the ones who chased me out just now. Do you think I want to treat anyone in your family? Keep dreaming!"

"You little shit!" Yolanda was at a loss and could not think of how to retort. Finally, she roared at Gresham and Vera, "Your daughter's being a nasty brat!"

The couple was furious. One of them said, “Bonnie’s no longer our daughter!”

Even Yolanda was outraged, thinking, ‘We wouldn’t have needed to spend three million dollars if they hadn’t insisted on disowning Bonnie. Trina wouldn’t have needed to beg everyone at the auction, either.’”

The older woman’s eyes were full of hatred as she glared at Bonnie.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 260

Chapter 260

The family blamed everything on Bonnie. Still, Yolanda had to suppress her hatred for her husband’s sake. She asked, “What will it take for you to treat my husband, Bonnie?”

Bonnie said arrogantly, “After you chased me out just now, what do you think it’ll take?”

Trina interjected, “Although you’re no longer one of us, my parents raised you. Their blood courses through your veins. Are you going to be cruel and make them kneel and beg?”

Yolanda was just as scheming as the rest of the family. Therefore, she knew what Trina was trying to do. The older woman glanced at Gresham and Vera, asking, “What are you waiting for? Kneel before Bonnie. She hates us now, and that’s the only way she’d treat Harold.”

Bonnie squinted, regarding Trina as a dead woman.

Meanwhile, Gresham and Vera gawked at Yolanda. The former asked, “What are you talking about, Mom? Why should we kneel before her? She’s our birth daughter, for crying out loud. Th—that’s just-”

Yolanda grunted, "What else can we do? Your dad will die if you don't beg for Bonnie's help. Some people are just cold-blooded and don't care about their family. Are you one of those people?"

The older woman insinuated that Bonnie was one of those people. However, the older woman laid it thick so Bonnie could not have missed it.

"I beg of you, Bonnie—no, Sis. Don't make Mom and Dad kneel. Please save Grandpa. I'll do anything if that's what it takes," Trina said as tears rolled down her cheeks..

At that moment, Trina resembled a kind soul who looked out for her family, while Bonnie was a rotten soul who did not give a rat's ass about them. The latter raised her brows and said, "If that's the case, I want you to get on your knees and beg me."

Trina was still crying at that moment. She froze when she heard her former sister's words.

Bonnie looked at her condescendingly and roared, "Do it! Aren't you trying to be the good little girl?"

Gresham and Vera exchanged glances. They were not about to sacrifice their dignity for anyone, not even their beloved daughter. Ultimately, letting Trina take the fall would be better.

"We're sorry you have to do that, Trina. We'll compensate you after Bonnie treats your grandpa."

Trina regretted sticking her neck out for her family when she realized they had weaseled their way out of kneeling. Meanwhile, Yolanda grew impatient when Trina froze. The former roared, "What are you waiting for, Trina?! Is your pride more important than your grandpa's life?"

Trina was in a dilemma and had no way out. She gritted her teeth and fell to her knees with a thud.

'Damn you, Bonnie! I'll get revenge on you someday. I'll make things much worse for you for putting me through this!'

you

Bonnie noticed Trina's expression and knew what the latter was thinking. Bonnie said, "Kneeling isn't enough. I want you to slap yourself, too. Keep doing it until I've completed the treatment."

"What?! That's outrageous!" Trina growled.

Bonnie crouched beside her and whispered so only Trina could hear. "Watch your tongue. Your family's watching. If you piss me off, I'll refuse to treat Harold. Then, his death will be your fault. After that, your family will see you as nothing more than a miscreant."

Chapter 261

Trina ground her teeth so hard that Bonnie could hear it. The latter said, "Grinding your teeth won't help. We both know how the family operates. They'll treat you like a queen if you're useful, but when you've outlived your usefulness, you're less than dirt to them.

"Use me as an example. Your family thought I was no longer useful to them, and they disowned me. While their blood courses through my veins, you have nothing to fall back on, Trina. I don't have to tell you what'll happen once you outlive your usefulness."

Trina's emotions ran wild. Although Bonnie was her enemy, she had to admit there was some truth to Bonnie's words.

Bonnie stood up and crossed her arms, saying, "That's why you'll slap yourself just like I asked you to. Come on, let's hear it."

Gresham and Vera did not make a sound. Trina could only sigh, knowing they had to agree. Ultimately, she slapped herself.

Bonnie smirked. "That's too soft. I said I want to hear it. That was hardly a slap.

Trina glared at her former sister and slapped herself again.

Smack!

The sound was crisp.

“Are you happy now?” Trina asked.

Bonnie nodded and said, “That works.”

She then turned to Fernanda and said, “I’ll head inside to treat Harold. The rest of you stay here and watch her. Make sure each slap is as loud as the one she did just now.”

“Okay, leave it to me.” Fernanda rubbed her hands together and approached Trina.

Previously, the latter had cunningly given Bonnie’s exam ID to Fernanda to humiliate Bonnie’s SAT score at Harold’s birthday party. However, Bonnie had a perfect score and won the Best Scholar Award. Then, Trina argued with Fernanda.

That was why Bonnie assigned Fernanda to watch Trina. Bonnie’s former cousin would watch over Trina to ensure she did not stop slapping herself until Bonnie finished treating Harold.

Trina cursed internally, ‘Damn you, Bonnie!’

Meanwhile, Yolanda glared at Bonnie grimly and said, “Will you please check on Harold now?”

“Sure,” Bonnie responded cheerfully, “I feel much better now. Let’s move.”

Her demeanor caused Yolanda, Gresham, and Vera’s blood pressure to skyrocket. When Bonnie reached Harold’s room, she first checked his pulse.

Yolanda asked with worry, “How is it? Can you help him?”

“His condition has gone on for too long. It would’ve been doable if you had let me treat him years ago. Now, it’ll take much longer to cure him.”

Bonnie’s words enraged Yolanda. “Really? The other doctors gave up treating him. On sound like you can treat him. All you need is time, right? We the other hand, you make to hired various specialists for my husband’s condition. Why are you so confident you can do what the others couldn’t?”

Of course, Yolanda was skeptical of Bonnie’s medical knowledge and purposefully made sarcastic remarks to mock her.

“Don’t worry about that. Your family spent three million dollars on my services. So, I’ll ensure you spend your money well. That’s not a small amount of money, right, Yolanda?”

Chapter 262

Yolanda sneered. She tried to schemingly get back the money she had spent on her former granddaughter, but it failed.

Soon after, Bonnie pulled out her silver needles and treated Harold. She looked nothing like a twenty-year-old girl at that moment. Instead, she looked like a mature and seasoned doctor.

The longer Yolanda and the others watched, the more peculiar their expressions became. Half an hour later, Bonnie kept her needles, and Harold miraculously regained consciousness.

The first person he saw was Bonnie. He asked, “What’s she doing here? Gresham, you and your wife promised never to take this good-for-nothing back. How dare you break your promise?!”

“I’ll disown you as my son if you don’t get her out of my house, Gresham! You’ll never be one of us again!” Harold roared.

Immediately after, he noticed everyone’s strange expressions. “What’s the matter with you guys? Cat got your tongue? Did you even hear what I said?!”

Yolanda feared things would get out of control and whispered to him everything she had just learned about Bonnie.

Harold's eyes widened as he listened to his wife. He then looked at Bonnie in disbelief. After taking some time to process the information, he said, "Fine. Now that you're finally making a name for yourself, I can consider letting you rejoin the family.

"My only condition is that you give us the money you earned from your patients. Also, you must return the money spent on bidding for your services."

Bonnie merely stared at him blankly.

Harold was displeased, asking, "Why are you looking at me like that?"

Bonnie stepped away from the family and said, "I'm grateful that I got switched at birth with Trina twenty years ago. This whole family has no honor. I would have turned out as shameless as you if you raised me."

"You bitch!" Harold roared, "How dare you talk to me that way! I'm your grandfather!"

"Grandfather? You must've lost part of your memory. Did you forget that you detached my bank account from the family? Also, you were the ones who announced on Twitter. that I'm no longer a member of the family."

Harold argued, "I know you're upset that we disowned you. However, we did nothing wrong because you kept humiliating us. I'm merciful for letting you rejoin the family. After all, your medical knowledge is impressive."

Bonnie sneered, saying, "Shameless doesn't even begin to describe how bold you all are."

"Repeat that if you dare!" Harold barked as he trembled with anger.

"I said nothing wrong. All of Pyralis knows I'm no longer a family member because of the tweet. Do you want to tarnish your reputation by releasing another statement, saying you've seen the error of your ways, and welcome me back into the family? Can you put aside your pride to do that?"

Harold pondered her words, 'She's right. It'll look like we were wrong if we take her back.

He said, "How about you post a tweet, saying you've reflected on your mistakes and changed for the better. Then, you'll also say you won't bring shame to the family again. Lastly, you'll beg for forgiveness, too."

'If she does that, my family's reputation will stay intact.'

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 263

Chapter 263

Bonnie was astonished when she heard Harold's words. Although she knew how shameless the Shepards were, she could not help but feel disgusted over what Harold said.

"Hahaha!" She burst into hearty laughter, saying, "I have no words for you people. You'd have better luck sprouting wings and flying than making me rejoin your family. I wouldn't even consider it if you begged.

"That's enough chit-chat. I'll continue treating your condition since you paid me so much. That'll be all today. Farewell." Bonnie motioned to leave.

"Stop right there! Did I say you could leave?!" Harold roared.

However, she did not slow down and ignored him. It pissed Harold off. "Hold it, Bonnie! Did you hear me?! I said stop!"

Still, Bonnie continued to leave.

"Fine! I've lived far longer than you and know how the world works. I'll show you who's tougher. Men! Stop her!" Harold had decided to contain Bonnie in the house.

'I'll punish that punk for ignoring and rebelling against me. Besides, Bonnie's extraordinary medical skills will greatly bolster my family's wealth. We can even use her to our advantage to establish connections with much wealthier and more influential families in Pyralis. I must ensure Bonnie doesn't leave.'

Soon after, several bodyguards surrounded Bonnie. She gazed at them and said dryly, "These jokers can't stop me if that's what you're counting on."

“How arrogant! Do you think your basic skills will do you any good? They’re the family’s elite bodyguards.”

“Good for you.” Bonnie casually responded and continued to leave.

The bodyguards exchanged glances before springing into action. However, Bonnie dodged their assault and countered with several punches, causing them to stagger and hit the wall.

The bodyguards were shocked. Then, some charged at her while the rest came from the rear. Even so, Bonnie wiped them out with a flurry of punches.

Harold’s expression turned grim as he gawked at his elite bodyguards on the floor. No words could describe how shocked he was, not to mention Gresham, Vera, and everyone else. They froze, and their jaws dropped.

At that moment, they finally understood why Kay kept pestering Bonnie to teach her kickboxing. The Shepards began to regret disowning Bonnie, especially with her medical knowledge and status as Pyralis’s best scholar.

Meanwhile, Trina stopped slapping herself and ran over when she heard her grandfather had regained consciousness. Then, she felt threatened when she saw the bodyguards on the floor.

She remarked, “I don’t get it, Bonnie. You’re tough and skillful, yet you stooped so low to get a sugar daddy.”

Trina meant to mislead her family. It did not matter how tough Bonnie was. Trina wanted the family to know that Bonnie was still a slut who would readily sell her body and integrity for a quick buck.

Surprisingly, it worked. Although the Shepards felt regretful earlier, that feeling began to fade. Instead, they disdained Bonnie again. That was when Bonnie strode toward Trina.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 264

Chapter 264

Trina's eyes widened in terror. "Wh—what are you doing?!"

Bonnie glared at her menacingly and said, "I told you last time. If you're going to accuse me of having a sugar daddy, you better have evidence to back it up. Otherwise, you'll regret it."

Trina felt an impending danger. She gulped in fear before screaming and fleeing. However, Bonnie grabbed her collar and yanked her back, causing her to fly and slam into a cupboard.

"Trina!" Vera darted after her daughter worriedly. "Are you okay, sweetie?"

Trina cried, "I—I'm okay, Mom. Don't blame Bonnie for this. I was wrong to expose wrongdoings in front of everyone."

her

Vera was outraged. She turned and screamed at Bonnie, "Did you hear that?! You hurt Trina, yet she still defends you! So what if you're the miracle doctor? Your talents don't matter much if you're wicked and nasty. Even if the family wants you back, I'll never reconcile with you."

"Exactly!" Gresham glared at Bonnie. "She spoke my mind. I'll never reconcile with you till the end of time!"

Initially, Harold and Yolanda wanted to use Bonnie's skills for the family's benefit. However, what happened just now suggested it was no longer possible.

Gresham and Vera's claims made the older couple reconsider retaining someone as nasty as Bonnie. After all, she could be of more trouble than her worth.

Harold said coldly, "I pitied you and allowed you to rejoin the family because the Shepard blood courses through your veins. Now, you've created a disaster. I'll kick you out, you troublemaker. Good riddance."

Bonnie glared at him and responded, "I wanted to leave, but you got in my way. Why do you insist on complicating things for yourself?"

'How annoying!'

The Shepards glared daggers at her as she left. When Bonnie exited the house, she saw Jim waiting for her. She asked, "Why are you here?"

"Why else? Mr. Ivor was worried about you.

Chapter 264

"Are you mocking me?"

"I wouldn't dare." Jim smiled and glanced at the Shepards' house grimly. "I heard fighting going on inside."

Bonnie then told him everything that had just happened inside. "That's about it. Those idiots considered their bodyguards elites. As far as I'm concerned, they weren't even a fun challenge."

"I'm aware of that. That's one of the reasons I didn't barge in to help."

Bonnie stared into Jim's eyes and asked, "Am I right to say you wanted to barge in there earlier?"

Jim chuckled, saying, "Your intelligence is extraordinary, Bonita. Nothing escapes you. Yes, I wanted to help but stopped because this is the Shepards' house."

Bonnie was grateful that he put himself in her shoes and considered what she needed instead of what he needed to do. Although he was a man's man, he was exceptionally thoughtful and cautious regarding Bonnie.

She said, "You don't have to respect those fools anymore. You can barge in and teach them a lesson for all I care. I have nothing to do with them, after all."

Jim nodded. "Roger that."

Floyd entered the Knight Group's CEO's office with a stack of documents and approached Ivor. However, he realized his boss was still looking at the same document from hours ago. "You've been staring at that for over an hour, Mr. Ivor. Is something wrong?" "I was distracted with my thoughts." Ivor frowned.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 265

Chapter 265

'I know what Mr. Ivor is thinking, but I don't want to ask him about it. I don't want to hear about his lovey-dovey story with Bonnie.'

Suddenly, Ivor looked at Floyd, hinting for him to ask about his thoughts. The latter wished to wipe the sweat off his forehead, asking, "Um, what's on your mind, Mr. Ivor?"

Ivor felt satisfied. He said, "I was just thinking about Bonnie. I wonder how everything's going for her at the Shepards'. Do you think they'll pick on her again?"

Floyd pouted, thinking, 'I knew it.'

"If I know Ms. Bonnie well enough, no one can pick on her. Also, didn't you send Jim—I mean, Tim, to watch over her? Everything will be okay with him around, Mr. Ivor."

"Tim Reid, huh?" Ivor mumbled.

Floyd's heart raced as he stammered, "I—Is there something wrong with Tim?"

Ivor squinted and said, "There's more to him than meets the eye."

Floyd tensed as he thought, "That's obvious. His real identity is Jim freaking Ryan!"

Mairi, Avril's mother, was celebrating her birthday today. So, Bonnie visited early in the morning.

Avril pulled Bonnie to her mother, saying, "Hurry, my mom can't wait to meet you!"

"Bonnie, you're finally here! I've been waiting to meet you!" Mairi held Bonnie's hands warmly and looked at her affectionately. "I'm weak and ill, so I can rarely-mingle in high society circles. I've only ever heard about you until today."

Bonnie giggled and said, "I don't have a good reputation out there, unfortunately."

"That's nonsense." Mairi frowned. "I don't believe what people say about you. I find most rumors unfounded. I only care about what my family thinks about you. Avril loves. You and Daken a of your character.

"As far as I'm concerned, you're all right. The people who twist the truth and spread false rumors are nasty."

Although it was Bonnie and Mairi's first meeting, the former felt touched by what Mairi said. Mairi took Bonnie's hands and gestured for her to sit. "Come, you can sit next to me."

Avril groaned and playfully complained, "Mom, how can you ignore your daughter just because Bonnie's here?"

"Oh, don't be jealous, sweetie." Mairi looked at Bonnie and said, "Speaking of daughters, did Avril tell you about me wanting to become your godmother?"

Bonnie nodded and said, "Yeah, she mentioned it once."

"Well, what do you think?" Mairi's eyes widened as she looked at Bonnie longingly.

The latter could tell Mairi genuinely liked her. Bonnie pondered on it and considered how Avril had always treated her. Then, she thought about what Mairi said earlier. Bonnie nodded and said, "I'd be happy to be your goddaughter, Mairi."

"That's wonderful!" Mairi was so thrilled that she fist-pumped. She then looked at her husband and daughter, saying, "Did you hear that? Bonnie's willing to be my goddaughter! Now, I have two daughters!"

Daken palmed his forehead helplessly as he looked at his ecstatic wife. "We have other guests, honey. You might want to watch yourself."

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 266

Chapter 266

“I gained a new daughter. What do I care? Can’t I let the world know that I’m happy? Do you fancy yourself a school principal? Is that why you’re getting on my case? I didn’t say anything when you smoke and drink. Also, there was the time when “Alright, okay! I’m sorry. I shouldn’t have said anything. Will you please let it go?” Daken couldn’t take it when Mairi got going. He knew he’d never hear the end of it.

Avril hid her chuckle behind her hands and whispered to Bonnie, “Did you see it? There they go again. I see this several times a day.”

“They love each other a lot.” Bonnie loved how loving and harmonious the Smiths were. It reminded her of her family in the countryside. Her parents and Benedict were the same way, too.

The Shepards weren’t even worth mentioning.

Daken couldn’t take it anymore. Realizing that asking for forgiveness didn’t pan out as he thought it would, he changed the topic and said, “Geez, honey. Did you prepare any gift for your goddaughter?”

“Oh, dear. You’re right.” Mairi removed her necklace and turned to Bonnie. “My mom gave it to me when I turned eighteen. It’s not anything luxurious, but it means a lot to me. I hope you’ll like it.”

“A–Are you sure?”

“Are you rejecting it because it’s too cheap? Is it because it’s less valuable than the ice-species jade bangle you gave Avril?”

Bonnie could tell Mairi purposefully put it this way. “That’s not it, Mom. It’s because the pendant is made of glass–species jade, Mom. I wouldn’t say it’s cheap.”

Mairi was a little surprised. “Sheesh. Look tell this is glass–species

1. How could you jade?”

"I developed a fondness for various jades and antiques in the past. So, I've been studying them quite a lot."

What she said surprised Mairi again. "Did you dabble in antiques as well?"

"Nothing too serious, though," Bonnie said humbly.

"Geez. You're talented in so many areas, the most exotic antique piece in the world. "There's an Antique Jade Appreciation Conference in Jocrovania next month. How about you come with me? Do you have the time?"

At the next moment, Lorna Smith chimed in. She was the daughter of Murray Smith, who was Daken's eldest brother. "Various prestigious figures from all over the globe will show up at the Antique Jade Appreciation Conference in Jocrovania, Aunt Mairi.

Bonnie's just twenty years old. What's the point in bringing her along? Do you think she's going to be any help in appraising the antique?"

Mairi was displeased about the rude interruption, but she was the older woman here. She couldn't be seen having a beef with the youngsters.

"Meet Bonnie, Lorna. I've just accepted her as my goddaughter. I know you have opinions about her, but I can guarantee she's not even close to how the rumors described her."

"I'm sure she got you fooled, Aunt Mairi. You guys are the only ones who think the world of her, while the Shepards have seen her for what she truly is. That's why they kicked her out of the family."

"That's enough, Lorna!" Mairi roared, "I didn't start anything with you earlier because I think of you as my niece. However, you kept coming at my goddaughter and attacked her with words. You have no respect for me.

"Now, it's my turn to ask you something. Were those your words? Or did your parent feed them to you to repeat them to me?"

Lorna was thoroughly shocked by Mairi's outburst. Turning around, she looked at her parents and asked for their help wordlessly.

Her mother, Kirsty Smith, came over and said with a big smile, "Geez. Listen to yourself, Mairi. You're scaring the youngsters. Lorna's just a child. She doesn't know what she's talking about."

Avril leaned into Bonnie's ears and whispered, "She's right. Lorna's such a baby."

Bonnie hid her chuckle behind her hands.

Mairi stood before Bonnie and said, "Just a child? Fine. If you say she's a child, then so be it. I can't believe she made such nasty remarks when she was just a child. The fault doesn't lie with her. That makes it the parents' fault because she's just a child!"

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 267

Chapter 267

Mairi's back wasn't exactly broad. She was quite slender. However, she stood before Bonnie and shielded her as Daken did a while ago.

"Avril and her family are kind souls.' Bonnie thought to herself.

That said, Mairi was insinuating Lorna's parents didn't raise her well. Murray and Kirsty's face turned red from fury. "Don't you think you're a little harsh, Mairi?"

"Harsh? Look who's talking. Don't you think Lorna spoke rather harshly earlier? She had always been arrogant and impolite. She also doesn't show any respect to those older than her under normal circumstances. At first, I thought she was young. So, I let it slide and didn't say anything.

"Do I need to remind you what the occasion is today? It's my fiftieth birthday, yet she continued to run her mouth off before me! You don't see my daughter doing the same thing before you guys!"

Murray and Kirsty didn't have a good comeback for that. Mairi was right. It was her birthday. There was nothing they could say to excuse his daughter's behavior.

"Hehehe..." Kirsty forced a smile on her face and said, "Yeah. You're right. Lorna was in the wrong this time."

Lorna's eyes widened. "Mom..."

“That’s enough, Lorna. Knock it off. You’re an adult now. That means you have to mind the way you carry yourself. Remember, we’re here to celebrate your Aunt Mairi’s birthday. Speaking of, didn’t you prepare a gift for her? Hurry up and give it to her.”

Still pissed off, Lorna produced a gift and handed it to Mairi. “I saved for a long time to buy this gift for you, Aunt Mairi. I’m aware that you’re not feeling well. So, I bought this for you. It’ll help.”

“Fine. Thank you.” Mairi took it and gave it to Avril.

Avril opened the box and checked on it. She mumbled, “What a tiny ginseng. Moreover, it doesn’t look like it was grown in the wild. That means it’s not worth much. How big of a fool does she think we are? My mom could drop dead the moment she ingests it.

Bonnie took a look at it and formed her judgment on the ginseng.

“This ginseng is cultivated artificially for less than three years. It won’t take Mom’s life away, but it won’t help her, given her current condition.”

Avril regarded her puzzlingly and asked, “How do you know so well about Mom’s current condition?”

“I took the opportunity to check her pulse when she held my hands earlier,” Bonnie explained.

Avril’s eyes widened in surprise. “Do you have medical knowledge as well?”

“Yeah. I know enough to get by. I want to check her pulse properly when the party’s over.” Bonnie had long heard that Mairi was very weak. So, she brought her trusty medkit with her when she came.

“Are you good at this?” Avril had massive respect for her right now.

Bonnie remained quiet for a couple of seconds before she leaned into Avril’s ears and said, “Are you going to believe me if I tell you I’m the miracle doctor who treated the mother of the SR League’s owner?”

Avril nodded solemnly. “I sure do. That reminds me, I have a secret for you too.”

“What is it?”

“I’m Ms. Bonita, the renowned researcher in Pyralis.”

Bonnie remained quiet and didn't say anything.

Avril looked at Bonnie's stern expression and burst out laughing. "Hahaha!"

"What do you think? My joke's better than yours. Right?" Raising her hand, Bonnie held her forehead.

'What a pain in the butt. Perhaps I should stop revealing my secret identities. No one'll believe me, anyway.'

At the next moment, Lorna turned to Bonnie and said, "You're Aunt Mairi's goddaughter now, Bonnie. Did you come empty-handed to her fiftieth birthday party?"

Avril and Mairi stepped forward simultaneously.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 268

Chapter 268

"Why do you keep picking bones with Bonnie, Lorna? Did she do anything to deserve your aggression?"

"I appreciate that you bought a gift for me, Lorna. I love it. However, this has nothing to do with the fact that you attacked Bonnie verbally repeatedly. She's part of my family. So, knock it off. Otherwise, I won't hold back anymore."

Lorna was pissed off on the inside, but she was doing what she could to keep a smile on her face. She directed her gaze past Avril and Mairi and fixed it on Bonnie.

"I'm not trying to make things difficult for you, Bonnie. It's just a question. Did you prepare a gift for Aunt Mairi or not? If you overlooked it, I have something I can lend you." The sarcasm in her tone couldn't be clearer.

With that said, Bonnie had never once laid eyes on Lorna. Instead, she looked at Mairi and said, "I've got something prepared for you, Mom."

Fixing her gaze on Bonnie, Lorna was determined to see this through. ‘What on earth did Bonnie prepare for Aunt Mairi? I’m so going to make fun of her if it’s something cheap. and worthless.’

“Thank you, Bonnie. I’m really glad I could call myself your mom.” Mairi pulled Bonnie into her arms and hugged her tightly.

we’re all very “Are you going to open it and check out the gift, Aunt Mairi? Come on, curious about the gift Bonnie prepared for you.” Lorna couldn’t wait until Bonnie humiliated herself.

Mairi was irritated now. Just as she was going to defend her goddaughter, Bonnie stepped forward and said, “I handpicked this gift for you, Mom. Why don’t you check it and see if you like it?”

“Um...” Mairi frowned.

“It’ll be fine, Mom. I’m sure you’ll love it. After all, the value of the gift doesn’t matter. It’s the thought that counts.” She smiled and looked at Mairi.

“You’re right. It’s the thought that counts. It doesn’t matter what the gift is, I know I’ll like it. Alright. It’s time to see what you’ve handpicked for me, Bonnie.”

With that, Mairi opened the gift box and was astounded to see the large ginseng. She was so shocked that it almost slipped from her hands and fell.

The rest of the guests noticed her reaction and leaned in close with a puzzled look on their faces. At the next second, though, they were petrified and stood as still as statues.

It was especially true for Avril. After all, she recognized this particular ginseng. She knew where it came from. “Good Heavens, Bonnie! Is this the same ginseng we saw at the auction a few days ago?”

What she said shocked everyone to their cores once more.

“Jeezums! I heard that they sold the ginseng at a billion dollars eventually! That’s an Incredibly huge amount of money! Is she really going to give it away?”

“Do you think price is the only thing special about it? This ginseng has been around for a hundred years! Everyone coveted it, but it wasn’t up for grabs previously. It would be nearly impossible to get your hands on it if it wasn’t for Pyralis’s annual grand auction.” “That’s right! You could even save your life when the situation calls for it!”

Listening to everyone’s muttering, Lorna felt like someone had slapped her.

'Bonnie must've done it deliberately. Otherwise, she wouldn't have also given ginseng to Aunt Mairi as a gift!'

By now, her puny ginseng had been put aside. It became worthless as soon as Bonnie produced her gift.

"Well... It's such an extravagant gift, Bonnie. I can't possibly take it." The last thing Mairi expected from Bonnie was a ginseng worth a billion dollars.

Realizing that Mairi was about to return it to her, Bonnie reached out and stopped her godmother. "I handpicked it for you, Mom. Like I said a minute ago, the value of the gift doesn't matter. It's the thought that counts. If you don't accept it, I'll take it that you don't like it."

Mairi couldn't exactly decide. Turning sideways, she looked at Daken and said, "Honey..."

"Take it. It's Bonnie's first time giving you a gift. You'll break her heart if you turn it down." Daken had a point. She had to accept it.

Later, Bonnie took Mairi aside and sat on the couch after the party was over and all the guests had left.

Chapter 269

"I'm going to check your pulse, Mom."

That surprised Mairi. "Do you have medical skills as well, Bonnie?"

Nodding, she said, "Let me give it a shot."

Mairi didn't stop her. She extended her hand and let Bonnie do her thing. That was when Daken walked over to his daughter and whispered, “Are her way around medicines?”

“I didn’t know about it until tonight’s party started.”

You aware that Bonnie knows

Avril stared at Bonnie curiously. “What exactly do you make of Bonnie, Dad? Why do I get the feeling that she knows everything?”

Daken was also staring at Bonnie. However, he didn’t say anything about the matter.

Not long after, Bonnie finished checking Mairi’s pulse. She released her godmother’s hand and asked. “Am I right if I say you were haunted by some serious condition when you were very young? Is that the reason behind your compromised immune system?”

Mairi’s eyes widened. “How did you know about that?” The fact was, she hadn’t even mentioned this to Avril. Bonnie shouldn’t have known about it.

“I just checked your pulse, silly,” Bonnie responded.

Mairi was shocked that Bonnie knew her condition by simply checking her pulse.

“I went to the countryside when I was merely three years old. I’m not sure what toxic insect it was, but it bit me, and I got a high fever for two straight weeks. I was admitted to the county hospital before they transferred me to one of the hospitals in the city, but it didn’t do me any good.

“My family even hired a witch doctor and did the whole shebang. Nothing took. Then, it dragged on, and my body recovered slowly on its own. Ever since that incident, I became frail. I couldn’t even touch cold waters when it was summer.

“It bugged me a lot too. I can’t even drink cold beverages because of it.” Mairi sighed.

‘Everyone drank their fair share of cold beverages when they were young. Having a cold beverage during summer is liberating when I sweat profusely. It must’ve been awesome.’

Bonnie patted Mairi’s hands and said, “Don’t let this get you down, Mom. It isn’t too late to treat it.’

“You’re such a sweet child, Bonnie. I know you’re just saying what I want to hear. I know about my health better than anyone else. I’ve hired many famous doctors and specialists. over the past few years, but it didn’t do me good.

“Daken wanted to purchase the bid for the miracle doctor’s service at the auction a few days ago. However, his company was trying to gather funding because they secured a famous actor to be the spokesperson for their latest product. That meant their funding was pretty tight, too. On top of that, the Shepards...”

Mairi trailed off into silence. She hesitated a little before continuing. “The Shepards got down on their knees and begged everyone. Harold was in a critical condition. On the other hand, I’m just feeling weak. It’s nothing as urgent as his situation. With all those factors in mind, we decided to give up on it.”

Turning her head sideways, Bonnie looked at Avril. “Please get me my medkit, Avril. It’s the one I brought here with me.”

Avril blinked twice and asked, “My mom’s condition is quite serious, Bonnie. Are you sure you want to do this?”

“You’re right. It is quite serious, but I did say I can treat her.” Bonnie said confidently.

All three of them gawked at her.

Bonnie knew why they were looking at her in this manner. To make them feel better, she explained. “Have faith in my skills. The mother of the SR League’s owner had it worse than Mom, but I treated her nonetheless.

“Also, I had a patient who sat in a wheelchair for twenty–odd years. He managed to stand up after I healed him. Let’s not forget about Harold. He was as good as dead by the time I saw him, but I saved him, too.”

Avril and her parents were at a loss for words. All they could do was gawk at Bonnie. Gulping, she asked, “A–Are you making a joke again, Bonnie?”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 270

Chapter 270

Bonnie shrugged and said, “You can send your men to ask the Shepards if you don’t believe me. See if I saved Harold back from the dead. With that said, they might not tell the truth. I had a huge fight with them when I went there. However, you can still learn the truth by bribing the housekeepers.”

She was deadly serious. There were no signs that she was lying at all.

“Geez Lousie, Bonnie!” Avril stared at her incredulously. “Um, I don’t even know where to begin. How’s this even possible? You’ve got a close relationship with Hamish. Xavier tries his level best to get on your good side. Let’s not forget that Ivor is trying to win your heart.

“On top of that, you’re the famous miracle doctor. How are you only twenty? I’m also in my twenties, but it feels like I’ve wasted my entire life compared to what you’ve achieved with yours.”

The way Avril was staring at Bonnie right now, everyone would think she was looking at a glorious deity instead of a fellow human being.

“You’re exaggerating, Avril. Alright. That’s quite enough with this topic. What’s important is that I look at Mom’s situation right now. Hurry up and get me my medkit.”

“Sure thing, O’ great miracle doctor. Leave it to me!”

Bonnie had nothing to say about that title.

Not long after, Avril returned with the medkit. Pulling out the silver needle, Bonnie looked at Mairi and said, “You have a severe case of a bacterial infection, Mom. It’s a shame that the dog days of summer have come and gone.

“Otherwise, we could’ve eradicated the bacterial infections when they typically manifest during that period.

“On the contrary, the chills would hide themselves under cold weather. That would, in turn, make the treatment process much more difficult. We might be in luck, though. The dog days of summer might’ve been gone, but it’s still scorching.

“The treatment will take longer than it is if we did it during the dog days of summer. You have to be more patient and give it some time.”

“How long will it take?” Avril asked.

Mairi shook her head and smiled. "I've got the bacterial infections for years now. It's not going to be that straightforward to remove it from my body. I'd be grateful if Bonnie could alleviate its symptoms soon."

Bonnie might've been the miracle doctor, but she didn't think anybody could completely eradicate her condition.

"I'll get rid of it in three months," Bonnie responded.

She could've eradicated the bacterial infections in Mairi's body in a couple of months if they had done this during the dog days of summer.

"Th—three months?!" Mairi was so shocked that she stammered. Moreover, Bonnie said she'd eliminate Mairi's bacterial infections instead of alleviating the symptoms.

"That's quite enough chit-chat. Let us begin."

Holding the silver needle, she punctured Mairi's skin with it and inserted it deep into her vital points. She did it so proficiently and confidently that she looked like a seasoned and experienced doctor.

Now, the trio fully believed Bonnie was indeed the miracle doctor.

Much time went by. Bonnie decided it was time and pulled out all the silver needles from Mairi's body.

"Do you feel better, Mom?"

Mairi stood up and flexed her limbs. The look of pleasant surprise gradually spread across her face as she swung and waved them.

"I feel lighter, and my limbs feel warm. Here, honey. Touch my hands. Do they feel warm to you?"

Daken held Mairi's hands and was surprised as well. "Jeezums. Your hands used to feel cold to the touch, even during the hottest days in summer."

Really? Let me give it a try, too." Avril cupped her mother's hand hastily and said, Wow. You're right, Dad. Good Golly. They don't call you the miracle doctor for nothing, Bonnie. You've only treated Mom once, yet her hands are already warm!"

Chapter 271

Bonnie was delighted to see Avril and her parents so happy. She said, "I'll give you a prescription and ensure you get the necessary medicines. Take them three times daily, okay?"

Avril nodded, saying, "Okay, we'll do as you say. Also, you're spending the night here."

"Actually" Bonnie had no time to turn her down when Avril grabbed her hand.

"I won't take no for an answer, Bonnie. We're best friends, and you gave me a jade bangle. Let's not forget you gave Mom a billion-dollar ginseng for her birthday. The only way I can repay you is to serve you well tonight," Avril said jokingly.

Bonnie helplessly replied, "Okay, but I'll call Ivor and tell him about it."

Avril could not resist joking at Bonnie's expense, "Ladies are typically the ones who fuss over their husbands, but things seem to work the other way around in your relationship. Must you tell your boyfriend you're staying at your best friend's house? Imagine how he'll control your life when you guys get married."

"It's too soon to say if we'll get married." With that, Bonnie took out her phone and called Ivor.

Soon after, he answered and said, "Is the party over? I'll come and pick you up now."

"The party's over, but I'll spend the night here."

Ivor frowned. "You're not coming home tonight?"

"Well "

“I can’t sleep if you don’t come home. I doubt you can sleep either.”

Meanwhile, Avril eavesdropped on the couple’s conversation. She could not help but joke, “You don’t have to worry about that. Bonnie will sleep in the same bed with me tonight. I’ll hold her so tight that she’d sleep like a baby.”

Ivor’s expression darkened as he asked, “Are you trying to take Bonnie away from me?”

“Uh...” Avril’s lips twitched as she turned to Bonnie and asked, “I’m a girl. Is he seriously jealous of me?”

After some thought, Bonnie replied, “He’s capable of being jealous of animals and plants. Oh, add air to that list, too.”

2/2

“Huh?” Avril was bewildered. “I can see how he’d be jealous of animals, but how does one get jealous of a plant? Also, were you serious when you said air?”

“There’s a rare plant in his house that I love very much. I look after it every day, which makes Ivor jealous. As for air, I’d sometimes ignore him when he talked to me. That’s when he grumbled, saying I’d rather face the air than look at him,” Bonnie looked helpless as she spoke.

Avril was stunned before holding Bonnie’s shoulder and saying, “I used to envy you for having someone as magnificent as Ivor trying to win your heart. Now, I feel pity toward you more than envy. Hang in there, Bonnie.”

In the blink of an eye, August thirtieth arrived. Bonnie reported to Ppyralis University, and the rest of the students reported themselves to the enrollment counter. However, Bonnie was honored to report directly to the president’s office.

The university president, Russell, had prepared a cup of fine tea before Bonnie arrived. He set it down before her and greeted her smilingly, “Bonnie, you should take over the president position now that you’re one of the students in this fine university.”

Bonnie almost choked on her tea at that moment. She said, “I came here to study, Russell. I didn’t come for your position.”

“Same thing.” Russell took some snacks from a drawer and handed them to her.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 272

Chapter 272

Bonnie glanced sidelong at Russell, hoping the older man would get the hint. Although he had lived a long life and experienced many things, he ignored her hints and continued to ramble on, “Didn’t you notice anything different about my office?”

Bonnie had noticed it when she entered. After all, he had renovated it to her favorite style.

“I renovated it for you. So, do you love it? How does that offer sound now?”

Suddenly, an older lady in her seventies opened the office door. The woman was Russell’s wife, Elliana. She supported herself with a cane as she entered, saying, “Why do you always bug Bonnie about taking over your position, you old fart? Anyone else can take over. Why do you have to bug her incessantly?”

Bonnie nodded. “Elliana’s right. Plenty of other people can take over as the university president. I think the vice president will do a fine job.”

“Listen to her, dear. She doesn’t want to be the university president. Maybe you should stop pushing her,” Elliana turned to grin at Bonnie, saying warmly, “You should take over my position as the president of the Pyralian Pianists Association. You’re the only one who’s qualified for it.”

Bonnie was speechless. She depended on Elliana to pull her out of the pinch. However, the older woman came with an agenda.

Russell said, “You have a handful of suitable apprentices for that. They’re top-notch pianists in the music industry, too. What about Coleman? Everyone regards him as a piano virtuoso. He plays exceptionally well. You should let him take over your position.”

Elliana sighed. “I must admit he’s doing pretty well for himself. However, he doesn’t compare to you, Bonnie. He also doesn’t command the respect of the rest of my apprentices. They’ll bow to you without question if you take over as president.

“You can even intimidate them with your identity as the nation’s leading researcher if they trouble you.”

Bonnie had a headache at that moment. She said, "I have somewhere to be. I'll leave you guys to it. Goodbye."

She beelined to the door, not allowing the older couple to stop her.

"Now you've done it! You scared her off!" Elliana glared at her husband in annoyance.

Russell was so upset that he trembled. "You're the one who asked her to intimidate your apprentices with her status as the nation's leading researcher. Must I remind you that she didn't leave until you brought that up? How's it my fault?"

Elliana said confidently, "That's a load of horseshit. I can tell Bonnie intended to take over my position as the association's president."

The older man grew exasperated, rolling his eyes at his wife. He said, "Age has finally caught up to you and messed up your brain. How are you so confident in that statement?"

"We're both ladies. It takes one to know one. You wouldn't understand."

Russell was speechless while his wife continued, "I'll ask Coleman to seduce her just in case. Bonnie will become president of the Pyralian Pianists Association. I'll make sure of it,"

Later, Russell texted Bonnie his wife's plot, "I have a secret for you. Elliana plans to make Coleman seduce you and coerce you into taking over her position. Watch your back and be wary if she passes you food or drinks.

"I was a victim of one of her plots when I was young. I drank the red wine she gave me and ended up sleeping with her. Then, she got pregnant with my child, and I married and ended up sleeping with her. Then,

her.

Bonnie was astonished when she read the text. She never expected an authoritative figure in the education industry and the big wig in the music industry to share such a whimsical history.

Later that day, she returned to her room in the Knights' villa. Suddenly, Jim leaped in through the window as he had done many times before.

Chapter 273

“Why are you coming through the window again?”

“Old habits die hard,” Jim said as he closed the window.

Bonnie’s lips twitched in exasperation, thinking, ‘Who would develop such a habit?’

Jim asked, “Are you moving out tomorrow?”

“What’s wrong? Are you reluctant to see me leave?”

“That’s not it. I just think you should live here. The family’s security systems are top-notch.”

Bonnie could not help but laugh and joke, “Are you trying to make your life easier by convincing me to stay so that these bodyguards can do your job?”

Jim cleared his throat in embarrassment, which meant he admitted it.

“Tomorrow will be my last night here. I’ll start moving out the next day once my classes end,” Bonnie reminded him, “Make sure not to leave on the same day I do. Ivor’s exceptionally perceptive and already doubts my relationship with you. Leaving on the same day will resemble confessing everything to him.”

“Don’t worry. I’ve considered that, too. Let me put your mind at ease by saying I don’t intend to do that.”

unperfect then.”

Suddenly, someone knocked on the door.

Knock, knock, knock.

Ivor stood outside and asked, "Are you in there?"

"Shit! You need to leave!" Bonnie hastily shoved Jim away.

Jim reacted swiftly and bolted to the window. He opened it in a flash but closed it again immediately after.

"What's wrong?" Bonnie asked worriedly.

"Alfred's down there."

"Um..." Bonnie's brows furrowed.

Ivor's voice sounded at the door again, "I'll come in if you don't answer me."

Immediately after, he opened the door. To Bonnie's surprise, Jim had already slid under the bed. She sighed in relief and thought, "Thank goodness he moves fast."

"What's wrong? Why are you sweating? You don't look so good, either." Ivor approached and wiped the sweat off Bonnie's forehead. His eyes shifted a little before they settled calmly.

"It's nothing. I was just working out a second ago."

"Oh, that's what it is. Why didn't you ask if I wanted to work out with you? That would've made things far more interesting." Ivor smirked at her.

"Oh. So, that's what it is. Why didn't you ask me to work out with you? That would've made things far more interesting." He stared at her and gave her a whimsical look.

Bonnie looked back at him peculiarly, prompting Ivor to ask, "What's with that look?"

Bonnie asked, "Are you sure you meant actual workout?"

Ivor smiled and said, "Hey, get your mind out of the gutter."

Bonnie's lips twitched as she thought, 'I think we both know who's the pervert here.

"With that said," Ivor added, "I like what you're thinking, Bonnie."

He rendered her utterly speechless as he grabbed her shoulders. He lowered his head and stared into her eyes, saying, "How about we do the workout you were thinking about earlier? Are you up for a two-person exercise?"

Jim cursed inwardly, 'What did I do to deserve this? I wouldn't have leaped in through the window if I'd known this would happen. What'll I do if they start that so-called two-person workout?'

Bonnie pushed Ivor aside and said, exasperated, "Grow up, will you?"

Ivor responded matter-of-factly, "I'm a mature grown-up when you're not around."

"Are you trying to gaslight me?"

"No, not at all. It's my fault for being unable to control myself around you."

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 274

Chapter 274

Bonnie felt slightly overwhelmed by Ivor's sweet talk, but she was not disgusted. In other words, she did nothing because Ivor was the one who said it. If it were anyone else, she would have beat them up.

She was still in her thoughts when Ivor noticed the closed window. "It's still bright outside. Why would you shut the window? Wait a minute. You closed the curtains, too."

At that moment, he also noticed a faint footprint on the floor. Moreover, it evidently belonged to a man. Coldness flashed in Ivor's eyes as he traced the footprint and realized they disappeared under the bed.

Simultaneously, Bonnie sensed his unusual behavior and noticed the footprints on the floor.

"This is bad!"

Jim's shoes left stains on the floor because it had just rained earlier. Before Bonnie knew it, Ivor approached the bedside. She darted over and blocked him, saying, "I'm tired and need to sleep now. You should probably leave."

Ivor glared at her and asked, "Are you hiding someone?"

Bonnie's lips twitched again. "Don't put it that way."

"Is it a guy?" Ivor questioned, his voice growing colder.

"It's not what you think." Bonnie's brows furrowed.

He motioned to walk past her and check under the bed, but she spread her arms and stopped him.

"Let me through, Bonnie." Although Ivor was furious, he could not aim his anger at her. He feared hurting her if he lost his cool.

"You can leave now, Ivor."

11

"I've had it, Bonnie! Am I not enough for you?!" Ivor quivered with rage.

"I told you it's not what you think."

"I don't want to hear it! I'll see who's hiding under your bed." With that, he pulled her aside and lifted the bedsheet, causing it to fall over the edge of the bed.

Chapter 274

While Bonnie grabbed Ivor's arms to try and stop him, Jim realized they were about to start fighting and crawled out from under the bed.

"I knew it was you!"

Bonnie stood beside Jim and asked, "Why did you come out?!"

Jim shrugged helplessly. "You two might start trading punches if I didn't. I don't want you two to have a fallout because of me. Otherwise, I'd become a homewrecker."

Ivor sized him up and asked, "Who are you, really?"

Jim glanced at Bonnie, saying, "Considering the mess we're in now, it'd be disrespectful of us to keep hiding the truth from Ivor. What do you think, Bonnie?"

After some thought, Bonnie nodded.

“Perfect.” Jim entered the bathroom and said, “Just give me a minute. I’ll be out before you know it.”

Meanwhile, Floyd heard the commotion and rushed over to check on them. When he arrived, he saw the mess in the room and asked, “Wh—what’s going on here?”

Bonnie glanced at him and said, “We’ve been discovered.”

“What are you talking about—” Before Floyd could finish, he realized something, and his eyes widened in shock.

‘Do I even need to ask? What else can it be?’

Suddenly, Floyd began to sweat and tremble when he sensed someone glaring daggers at him. He turned slowly and met Ivor’s burning gaze.

Ivor questioned imposingly, “You knew?”

Floyd gulped, and the bathroom door opened.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 275

Chapter 275

Ivor froze when he saw Jim’s true face. “I—It’s you.”

Jim lowered his head and said, “I’m sorry for keeping this a secret from you for so long.”

“Why would you—” Before Ivor could finish, Jim interjected, “I told you Bonnie saved my life. I came here to keep her safe with Ms. Bonita’s say—so.”

Jim purposefully phrased it that way as he knew about Ivor's suspicions. Ultimately, the former decided to nip it in the bud.

Bonnie looked at Jim, hinting that he did an excellent job. The latter nodded with humor in his eyes. Of course, he had a perfect response up his sleeve. After all, he had some time to kill in the bathroom.

Although Bonnie and Jim exchanged looks in front of the other two, they were subtle. It was a synergy the two had cultivated throughout the years.

Ivor looked at Bonnie and apologized, "I'm sorry for misunderstanding the situation."

"I can't blame you. I would've told you about Jim earlier, but I couldn't afford to expose his real identity. There would have been consequences if I did." Bonnie would be lying if she said she did not feel guilty when speaking.

She added, "Hmmm, how should I put it? It's my fault for not coming clean sooner. I'm genuinely sorry about that. How about I take you to karaoke tomorrow? I'll reserve a private room."

Ivor gleamed with excitement. 'A private room for just two of us?'"

He nodded, saying, "Sure. Grandpa said he'd host a farewell party for you tomorrow afternoon. We can go for karaoke at night."

"All right." Bonnie nodded.

Almost everyone from the Knight family attended the farewell party the following day. Sigmund looked around and frowned, asking, "Willard, where's your fourth brother?"

Willard put down his fork and knife before replying, "I just texted him this morning. He said he'd be back after wrapping up his filming."

Bonnie heard the exchange and felt mildly surprised. She leaned over to Ivor and whispered, "Is your fourth uncle an actor?"

Although she had been engaged to Ivor for some time, she had never met his fourth unde

Ivor answered, "That uncle of mine made his debut long ago. It just so happened that he flew overseas to shoot a film before we got engaged. That's why you've never met him

"Oh, that makes sense "

Ivor soddenly added, "Perhaps it's a good thing you've never met him."

"What do you mean?" Bonnie was bewildered.

Ivor frowned. "My fourth uncle is too handsome for his own good.

Bonnie was speechless. She never imagined that would be the reason. It turned out Ivor was even capable of getting jealous of his uncle. She said, "I have no idea who he is or how he looks. There's nothing to be jealous about

A moment later, she received a text from one of her friends, Orphicus. "Hey, Borwick, I'll return to Pyralis in a few days. How about we meet up for a drink?

Bonnie replied, "Are you finished filming?"

*Yeah, we just wrapped up a minute ago."

"You should meet up with your family first.

"I'm not as close to them as I am with you. It's settled, then. I'll see you in a bar in a few days, Borwick

After some thought, he replied, "That's Saturday, right? It'll work for me

Suddenly, Ivor asked, displeased, "Who are you texting?"

"Oh, just a friend" She tucked away her phone. Then, she saw Ivor's expression and gursued what he was about to ask her.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 276

Chapter 276

Knowing what Ivor was about to say, Bonnie explained, "He's just a friend, you know? We've known each other for years, nothing more than that."

Ivor chuckled in amusement, saying, "I love it when you explain yourself so earnestly."

"I bet you do," Bonnie muttered.

At the karaoke place, Ivor was displeased as he watched Floyd and Jim singing in the private room. Even Heath, Hamish, Benedict, Kay, and Avril were present.

Ivor resentfully said, "I thought we agreed that only two of us would be here."

Bonnie's eyes sparkled as she smirked. "I never said it would just be us."

Ivor sighed in resignation while Bonnie observed his reaction. She found it increasingly amusing.

Avril leaned in, her cheeks flushed red as she asked, "Bonnie, how do you know Jim?"

Bonnie's ears perked up, excited to gossip. "You don't like Jim, do you?"

"No, that's not it! You're so mean, Bonnie. Don't tease me like that." Avril covered her face and discreetly glanced at Jim.

Bonnie stood up and said, "I see. I'll be a matchmaker for you two."

11

"Wait, no, no, no!" Avril pulled Bonnie back onto the couch. "Stop teasing me. If you don't know, I feel pretty troubled."

11

"What's wrong? Why are you so upset?" Bonnie urged.

Avril sighed, saying, "My dad's company just developed a new product, and we planned to get a big celebrity endorsement. But our rivals, the Moss family, are trying to snatch that celebrity from us."

11

"You mean the Moss family's Moss Group?" Bonnie recalled vaguely.

"That's them."

Bonnie remembered Tang Fusion Studios trying to collaborate with Moss group, only to get rejected. Although Tang Fusion Studios grew rapidly in just a month, Moss Group claimed the former had missed out. Afterward, Tang Fusion Studios refused to collaborate with them.

Bonnie said, “I remember the Moss’ overall influence surpassing your family’s. So, they poached the celebrity before your family could?”

“Yeah, that’s right.” Avril’s brows furrowed as she sighed.

“Which celebrity was your company going for?” Bonnie asked. “I have a friend who’s a big star, too. His status in the industry is pretty high, too. Has your chosen celebrity signed the contract with the Moss family yet?”

“Probably not,” Avril sounded uncertain, “I heard he was filming abroad but will be back in a couple of days.”

Bonnie frowned. After some thought, she asked, “Is the celebrity you mentioned an award-winning actor and singer? Is his name Orpheus?”

“Yeah, that’s him! How’d you guess?”

Bonnie was speechless for a moment. Then, she said, “That’s quite a coincidence. He happens to be the friend I mentioned earlier.”

Avril’s jaw dropped. Previously, she would have thought Bonnie was joking again. However, after learning about Bonnie’s medical skills, Avril no longer dared to doubt her best friend’s words.

“Y–You know Orpheus?”

“Of course I do. Why would I lie?” Bonnie shrugged.

Avril felt even more convinced as she looked at Bonnie’s sincere demeanor. The former asked, “How’d you two meet?”

“Well...” After some hesitation, Bonnie whispered, “I can tell you, but you mustn’t tell anyone else.”

The prospect of hearing a secret piqued Avril’s gossip -loving heart. “Tell me, tell me! Don’t worry. I promise not to tell anyone.”

"When Orpheus attended a wrap party, a female actress from his cast drugged him. If I recounted.

"Wow, that's shocking!" Avril exclaimed and then whispered, "How'd you find out?"

"It was pure luck. I was at the right place at the right time."

"But you're not an actress. Why were you at a wrap party?"

"Although I'm not an actress, I'm-

Ivor tapped Bonnie's shoulder and interrupted, "They've picked more songs to sing. It's our turn now. How about we sing a duet?"

Heath added, "Yeah, you never sing whenever you come to a karaoke session, Bonnie. You don't have to feel embarrassed. We're all friends here. Even if you sing horribly, we won't laugh at you, at least not too hard."

Kay also wanted to hear Bonnie sing. The former said, "You should just sing, Bonnie. My voice isn't any good either, but no one cares. Just sing your heart out and let the others suffer. Come on, let's sing a duet."

Immediately after, Kay saw Ivor's unfriendly gaze. After all, he had not sung with his fiancée yet, but Kay wanted to cut in. Kay met Ivor's eyes and stuck out her tongue before stepping away.

"Fine, I'll sing." Bonnie reluctantly stood up, took the microphone, and walked to the front with Ivor.

Heath sat at the song selection table and asked, "What song would you like, Bonnie?"

Bonnie glanced at Ivor mischievously. "Let's sing 'Brothers.'"

"Hahaha!" Heath burst into laughter, looking at the scowling Ivor.

Ivor said, "Put on Lovers instead."

"Okay, Lovers, it is." Heath gestured OK.

"If these two get together, they should never forget me, their matchmaker."

Bonnie did not refuse and sang Lovers with Ivor. Her voice was melodious and sweet, while his voice was deep and resonant. Everyone had goosebumps as their voices harmonized. It was as if they were made for each other.

"I didn't expect Bonnie to sing so well," Heath said, slightly disappointed. He wanted to mock her but could not.

Meanwhile, Kay said admiringly, "Bonnie's a master of everything she does."

When the couple finished singing, they exchanged glances and saw a mutual admiration in each other's eyes. Then, they returned to the sofa and sat beside each other.

Kay said, "Bonnie, you sang beautifully. Now I'm too embarrassed to sing."

Although she said that, it did not stop her from quickly grabbing the microphone and singing loudly. Lights flickered, and voices mingled in the private room.

Ivor glanced at Bonnie and gulped involuntarily. A moment later, he kissed the side of her lips.

Bonnie turned sharply and asked, "What are you doing?"

"Shh." Ivor put a finger to his lips, saying, "Keep it down. I don't want them to know I

Bonnie rolled her eyes. "So, you're aware of how shameless you are?"

Ivor chuckled. "How would I pursue you if I wasn't?"

Bonnie did not want to indulge him, so she moved aside and kept her distance from him. Bonnie did not want to indulge him, s

Whenever Bonnie moved away an inch, Ivor would get closer by two. Ultimately, Bonnie reached the edge of the sofa's armrest, unable to move further. She even considered resorting to violence if Ivor dared to push it further.

Thankfully, he only drank one glass after another.

Bonnie asked, "Why are you drinking so much?"

Ivor looked at her with intoxicated eyes. He chuckled and said, "You'll have to care for me when I'm drunk."

Bonnie began to admire his shamelessness.

Everyone continued to enjoy singing while Ivor got drunk. Soon after, Jim approached Bonnie and joked about the unconscious Ivor, "I think he did that on purpose."

"I think so, too," Heath said, stroking his chin, "Bonnie, are you going to take care of him?"

"He's a fool if he thinks I'll do that," Bonnie said before telling Floyd, "You take him home."

Floyd covered his mouth and acted as if he was about to vomit. "I—I drank too much. I think I'm about to puke."

Bonnie could only sigh. Half an hour later, she brought her fiance back home. Although she could help him into the house, she could not carry him upstairs.

"It looks like I'll have to bridal carry you," Bonnie muttered and then wrapped one arm around Ivor's neck and slid her other arm under his knees.

Suddenly, Ivor opened his eyes and said, "No need. I can go up myself."

As a sturdy six-footer, he could not allow a woman to bridal carry him up the stairs as it would taint his reputation.

Bonnie squinted at him and asked, "Were you faking it?"

"No, I just sobered up," Ivor said without a hint of lying.

The following day, Bonnie started packing early in the morning to leave. After packing, she hurried to school. Once she arrived, Avril held her hand and chatted away, "Bonnie, what major did you sign up for?"

"Computer science."

"That's a coincidence. So did I."

During their conversation, many people looked at Bonnie.

"She's even prettier than our campus belle, Selina."

"I never liked Selina. She has too many men around her. I won't be surprised if that girl snatches the campus belle title from Selina."

"Huh? Don't you think she looks familiar?"

"Someone familiar? Like who?"

"That rumored good for nothing daughter of the Shepard family."

Now that you mentioned it, she does look familiar. I was there when Trina and Hadwin got engaged. That girl is Bonnie, the Shepards' legitimate heiress they disowned."

"If that's the case, the campus belle title is still up for grabs."

"Not necessarily. Bonnie may not be skillful, but she's undeniably beautiful." Meanwhile, an innocent-looking girl in a classroom on the third floor glared at Bonnie.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 279

Chapter 279

Trina stood beside the girl who was glaring at Bonnie. The former said, "Selina, you've been the campus belle for two years. I don't think you can keep it this year."

Selina retorted, displeased, "Why do you sound so proud? You and Bonnie have never gotten along. Do you mean you'll be happy for Bonnie if she gets attention?"

"Don't speak so harshly, Selina. I'm here to give you advice. Bonnie's just a nobody who got into Pyralis University with luck.

"On the other hand, you're a member of the pianists association. All you have to do is challenge her with a piano. Once everyone hears how bad Bonnie plays, their impression of her will disappear."

"Do you think I'm stupid? You're just using me. Bonnie's the legitimate heiress of the Shepard family, while you're just a fake. You're just trying to secure your fake heiress position."

Trina balled her fists and suppressed her anger before saying, "It doesn't matter whether or not my advice benefits either of us. What matters is that we have a common enemy in Bonnie. She'll outshine your looks if you don't follow my instructions."

"Hmph, outshine me? She'll outshine you by several times, too!"

"Selina, there's no point arguing with each other. Do you find happiness in ridiculing me?" Trina could not stand Selina's poor behavior.

Selina scoffed at Trina, then glanced back down at the gorgeous Bonnie. Selina clicked her tongue, saying, "Hadwin must be blind."

"Selina Pearson!" Trina exclaimed through gritted teeth.

Selina said, "Fine, I'll stop arguing with you. Does Bonnie not know how to play the piano? I need to be sure. I can't afford to embarrass myself, after all."

Although she was a member of the pianist association, she was just scraping by.

“Why would I lie to you? Bonnie’s a country bumpkin. She can’t afford to pay for piano lessons. I bet she’s never touched a piano in her life. My mom enrolled Bonnie in piano lessons when she first brought Bonnie home.

“Bonnie claimed that only the president of the pianist association could guide her. She said others weren’t qualified to teach her and that taking classes would be a waste of money. My mom was furious. I remember that vividly.”

Chapter 279

Selina’s eyes widened as she said, “No wonder your family hates Bonnie so much. She sure can talk a good game.”

Trina opened her phone to show Selina something. The former said, “Let’s stop wasting time. I checked the school forum, and the campus belle competition has already started. Bonnie’s vote has already exceeded yours.”

The phone showed that Selina had 598 votes and Bonnie had 672.

Selina felt a sense of crisis and rushed to prepare to challenge Bonnie.

Meanwhile, Bonnie, sitting in the classroom, sneezed. “Achoo!”

Avril joked, “One sneeze means someone’s thinking about you, and two means they’re cursing you. I wonder who it could be. Hehehe.”

Bonnie flicked Avril’s forehead and said, “With that logic, someone was thinking of Jim since he sneezed yesterday.”

“Wh—what do you mean?! What do Jim’s sneezes have to do with me? You and Hamish are different. You guys are

31

“Achoo!” Bonnie sneezed again and shrugged. “Now that’s two sneezes. It looks like someone’s cursing me.”

Chapter 280

Avril tugged at Bonnie’s sleeve and raised her chin toward the window, saying, “She must be the one cursing you.”

“Who is she?” Bonnie asked curiously.

Avril's eyes widened. "You don't know her? She's Selina Pearson, our campus belle. So many people around you are discussing yours and Selina's rivalry for the campus belle title, yet you don't even know what your opponent looks like."

"Her appearance has nothing to do with me," Bonnie said indifferently, "Besides, I'm not interested in becoming the campus belle."

Avril looked at Selina, who approached them. The former sneered, saying, "You might not be interested, but she is. You're already a threat to her. Today's challenge might be tough for you."

The closer Selina got to Bonnie, the more disheartened the former felt. Selina thought she was attractive and more beautiful than most of the starlets in the entertainment industry, not to mention her elegance.

However, she paled in comparison to Bonnie. No wonder everyone voted for her, even though they knew she was a nobody.

Selina asked, "Bonnie, I heard you're an excellent piano player. How about we play a piece together?"

Bonnie rested her chin on her hand, looking uninterested. "I won't participate in the campus belle competition. You can play by yourself."

'Play? She's treating the competition as child's play! Is she implying she's too beautiful to bother competing?!

Selina sighed and forced a smile, saying, "As your senior, I would like for you to support me a little."

"Are you worth supporting?" Bonnie remained indifferent.

Selina finally understood why Trina took the initiative to advise her on how to deal with Bonnie. It seemed Bonnie's words were infuriating. Selina guessed Bonnie often verbally today, I’ll find you tomorrow, the day after that, and the day after that. I’ll keep coming until you’re willing to compete.”

“That’s horrible!” Avril exclaimed inwardly.

“Selina, who told you Bonnie is a good piano player? She never learned to play, yet you’re forcing her to compete. What are your intentions? Do you want to embarrass her?”

Selina said confidently, “Trina said her mom once enrolled Bonnie in piano lessons, and she played exceptionally well. Of course, I had to challenge her. If I don’t take it seriously, others might think I admit to not being as good as her.”

Trina, who had secretly followed Selina, sneered.

The former had planned to use Selina to cause trouble for Bonnie on her first day in school. Ultimately, bad rumors would spread about Bonnie. Moreover, Trina could then take the opportunity to harass Bonnie.

However, Trina did not expect Selina to throw her under the bus.

“I—I was just asking if you dared to compete. As your senior, I don’t want to force you. If you don’t want to compete, then admit on the school forum that your piano skills are not as good as mine.”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 281

Chapter 281

Avril, fearing Bonnie might agree under provocation, quickly pulled Bonnie away. Bonnie, let's not bother with her. We'd fall for her provocation if we agreed to the challenge."

Bonnie shrugged it off. "I'm not stupid. I can tell she's trying to provoke me. Why should I bother competing with a clown like her? It's embarrassing."

"Exactly. Come on, let's go to the convenience store. I'll treat you to ice cream," Avril said, pulling Bonnie outside.

Selina was seething with anger, her fingertips trembling. Watching Bonnie leave and feeling everyone around her laughing at her, she felt like Bonnie described her. She was just a clown.

"Bonnie, aren't you afraid that by avoiding the challenge, rumors will spread that your country bumpkin parents didn't give you anything and that their daughter is naturally useless?" Selina taunted.

Bonnie suddenly stopped in her tracks, turning to look at Selina with ice-cold eyes.

This look made Selina shiver.

"Do you care that much about being the campus belle?" Bonnie asked coldly.

Selina's mouth hung open as she looked at Bonnie's expressionless face. She felt like Bonnie didn't care about the campus belle competition.

"For the sake of a campus belle title, you're willing to insult someone's parents? Don't you have any decency as a student who got into the academy?" Bonnie continued sternly.

Selina's mouth grew wider as the surrounding voices began to stir.

"Selina's behavior is indeed disgraceful. Despite being a senior and occupying the campus belle position for two years, she's jealous of the new freshman's beauty. To provoke her into a challenge, she even insults her background, which she can't control."

“What’s wrong with being from the countryside? Most of the students who get into the academy come from rural areas. Rural folk rely on our efforts, burning the midnight oil every night to get in. Unlike some wealthy kids who only know how to live lavishly and arrogantly, relying on their families to get into the academy. What gives?”

“That’s right. I’m grateful to the person who suggested abolishing the backdoor admissions policy. It’s fantastic! If he’s willing to become our academy’s president in the future, I fully support it.”

Chapter 281

“Me too.”

“I second that.”

“Me too.”

Selina’s face grew hotter and hotter. She never expected things to escalate like this.

At this rate, she wouldn’t need to compete with Bonnie in piano to lose completely.

Even Trina didn’t expect Selina, who seemed extremely cunning, to lose so thoroughly in front of Bonnie.

However, Bonnie spoke up. “All right, I agree to compete with you.”

Both Selina and Trina were stunned.

With the current situation, Bonnie was already in a winning position, and the campus belle title was guaranteed to fall to her. Bonnie didn’t have to agree to the piano competition. She was just digging a hole to bury herself.

Even Avril was startled. “Bonnie, do you know what you’re saying? Don’t act on impulse! We’re in a strong position now.”

“I know, but I can’t tolerate someone casually insulting my parents. If it were you, and someone insulted your parents, could you just accept it?” Bonnie looked at Avril seriously.

The question stumped Avril.

She couldn't tolerate it either.

"But-" Avril frowned, whispering in Bonnie's ear, "Selina isn't just good at playing the piano. She's also a member of the Pyralian Pianists Association."

"She?" Bonnie paused momentarily, carefully scrutinizing Selina's face, "How come I don't remember such a person in the Pyralian Pianists Association?"

"Huh? You remember? What do you mean by that? Don't tell me you know people from the Pyralian Pianists Association?" Avril was somewhat bewildered.

Bonnie scrutinized Selina again. Indeed, she didn't have any impression of this person.

"She shouldn't be a core member of the Pyralian Pianists Association, right?"

"That's true, she isn't. I heard she got in as the last one. But even if she's at the bottom, it's still our city's Pyralian Pianists Association! It can't compare to the Pyralian Pianists Associations in small towns."

"No wonder I haven't seen this person before," Bonnie muttered.

Eight years ago, Elliana brought her into the Pyralian Pianists Association's hall, challenging all the core members and winning without surprise. From that moment on, Elliana insisted on passing her legacy to her.

Selina stepped forward, facing Bonnie. "Are you going to compete with me?"

Bonnie's expression was cold. "What's the point of saying that? Didn't you come prepared?"

"You-" Selina choked again, her face turning purple, grinding her teeth, "Fine, you asked for it!"

Ten minutes later, this attracted almost all the school's students.

"Did you hear? Selina, the campus belle, wants to have a piano competition with the new freshman."

"Selina isn't even that pretty. She should hand over the campus belle title. Why make things difficult for a first-year student?"

"Exactly. Why compete with a first-year student on playing piano when she knows she's good? Isn't this bullying?"

Chapter 283

There were voices supporting Bonnie and those supporting Selina.

"Being pretty doesn't make someone a campus belle. They also need to excel in academics and morals. Haven't you heard about Bonnie? She got kicked out of the Shepard family because of her terrible character, causing a big uproar."

"Not only that, I also heard she has a sugar daddy, and it is an old man. I can't stand it. She's willing to sell her soul and body for the sake of some material possessions. I can't stand someone like her becoming the campus belle of our school."

"You're right. Our school is one of the top three schools in the country. If outsiders find out that we've chosen such a morally corrupt person as our campus belle, our school will become the laughingstock of everyone."

This matter escalated more and more.

In the Student Council office, the Pyralis University Student Council vice president, Daniel Humphrey, busied himself with the school forum.

"Coleman, don't just focus on reading music scores; occasionally indulge in worldly affairs. Look at the campus belle election and piano competition. How exciting. Our school hasn't been this lively in a long time."

Coleman, sitting opposite him, was graceful and unparalleled in the world. Dressed neatly, he had an extraordinary bearing.

"Piano competition? Did Selina pick a fight on her initiative?"

“It seems so.

Coleman sighed slightly, frowning.

“Selina, after all, is a

Chapter 283

“Yeah, I also think it’s not right. But this freshman seems quite extraordinary.”

Daniel’s words piqued Coleman’s interest. “What do you mean?”

“I saw it on the forum. Just now, Selina challenged the other party but ended up defeated by just a few words. She already had the upper hand and didn’t need to compete with Selina, yet she volunteered.”

As Daniel spoke, he handed his phone to Coleman. The text was clear, detailing the whole process, with Selina completely overwhelmed.

“This girl is quite interesting,” Coleman generously praised.

“I think so too. Come on, Coleman, let’s go check it out together. The competition later might be even more interesting.” Daniel couldn’t wait to go and see.

Coleman chuckled and shook his head. “I think you just want to see how good-looking that freshman is, don’t you?”

“Hehe, you know me too well, Coleman. I’m still single, and if this freshman’s personality matches mine and she’s within my aesthetic range, I’ll pursue her.”

Coleman wasn’t one to join in the excitement easily, but he thought that he might encounter her at the school since today was the first day of school.

Before long, they arrived at the venue of the competition, the music hall.

At first glance, Coleman saw Bonnie on the stage.

“Is that her?”

Daniel turned his head in confusion, “Do you know that new freshman?”

Coleman nodded, his eyes fixed on the beautiful figure on stage without blinking.

“Coleman, your expression... Do you like her?” Daniel sniffed at Coleman.

Coleman’s face instantly turned red, his eyes flickering. “Wha—what are you talking about?”

“Come on, don’t deny it. Your face is all red, and you’re stuttering. You weren’t like this before! Come on, we’re brothers!” Daniel draped his arm over Coleman’s shoulder.

“Is that so? Since you said it’s not, then I’m relieved.”

“Relieved? About what?” Coleman was a bit puzzled.

“Relieved so I can pursue her! Didn’t I say earlier that this freshman’s personality suits me, and now that I see she’s so beautiful, of course, I’m going to pursue her.”

Coleman’s pupils dilated instantly, and after two seconds of silence, he spoke, “I advise you to give up on that idea as soon as possible.”

Daniel chuckled. “What’s wrong? Feeling jealous? If you like her, just admit it. I won’t compete with you.”

“That’s not the reason. It’s just that you’re not worthy of her,” Coleman said seriously.

Daniel paused for a moment before jumping up. “Damn! You look down on me. You know my family background, and besides, my achievements are outstanding. Otherwise, I wouldn’t be in the position of vice president. Look at my appearance. I could even enter the entertainment industry. And yet, you say I’m not good enough for her.”

“You’ll find out soon enough.” Coleman didn’t explain further, shifting his gaze away from Daniel and back to Bonnie.

On stage, Selina lightly tapped the piano keys and turned to Bonnie. “Will you go first, or should I?”

“It doesn’t matter,” Bonnie said indifferently.

“Then, you go first. I’m afraid that after I finish playing, you’ll feel embarrassed and won’t want to play anymore.”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 284

Chapter 284

If that happened, she wouldn’t witness Bonnie making a fool of herself.

“Sure.” Bonnie approached the piano and sat down, her slender fingers gently landing on the keys.

She closed her eyes and slowly opened them, raising her hands gracefully before swiftly striking the piano keys. Sometimes fast as lightning, occasionally slow and lyrical, the sound of the piano echoed in the hearts of everyone present.

In just a few breaths, everyone in the room was completely immersed in Bonnie’s piano performance.

They heard the thunder and lightning of a stormy day, the sound of raindrops, the sound of water dripping from the eaves, the sound of the lake’s surface. Various sounds constantly formed images in their minds.

With a dong, all the sounds abruptly stopped, followed by the image of birds chirping after the rain. A rainbow appeared, white clouds drifting in the blue sky.

The lingering sound filled the room as the piece ended, leaving a lasting impression.

The hall was so quiet that you could almost hear a pin drop.

Selina's mouth hung open, unable to close it for a while, clearly astonished by Bonnie's piano skills.

Daniel dryly swallowed saliva, then turned to Coleman beside him, "Geez! Why does it feel like her piano skills are even better than yours?"

Daniel finally understood what Coleman had said earlier. He wasn't a match for Bonnie.

"It is." Coleman's smile was as warm, his gaze never leaving Bonnie throughout.

Suddenly, Daniel remembered something, and he stared at Coleman with widened eyes. I remember you once said that among your peers, you wouldn't acknowledge anyone except for one person in terms of piano.

"Not only you but your juniors acknowledged the person as worthy of inheriting the Pyralian Pianists Association's president position. That person can't be Bonnie, right?!"

Coleman nodded.

Daniel was shocked to the core by receiving this affirmative answer, and then he gasped, looking at Selina with an expression full of sympathy.

Chapter 284

"This campus belle kicked the iron board today. If she knew she had challenged the future president of the Pyralian Pianists Association, I wonder how she would feel."

Impressive!

Bonnie was incredibly impressive!

Avril was now a full-fledged fan of Bonnie, a legendary figure who was also a genius pianist. Bonnie was truly amazing.

Trina was completely dumbfounded, feeling utterly embarrassed.

With Bonnie's performance like this, no one would say she was worthless.

It turned out everything Bonnie said before was true. Vera wanted to enroll her, but she said only the president of the Pyralian Pianists Association could give her guidance, and no one else had the qualifications.

'Damn it! Damn it!' Trina clenched her fists tightly, her nails almost embedding into her palms.

She didn't understand why Bonnie had it all. A lowlife like Bonnie should be crushed under her feet.

Bonnie turned to the stunned Selina. "Now that I'm done, it's your turn."

At these words, Selina's pupils suddenly dilated.

She didn't dare to go up, didn't dare to perform. The difference in skill level was too great. If she went up to perform, she would undoubtedly be a clown.

However, there was one thing she couldn't understand.

"What piece did you play? How come I've never heard of it before?" With Selina's question, Coleman realized he had never heard this piece.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 285

Chapter 285

Everyone was bewildered. That meant that Bonnie made the piece up. That didn't make sense because it sounded so good.

Although most of them present didn't understand the piano, they could still recognize good music.

They didn't think that such beautiful music could be produced by playing at random. It was not something they could do.

Bonnie replied casually, "Last night, there was a heavy rainstorm, and it sparked my inspiration, leading to the creation of the piece I just played."

'What?! She composed the piece herself?! She created this just because she listened to a heavy rainstorm last night. There's not even a draft!'

The people present were shocked by Bonnie's words, but at the same time, they didn't doubt their truthfulness. They had heard the thunderous rain and the subsequent calm in Bonnie's piano performance.

Selina stared blankly at Bonnie, unsure how to react.

"Why aren't you going yet? Get on with it. Don't waste my time," Bonnie urged impatiently.

Selina bit her lower lip hard, her face growing redder by the moment.

Bonnie frowned. "Are you going to play or not?"

"I-" Selina clenched her fists tightly, unable to utter a word for a long time.

Coleman squeezed to the front just then, causing many girls to swoon.

"It's Coleman! He's here!"

"Wow! Coleman is as handsome and elegant as ever!"

Selina's gaze immediately fell on Coleman, almost on the verge of tears.

She wondered if he had seen everything. She felt so embarrassed.

The most painful thing in the world was embarrassing oneself in front of the person they liked.

"Cole

"Cole-"

Chapter 285

Before Selina could finish speaking, Coleman's voice interrupted her. "Bonnie, long time.

no see."

Upon hearing the familiar voice, Bonnie turned her head and smiled upon seeing Coleman's gentle figure among the crowd. "Yeah, long time no see.

Coleman looked at the smile on the girl's face, feeling his heartbeat quicken involuntarily. "Do you want to grab a drink together?"

"Sure, but you're treating," Bonnie said as she stepped down from the stage.

"Of course, my treat, as always." Coleman smiled warmly.

Then, the two of them left together side by side.

Selina clenched her fists tighter, nails unknowingly digging into her palms.

Trina walked out from the side, looking at Bonnie's figure. She felt a growing sense of horror but also extremely fortunate in her heart.

She was glad that Bonnie had already been kicked out of the Shepard family, that Bonnie and the Shepard family had reached such a deadlock that there was almost no chance of reconciliation.

Coleman kept stealing glances at Bonnie, his face growing redder.

"What have you been busy with lately?"

"The usual, just doing some research."

"Sorry I didn't have a chance to congratulate you on your successful research recently."

"No need to apologize. Weren't you coincidentally overseas during the press conference, participating in a competition?"

Daniel had been secretly observing Coleman, feeling emotional. He wondered how the girls from the Pyralis University would feel, knowing that their campus heartthrob was secretly in love with Bonnie.

With a twinkle in his eye, Daniel struck up a conversation with Bonnie.

"Hey, freshman, do you have a boyfriend?"

Coleman immediately became nervous at Daniel's question, not knowing where to put his hands.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 286

Chapter 286

In Bonnie's mind floated the occasional mischievous image of Ivor, almost causing her to burst into laughter.

"Boyfriend... I haven't reached that stage with him yet."

At the words, Daniel secretly clicked his tongue, glancing at Coleman and catching a glimpse of disappointment on his face.

"Is he handsome? Does he compare to our campus heartthrob, Coleman?"

Bonnie thought momentarily, then replied seriously, "They're not the same type."

The answer was obvious. The one pursuing Bonnie wasn't lacking in looks.

At that moment, the school bell rang.

Simultaneously, Bonnie's phone also rang, displaying Orpheus's name.

"I'm outside your school gate. Are you coming out?"

"You're punctual," Bonnie teased.

"Of course, please call me the Punctuality King."

After hanging up, Bonnie looked at Coleman and Daniel. "My friend's here to pick me up, so I'll be leaving."

"Okay," Coleman replied, somewhat disappointed. He had wanted to invite Bonnie to dinner and hang out.

Daniel watched Bonnie's departing figure and put his arm around Coleman's, shoulder.

"Do you think the person coming to pick up Bonnie is the one chasing her?"

“How would I know?”

“Then why stand around? Let’s go and see!”

Coleman hesitated. “Isn’t that a bit inappropriate?”

“What’s inappropriate about it? We’re leaving school anyway, and we just happen to see Bonnie’s boyfriend coming to pick her up. Everything’s just perfect. Let’s go.”

So, persuaded by Daniel, Coleman headed toward the school gate.

Chapter266

Soon enough, they spotted the car coming to pick up Bonnie, a Mercedes Benz that was quite common.

The window rolled down, revealing a man wearing sunglasses in the driver’s seat. His full appearance couldn’t be discerned, but from what was visible, he was undoubtedly handsome.

“Not only is he handsome, but his aura is also exceptional!” Daniel gave high praise.

Coleman nodded in agreement. “He’s no ordinary person.”

Orpheus’s gaze bypassed Bonnie and landed on Coleman. “Is he the one you mentioned before, the one you’re engaged to?”

“No, he’s not.”

“He is, and I think he’s quite something.”

Bonnie rolled her eyes at Orpheus. “My lifelong happiness doesn’t need your concern. You better worry about yourself. You’re almost forty and still don’t have a girlfriend.”

“Hey hey hey! What kind of talk is that? What do you mean by almost forty? I’m only thirty–five and still a handsome guy, you know? Do you know how many fans I have? How many beautiful women call me their husband?”

A black Maybach pulled up at the school’s entrance as the Benz drove away.

Floyd looked at the Benz ahead and frowned. “Boss, Ms. Bonnie got into that car ahead.

Should we follow?”

“Yes.” The word came out between Ivor’s lips with a hint of coldness.

Before long, Bonnie and Orpheus arrived at the entrance of a bar,

Due to Orpheus’s special status, they chose a secluded corner with dim–lighting.

“Try this wine. It’s the one I stored here two months ago, and I went to great lengths to get it. I’ve been waiting for you to drink it with me.” Orpheus poured a glass for Bonnie.

Instead of approaching, Ivor chose a nearby corner, silently observing.

The lighting on Bonnie’s side was dim, making it hard to see the man’s face. However, his silhouette looked very handsome, sparking a sense of crisis in Ivor.

“Here, have a taste.” Orpheus handed the poured wine to Bonnie. Carelessly, Bonnie didn’t hold it firmly, and the wine spilled on her leg.

Chapter 287

“Oops, sorry, slippery hands.” Orpheus quickly pulled out a few tissues and reached for Bonnie’s leg.

In Ivor’s view, this man was taking advantage, obviously seeking trouble.

Ivor rushed over, without a word, grabbed Orpheus’s shirt, and delivered a punch to his face.

“Ow!” Orpheus let out a miserable scream as he fell onto the couch.

“What are you doing?!” Bonnie hurriedly rushed to Orpheus’s side, afraid Ivor would continue to beat him up.

Ivor's face was filled with anger. "He was trying to take advantage of you!"

"Never in my wildest dream! I was just handing her tissues, okay? Ouch, my face hurts like hell." Orpheus groaned, clutching his face.

Ivor paused for a moment. That voice sounded familiar.

Orpheus also paused, realizing that the guy's voice sounded familiar.

Then, almost simultaneously, they looked at each other.

"Uncle Orpheus?"

"Ivor!"

Bonnie was also stunned, her gaze shifting between Ivor and Orpheus.

Surprisingly, she hadn't noticed before, but now that the two men were side by side, they did look somewhat alike.

"How do you know my Uncle Orpheus?"

"How do you know my nephew?"

These two sentences were almost said at the same time by Ivor and Orpheus.

After a brief silence, Ivor unceremoniously put his arm around Bonnie's waist. "Let's sit down first."

Bonnie, speechless, glared at him and tried to grab Ivor's arm but hesitated.

Ivor smiled at Bonnie. "Come on, have a seat."

Orpheus stared wide-eyed at Bonnie and Ivor, suddenly realizing something.

"Oh my God! Is this for real? Bonwick, so you're the one engaged to my nephew!"

Bonnie was also quite surprised. "I didn't expect you to be Ivor's uncle. Why don't you have the same last name?"

"He takes his grandmother's surname," Ivor replied.

“Well, that’s a misunderstanding!” Orpheus touched his swollen face, glaring at Ivor. “Ivor, hitting your uncle is outrageous! I’m a big star; I rely on my face for a living, and you, you little brat, let me hit you back. Otherwise, I couldn’t let go of this anger!”

Ivor held the beauty in his arms, feeling good, with a smile.

“I’d

“I don’t mind you hitting me, but Bonnie might. After all, she has to look at me every day.

Bonnie and Orpheus fell silent.

Ivor raised an eyebrow. “She’s my fiancée. Calling her Bonwick seems inappropriate, don’t you think?”

“What’s inappropriate about it? I heard Bonwick is your mom’s junior. Anyway, you’re a generation younger,” Orpheus retorted.

Now, it was Ivor’s turn to be puzzled.

Bonnie remembered her promise to Avril last time. “Orpheus, there’s something I need your help with.”

“Don’t be so formal. You’re my brother. We’re like family,” Orpheus said, habitually putting his arm around Bonnie’s shoulder. “Just tell me what you need.”

Ivor couldn’t bear it anymore. “Uncle Orpheus, she’s your future niece-in-law. Isn’t this a bit inappropriate?”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 288

Chapter 288

“Hey! How come I didn’t notice before? You’re quite the jealous type when it comes to love, huh? Ivor, what’s wrong with giving a hug? Are you afraid I’ll run off with your wife? Speaking of which, I knew Bonwick first, many years ago. If I had any intentions, Bonwick would have been my wife ages ago!”

Listening to Orpheus’s words, Ivor couldn’t help but feel relieved. Thankfully, his uncle didn’t have eyes for Bonwick. Otherwise, with his uncle’s looks and talent, Bonwick might have ended up as his aunt.

Just thinking about it gave him a headache.

“All right, let’s not argue with him. He’s always jealous of everyone.” Bonnie couldn’t be bothered with Ivor and continued speaking to Orpheus, “I have a friend. She’s from the Smith family, and both the Smiths and the Mosses are fighting over you, the big celebrity, for endorsements.”

“I know about that. So, you want me to endorse for the Smiths?”

‘Yeah, the Moss are a bunch of jerks, and their company culture sucks.’

“OK, whatever you say, Bonwick.”

Early the next morning, Bonnie received a call from Avril.

“Bonnie, my parents want me to thank you. Thanks to you, we successfully signed Orpheus.”

“No need to thank me. We’re good friends. Besides, your parents are like my godparents now.

“Exactly, so I won’t bother with formalities. The Mosses must be furious right now. They probably never expected all this to happen because of you.”

While the two were chatting, Bonnie’s phone received a push notification from Twitter’s hot topics.

Orpheus was spotted dating at a bar.

There were photos attached, blurry but still showing Orpheus’s face, and sitting across from him was herself.

She had been photographed last night.

It wasn't just trending. It was the top headline. Orpheus was dating a beautiful woman at the bar, and shockingly, she was seen getting cozy with another man right in front of Orpheus.

There were more photos.

There was a photo of Ivor with his arm around Bonnie's waist and another of Orpheus with his arm around her.

The comments section exploded.

"Damn! That's shocking! Is this a case of one woman with two men?"

"Although the other guy's face isn't very clear, it's a super handsome dude, and this woman is getting all the luck. Who is she? How lucky can she get?"

"Luck, my ass! She's just shameless, isn't she?"

Trina also saw this headline, and with just one glance, she could tell that the woman in the photo was none other than Bonnie.

"I never expected Bonnie to know the movie star Orpheus, and they seem to be on such good terms."

It was time to stir the pot.

Trina smirked, revealing a sinister grin.

a comment with her alternate account.

"I recognize her. Isn't this the trash kicked out by the Shepard family not long ago?"

Once this comment was posted, the comments section became even more lively.

"So, she's the countryside girl kicked out by her family? I heard she became a sugar baby for an older man and wrecked a family. That's why she got kicked out by her family."

"Is she that shameless? After being an older man's mistress, she's still trying to seduce my idol and that handsome guy. She probably deceived them, too."

“Let’s all attack her! Who has the skills to track her down and give her a good lesson, let her know she’s stirring up public outrage.”

“Trash! Idiot! Fuck her!”

“Damn it! How dare they insult Bonwick? Simon, quickly, sue everyone who insulted Bonwick.”

Chapter 288

Simon was shocked. “Everyone? Orpheus, how many people are insulting her right now?” “Sue them all!” Orpheus was furious.

Chapter 289

Simon extended five fingers. “From what I’ve seen, there are at least five hundred thousand.”

Orpheus was stunned. “That many?”

“That’s just what I saw. Not to mention your huge fan base, Orpheus,” Simon quipped.

“Even so, I can’t let Bonwick be mistreated. No, I need to contact my nephew,” Orpheus said, immediately messaging Ivor.

However, the one who answered the phone wasn’t Ivor. It was Floyd.

“Mr. Orpheus, do you have something to tell Mr. Ivor?”

“Get him on the line,” Orpheus said.

Floyd glanced at the closed door of the conference room and continued, "Mr. Ivor is in a very important meeting."

"What's more important than my future niece-in-law?"

When it came to Bonnie, Floyd couldn't afford to be careless. "Did something happen to Ms. Bonnie?"

"Your future boss is about to be bombarded with insults, and some even want to dox her. Check Twitter for details."

Upon hearing this, Floyd didn't dare delay momentarily and immediately opened Twitter.

After reading it, without another word, he rushed into the conference room.

Seeing Ivor's darkening expression, Floyd feared getting scolded, so he spoke up immediately.

"Ms. Bonnie is in trouble."

Ivor stood up abruptly.

Floyd handed the phone to Ivor to let him see for himself.

"Sue them," Ivor said coldly.

"That's almost a million people," Floyd said.

"Can't you understand what I'm saying?" Ivor's ky demeanor seemed to emanate from the depths of hell.

"Yes, sir," Floyd didn't dare delay ang kager and tommediately set to work on the task

Back in the Shepard family, Gresham and Vera also learned of this explow new.

"Thank goodness we kicked Bonnie out early, Didn't I tell you? bven if she's done doctor, she can't redeem her vile behavior," Vera said with relied Gresham nodded in agreement. "This girl will get her comeuppance sooner or later Let's just wait and see "

In less than an hour, all those who had cursed Bonnie just moments ago renated legal letters without exception.

They were all demanded to apologize to Bonnie or else face lawsuits.

This incident immediately became a hot topic, even overshadowing the previous one

Those who relied on the anonymity of the internet to spout nonsense and evade responsibility were all dumbfounded.

Before, they were used to freely hurling insults without consequences, at most receiving some counterattacks, which they weren't afraid of. They would just throw more insults back.

They were being sued, and it was stated that the law doesn't spare the masses. Over a million people were sued in total.

In this state of nervousness and anxiety, the headmaster of the Pyralia University released another bombshell on Twitter.

“Bonnie is the top scorer in this year's Pyralis University entrance exam, with: outstanding achievements, exceptional talent, and impeccable character. We won't tolerate any insults toward her.”

“Initially, I was on the fence about this. Now that the principal has spoken, Bonnie must be a good student. The photo was taken out of context.

“Fortunately, I didn't participate in the slander.”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 290

Chapter 290

Trina couldn't understand how the prestigious headmaster of Pyralis University could speak up for a student.

Ding! Another notification popped up on Twitter.

Bonita Research Institute tweeted, "Resist all malicious attacks in online comments, reject online violence, and practice civilized internet behavior."

"Oh my goodness! Bonita Research Institute has also spoken up. Although they didn't name names, anyone with half a brain can tell who they're referring to."

"So, does this mean Bonnie was wronged?"

All the members of the Shepard family, who were eagerly anticipating Bonnie's downfall, were shocked. They thought Bonnie would be in big trouble, proving their decision to kick her out was right. Even if Bonnie had the identity of a divine doctor, they had yet to make a mistake.

Even the Pyralis University's principal and Bonita Research Institute headmaster had come forward to speak up for Bonnie. It made them feel uneasy, but they were unwilling to admit that their decision was wrong no matter what.

Even if Bonnie escaped this disaster, she would inevitably reap what she sowed in the future.

Orpheus was amazed. "My nephew is amazing! He's suing a million people!"

Simon was also stunned. Originally, fifty thousand people seemed like an incredibly daunting task. Yet, Orpheus's nephew was so ruthless and decisive. It was no wonder he would succeed the Knight Group and lead the entire family to new glory.

He was impressive.

The last group of people quickly apologized to Bonnie, while the other group remained bold.

"If you have the guts, sue us! Who's afraid of whom?! We're just stating the facts. Bonnie is just a promiscuous woman.

"The person in the photo is either flirting with this person or that person. Did they photoshop it?"

Chapter 290

“The reason the Shepard family kicked her out is not without reason. Otherwise, which parent would have the heart to kick out their daughter? It must be because Bonnie’s character was too vile, and her parents couldn’t stand it.”

Trina was very satisfied and continued to post with her alt account.

“According to reliable sources, the person with their arm around Bonnie’s waist is a big shot.”

After this statement, the netizens were all shocked, and various derogatory comments poured out.

Orpheus couldn’t bear it any longer and stood up.

“Stop talking nonsense, everyone. That man is my nephew, and Bonnie is my future niece -in-law. If anyone else dares to talk nonsense, don’t blame me for sending you a lawyer’s letter.”

The netizens were stunned again. That unidentified man wasn’t a big shot but was Orpheus’s nephew. That meant that it was all a misunderstanding.

“No wonder they dare to send lawyer’s letters. So it’s all a misunderstanding?”

“Damn it! Who’s stirring up a scene here? They made me curse Bonnie several times.”

“Wait a minute! The woman in the photo is so blurry, Can’t only someone very familiar recognize her?”

Finally, some netizens realize this.

Trina, who had been browsing the internet, was scared when she saw this. She was praying that no one would link it to her.

Meanwhile, Ivor was arranging for the technical department to investigate the IP address of the account that led the way.

Soon, there was a result.

“It’s indeed Trina.” Ivor’s face was dark, his narrowed eyes filled with danger. “Floyd, handle this matter well. I want to make Trina fall into hell and never rise again.”

“Yes, boss.”

Floyd immediately got to work on the task.

Trina's alt account's IP address was quickly exposed online, and she was also doxxed.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 291

Chapter 291

"I never thought they were from the Shepard family. No wonder they recognized Bonnie in the photo. They must know that the guy is Bonnie's boyfriend, yet they call her boyfriend a gigolo. They're stooping low to tarnish Bonnie's reputation, using all sorts of dirty tricks."

"I know a bit about the Shepard family. Bonnie and Trina were born in the same hospital. Ironically, a nurse accidentally swapped them."

"So you're saying Bonnie is the real heiress of the Shepard family? And Trina is just a fake heiress who stole Bonnie's ex-fiancé?"

"Yeah, that's about it."

"Wow! I can already imagine a drama where the bitch bullies the real heiress and steals her fiancé. I thought such things only happened in TV dramas. I didn't expect it to be real."

"Trina is shameless!"

Trina suddenly became a pariah, and everyone was condemning her.

Gresham and Vera knocked on Trina's door.

When they pushed it open, Trina burst into tears, wailing loudly. Her cries were heart-wrenching.

It startled Gresham and Vera.

“Trina, what’s wrong? Are you okay?” Gresham asked, concerned.

Tears streaming down her face, Trina choked, “They’re too much. I just made a passing comment online, saying someone in a photo looked like Bonnie. They jumped to conclusions, thinking I was deliberately stirring trouble. I didn’t say anything else! I’m so unfairly treated!”

Initially wanting to question her, Gresham and Vera softened seeing Trina in such a state.

“Trina, dear, don’t cry. We believe you’re a good girl who wouldn’t intentionally harm Bonnie,” Vera comforted.

Trina cried even harder, tears flowing freely. “You... you believing in me means a lot... I’m not a bad kid. I didn’t mean to attack Bonnie,” Trina sobbed.

“Those

Vera’s clothes were soaked with Trina’s tears. Through gritted teeth, she said, netizens are despicable! Don’t they know cyberbullying can lead to death? Many people have committed suicide due to cyberbullying. Isn’t there any regulation to punish these villains who attack others indiscriminately?”

Hearing Vera’s words, Trina finally felt relieved.

At night, Avril called Bonnie to a newly opened bar.

“Your boyfriend, Ivor, is something else! Sending out over a million lawyer letters, it’s unprecedented!” Avril exclaimed, feeling pleased with himself.

“I hate people who don’t bother knowing the truth and casually dictate online. They don’t show their faces or identities, thinking the law can’t catch them, so they attack others however they want, revealing their darkest sides without caring about the feelings of those they attack. Your boyfriend’s actions are like a warning to those who hurl insults, Bonnie highly praised Ivor’s actions. “He indeed did well and showed great courage.

Avril continued.

“Oh la la! Are you praising your man?” Avril teased, winking.

Bonnie smirked, saying nothing.

At that moment, a man with a vest and tattoos on his arms approached, leering at Bonnie.

Chapter 292

“Hey, beautiful, all by yourself? Feeling lonely? Want me to keep you company?”

Avril put her hands on her hips and exclaimed, “Are you blind? How can you say she’s alone? Am I nobody?”

The tattooed man glanced over at Avril. “What’s the matter, little girl? Are you jealous?”

“Jealous, my foot!”

“You don’t need to be jealous. I’ve got several brothers.”

After the tattooed man spoke, several men with hair dyed in various colors emerged behind him.

“How about it? My men are all tough, right? Later, I’ll have them all serve you.”

Avril’s face turned red with anger. “Get lost! All of you get lost! If you dare to mess around, I’ll call the cops!”

‘Guys, this little girl says she’ll call the cops. Do you think we’ll give her that chance?’
The tattooed man chuckled.

Avril knew well that these people would never allow her to call the cops. She didn’t know what to do.

Just as Avril was anxiously pacing around, Bonnie stood up.

“It’s been a while since I’ve stretched my fists and feet. It’s good to move around. Otherwise, too much idleness leads to regression.”

With that said, she immediately leaped out. Her kickboxing skills were impeccable. In no time, the group of thugs who were just arrogant and overbearing were all lying on the ground.

Avril widened her beautiful eyes. She suddenly remembered that Kay had been pestering

Bonnie to teach her kickboxing.

She knew Bonnie knew kickboxing, and she was quite skilled, but she didn’t expect Bonnie’s skills to exceed her imagination.

There were seven or eight ruffians in total, all taken down so effortlessly. She was amazing.

Chapter 292

The tattooed man wiped the blood from the corner of his mouth and glared at Bonnie fiercely.

“You’re dead! The owner of this bar is my boss. My boss is not an ordinary person. He’s from the Knight family. By hitting me, you’re inviting trouble from the Knight family. I’ve already informed my boss!”

Avril was stunned for a moment. She looked at Bonnie, then at the tattooed man. “The Knight family? You mean the Knight Group?”

lives!!

“That’s right! It’s our city’s richest family, the Knight family! How about it? Scared now? If you’re scared, kneel and serve us! Make us happy, and maybe we’ll spare your The tattooed man said triumphantly.

Upon hearing this answer, Avril’s expression was strangely peculiar.

Bonnie was equally curious about who this person from the Knight family was, as mentioned by the tattooed man.

“The boss is here!” One of the thugs shouted.

“Great! The boss is finally here! You all wait to kneel and apologize!” The tattooed man couldn’t wait to see them begging for mercy.

Bonnie looked toward the man coming down the aisle to meet them.

“Oh, shit!” Flynn was shocked, jumping up and down, staring at Bonnie with absolute terror in his eyes.

The tattooed man didn’t notice this, constantly fueling the fire. “Boss, it’s this woman. I tried to reason with her, to have her willingly serve you, but she started hitting us. Look at what she did to us! It’s not just about her hitting us.

“We’re your men. By hitting us, she’s disrespecting you. Boss, you need to teach her a lesson! Make her kneel and apologize to you!”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 293

Chapter 293

Flynn slapped the tattooed man hard on the back of his head. “Get your ass down and apologize to her!”

The tattooed man’s head buzzed loudly, partly because Flynn hit him too hard and partly because he couldn’t believe what Flynn was saying.

“Are you deaf or what? Get down on your knees!” Flynn slapped the back of the tattooed man’s head again.

It was even harder this time because Flynn was getting anxious, fearing he might get implicated.

“Ouch!” The tattooed man held the back of his head in pain, grimacing and howling.

“If you don’t kneel again, I’ll break your legs!” Flynn was sweating profusely with anxiety.

Although the tattooed man didn't know what was happening, given the current situation, he had no choice but to kneel to Bonnie.

Flynn approached Bonnie with a flattering tone. "Ms. Bonnie, this has nothing to do with me! I had no idea what was happening here, let alone that this jerk offended you!"

Seeing Flynn's ingratiating attitude, everyone, including the tattooed man, was stunned. Flynn was the grandson of the Knight family, always a big shot who held his head high, so he had no reason to suck up to a woman like that.

Bonnie glanced at the tattooed man and the others. "They just said you're their boss. They wanted Avril and me to accompany them. This is your territory. As the saying goes, 'Like father, like son.' You must have been setting a bad example, which they followed. Be honest, how many innocent girls have you harmed with these people here?"

"I didn't! I'm innocent!" Flynn was on the verge of tears. "Ms. Bonnie, I've turned over a new leaf. Really! I wouldn't dare lie to you. After the last incident, I realized bigger fish are always in the sea. I woke up and decided to repent.

"This city doesn't just belong to my Knight family. I used to be a spoiled rich kid, always thinking I was above everyone else, able to decide others' fates.

"To compensate for my past mistakes, I've donated almost all the money I earned from running this bar to orphanages and impoverished areas in the West. If you don't believe me, you can have my cousin check. I won't dare tell a lie in front of you!"

Chapter 293

Avril couldn't find words to describe her shock as she watched Flynn, who was now genuinely shedding tears.

Now, she had figured out that this person in front of her should be Ivor's cousin. Even if Ivor was pursuing Bonnie, Flynn had no reason to be so subservient to Bonnie.

It didn't make sense. She wondered if there had been some unknown events between them, leading to Flynn's fear of Bonnie.

The more she thought about it, the more curious she became.

Avril looked at Bonnie's profile, her intuition telling her that Bonnie would bring her even more surprises in the future.

"I've investigated this matter, and what he said is true," Jim walked out from the crowd.

Avril was stunned again. "Mr. Jim, what are you doing here? When did you arrive?"

Flynn internally complained, 'Jim is Ms. Bonita's bodyguard. If he's not here, where else would he be?"

What Jim said, Bonnie naturally believed.

"A prodigal son returning home is priceless. Since you're willing to start anew, I'll give you this chance for the sake of Sigmund."

Flynn became instantly excited, looking at Bonnie gratefully. "Thank you! Ms. Bonnie, thank you so much!"

With Bonnie's words, Flynn wouldn't have to hide in the city anymore, nor would he have to stay in this small bar. He could openly return to the Knight family.

"But if you ever do something illegal again in the future, don't blame me for being ruthless," Bonnie said coldly.

"No, I won't! I refuse!" Flynn kept patting his chest, repeatedly promising.

It was nearly 1 a.m. when Bonnie returned to Villa No. 8 in Lenfield Resort.

As soon as she got home, the lights flicked on.

Seeing the man sitting on the sofa, Bonnie looked at him in a daze.

"Why are you here so late?"

Ivor stood slowly from the sofa, the light shining on his broad back.

Chapter 294

“I can’t sleep without you,” he said huskily.

Bonnie stifled a laugh, staring straight at the man, unsure what to say.

“Bonnie, how about I move in tomorrow?” Ivor frowned, his pleasant baritone tinged with a hint of pleading, softening Bonnie’s heart.

In the end, reason triumphed over all. “You have your place to stay. Why come here? Besides, who will take care of your brother if you leave?”

In this household, Neville was the unruly master. Before Bonnie appeared, he only listened to Ivor. Even if his dad came, it wouldn’t make a difference.

“I’ll have him move in with me,” Ivor said.

Bonnie was speechless. “Why don’t you just have your entire family move in?”

“That’s a good idea. Since your place has no housekeepers, I’ll have them all move in tomorrow.”

Bonnie sighed. “Enough already. Can’t you just live in your place?”

“I understand,” Ivor gazed at Bonnie affectionately.

Bonnie blinked. “What do you understand?”

Ivor didn’t hesitate to take Bonnie’s hand. “I understand what you mean. Absence makes the heart grow fonder. You’re teasing me.”

Bonnie let out a heavy sigh, feeling the urge to punch someone.

“It’s late, I’m going to bed. You can think whatever you want. Just don’t disturb my sleep.

With that, Bonnie pulled her hand out of the man’s grasp and headed upstairs.

Halfway there, she turned back to look at Ivor. “Why are you still standing there? Planning to sleep in the living room tonight?”

Ivor grinned.

“Okay.” Cheerfully agreeing, he quickly went upstairs to Bonnie’s room, pretending to enter.

Chapter 244

Bonnie stopped him. “What are you doing?”

“Going to sleep!”

“Go to your room.”

Ivor looked a bit disappointed. He thought Bonnie was going to invite him to share her bed.

“Don’t you want to sleep together?”

“Then, you might as well go back to your villa.” Bonnie glared at Ivor.

This had to be taken step by step. There was no need to rush.

On the other hand, Gunnar watched as Flynn returned, hastily ordering someone to close the gate.

“Why did you come back without a word? If you’re caught, forget about staying in this city!”

Sydney watched as Gunnar scolded his son, feeling furious. “He’s your son! Our son! This is his home! What’s wrong with him coming back? That Bonnie, if she dares to cause trouble, I–I’ll fight her!”

Chapter 295

Sydney's words scared Flynn so much that he felt his soul was about to leave his body.

"Mom, how can you say that about Bonnie? How could she be causing trouble? She's a good person!"

Sydney froze, and Gunnar was dumbfounded. It took them a while to come to their senses. Then Sydney looked at Flynn with eyes full of pity.

"My son, oh my, have you been tortured into madness? Has something gone wrong your brain? Bonnie has made you suffer so much, and you dare to say she's a good person, oh my! How unlucky is my son?"

Gunnar reached out and patted Flynn's head, thinking about finding a doctor for him.

with

Flynn pushed his dad's hand away, again emphasizing, "I'm not crazy. Bonnie is a good person, and she's extremely talented. She's a role model for people like me."

Hearing this, Sydney first froze for a moment, then frowned. "Flynn, let me ask you, do you think she's beautiful? Have you fallen for her?"

Flynn's heart skipped a beat, and he suddenly raised his voice. "How could that be?"

Sydney breathed a sigh of relief, but she heard Flynn speak again before she could fully relax.

"How could I possibly like Bonnie? I'm not even worthy of her or one of her toes.

Sydney was completely dumbfounded this time. Yes, her son must have been stimulated by what happened before, and his brain must have gone wrong.

Just as she thought this, she noticed that Gunnar was looking at her.

It seemed that the two of them had come to the same conclusion. They would have to find several doctors tomorrow to check on their son.

On Saturday, Bonnie agreed to go to Pyralis with Mhairi to attend the Antique Jade Appreciation Conference.

Due to some delays, she couldn't depart with them.

As Bonnie arrived at the venue a bit later, she was stopped at the entrance.

"Sorry, no invitation, no entry. That's the rule. Even if you're pretty, we can't let you in."

C30

In his eyes, Bonnie was just trying to use her looks to sneak into the event and snag a wealthy husband. He had seen this kind of thing many times before because the people invited to attend the appreciation event were all extraordinary, either from rich families or well-known experts in the circle. Catching one of them meant a life of riches and honor.

Bonnie frowned. "Do you know how rude you sound? This isn't something a mere guard should say."

"Hmph!" The guard sneered, "I'm just a guard, so what? I'm still better than you, a nobody."

"How dare you talk like that? You're asking for a beating!" Flynn rushed forward, delivering a swift kick that sent the guard sprawling.

"Ouch! My stomach!" The guard clutched his abdomen, wailing in pain, "Which idiot dares to lay hands on me?"

As the guard clutched his stomach and cursed, he stood up, but when he saw it was Flynn, he was so scared he almost collapsed.

"Sorry, sorry, Mr. Flynn. I didn't know it was you."

Flynn kicked the guard down again. "You blind fool, not only did you insult also disrespected her. Do you know who she is? You're blind!"

me,

but you

The guard looked at Bonnie with great fear, guessing a thousand things in his heart.

Flynn turned around and looked at Bonnie, trying to please her. “Ms. Bonnie, are you okay?”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 296

Chapter 296

Bonnie’s attitude frightened the security guard so much that his soul almost fled his body.

This woman could make the arrogant and overbearing master of the Knight family respect her. The guard wondered who he offended.

The more he thought about it, the more scared the guard became, trembling all over,

The more he thought about it, the more scared the guard became. He deeply bowed to Bonnie. “I’m sorry! I was blind and incompetent. Please, Miss, have mercy on me.

“Who do you think you are, daring to beg Ms. Bonnie for mercy? You lowly creature!” Flynn kicked the guard over and turned to Bonnie. “Ms. Bonnie, how do you want to handle him? Should I take care of him?”

Outside the door, the guard was scared, pale, and trembling.

Bonnie rolled her eyes. “You’re as arrogant and domineering as ever, treating human life so lightly. He’s just incompetent at his job. You can dismiss him if you want, but to take his life over a few words? Is this how you used to threaten people’s lives over trivial matters casually?”

Flynn was afraid Bonnie misunderstood him, so he hurriedly explained.

“No, no, no! How could I? How could I do such unreasonable things? Although I used to be arrogant and spoiled, my upbringing was strict. I wouldn’t go so far as to harm someone’s life. As for the last time between you and me, I never intended to hurt anyone. I just got angry and deliberately arrested your brother to scare you.

Bonnie didn’t think Flynn was lying. Of course, she didn’t trust him either. Sigmund taught her this.

Avril’s family was still waiting inside.

“All right, all right, I’ll follow your lead,” Flynn said, gesturing to Bonnie as they walked together into the venue, him trailing behind her like a follower.

The guard sat on the ground, vowing never to look down on anyone again.

Accompanying Flynn was an older man. Bonnie noticed that the older man always had a haughty look, with his hands behind his back and a gaze resembling a sage.

“Flynn, who is she? Why do you show such respect for her?” the old man asked curiously.

“She...” Flynn looked toward Bonnie, who gave him a warning look that dared him to try and say anything..

Flynn understood Bonnie’s dangerous gaze and subconsciously gulped.

“She’s a friend of mine.”

“Oh,” Jesper responded indifferently, evidently losing interest in Bonnie because of Flynn’s answer.

“Bonnie! You finally made it!” Avril saw Bonnie and quickly ran over.

Daken and Mhairi also came to greet her.

“How did you get in alone?” Mhairi asked curiously.

Bonnie glanced at Flynn. “I was stopped outside by the guard. He brought me in.”

Mhairi hadn’t seen Flynn before, so she asked curiously, “Who is this?”

“He’s the son of the third child of the Knight family,” Bonnie introduced.

Mhairi paused and then remembered what Daken had said that the CEO of the Knight Group was currently pursuing Bonnie.

So, this wasn’t surprising.

“Bonnie, I noticed you recognized the glass seed necklace I gave you at first glance. You must be quite knowledgeable in this area. Come, help me identify which of these jadeite stones can produce green.” Mhairi pulled Bonnie toward the exhibition table.

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 297

Chapter 297

“Heh!” Jesper sneered. “Just a little kid, what does she know? Buying and cutting jadeite is like gambling. How can we let a child mess around with it?”

Avril was most annoyed when others looked down on Bonnie. “Hey, who do you think you are? Why are you so rude?”

“Hush–” Flynn quickly gestured to Avril to be quiet. “Don’t speak out of turn. He’s a big shot in the antique and jade world.”

“Even if he’s powerful, he can’t just attack others, right? Besides, this is our own business. If we want Bonnie to cut some stones for fun, what’s wrong with that?”

Regardless of who the other person was, no one could look down on Bonnie in Avril’s heart.

“Hmph!” Jesper snorted coldly. “Ignorant brat, you’re not worth my time.”

“Yes, yes, she’s just a kid. Mr. Jesper, you’re a big shot. You shouldn’t lower yourself to her level.” Flynn felt torn. One was a master in antiques, and the other was Bonnie’s friend. He couldn't afford to offend either.

Flynn led him to the exhibition booth to divert Jesper's attention.

"Mr. Jesper, which of these rough stones do you think will yield green?"

Jesper carefully observed, then pointed to one of the stones after a while and said, "This one is from the Pagan area and should produce good jadeite."

T 'Really?" Flynn became excited.

Bonnie glanced over and frowned. "Considering you're the grandson of Mr. Sigmund, I'll remind you, while this stone is indeed from the Pagan area, it's not from the old mine. It probably won't yield anything good. I'm afraid it won't even produce an inch of green."

"This

Flynn didn't know what to say. Although Bonnie was a distinguished academic, this was about geology. This woman couldn't have known everything.

"Ridiculous!" Jesper rebuked angrily. "You little brat, what do you know? How dare you say I'm wrong! The auda-

"Mr. Jesper, Mr. Jesper, don't argue with her. Let's cut some jade, let's cut some jade now.

Flynn quickly pulled Jesper away.

"Hmph" Jesper snorted again, glaring at Bonnie, "Today, I'll let it go because of Mr. Flynn. But if there's a next time, I'll make you regret crossing me!"

Flynn hurriedly called someone over to start cutting the stone, and soon, many people gathered around.

Among them were many who knew Jesper,

"It's Mr. Jesper from Sacryment! He's no ordinary person, definitely a big shot in our field."

"Mr. Flynn must be from the Knight family in the city. Well, only someone like that could get Mr. Jesper here."

"Mr. Jesper's chosen rough stone must be a gem. I'm curious to see what kind of jade it will yield."

“Me too.”

Avril was very unhappy, but she could only hold it in.

“Bonnie, come on, let’s go. Don’t mind them. Let’s pick our stones,” “Yeah! Bonnie, those booths have rough stones worth tens or hundreds of thousands. The chances of getting good material are also high. Let’s go there,” Mhairi comforted Bonnie while pulling her towards other booths.

As they passed a cheap booth, Bonnie stopped, carefully inspecting the rough stones. before her.

“Bonnie, what are you looking at? Almost all this booth are waste. They the stones or won’t yield anything good. Although they’re cheap, they’re almost like throwing money away. Let’s go. We’ll go over there instead.” Avril tugged at Bonnie, but she didn’t budge. “Bonnie

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 298

Chapter 298

Bonnie looked at Daken. “Daken, can you lend me a strong flashlight?”

“Sure.” Having witnessed Bonnie’s abilities, Daken thought she might understand this trade.

Bonnie took the strong flashlight and began to examine it inch by inch.

After a while, a sigh suddenly came from nearby.

“It’s such a big piece of rough stone. It looks good on the surface and is from the old Pagan area. How come it didn’t yield even an inch of jade? Four hundred thousand gone just like that.”

Upon hearing this, Avril’s family all turned their heads to see the stone that had just been cut.

“It didn’t yield anything. Bonnie is amazing!” Avril was full of admiration for Bonnie.

Jesper, who had reprimanded Bonnie with an air of superiority, now had a face even greener than the jade just cut.

“Um, sorry, Mr. Flynn, I made a mistake this time.”

Flynn didn’t blame Jesper, just shifting his gaze awkwardly to Bonnie. He was now very curious, wondering if it was just a wild guess from Bonnie or if she knew.

Just as he was filled with doubts, Bonnie looked at Daken again. “This rough stone can be bought. It should yield something good.”

Daken asked, “Do you want to buy this?”

Bonnie nodded, her eyes determined.

Seeing Bonnie like this, Daken went ahead and bought it.

Seventy thousand dollars wasn’t much for their family background.

Jesper, who had just been embarrassed, now decided to regain his dignity and approached Bonnie.

A worthless stone and you still think you can get something good out of it? Although Lis stone only costs seventy thousand dollars, I advise you not to trust the words of a little brat. If this kind of rough stone yields good jade, I’ll eat the stone right here.”

Chapter 298

Bonnie was annoyed by this older man’s nonsense. “What I get from this stone is not the same waste as the one you just cut. Even if you want to eat it, I wouldn’t spare it. You can eat the one you just cut.”

“You’re quite eloquent, brat!” Jesper’s anger made him tremble.

“What’s wrong? You said it yourself. Are you backing out? Are you afraid you’re not as good as me?”

“Don’t think I can’t tell you’re trying to provoke me.

“That’s right. I am provoking you because I have confidence in my abilities, unlike you, who only knows how to boast and act high and mighty but don’t even dare to gamble with me.” Bonnie retorted without reservation.

Avril added fuel to the fire from behind, “That’s right! You’re afraid of losing, so you dare not compare yourself to our Bonnie.”

Jesper’s face turned red with anger. With so many people watching, he might as well not go out if he dared not accept this bet.

“You little brat, this is your own doing. I accept this bet. What will you do if the stone in your hand doesn’t yield anything?”

“If I lose, I’ll eat the stone in my hand,” Bonnie said confidently.

“Good! It’s a deal. If what you get from your stone isn’t as good as mine, then you’ll also have to eat this stone,” Jesper added.

“Why should I?!”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 299

Chapter 299

Avril raised her voice in disbelief. “You clearly said just now that if Bonnie’s rough stone couldn’t yield anything, how come it’s turned into her stone not being as good as yours? Isn’t this changing the terms?”

“You, being an expert in the industry, should be consistent with your words and actions. With so many years of experience, don’t you care about your reputation?”

“I just didn’t finish my sentence earlier. How is that changing the terms?” Jesper stood with his hands behind his back, his demeanor firm. “Or is it that she lacks confidence in herself? Fine, as long as she solemnly apologizes in front of everyone here, I’ll cancel this bet.

“After all, I’m the elder here. It’ll be embarrassing for a senior to gamble with a junior over stones.”

“You... you... you’re truly cunning.”

“Bold! A mere member of a small family like you, who gave you the audacity to speak to me like that? Do you think I’m someone you can easily offend? I have good relations with many prominent families in Pyralis. If you dare to disrespect me again, I’ll make sure you regret it!”

Bonnie’s narrowed eyes glinted dangerously. “Fine, I agree with your conditions. If you lose later, I’ll make you eat the stone you cut. I promise to do what I say!”

“Hmph!” Jesper snorted and turned away. He didn’t believe anything valuable could come from that piece of junk.

Floyd knocked on the door, holding a notebook.

“Come in,” Ivor said coldly.

Floyd placed the notebook in front of Ivor. “Sir, this is something you’ll be interested in.”

Ivor looked at the screen with a hint of confusion, but his rugged features softened as he saw Bonnie’s face. However, as he witnessed Jesper repeatedly bullying Bonnie, his expression grew increasingly grim.

“Sir, do you think Ms. Bonnie understands geodes? Logically, as a girl who grew up in the countryside, she shouldn’t have so much knowledge. Her talent in chess is undoubtedly high. Even if her family background isn’t good, it’s not necessarily a hindrance.

202

“The same goes for racing, where family background isn’t crucial. However, geode appreciation requires sufficient experience and knowledge. Not to mention, Ms. Bonnie is only twenty years old. With her family background, she should have no chance to be exposed to this industry, right?”

Floyd raised his hand to his chin. “But if she knows nothing, how did she figure out that Mr. Jesper’s chosen stone couldn’t yield anything good? She even accurately said that not even an inch of green could be extracted?”

Ivor’s narrowed eyes shimmered with a mysterious gleam. “Continue watching, and you’ll find out.”

“Yeah, if Ms. Bonnie’s chosen stone yields good–quality jade later, it’ll prove that she truly is an expert in this field, and her skills surpass even Mr. Jesper’s.”

Bonnie handed the stone she had just chosen to the professional stone cutter.

Because of this bet, almost everyone in the venue gathered around.

“What’s going on? Why’s it so lively?” A passerby asked curiously.

“What? Am I hearing this right? Mr. Jesper is a big shot in our industry, not just in Piralis but across the country. He’s a big name. And that girl?”

“She looks like she’s not even twenty yet, probably hasn’t even finished her education, yet she dares to challenge Mr. Jesper? She’s like a fool rushing in where angels fear to tread!”

“Let’s see how the senior teaches the junior a lesson.”

Five minutes later, the rough stone was cut open before everyone.

“Oh my god! It’s massive! Unbelievable!”

I Love You Miss Genius ( Bonnie Shepard ) CHAPTER 300

Chapter 300

Shocked, Jesper hurriedly approached. His old eyes wrinkled and turned increasingly red, his hands trembling incessantly.

“The restrained color, the perfect texture, with a hint of faint blue flowers drifting, flawless and exquisite. Th—that’s an ice jadeite with floating flowers.”

“Oh my goodness!” Flynn also stepped closer. Despite being from the wealthy Knight family, this high-quality jade still astonished him.

Avril widened her eyes. “Dad, Mom, that looks like a real ice jadeite with floating flowers!”

Daken and Mhairi also stood there, mouths agape in shock.

Avril gulped. “A piece of ice jadeite with floating flowers this big, how much is it worth?”

Bonnie thought for a moment and gave an estimate. “Probably worth 8.5 million.”

fit

Bonnie nodded calmly. “8.5 million is the lowest estimate. If it were auctioned, such high-quality ice jadeite with floating flowers might fetch over 15 million.”

“Wow...” Avril gasped.

Now I finally understand how you’ve got so much money. With skills like yours, you deserve to be wealthy!”

Bonnie twitched her mouth slightly, wanting to say she didn’t rely on this to get rich, but ultimately chose to remain silent.

Watching through the screen, Floyd was astonished, his jaw almost dropping. In his heart, he felt an intense admiration for Bonnie.

“Sir, Ms. Bonnie is amazing! Is she even human? She’s probably a reincarnation of some great immortal.”

Ivor gave Floyd a cold glance. "You're not much of a human yourself."

Floyd was startled, wanting to pinch himself. He had accidentally said the wrong thing in his excitement.

aha... "Ivor laughed. Looking at Bonnie's exquisite face on the screen, he was filled with overflowing indulgence. "She is truly worthy of being my woman."

Hearing this, Floyd wanted to laugh sarcastically. He wasn't even sure if Ivor was worthy of her.

Bonnie's gaze turned slightly chilly as she looked at Jesper. "It's time to fulfill the bet and eat the stone you chose earlier."

Jesper's face stiffened, hesitating momentarily before saying, "You little brat, you just got lucky. There's no need to be so arrogant. Let's just forget about this."

"Forget about it? Who do you think you are? Am I supposed to let it go just because you said so? You were the one who wanted to make the bet." Bonnie's voice was indifferent.

"Y-You dare to be so disrespectful to me! You

Bonnie lost her patience completely. "Are you going to honor the bet or not?"

"I-"Damn it! Jesper cursed inwardly. With so many people watching, being pressured by this annoying brat, his dignity had long been trampled.

Avril cheered Bonnie on. "Hey! You're supposed to be a big shot in the industry, yet your words hold no weight. Shame on you!"
