I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 322

Chapter 322

Everyone turned to Jordynn when they heard Bonnie's words. Initially, Trina did not even realize that loophole, but Bonnie's explanation made her heart race.

'Bonnie's right! Jordynn was still around when I snuck into the lecture hall.'

Jordynn stepped forward and confessed, "That's right. I was hiding behind the podium when Trina entered the lecture hall. I saw her stuffing Rene's necklace into Bonnie's bag."

Immediately after, Trina paled as everyone muttered and pointed at her again.

"Trina has always looked so pure and innocent. She has also been nothing but friendly and helpful to everyone on campus. Who would've thought it was all an act?"

"With that logic, she might also be responsible for ruining Bonnie's reputation."

"I think your assumption is right. Bonnie and Trina were switched at birth. One hit the jackpot and lived with a wealthy family, while the other had to live with countryfolk. Then, someone discovered the truth, and Bonnie returned to her rightful family.

"Do you think Trina would be willing to return to the countryside to live the rest of her life there? That's why Trina decided to ruin Bonnie's reputation and make her parents hate her.

Ultimately, she succeeded at getting Bonnie shunned from the family."

"Damn, Bonnie's birth parents must be just as heartless as they are clueless. They love a vicious and cunning person but turn a cold shoulder to their flesh and blood."

The more the crowd discussed these things, the more agitated Trina became.

'This can't be happening. I bribed the people in the monitoring room to erase the footage. I didn't know Bonnie could recover it. How skillful is she?!

Trina wailed and said, "Wh—what did I do to offend you, Jordynn?! Why would you falsely accuse me of such a thing?"

Jordynn felt disgusted and stepped away from Trina. The former said, "I've met many hypocritical young ladies like you, Trina. Others might believe your act, but not me. Also, we were the only ones who snuck into the lecture hall during PE. If you're claiming innocence, then you're accusing me."

Trina glared at Jordynn but dared not retort.

"Cut the bullshit, Trina. You're making it look like I'm using my status to pressure you."

Fortunately, I recorded the whole thing." Jordynn pulled out her phone and played the video to show everyone Trina's heinous crime.

Trina grew ashen and slumped to the ground.

"Try defending yourself now," Jordynn said. Then, glanced at Bonnie sympathetically.

'Bonnie has a sorry excuse of a sister and parents who can't tell right from wrong. My heart bleeds for her.'

Avril yanked at Trina's collar and barked, "Trina, apologize to Bonnie right now! That includes you guys!"

She swept her eyes across the dean's office. Her classmates felt guilty when they met her gaze.

"You need to apologize to Bonnie more than anyone else!" She pointed at Natalee. " Everyone here heard how you insulted her. Apologize to her from the bottom of your heart. Bow if you must!"

Natalee staggered backward while the other students glanced at each other, not making a peep.

“What’s the meaning of this, guys? You were all so vocal when accusing Bonnie earlier. You sat on your high horses and looked down on her. Are you going to stay quiet now that Jordynn has proven you wrong?” The more Avril spoke, the more the students lowered their heads.

“Hmph!” Avril scoffed. “I can’t believe you guys made it into Pyralis University.”

Bonnie did not want to say anything initially. However, Avril had defended her so passionately that she thought she should say a few words.

Chapter 323

“It’s okay if you guys don’t want to apologize. You can quit Pyralis University instead. We don’t need students of poor characters such as yourselves.” When Bonnie said that, everyone got quiet. Most looked at her as if she were crazy.

Who does she think she is?’

‘We won’t quit the university just because you said so.’

‘Does she think she’s the president of the university or something?’

Bonnie glared at Trina, saying, “Since you stole a student’s belongings, I can put you behind bars. Not only that, you even tried to frame me for it. That means you'll spend more time in jail. I wonder how many years you'll face."

Trina gulped, terrified. At that moment, an older man's voice sounded, "Trina can't go to prison."

Bonnie glanced toward the voice and saw an older man with gray hair. Meanwhile, Trina knew her lifeline had arrived. She exclaimed, "Professor Paul, you have to help me! I didn't mean to do it. I was upset with Bonnie because she mistreated my parents and got Hadwin arrested.

"He's suffering behind bars, for Heaven's sake! Th—that's why I got so worked up and did something foolish."

"Hmm." Paul stroked his beard and said, "You were desperate because you didn't see another way to deal with that. Your actions are perfectly understandable."

"Fuck that!" Avril was so annoyed that she wished to slap the older man. "That's the first time I've seen someone shift the blame in such an outrageous way. I'm impressed. No wonder you have your family wrapped around your finger.

"You play them like a fiddle, and they even disowned Bonnie. Hmph, you're amazing, Trina.

You better watch it. Hypocritical people are shameless, but you're not even human."

Paul frowned, displeased with Avril's words. "You're young, but you have such a sharp tongue. I've been around but never met a young lady capable of such loathsome words."

"Listen up, you old-" Avril was about to retort, but Bonnie stopped her.

The latter stepped forward and said indifferently, "Trina ruined my reputation and nearly sent me to jail. With that in mind, will you still advocate her innocence and pronounce me guilty instead?”

Paul scoffed, “Hmph, you take the cake if you’re talking about putting on airs and fooling people. Everyone boils down to the law of causality. If you hadn’t disrespected Trina’s parents and sent her fiance to jail, she wouldn’t have done such a thing. Can’t you see the error of your ways?”

Bonnie chuckled. “Okay, it seems you want to discuss the law of causality and reflect on my past. Fine, I’ll play your game. Have you reflected on the reason behind my actions?”

“If Trina’s parents and fiance hadn’t wronged me, I wouldn’t have disrespected them. If we look at it that way, they’re the ‘cause’ that started the whole thing, correct?”

“You little-” Paul glared at Bonnie intensely. He found his voice a moment later, saying, “You have a sharp tongue too. You’re also unreasonable. I can’t reason with someone as primitive as you, so I won’t waste my breath!”

“Nonetheless, Trina can’t go to jail because she’s the president of the scientific research society. Her talents are nothing short of miraculous. You can’t compare to her, Bonnie! I advise you to stop harassing her and hindering her career. End this mess now, or I’ll make your college life hell!”

Avril was about to retort when another older man’s voice sounded from behind.

Chapter 324

I think your time in this university has ended, Paul.”

Everyone looked toward the door, and one of the students exclaimed, “It’s the university president!”

Everyone was shocked, not much by his appearance, but by what he said. Even Paul was stunned before finding his voice, “Wh—what do you mean, Russell?”

Russell looked at Paul grimly and said, “Do you have to ask? You even dared to defend a petty thief. Worse, you threatened the victim to let it go by implying you’d chase her out of our fine university.”

“Th—that’s not what happened, Russell. Believe me when I say there’s more to it. Trina wasn’t wrong. Bonnie was disrespectful toward her and her parents, and she also sent Trina’s fiance to jail. Trina was just blinded with anger and made a mistake.”

“Oh? Do you know why Bonnie did what she did?” Russell questioned. “Not every parent loves their child unconditionally. You’re an experienced man, Paul. You’re aware of this notion, too, right?”

“Well, I-”

Russell put his hands behind his back and continued, “I’m sure you saw the Shepards’ announcement on their official Twitter account. Bonnie could be dead or alive for all they care. As far as I know, she did nothing wrong.

“So, why would the Shepards disown her? Everyone knows the family hates Bonnie because she grew up in the countryside. They care more about their reputation.”

Paul did not know what to say at that moment. After all, it was as Russell said. Although the Shepards made a scene with their announcement, everyone knew what had really happened.

Russell added, “Trina’s fiancé got arrested because he broke the law. Do you suppose Bonnie had sway over the police force? They wouldn’t pounce on someone just because she said so. You’re a university professor, for Heaven’s sake. Use your brain for a change.”

Paul felt humiliated and could not defend himself. He said, “Fine, Trina made a mistake, but her talents in scientific research are immaculate. She might even start working at Bonita Research Institute.

“We can’t ruin her future over something so petty. It’ll be a significant loss for Arvador’s science industry!”

To hell with that! We must expel her!” Russell roared, wishing to tell everyone Bonnie’s true identity. That would put Trina in her place and make Paul regret getting involved.

Trina slumped to the floor, looking as white as a ghost. “P–Please don’t expel me, Mr. Russell. I swear I’ve learned from my mistake and won’t repeat it.”

She began to cry at the end of her sentence, making herself look pitiful to gain everyone’s sympathy.

Russell pursed his lips when he saw her like that. Although she could fool her parents and friends, Russell was a seasoned man. He knew what she was trying to do. After all, there was a reason he was the university’s president.

With that in mind, he turned to Bonnie and asked, “Do you think expelling her will suffice? I can always announce it on the university’s official Twitter account.”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 325

Chapter 325

Everyone was shocked and did not know how to react. They could only look at Russell and Bonnie in disbelief. The students and Paul did not understand why Russell, the president of Pyralis University, would involve a student in an executive decision.

Everyone in the room even wondered if they had misheard Russell's question.

'Has Mr. Russell always been so accommodating?'

'He's devoid of any ego presidents usually have.'

Trina froze, terrified, as she glared at Bonnie.

The latter grew exasperated as she whispered to Russell, "Just deal with it as you see fit. Why'd you ask me that?'

He whispered back, "You're the future of this university. Who else can make this call?"

Bonnie did not know what to say at that moment. Soon after, she said, "I don't recall agreeing to that."

"It's okay. I'll take that as a yes."

Bonnie was utterly speechless now. She would have rolled her eyes at him if it were not for the people around them. Moreover, she was on the verge of calling him out for being shameless.

She said, "You're the university's president. You don't have to ask for my input. Just deal with it as you see fit, Mr. Russell."

Russell responded firmly, "If that's the case, I'll announce on the university's official Twitter account that I've expelled Trina."

“P—Please don’t! I beg you not to do it, Mr. Russell! I swear I won’t repeat my mistakes!” No matter how much Trina pleaded, he would not budge. She realized Russell would not go soft on her and turned to Paul.

“Professor, you have to help me! I have a bright future ahead. I know I’ll make considerable contributions to the science world. I’ll always remember that you’re my mentor.”

Paul was in a dilemma. “Here’s the thing, Russell-

“One more word, and I’ll fire you!” Russell was unaware of how long Paul had worked at

Pyralis University, so he hesitated to fire him.

Meanwhile, the latter reddened with anger.

“He might be the university president, but I have tricks up my sleeves. I’ll contact my old friend who works at Bonita Research Institute tomorrow. If Ms. Bonita appreciates a talented future researcher like Trina, Russell must respect the nation’s leading researcher and keep Trina in the university.

Gresham and Vera gloomily sat at the dining table but had utterly lost their appetite. The former exclaimed, “Gah! What’ll we do about Trina’s future now?!”

“It’s all Bonnie’s fault! She’s such a pain in the ass. I told you she brings nothing but bad luck!”

‘Damn it! Trina has a bright future ahead, but Bonnie ruined it for good.’

Gresham massaged his temples and said, “You can’t pin everything on Bonnie. Trina made a mistake, too. How could she do something like that in Pyralis University?”

Trina's eyes swelled from crying so much. "Mom, Dad, I'm sorry. I just couldn't stand how Bonnie treated you. Th—that's why I let anger cloud my judgment and made a mistake.

Please forgive me."

Vera felt heartbroken to see her precious daughter cry again. She embraced Trina and patted her back, saying, 'It'll be okay, Trina. You're not the wrong one. I blame Bonnie. After all, you were just trying to stand up for us."

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 326

Chapter 326

"Oh, my poor baby! Bonnie has brought nothing but bad luck to you. Since we took her in, she has wronged you countless times. She even dragged you into this thievery mess and ruined your future.

"My heart breaks for you, dear. It's our fault. We shouldn't have welcomed that country bumpkin into our home..." Vera trailed off and began to tear up.

Gresham's headache worsened as the duo cried. He roared, "Bonnie has done many bad things to so many people! Hadwin's even in jail now!"

He should not have mentioned Hadwin because Trina cried even louder when she heard her fiance's name.

'I did everything to snatch Hadwin from Bonnie so that I could marry into a powerful and wealthy family. Now, look at what she's done. She ruined my plans!'

Vera frowned, saying, "I wonder what's happening to the Rhodes now.'

“What do you think is happening? Of course, they’re seething with rage.” Gresham lit a cigarette and left the dining room.

As he had predicted, the Rhodes had also lost their appetite as they sat at home. Although the dining table was full of delicious food, none took a bite. Demetria cursed, “Why won’t Bonnie just jump into a lake?! First, she ruins the Shepards, then brings bad luck to our family!

“What about my cousin, Dermot? I suspect Bonnie had something to do with him disappearing from Pyralis.”

Draco’s expression turned grim. He said, “It doesn’t matter anymore. Let’s talk to Bonnie. The police will release Hadwin if she lets up.”

“Are you telling me to beg the bitch?!” Demetria refused.

Her husband said coldly, “Fine, let Hadwin will rot in jail.”

“Ugh, fine!” Demetria wrestled with her thoughts before saying through gritted teeth, “I’ll do, anything for Hadwin’s sake!”

The following day, the couple stood in Bonnie’s way at the university entrance.

“What will it take for you to release Hadwin?” Demetria tried her best to suppress her temper. If not for Hadwin, she would have pounced on Bonnie and slapped her.

Bonnie chuckled. “That’s absurd. You make it sound like I was the one who ordered the arrest. Try speaking to the police department. You’ll probably have more luck there.”

“Damn it, Bonnie!” Demetria roared, “We’ve lowered ourselves to your level and begged you. You should know to quit while you’re ahead, or you’ll regret it! After all, we’re not common citizens. The Rhodes are wealthy and prominent in Pyralis.

“We don’t know what kind of sugar daddy you have, but being a mistress won’t last forever. All homewreckers eventually suffer terrible fates!”

The onlookers heard her yelling and began to mutter about Bonnie.

“Is that woman serious? Is Bonnie someone’s mistress?”

“I heard rumors about her having an old man as a sugar daddy.”

“But she’s the best scholar in Pyralis. She only has to continue her studies and graduate with flying colors. Then, she can choose any job she wants. Why would she want a sugar daddy?”

“That’s where you’re wrong. Commoners like us have no status or backing. We can graduate with the best scores and still work regular jobs. It’ll take plenty of funding to set up our own business. Having a sugar daddy makes things a lot easier.”

These students were not exactly speaking softly. Anyone, including Bonnie, could hear them.

She turned to the onlookers and said, “Since you know you’re a commoner, it’d be wise to watch what you say. Don’t believe rumors just because it sounds convincing. You shouldn’t spread false rumors, either. Otherwise, you’ll suffer worse fates than Trina and Hadwin.”

The onlookers gossiped without restraint earlier. Now that Bonnie had made her statement, they could only shut their mouths, even if they were unhappy. Soon, Bonnie returned her gaze to Demetria and Draco.

Chapter 327

I'll only repeat myself once. Talking to me won't help Hadwin. Also, I'll call security if you keep bugging me. They'll kick you out of the campus.

“Listen here, you bitch-”

“Security!” Bonnie shouted at the guards standing by in the security room.

“We’ll rough you up if you guys don’t leave now!”

Draco and Demetria were furious. However, they could only leave for now. Otherwise, they would humiliate themselves if the security guards chased them out.

“Just you wait, Bonnie. You’ll pay for this!” Demetria roared hysterically at Bonnie.

The latter smirked, saying, “You mean like how you’re paying for your wrongdoings now?”

Demetria quivered with intense rage as she pointed at Bonnie. A moment later, her eyes rolled back, and she passed out.

Avril walked over and gave Bonnie a big thumbs up. “You have a sharp tongue, Bonnie. You’re getting better at arguing. Color me impressed!”

Bonnie giggled. “I have those idiots to thank for that. They’re so comedically evil that I have plenty of chances to hone my arguing skills.”

‘Bonnie’s just awesome!’ Avril thought.

When they ended their classes in the afternoon, Avril invited Bonnie for dinner at her place.

However, the latter said, “Oh, I have something to do tonight. I’ll have to take a rain check.”

“Oh, come on! What’s more important than having dinner at my place? My mom told the kitchen staff to make your favorite dishes.” Avril held Bonnie’s arm, unwilling to let her go.

“I have work.” Bonnie needed to meet with some researchers that evening to discuss the augmentation for the latest nanomaterial. It was a big deal, and she could not afford to miss it.

Avril looked at Bonnie up and down. The latter felt her face and asked, “What, is there something on my face?”

Avril pursed her lips and asked hesitantly, “There’s something I’ve always wanted to ask you, but my dad and I didn't think it was appropriate."

"What is it?"

*I used to think you worked in Tang Fusion Studios, but I've spent plenty of time with you now. I've never seen you going to work. Also, you skip classes pretty often. Sometimes, you even miss out on a whole day of school.

"Tell me the truth. What kind of work do you do?" Avril brimmed with curiosity. Then her eyes grew wide, saying, "Oh, I know! You're good with antique gemstones, right? So, are you working in the Pyralis Gemstone Association?"

"Uhh..." Bonnie scratched her head.

Avril shook Bonnie's arms and said, "We're best friends, aren't we? Also, you're my godsister. You can't hide things from your godsister, you know. It's almost like you don't consider me family."

Her words moved Bonnie profoundly. "Hmm, you're right. There are no secrets between family."

"That's more like it!" Avril lit up, chuckling as she said, "Out with it, and don't even think of lying to me, okay?"

"I work in a research institute."

Avril was shocked. She stared at Bonnie, asking, "A—Are you talking about Bonita Research Institute?*

"Mhm." Bonnie nodded.

Avril gasped sharply. "That explains your close relationship with Mr. Jim. B—But, you're just a student. How'd you end up in the research institute? Um, have you met Ms. Bonita? How old is she? Is she cute or what?"

Chapter 328

Avril was so excited to talk about Bonita that she could not help but ask rapid-fire questions. At that moment, Bonnie replied without a second thought, "I am Bonita."

Avril's eyes widened.

"I mean it," Bonnie enunciated her words to show she was serious. However, Avril only stared at her. A minute later, the former rubbed her eyes and asked, "Does that mean you still don't believe me?"

"I do. I believe you're messing with me."

Bonnie was puzzled as Avril added, "You messed with me last time, remember? You said you were the miracle doctor, and I said that if you were the miracle doctor, then I was the popular Ms. Bonita."

'Ugh, I'm not in the mood to explain anything. It's best if she doesn't believe me anyway.'

"I'm running late. I should go now," Bonnie said as she hailed a cab.

"Be safe!" Avril waved, and her car arrived to pick her up soon after.

When she got home, her parents huddled around her and asked, "Where's Bonnie? I thought she'd be with you. Did you forget to invite her to dinner?"

"I invited her, but she said she was busy tonight and will take a rain check." Avril smiled and piqued their curiosity by asking, "Why don't you guess what she's busy with tonight?"

"Jeez, Avril, just tell us what it is and stop beating around the bush, will ya?" Mairi tapped her daughter's forehead.

"Hey, come on. Just take a guess."

"Hmm, is she on a date with Ivor?"

“Wrong! Okay, I’ll just tell you the answer.” Truthfully, Avril could not wait to tell her parents the answer. “Bonnie’s busy working at Bonita Research Institute!”

“What?!” Daken and Mairi gasped. “Are you pulling our legs?”

“I thought she was joking when she told me, too, but she looked serious. It has to be the truth.”

Daken and Mairi exchanged glances as their minds raced, especially Daken’s. After some thought, he asked, “Did Bonnie tell you anything else?”

“Oh, you bet she did. She has an excellent sense of humor because she told me she’s Ms. Bonita!” The idea of that still sounded funny to Avril.

‘Holy shit!’”

Daken froze at the mindblowing news. He even felt a chill down his spine as he said, “That explains a lot! No wonder Xavier of Sheffyn Entertainment tried to gain her favor by purchasing that billion–dollar ginseng for her at the auction.

“Also, the Knight Group automatically secured the rights for the latest nanomaterial. If you think about it, even our bitter rivals, the Dyngards, had to leave Pyralis. Don’t forget that Jim Ryan always shows up whenever Bonnie’s around.”

Initially, Avril thought Bonnie was just joking. Now that her father pointed these things out, her jaw dropped. “D–Dad, do you mean... B–Bonnie’s really Ms. Bonita?!”

“What do you think?” Daken asked back, still shocked after hearing his daughter’s earlier explanation. He continued, “Do you remember how we reacted when she said she was the miracle doctor?

“Although we didn’t believe her, she convinced us by demonstrating her incredible knowledge in the medical field.

“Don’t forget about what happened last weekend. We took Bonnie to Jocrovania for the Antique Jade Appreciation Conference. We thought Bonnie had some knowledge of the circle, but she even outsmarted Mr. Jesper.

“Also, the Bonnie I know doesn’t like boasting and prefers to keep a low profile, even though she’s outstanding in many aspects. Isn’t Ms. Bonita the same?”

Chapter 329

Avril palmed her chest, gawking at her father. She had trouble digesting the truth, and even the usually calm and accepting Mairi was in a daze.

Mairi said, “Oh my goodness! My daughter is a world–renowned leading researcher. I’m so proud of her. I can’t believe she’s my daughter!”

Avril found her mother’s words slightly distasteful, saying, “Mom, would you please say she’s your goddaughter? You’re not her birth mother, you know.”

“Oh, right. You have a point. Here, I’ll give it another shot. I’m so proud of my goddaughter! There, do you feel better now?”

Avril did not know how to respond to that.

Meanwhile, Bonnie reached her research institute. The staff members had just finished dinner and were about to start the meeting. Someone asked, “Bonnie, that you? What are you doing here?”

‘Huh, who’s that? He sounds familiar.’

Bonnie turned around and was surprised, asking, “Why are you here?”

is

Paul scoffed and countered, “I asked you first. Now, tell me how you got in. Did you sneak in? How dare you slither your way into Bonita Research Institute! Leave now, or I’ll get someone to kick you out!”

Bonnie stared at him casually. She remembered Trina boasting about something at the Shepards' dining table last time. Trina said Paul knew an old friend who worked in the research institute.

With that in mind, Bonnie could guess why Paul was here. She asked, "Did your friend let you into the institute?"

"How do you know that?" Paul questioned. After some thought, he asked, "Did Trina tell you I have a friend who works here?"

Bonnie said coldly, "There are rules here stating that staff members can't bring in anyone as they please. A visitor needs the authorization of three professors before entering. Tell me what your friend's name is and who the two professors who approved your visit are."

Chapter 325

Paul could not help but wonder how she knew all these things.

Bonnie added, "I'm sure you're here to rally people to help you get Trina back into Pyralis University."

Paul's eyes widened in shock as she had guessed it right again.

"Hmph," Bonnie scoffed, "You think Trina's a scientific genius, huh? However, she's just a cunning prick. So many others are miles ahead of her in talent and skills. Even so, the institute rejected them. Trina's a nobody compared to them."

"You're just jealous of Trina and want what she has! How dare you say she's a cunning prick! You're the one who's nothing compared to her."

Professor Caleb had just exited the restroom when he heard Paul arguing with someone. The former asked, "Who are you fighting with, Paul? Did someone step on your toes?"

Then, Caleb's heart sank when he saw Bonnie.

'No one else is around. Damn, it! Is Paul arguing with Ms. Bonita?!'

Caleb froze, and his jaw dropped as cold sweat formed on his forehead.

However, Paul continued, “Despicable people like you only bring bad things to our society. Your parents made a good choice, disowning you. I wish the Arvandorian government would do its part in eliminating pests like you!”

“You son of a-” Caleb was furious as he stomped toward his friend and punched him.

Paul spun in place and fell to the floor. He was dazed as he said, “Wh-what do you think you’re doing, Caleb?”

Caleb barked, “You’re the pest that needs eliminating, you despicable good-for-nothing! You’re the one who contributes nothing to the world!”

“Um...” Paul grew increasingly puzzled. Meanwhile, the other professors and staff members heard the commotion and ran over. Then, they saw the confused Paul covering his face as he sat on the ground.

“Caleb, what’s happening? I thought Paul was your friend.”

The others thought it was strange for Caleb to punch his best friend. Most of those who worked in the institute knew about their closeness, especially Professor Breanna and Professor Liam, who approved Paul’s entry.

Everyone wondered what had happened between the two.

Caleb pointed at Paul, enraged, as the former said, “I agreed to help you because you’re my best friend. I never thought you’d insult Ms. Bonita like that! I wish I could just kill you right now!”

'Wait, what?!'

Paul whipped around to look at Bonnie. The latter appeared so indifferent that Paul's heart leaped to his throat. Meanwhile, the onlookers surrounded Paul and insulted him,

Chapler 30

"How dare you insult Ms. Bonita! If someone as peerless and talented as her is a pest, what does that make you? You're the lowest of scums, jackass!"

"Oh, dear. I regret approving your entry. I deserve to be punished for letting an animal like you insult Ms. Bonita."

"We must report this to the government and remove Paul from our country's science community!"

Paul was horrified at that moment as he looked at Bonnie fearfully. Simultaneously, he inwardly cursed Trina and the Shepards.

'It seems Bonnie was the peerless Ms. Bonita, after all! She's the backbone of the nation. How could the Shepards say she's a good-for-nothing and disown her? They must be blind and foolish!'

Paul scrambled to his feet and bowed at Bonnie. "I—I'm sorry, Ms. Bonita! I had no idea who you were. I wouldn't have dared to insult you if I had known sooner!"

He began to tear up with regret.

Bonnie raised her chin and glanced at him, saying, "It sounds like you're saying you can abuse your status and insult me if I weren't Ms. Bonita. Is that right?"

"N—No, that's not what I meant! Please forgive me, Ms. Bonita!"

Bonnie asked dryly, "Are you still insistent on helping Trina?"

"N—Not anymore! She has committed petty theft and even tried to frame you for it. She deserved to get kicked out of Pyralis University. She can only blame herself."

Finally, Paul understood why Russell defended Bonnie so vehemently.

'As the university president, Russell must have known about her identity much earlier.’

Simultaneously, Paul recalled Russell always boasting about an impressive successor to his position. The latter claimed everyone would bow to Bonnie once she became the university president.

Chapter 331

Paul would not have let Bonnie run her mouth in the past. However, he had just discovered she was the nation’s leading researcher, so he had to respect her.

Bonnie said leisurely, “I thought you said Trina was highly talented in scientific research. You also said the science world would suffer a significant loss if I didn’t forgive her for trying to frame me.”

Paul began to sweat as he said, “Trina’s cunning and is nothing compared to you. She’s a pathetic firefly that can’t match the moon’s brightness,”

Bonnie scoffed and looked at Caleb, saying, “I’ll let you deal with him since you let him in.”

“I—I understand, Ms. Bonnie.” Caleb wiped the sweat off his forehead.

Meanwhile, Paul saw Bonnie leaving and called out to her. “Ms. Bonita, Trina fooled me, too! I’ve seen the error of my ways. Please give me a chance to redeem myself. I swear I’ll never dream of offending you again!”

However, Bonnie disappeared around the corner.

Caleb was furious, scolding, “You ruined my reputation, Paul!”

“Caleb, I didn’t know any better. I swear-”

“That’s Mr. Caleb to you! We’re no longer friends. If you’re smart, you’ll resign as a professor of Pyralis University and leave the city.”

Paul shuddered in fear. “But I’ve worked in the university for most of my life.”

“That’s enough, Paul! Do you think Russell will let you continue working at the university once he learns you’ve insulted Ms. Bonita?!” Caleb’s words shocked Paul. “Don’t forget about the government. You can kiss Arvandor goodbye if they discover what you’ve done.”

Paul was astonished, staggering backward before falling to the ground.

‘My life is over.’

Chapter 331

Trina paced around the living room while rubbing her hands restlessly.

“Trina, stop worrying. Professor Paul is visiting Bonita Research Institute as we speak. I’m confident he’ll speak up for you and get you back into Pyralis University.”

Suddenly, Trina received a call from Paul, “Put your phone on speaker, Trina.”

“Okay, Professor Paul.”

Gresham hurried over to listen in, asking, “How’d it go, Professor-”

“You’ve ruined me, Trina. You’re the worst thing that has ever happened to me. I wouldn’t be in this mess if it weren’t for you!” Paul wished to curse every Shepard family member.

However, his words confused Trina and her parents.

“Wh—what happened?”

“What’s wrong, Professor Paul?”

“How bold of you to ask me that! Thanks to you guys, I’m no longer a professor at Pyralis University! What’s worse, I can never step foot in Pyralis again!” Paul’s tone became increasingly aggressive with each word.

Finally, he could no longer stand it and cursed at them vocally. “Fuck you all!”

Beep!

He hung up the phone.

Gresham and the other two were petrified. They fell silent as a great fear gripped their hearts.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 332

Chapter 332

Paul's unnerving curses stunned Trina and her parents. They could not return to their senses for a long while.

Trina broke the silence, "M—Mom, Professor Paul said he no longer has a job at the university and has to leave the city. What happened over there? I thought he visited Bonita Research Institute to ask for his friend's help."

'Did the professor get into trouble instead?'

"I can ask you the same thing." Vera sat on the couch and poured herself some water. She needed some time to digest the situation.

Meanwhile, Gresham rubbed his chin as he analyzed the situation. He guessed, Does Bonnie have something to do with this somehow?"

Trina's eyes widened at that moment. Although her parents might not know about Bonnie's connections to the Bonita Research Institute, she was privy to that knowledge.

'Bonnie knows Jim, Ms. Bonita's bodyguard. Did the professor run into Jim at the research institute, and Jim stood up for her?'

Vera would never believe Bonnie was capable of such things. She said, "What does Bonnie have to do with anything? She's not that great. No one at the research institute would stand up for her."

"Paul said we ruined his life. If you think about it, Bonnie's likely related to that. Also, you're forgetting she's the miracle doctor."

Vera realized something and said, "I heard she's treating Ivor's grandmother. He's the CEO of the Knight Group. Do you think she asked for his help?"

Gresham agreed, "It's possible."

"Bonnie's despicable! Why does she have to hurt us and Trina?! Bonnie only exists to bring disaster to our family!" Vera slumped to the floor and cried.

Gresham lit a cigarette and took a drag. He said, "You can just blame everything on Bonnie. Trina, you shouldn't have tried to scheme against Bonnie. You should've

"There's no need to stoop to her level and take revenge on her. How about you apologize to her instead? That reminds me. Give the Phodes a call. They might hure Bonnie, but Hadwin can't stay in jail forever.

"You and the Rhodes will apologize to Bonnie. That'll end this mess. After that, stay away from Bonnie and stop meddling in her affairs. You're no match for her "

Although Trina disapproved of that solution, she had to focus on the bigger picture. Since that was her only move, she took her phone and called the Rhodes, "Okay, let's decide on a day if you agree. Don't worry. My dad will contact Bonnie, and them we'll end this once and for all."

Bonnie sat in Ivor's car, and they headed for Lenfield Resort

"The resort is on the opposite side of your house, Ivor. Aren't you tired of picking me up every day?"

Ivor looked at her and said, "I'm a little tired of it, but you refuse to stay at my place."

Buzz, buzz, buzz.

Bonnie checked her phone and saw Gresham's caller ID. She did not want to answer but could guess why he was calling. She knew he would keep calling if she did not answer. He might even try looking for her on campus.

"Buzz buzz buzz..." Her phone started vibrating

"Hello?"

Gresham sighed, replying, "We need to meet."

After some silence, Bonnie replied, "Okay, I'll see you at noon tomorrow."

"Where should we meet?"

"At the coffee shop beside Lenfield Resort." She picked that venue because she was too lazy to travel further.

“Yeah, that one. If that’s all, I’ll hang up,” Bonnie added, “If you have something else to say, save it for tomorrow.”

Judging from her tone, Ivor could guess who called. He asked, “Was that one of your former family members?”

“Mhm, I’m meeting with them tomorrow at noon.

Ivor frowned. “Aren’t you worried they’re trying to cause trouble for you again?”

Bonnie replied casually, “It’d be weird if they didn’t.”

“If you know that, why did you agree to meet with them?”

“I might’ve cut ties with them, but we’re still somewhat connected. I’m going because I want to cut off all remaining ties. I’ll have my life from tomorrow onward, and they’ll have theirs.”

Bonnie looked so cold and stubborn that it pained Ivor to see her that way. He stopped on the side of the road and unbuckled his seatbelt.

“We’re not there yet. Why’d you pull over? Are you—” Ivor leaned over and silenced her before she could finish. Bonnie’s eyes widened, and she was about to push him off.

However, he embraced her and said, “Oh, my poor Bonnie. Don’t be sad. Remember that you’re not in this alone. I’ll watch your back and ensure no one picks on you.”

His voice was deep and husky as she enunciated each word confidently, making Bonnie feel safe. Her heart softened as she rested her chin on Ivor’s shoulder. She smiled and felt much better now.

Ivor and Bonnie reached Villa Number Eight in Lenfield Resort twenty minutes later. The former looked around, and his eyes glinted, saying, “It’s such a fantastic design! Did you hire Reuben Rice as your interior designer?”

Bonnie nodded. “Yeah, he did all this.”

Her response surprised Ivor. “Reuben is well over ninety years old. He stopped taking commissions long ago. How’d you convince him to help you?”

Chapter 313

“A friend of mine helped with that.”

“A friend?” Ivor squinted. Then, an image of someone flashed in his mind. “Don’t tell me it’s Heath. He’s close to you, isn’t he?”

Bonnie knew Ivor was jealous. Still, she said, “Bingo. It’s Heath who’s oh—so—close with me.”

Ivor knew she didn’t like him getting jealous of everyone. So, he swallowed his pride. “How did he manage to hire Reuben?”

Bonnie smiled at Ivor and straightened his tie. “You’re such a wise man, Ivor. Can’t you tell who Heath really is?”

He was focused on her hands, which were still adjusting his tie. He was still indulging himself in it when she withdrew her hand. A moment later, she saw a hint of disappointment in his eyes.

“I know the Rice family is one of the wealthiest and most prominent families in Pyralis. They specialize in interior design. However, they rarely mingle with people in high society. So, how did you get to know Heath?”

“Huh? It’s been so long that I can’t remember.” Bonnie was not lying. After all, she knew so many people. She might’ve had an excellent memory but could not remember every little detail.

Since she could not remember, Ivor did not pry.

“Wait a minute. I left something Grandpa gave us in the car.” Ivor turned and reached into his car to take an optimal disc.

“What is it?” Bonnie stared at the plain-looking optimal disc in puzzlement.

“Grandpa didn’t tell me what it is. He wanted us to watch it. He said it’s crucial for the family and Knight Group’s growth,” Ivor said solemnly.

“Is it that serious?” Bonnie grew stern as well. “Does it contain confidential information about the company? Are you sure it’s okay for me to see it?”

“Let’s not make wild guesses. We’ll find out once we go inside and play it.”

“Okay.”

Ivor popped the disc in, picked up the remote, and played the disc. Bonnie sat beside him and focused on the video clip.

“Stop it. Ugh. It hurts! Go slower.” Several embarrassing voices came out from the speaker. A couple in their birthday suits did unspeakable things to each other by the beach. The video was so erotic that even the usually composed Bonnie blushed.

Ivor was not doing any better, either. Although men were typically more accustomed to adult content, Sigmund chose something so provocative that Ivor’s face reddened, and his heart raced.

Bonnie snatched the remote from Ivor and shut off the TV. She rubbed her temples and knew what Sigmund was trying to show them.

‘It seems Sigmund wants us to have a baby. That way, Ivor would have an heir to the company.’

Bonnie was amidst her thoughts when Ivor turned to her and asked, “Were you staring at the guy just now?”

Bonnie was speechless.

‘Come on, I’m a doctor. I’m used to seeing a man’s ding–dong. The man in the video didn’t have an impressive one, but I can never tell Ivor that. Otherwise, he’ll haunt me for the rest of the day by asking how many penises I’ve seen.’

“You’re overthinking it. There’s nothing special about a man’s naked body. I was staring at the lady most of the time, if you must know.” Bonnie noticed her fiancé’s eyes grow wide.

Thinking that he distrusted her, she added, “I’m not lying. I stared at the lady so much that I even remembered the details. Let’s see, the lady had a red mole on her chest and is probably a C–cup.”

Ivor’s eyes grew wider. After some silence, he asked, “Do you like women?”

She did not know how to respond to that.

‘Is he serious? It seems that no answer will satisfy him. I’ll have to use his tactics against him.’

“Well, were you staring at the woman?”

'I've got just the answers for him, too. If he denies looking at the woman, I'll say he was looking at the guy the whole time. Let's see how he reacts when I give him a taste of his own medicine.'

He smiled, saying, "I blacked out earlier. So, I didn't see anything."

Her lips twitched a little as she stared at him. She thought Ivor was impossibly shameless. "All right, I need to catch some sleep. I have to face the Shepards tomorrow."

Just as she stood up, he pulled at her wrist.

"What do you think you're doing?" she frowned and sighed reluctantly.

"Grandpa shouldn't have shown me something like that. I can't sleep by myself now. How about we sleep together?"

She flashed him the sweetest smile possible and said, "I think I would've said yes, but you just said you blacked out earlier. That means you didn't see anything. So, why would it be a problem for you to fall asleep?"

Ivor's face was full of helplessness and love.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 335

Chapter 335

It seemed Ivor just could not win against her.

The following morning, the Shepards and Rhodes arrived at the coffee shop near Lenfield Resort. They saw Bonnie leaving the resort and started making wild guesses.

“Do you think Bonnie’s sugar daddy stays in this neighborhood, Dad?” Trina said that to guide the adults’ thoughts.

“That’s enough, Trina. I can let it slide if you say such things around us, but I don’t want you bringing it up when Bonnie’s around,” Gresham said, displeased, “We’re meeting with her to apologize and end this mess.

“You should know what’ll happen if Bonnie hears that. How will you return to Pyralis University, then? Also, Hadwin would never escape prison if you instigated her.”

Trina was upset and panicked slightly when her dad lectured her.

Demetria also regarded her with hostility, “I always thought you were smart and tactful, but you never know what to do in crucial moments. I never realized that until now. It’s fine if you don’t want to return to the university, but you shouldn’t botch things for my son.”

She used to love Trina, but that changed when the former discovered Bonnie was the miracle doctor. Now, Demetria found Trina pretty annoying.

‘I set my son up to marry Bonnie, but Trina ruined it by having an affair with Hadwin. The famous miracle doctor would have been my daughter-in-law if it weren’t for this meddlesome idiot.’

Demetria kept her thoughts to herself. After all, she had to preserve some semblance of harmony between her family and the Shepards. However, everyone knew she disdained Trina because of how she talked to the young lady.

Trina bit her lip as the adults reprimanded her.

Soon after, Bonnie sat across from the two families in the coffee shop. She leisurely sipped her coffee and put it down, saying, “Now that we’re all here, let’s cut to the chase and stop wasting each other’s precious time.”

273

She glanced at Gresham and Vera first. “I never considered taking revenge after you disowned me. Instead, I pretended like I never knew you guys. However, Trina kept causing trouble for me because she was afraid I might steal her status as your daughter.”

Trina gritted her teeth. Although she hated Bonnie, she assumed a pitiful expression and looked like she could cry at any moment.

“I swear, Bonnie. I didn’t-”

Bonnie grew impatient and interrupted, “Shut your trap. Is it your turn to talk? I’m not interested in the shit that’s about to escape that thing you call a mouth.”

Gresham and Vera glared at their daughter, signaling her to stop talking. Meanwhile, Trina could explode with rage from Bonnie, driving her insane.

Bonnie continued, “I can get Trina back into Pymalis University, but she has to promise not to come near me. She has to leave whenever she sees me. If she even looks my way, I guarantee I’ll kick her out of the university and the scientific research community. You heard what happened to Professor Paul, correct?”

Trina clenched her fists under the table. “You did that to him?”

“I didn’t do anything. Paul made terrible decisions and got what he deserved,” Bonnie replied dryly.

“I don’t get it, Bonnie. Can you tell me what he did to deserve such a tragic fate?” Trina asked the question on everyone’s mind. Everyone at the table was deadly curious, too.

As Bonnie took another sip of her coffee, everyone stared at her. They were furious with her casual appearance but could only suppress their anger.

A minute later, Bonnie said, “He acted like a fool and insulted Ms. Bonita for Trina’s sake. He called Ms. Bonita a good-for-nothing pest and claimed she makes no contributions to the world.”

Everyone gasped with horror.

‘What’s wrong with Professor Paul?!’

‘How dare he insult Ms. Bonita!’

‘What was he thinking?!’

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 336

Chapter 336

“D–Did you say Professor Paul Insulted Ms. Bonita for me? Who are you trying to fool? Why would he do that for me? Why did he insult Ms. Bonita?”

‘She’s right! Why would Professor Paul do that?’ Gresham and the gang looked at Bonnie.

The latter checked the time and did not feel like explaining it to them. Instead, Bonnie said, “It’s getting late, and I have work to attend to. I don’t have time to stay and chat. If you’re that curious about it, try asking Paul what happened.

“I don’t work at the research institute, so how would I know? Let’s return to my earlier terms. Did you hear them all, Trina?”

Trina lowered her head and reluctantly replied, “I heard them.”

Bonnie gazed at Gresham and Vera, saying, “Since you’ve disowned me and don’t seem interested in reconciliation, can you two please stop lecturing me as if you’re my parents? After all, you no longer have the right to do that.

“You wouldn’t scold a stranger so arrogantly, would you? I want you two to stop talking to me as if I’m your daughter whenever we see each other. Instead, start treating me like a stranger.”

After some thought, Gresham took his phone and made a video. “I, Gresham Shepard, will make another announcement. I have thoroughly cut ties with Bonnie Shepard.

“My family and I are no longer affiliated with her in any way, shape, or form. Should I bump into her wherever it may be, I shall regard her as a stranger.” Immediately after, he posted the video on the family’s official Twitter account, asking, “How was that, Bonnie?”

She nodded in satisfaction.

Vera looked at her as if she were a stranger and said, “Now that we’ve held up our end of the bargain, please do your part and let Trina return to Pyralis University.”

“You got it,” Bonnie made a phone call. “Russell, I’ve made a deal with the Shepards Trina into the university.”

‘Did she just call the university president directly?! Gresham and the rest were astounded.

can readmit

‘Does that mean she knows Mr. Russell personally? They sound pretty close. How’s that even possible?!’

‘Russell is the president of the great Pyralis University. Why would he be so close to a nobody like Bonnie? Is it because he also knows Bonnie is the miracle doctor?!’

“Sure, I’ll pass the phone to them.” Bonnie handed her phone to Gresham, saying. “The university president would like a few words with you.”

‘M–Mr. Russell wants to talk to m–me?’

Gresham held the phone to his ear and said nervously, “H–Hello, Mr. Russell.”

“Gresham, I hope you keep your end of the bargain. Your family mustn’t cause Bonnie any more trouble, got it? If it happens again, I’ll do much more than expel Trina. Your whole family won’t be able to live in Pyralis anymore by then.”

Russell’s words terrified Gresham. Considering how the former talked about Bonnie, the duo was much closer than Gresham could have imagined.

After ending the call, Gresham asked, “How on earth do you know the university president?”

Bonnie looked at him blankly, saying, “You’re just a stranger. Why would I tell you about my private life?”

Gresham was furious, but he quickly recomposed himself.

‘It’s as she said. She’ll have her life, and we’ll have ours. It doesn’t matter how well or bad she does in the future. There’s no point asking her that question.’

Soon after, Bonnie turned her attention to Demetri and Draco. “I’ll give you two the same deal I offered the Shepards. I’ll tell the authorities to free Hadwin, but your family must stop harassing me. I have ways of putting him back behind bars if you do.”

The Rhodes differed from the Shepards as the former was a much bigger and wealthier family. Hence, they had some influence throughout Pyralis. They had never suffered such humiliation before this. Of course, they were more upset about the terms than the Shepards.

“Fine. You’ve got yourself a deal,” Draco and Demetria said with restraint.

Bonnie knew both families were displeased with the deal. Still, she got what she wanted out of their meeting.

“Words mean nothing. We should sign an agreement.” Bonnie handed the two families her drafted contracts, and they read them carefully.

They thought she would tweak a few words and pull a fast one over them. However, they were surprised that the contracts perfectly reflected every term she had voiced earlier. Ultimately, the two families signed the contracts.

Bonnie took back the contracts and raised her brow.

‘Perfect, I will no longer have to deal with the Shepards and Rhodes.’

and Suddenly, she saw a silhouette outside the coffee shop from the corner of her eyes. Before getting up leaving. Bonnie told Gresham and the others, "Since that's over, we'll be strangers to each other from now onward."

Gresham watched as Bonnie left the coffee shop and headed toward the "sugar daddy" he had seen before. "Hmph! Does she think we'll regret our decision because she's the miracle doctor? She's still the same pompous girl who doesn't know how to respect her elders. Karma will get her soon enough."

He looked at the agreement he held and added, "Fortunately, we signed this agreement. We no longer have to concern ourselves with Bonnie."

Even Vera seemed relaxed.

Meanwhile, Ivor smiled warmly at the approaching Bonnie. He asked, "Do you want to grab a bite?"

"Sure."

When the duo entered the car, Ivor noticed the contracts Bonnie held and asked, "What are those?"

"These allow me to cut off all ties with the Shepards," Bonnie spoke casually. She acted like she was discussing something mundane that had nothing to do with her.

Ivor frowned as his heart sank. After some thought, he said, "The universe is always fair. It knows you were robbed of loving parents and gave you the best husband ever instead."

Initially, Bonnie noticed his brief silence and thought he would say something to make her feel better. However, she did not expect to hear that.

Ivor remembered something and said, "The Day family is hosting a dinner party next weekend, and I invited Dr. Fanelli. Since you've missed meeting him twice, I'll introduce you to him properly this time."

Bonnie did not recall receiving a text from him about that. She asked, "When did you invite Dr. Fanelli to the party? Why didn't I know about it?"

Chapter 237

'Did I miss his text when I was busy at the research institute?'

While Bonnie was amidst her thoughts, she noticed Ivor monitoring her suspiciously, Immediately after, she realized she had just outed herself with the questions she asked earlier. She calmly added, "You didn't tell me about the dinner earlier."

Ivor continued to gaze at her, saying, "I haven't texted him yet. I planned to do it when I got home."

"Oh, so that's what you mean."

'That makes more sense. Although I was occupied at the research institute, I should've seen Ivor's text when I left.'

"Mark it on your calendar. You're coming with me to the party," Ivor said.

Bonnie's lips twitched. She was about to make an excuse but realized she could not keep doing that. After all, it would seem unnatural and grow more suspicious if she did. "Sure."

Friday arrived in the blink of an eye. Trina and the Shepard's kept their promise and did not cause trouble for Bonnie over the past few days. It seemed the contracts were a necessary move.

After class, Bonnie went to the research institute and heard footsteps behind her. It seemed someone was tailing her.

Chapter 339

The mugger rolled and crashed into a nearby trash can.

Thudi

He screamed and groaned while Jordynn was stunned by what she saw. She was at a loss for words as she gawked at the mugger.

Bonnie glanced at the mugger and said condescendingly, "Feel free to report yourself to the cops."

The mugger roared, "Who the fuck are you?! Why would I listen to you?"

Immediately after, Bonnie kicked his chest.

Crack!

The sound of breaking ribs echoed.

"Will you report yourself to the police department now?" Bonnie glanced at him blankly. She looked so casual that the mugger was full of fear.

Meanwhile, Jordynn's jaw dropped as she watched the unfolding events.

"Aren't you going to say something? I should've kicked you harder," Bonnie cheerfully said as if she did not care about breaking his ribs.

The mugger saw Bonnie motioning to kick him again and grew wide-eyed. He yelled, "1-I'll do it!"

Bam!

He was too late. Bonnie kicked him again.

"Gah!" The mugger yelped in fear and pain. His eyes were bloodshot, and he was in so much pain that he could barely breathe.

Bonnie frowned and asked, "Were you about to say you'd report yourself to the cops?"

The mugger was on the verge of tears, stammering, "Y-You didn't let me finish."

"Well, you should've spoken sooner." Bonnie withdrew her leg and added, "Go on."

The mugger clutched his abdomen as a tear dropped to the ground. “I think you broke my ribs. How am I supposed to go when I can’t get up?”

“There’s no way you’re this weak. I didn’t even kick you that hard.” Bonnie looked at him as if he were a piece of trash. “You mug people for a living and should be somewhat tough. It seems I’m dead wrong. Why would you do these things if you’re so weak? What are you thinking?”

The mugger was furious after getting insulted so badly.

“Ugh, fine. I’ll call the cops. You’re such a burden, you know that?” Bonnie took her phone and called the police. Afterward, she turned to look at Jordynn, asking, “Is your leg okay?”

Chapter 339

Jordynn was still in a daze and did not reply.

“Jeez, you can’t even respond. Is it that severe?” Bonnie muttered before crouching and lifting Jordynn’s foot.

“Argh, that hurts. Abri was so painful that she almost cried.

“It’s not that severe. It’s just dislocated.” Bonnie determined Jordynn’s injury in less than a minute.

The latter looked at her in disbelief, asking. “Do you have medical knowledge?”

Immediately after, she remembered finding a medical journal in Bonnie’s school bag.

“Uh–huh.” Bonnie held Jordynn’s injured foot and pushed it firmly.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 340

Chapter 340

Jordynn instantly felt better and was no longer doubtful. Indeed, Bonnie was adept in medical knowledge. Even so, the former asked, "Aren't you a computer science student? How do you know this stuff?"

"Can't a lady have a hobby?" Bonnie spoke the truth.

Judging by her expression, Jordynn knew she was telling the truth. She asked, "Are you usually this good with all your hobbies?"

"You think I'm good at this? I think I'm way worse at medical knowledge than my main job."

"Your main job?" Soon after, Jordynn knew what Bonnie meant. "Are you talking about computer science?"

Before Bonnie could answer, Jordynn formulated a theory, saying, "I guess that makes sense. After all, you hacked into Pyralis University's security to reclaim that footage. Not even the professors could've done that.

"That reminds me. Since you're already outstanding in computer science, why'd you sign up for the course?"

"That's because my computer skills are the worst among my other skills."

"Haha, you're pretty cocky." As far as Jordynn knew, Bonnie was bluffing. However, the former could not bring herself to hate Bonnie. After all, an occasional bluff from someone as skillful as Bonnie was not a problem.

"Bonnie, I take back everything I said about you before."

“Huh?” Bonnie looked at Jordynn in a daze.

“I used to say you don’t deserve Ivor.”

“Oh, that’s what you’re talking about. Don’t worry about it. I didn’t let it bother me.”

“Really?” Jordynn had never met anyone so understanding. If someone gave her a cheque and started insulting her, she would not have forgiven that person.

Bonnie chuckled and said, “You’re not the first one to humiliate and look down on me. I’m a country bumpkin who weaseled her way into a wealthy family. A bunch of people despise me for that. How would I live if I had to settle the score with those people?”

Although she sounded casual, Jordynn could not help but feel sorry for her. Simultaneously, the latter felt guilty. “You’re my kind of gal. Fine, you’re now one of my best friends. Just holler if you need help with anything. I can ensure the Shepards never pester you again.”

“Thanks, but that won’t be necessary. I’ve ended things between me and them. I’ll have my life, and they’ll have theirs.”

Those words reminded Jordynn about the latest video Gresham posted on Twitter.

“Cool, I guess it’s better that way. Honestly, parents are the ones who can be genuinely selfless to their kids. We can make the most outrageous mistakes, yet they forgive us. At mont, they’d lecture us “With that in mind, you did nothing wrong. Although you grew up in the countryside, you didn’t have a choice. I can’t believe the Shepards underestimated and disowned you for being a country girl. You’re far better off without them. Don’t rejoin them, even if they’re wealthy

“Got it.” Bonnie responded briefly and helped Jordynn up

The latter said, “My family’s having a dinner party tomorrow. Would you like to join us?”

Indeed, it was a troubling situation for Bonnie.

“Oh, I’m an idiot!” Jordynn smacked her forehead. “Sebastian invited Ivor to the party, so I’m sure he’ll bring you along”

Things just got much worse for me.”

The following night, Bonnie changed into a gown and went downstairs. Ivor was overly excited as he admired the splendid young lady before him, saying, “You look spectacular in everything, Bonnie.”

However, she was in no mood to entertain him. She was still thinking about how to get through the party without blowing her cover.

“M’lady.” Ivor opened the car door for Bonnie and entered after her. He then took his phone and said, “I should call Dr. Fanelli first to see if he’s on the way.”

Bonnie instinctively squeezed her phone when she heard that.

Chapter 341

When Ivor called Fanelli’s number, Bonnie turned off her phone. Ivor would have found her out if she were just a second later.

Ivor mumbled, “Huh? Why’d he turn off his phone?”

“He must’ve forgotten to charge it before leaving.” Bonnie said casually.

“That’s possible. Anyway, I picked some gowns for you. I’ll send you the pictures. Check them out and tell me which is your favorite.” Ivor sent the pictures as he spoke and then looked at her phone.

Seconds passed, but her phone screen did not light up.

Is it a signal issue?” Ivor motioned to grab Bonnie’s phone.

However, she stuffed it in her handbag and said, “I’ll check them later.”

Ivor gazed at the bag. Even though the phone was inside, he could have seen the glow of her phone screen lighting up. However, the phone screen remained dark.

in mind, Ivor squinted suspiciously.

Soon after, the couple reached the Days’ villa. All the lights inside were on, and some guests held wine glasses while chatting. Jordynn saw Ivor and went to welcome him, “Where’s Dr. Fanelli, Ivor? Why isn’t he here with you?”

Sebastian smiled and shook his head. “My sister must’ve fallen head over heels for the doctor. The first thing she asks about is Dr. Fanelli.”

“Hey, don’t make fun of me!” Jordynn retorted out of embarrassment.

“Hahaha, you’re embarrassed? There’s no need for that. You two are attractive and talented. You’re meant to be together. Our whole family would love to see that.”

“Stop it, Sebastian!” Jordynn blushed.

Bonnie’s eye twitched as Jordynn said, “I’m still waiting for an answer, Ivor. Where’s Dr. Fanelli?”

“I called him before I arrived, but he turned off his phone. He must’ve forgotten to charge it. Still, you don’t need to worry. He promised to attend the party, so he’ll be here,” Ivor said as he glanced at Bonnie.

“I’d like to think Dr. Fanelli is the kind of guy who will keep his promises. Perhaps he’s stuck in traffic. It’s okay. The party’s just getting started, and we have all night.”

Since it would take a while before Fanelli arrived, Jordynn took Bonnie's arm and said, "Since it's your first time here, I'll show you the orchard behind the house. You'll find various fruits there."

Sebastian was bewildered. "I thought you had different opinions about Bonnie before. Why are you so warm and friendly to her now?"

He tried to sugarcoat it because Bonnie was there.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 338

Chapter 338

Bonnie whipped around but saw no one on the street behind her. However, she caught the hem of a pink shirt by the alley. It seemed a lady was following her.

Bonnie searched her memory and recalled Jordynn occasionally appearing nearby that day. The latter wore a pink shirt, too.

Meanwhile, Jordynn hid in the alley and patted her chest, thinking, 'Phew, It's a good thing I ducked in here in time. Otherwise, she would've caught me.'

Before she knew it, a knife appeared on her neck. "Give me everything you have."

She nervously glanced at the mugger and realized the man wore a mask. She was terrified, stammering." Oh, okay. I—I'll give you everything. Just take it easy, okay?"

Jordynn paled as she tremblingly handed the mugger her phone.

"Okay, now give me your necklace, bracelet, and everything else."

“W–Wait a second, I’ll remove these first.” She obeyed the man and removed all her jewelry, even giving him her earrings. She was on the verge of tears when she asked, “Can you let me go now?”

“What rotten luck to run into a mugger! Oh, man, I regret doing this. I knew I should’ve stopped following Bonnie when it got dark. Otherwise, I wouldn’t have ended up in this dark alley and got mugged. Fortunately, he’s only after my valuables.”

The mugger looked at Jordynn from head to toe and said lewdly, “You’re packing a good pair there.”

“N–No, I gave you everything. I swear!”

“Heh heh heh, I’ll see for myself. Let me search you, little lady.” The mugger motioned to grab Jordynn’s bosom.

She was so frightened that she instinctively flung her bag at him. She got lucky and hit his head, causing him to yell in surprise. That was when Jordynn turned and fled the scene.

“Stop, you bitch! I’ll make you regret it if you keep running!” The mugger held hi Bonnie heard the commotion and saw Jordynn desperately running toward her, “Bonnie, run! Get out of

Bonnie saw the mugger behind Jordynn and realized what had happened. It appeared she was right about Jordynn following her. The former also realized Jordynn could have run and left her at the mugger’s mercy to save herself. Instead, Jordynn warned Bonnie about the mugger.

The former realized Bonnie froze. Jordynn yelled, "Hurry up and run, Bonnie! He might be alone, but he has a knife! He might have some friends hiding around here, too. What are you waiting for? Run!"

Suddenly, Jordynn tripped and fell. "Argh! That hurt!"

Chapter38

Her face reddened as sweat rolled down her cheeks. She held her feet and curled up on the ground, on the verge of tears.

The mugger finally caught up and said, "Aww, why aren't you running anymore? I just wanted to search. you for valuables."

Tears blurred Jordynn's vision. Soon after, it cleared up, and she saw Bonnie.

Jordynn's eyes widened as she wondered, 'What in the world is she thinking? It's bad enough she didn't run, but she's even serving herself to him on a silver platter!"

"Well, damn, pretty lady. How're you doing? It looks like I'm having a threesome tonight!" The mugger observed Bonnie's figure lewdly.

The exasperated Jordynn looked at Bonnie and said, "I told you to run, but you wouldn't listen. Now look what-"

Suddenly, Bonnie kicked the mugger, sending him flying.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 342

Chapter 342

Sebastian was cautious with several concerns, while Jordynn was his polar opposite. She was worry-free and typically spoke her mind.

I used to think Bonnie was a good-for-nothing with a poor character. I didn't think she was good enough for Ivor. However, I've learned that every rumor about her is unfounded. She's talented and noble. Also, she's knowledgeable in medicine."

"She has medical knowledge?" Sebastian looked at Bonnie curiously.

"That's right! Not only that, she's also excellent at it. I dislocated my foot yesterday, and she pushed it back into place."

Ivor turned to squint at Bonnie when he heard that.

Sebastian joked, "I'm surprised you're so talented at such a young age. No wonder Ivor fell for you. After all, he's dense and never showed much interest in girls."

"That's enough, Sebastian! I'll leave you and Ivor to it and take Bonnie to the orchard now. Oh, right! Tell me when Dr. Fanelli arrives!" Jordynn said excitedly before leaving.

Under normal circumstances, Bonnie would have sunk her teeth into the various fruits in the orchard. However, she felt troubled and had to slip away quickly. Otherwise, Fanelli would never show up at the

"Jordynn, my stomach's feeling a little funny. Where's the restroom?"

Jordynn worriedly looked at Bonnie's belly and asked, "Did you eat something your tummy doesn't agree with? Are you okay? I can call the family doctor if you want."

Bonnie said smilingly, "You're forgetting I have medical knowledge. There's nothing to worry about. Like you said, I might've just eaten something that doesn't sit well with me. A trip to the restroom should take care of it."

Jordynn was relieved to hear that. She pointed to the hallway on their left and said, "The restroom's over there. Come on, I'll show you the way."

"That won't be necessary. You can go out front and wait for Dr. Fanelli. He might show up soon." Bonnie's words made Jordynn's heart race.

“Fine, I’ll go wait for him out front. Promise me you’ll call me if you’re feeling too bad.”

“Okay, I promise. Now, go on.” Bonnie watched as Jordynn left. Immediately after the latter disappeared around the corner, Bonnie climbed out of the orchard. She landed near a bag she had hidden in the bushes earlier.

She then retrieved the clothes in the bag and disguised herself as Fanelli before going to the main entrance. When she reached the gate, she saw an excited Jordynn running over to welcome her.

“You’re finally here, Dr. Fanelli! I’ve been waiting for you for so long. What was the holdup? Were you stuck in traffic?” Jordynn said with a big smile.

“Yeah, traffic was terrible.” Bonnie then sensed someone else staring at her. She steadied herself and turned to see who it was. Of course, it was Ivor with an inexplicable emotion in his eyes.

Sebastian patted Ivor’s shoulder and said, “They say it’s much easier for a girl to win a man’s heart than vice versa. Considering how enthusiastic Jordynn is, it’s safe to say she’ll win over Dr. Fanelli soon.”

“What do you mean?” Sebastian was surprised.

Instead of explaining himself, Ivor took his phone and called Bonnie. “We’re sorry. The person you called. is unavailable. Please try again later.”

Although Bonnie looked like she was chatting with Jordynn, the former monitored Ivor out of the corner of her eye. She noticed him using his phone. However, she could not see what was on his phone screen since she stood some distance away.

Still, she guessed it was likely he was trying to call her. Fortunately, she had expected it and turned off her phone.

Since Ivor had failed to call Bonnie, he approached Jordynn and asked, “Where’s Bonnie? I thought she was just with you.”

“She had a tummy issue and went to the restroom.”

“Tummy issues?” Ivor frowned. “Which one did she go to?”

Ivor tucked his phone back into his pocket and said, “I’ll go and look for her.”

Immediately after, he strode toward the orchard. With that, he walked briskly toward the orchard.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 343

Chapter 343

Bonnie was speechless as she watched Ivor leave. Although she had been “In the toilet” for a minute, he could not wait for her to come out.

The blushing Jordynn leaned closer to Bonnie and asked, “I need a favor from you, Dr. Fanelli,” ‘Jeez, I’m the one who needs help around here.’

“You’re the only one who can help me with it, Doc. My life will end if you don’t give me a hand.”

“That sounds serious. I wonder what it could be.”

“What do you need help with?”

Jordynn glanced at Sebastian and pulled her aside. “Ezequiel Acosta, the family’s third son, is my childhood friend. He’s been clinging to me since childhood, but I never liked that. He has been confessing his love to me occasionally.

“I’ve turned him down countless times, but he just won’t take no for an answer. He said he’d marry me one way or the another.”

Bonnie asked, “So, how do I factor into this?”

“Hehe.” Jordynn looked at “Bonnie’s” attractive face and smiled at her swooningly. “I want you to be my boyfriend to deter Ezequiel.”

Bonnie’s eyes widened as she said, “Sorry, I can’t do that.”

“You’re a man. Of course, you can ‘do’ it.”

Bonnie did not have a good comeback for that.

Jordynn added, “I’m talking about making it real or anything. I’m just asking you to pretend. That way, Ezequiel will stop bugging me.”

Jordynn thought, ‘It might not be real now, but an act can sometimes turn into reality.’”

“Umm, you should find another guy to help you with this. I have somewhere to be now.” Bonnie glanced after Ivor and thought, I know how fast he walks, and he’s probably reaching the restroom any second now and will realize I’m not there. I can’t dilly-dally. I have to go back.”

Bonnie was about to leave, but Jordynn held her arm tightly, saying, “I don’t have time to find another guy. Ezequiel might be annoying, but he’s quite handsome. He won’t give up if I get a random guy to help me.”

“Why don’t you find someone more handsome than him and get it over with? It’s not that hard to find ant attractive guy, right?”

“The problem isn’t finding someone more good-looking than Ezequiel. The Acostas are one of the wealthiest and most prestigious families in Pyralis. Also, his grandfather was a general who led armies into battle in the warring days.

“Ezequiel won’t be intimidated if I find a regular good-looking guy to not like my boyfriend. On the other hand, you’re a renowned miracle doctor whoan reputation in widely known across Arvador

“You also built your career yourself. Ezequiel will give up bugging me if you pretend to be my boyfriend, Jordynn held Bonnie tighter, fearing she might sprint off

“I don’t get why you refuse to be with him. After all, his family is powerful, he’s handsome, and he’s loyal to you. For Heaven’s sake, he has loved you since childhood.” Bonnie was puzzled and worried.

“He’s too rugged–looking!” The thought of spending her life with someone like that made Jordynn shudder. She could not accept it.

“I’m sorry, what?” Bonnie was uncharacteristically rude after hearing Jordynn’s baffling excuse.

‘She could’ve said something was wrong with his character or morals, but no. She’s saying he’s too rugged -looking. I just can’t with her.’

“That’s where you differ, Dr. Fanelli. I love guys who look like pretty boys.” Jordynn admired Bonnie’s glowing face and resisted the urge to pinch it.

The latter’s lips twitched as she asked, “Why do I feel you’re mocking me?”

“Why would I do that? I’m complimenting you. You’re so fair that you’re glowing. Although I’m also fair- skinned, yours is far clearer than mine. I’ve met plenty of ladies, but none are fairer than you.” Jordynn

*Just how rugged–looking is he? I thought you said he’s attractive.”

“Ruggedness has nothing to do with good looks. He’s the most handsome, rugged man I’ve seen. Still, that’s just not my preference.”

Jordynn held her head, looking as if she was about to fall apart, which piqued Bonnie’s interest. The latter wondered just how rugged Jordynn’s childhood friend looked.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 344

Bonnie was amidst her thoughts when Jordynn's eyes widened. Suddenly, the latter turned and muttered, "Speak of the devil. Here he comes."

"It seems this Ezequiel guy is about to make an appearance. Let's see just how rugged he looks."

Bonnie turned and saw Ezequiel. She would have missed him without seeing his eyes and teeth. As Jordynn said, the man was rugged-looking, but even so, he was handsome.

"Jordynn, what are you doing here? I've been looking all over for you," Ezequiel said as he handed her a bouquet of roses.

Jordynn instinctively held "Bonnie's" waist, shocked as she thought, "Woah, he has a slender waist. It feels rather firm and tight. I like it!"

"I was chatting with Dr. Fanelli."

Ezequiel's eyes widened. "Wh—what are you doing, Jordynn? Take your hands off him! You're a lady, for crying out loud. You'll ruin your reputation if someone sees you holding him like that."

"What are you talking about? I love Dr. Fanelli. I plan on marrying him," the more Jordynn spoke, the more excited she became. She even tightened her grip around Bonnie's waist.

Meanwhile, Bonnie noticed Ezequiel glaring at her. She realized he resented her for snatching his potential future wife away.

"Knock it off, Jordynn," Bonnie plucked Jordynn's hand off her waist.

*She can deal with her problems, especially since I have my own to handle.

Before Bonnie knew it, Jordynn clung to her like a koala. "No way, you're the only man I'll marry."

The former gasped internally. Bonnie did not have to look at Ezequiel to know he was glaring daggers at her. Bonnie said, "You shouldn't joke about these things."

“I’m not joking!” Jordynn spoke much louder than she intended, shocking everyone around them. She confidently added, “I swear I spoke the truth just now. You’re the only one I’ll marry. If I go back on my words, I’ll die a horrible- Mmph? Mmph!”

Bonnie covered Jordynn’s mouth. It was too scary to think what could have happened if she were just a second slower. Soon after, she released Jordynn, and the latter looked at her with embarrassment. “Since you touched my lips, I’m basically your fiancée now.”

Bonnie did not know what to say at that point. She checked the time and realized it had been twenty minutes since Ivor went looking for her.

“Ivor’s probably getting ready to break down that restroom door now.”

Meanwhile, Ivor waited at the female restroom door, wondering. ‘What’s taking her so long?’

“Bonnie, are you in there?!” Since no one answered, he checked his watch and thought, ‘I’ll give her five more minutes. If she doesn’t answer me, I’m going in.”

Bonnie withdrew her arms from Jordynn and said, “My stomach’s feeling funny. I need to use the restroom.”

‘Jordynn won’t stop using me to ward off Ezequiel. There’s nothing I can say to make him believe there’s nothing between her and me.’

“Why’s everyone’s stomach feeling funny tonight?” Jordynn could only watch as Bonnie left.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 345

Chapter 345

Ezequiel stood in Jordynn's line of sight as the latter watched Bonnie leave. "Are you serious, Jordynn?"

You're in love with him?

"Do you think I'd joke about something like that?" Jordynn asked instead of giving him a straight answer

N-No, you can't do that. We're Jordynn cut him off before he could finish, "We're just childhood friends, Ezequiel. I've always considered you a close friend. I didn't want to be so nasty toward you, but you're annoying sometimes

I tried telling you nicely, but you always said I'm the only one you loved. I had to give you the cold shoulder to make you give up on me

Jordynn sighed heavily, not knowing what else to do. She held his hand and said, "Can't we just be friends? I liked everything about you until you started confessing your love for me. You're kind-hearted, humble, and friendly

You've always gotten good grades, and you're doing exceptionally well at work. You have so many good qualities I can't bear to lose a friend like you."

Ezequiel lowered his head and looked at Jordynn's hands. He was thrilled about her holding his hands but could not accept what she had just said.

"No, I refuse to be just your friend. I want to marry you and have babies with you. I won't give up, Jordynn. I'll keep trying to win your heart unless you're married to someone else." Ezequiel withdrew his hands and chased after Bonnie.

Jordynn rubbed her hands together and muttered, "Is he seriously mad at me? Jeez."

It was the first time he had been so mad at her.

Five minutes later, Ivor shouted into the female restroom, “Bonnie, are you there?! I’ll come in if you don’t answer me!”

When no one answered, he entered the restroom without hesitation. At that moment, Bonnie arrived and saw him entering.

Ivor squinted and exited the restroom soon after, muttering. “Where is she?”

Then, he saw Bonnie, still disguised as Fanelli, standing outside the restroom. Ivor asked, “What are you doing here, Dr. Fanelli?”

“Umm...” Before Bonnie could reply, he interjected.

“Are you going to tell me you’ll be using the restroom?” Ivor looked at “Bonnie” from head to toe. “There are restrooms near the entrance, Doc. You didn’t have to come this far for a restroom.”

‘Ivor is such an intelligent man. He must’ve guessed something’s amiss and is now questioning me.’

Chase 145

“Jordynn told me there’s a huge orchard in the back. So, I came to check it out before using the restroom.”

“Oh, is that so?”

Bonnie could tell from his tone that he did not buy what she was trying to sell. Ivor asked, “I thought you said you were here for the restroom. What are you waiting for, Doc?”

“I’m about to head in now.”

Ivor kept staring at her.

‘This is tricky. Since I’m disguised as a man, I can’t enter the female restroom, especially not when he’s staring me down.’

Fortunately, the restrooms by the orchard were far from the main part of the house. Hence, almost no one would be using them. When she entered the male restroom, she realized Ivor followed suit.

Ivor continued to probe, “Why are you looking at me like that, Doc? I need to use the restroom, too. Is there something wrong with that?”

“Oh, it’s no problem at all.”

“Well, things just got trickier.”

Suddenly, he grabbed her arm and said, “The urinals are over there. Where are you going?”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 346

Chapter 346

Ivor led Bonnie to the urinals. Although she was a tough and composed lady, she did not know how to react.

“Why aren’t you pulling down your pants?” Ivor asked as he casually monitored her reaction. When she turned to look at him, he was already unfastening his belt at a urinal.

Ivor pulled Bonnie over to the urinals.

“I—I’m going number two.” Bonnie opened the door and closed it immediately after, not daring to waste another second.

Ivor smirked as he looked at the closed door. He fastened his belt, leaned on the edge of the sink, and gazed at the door quietly. Five minutes later, Bonnie opened the door and saw him standing by the sink, seemingly waiting for her.

“Ivor, you’re still here?”

He stepped forward and leaned close to Bonnie, saying, "Since it's your first time here, I was concerned you couldn't find your way back to the party. I stayed back to help you."

"Oh, okay. Thanks, I guess."

"No problem, Doc. Come on, let's go."

Bonnie glanced at him, thinking, 'I'm sure I'm not imagining things, but I can't help but think he's treating me differently from before. He keeps looking at me weirdly."

She was so lost in her thoughts that she almost bumped into someone walking toward her. Fortunately,

Ivor reacted quickly and grabbed her shoulder to pull her back.

Bonnie looked up and saw Ezequiel. The latter looked at her as if she was his rival. He said, "Jordynn and I are childhood friends. We're destined to be together. I hope you'll back out of your relationship with her."

"Sure, I'll do just that." Bonnie nodded.

However, Ezequiel was stunned. 'Hmm, I thought he'd put up a fight and prepared to talk him down. It looks like that was unnecessary, after all. Still, I don't know what he's thinking."

"A—Are you serious," Ezequiel asked.

Bonnie replied solemnly, "Of course I am. You two are a perfect match, and she told me you come from an exceptional family. You're tough and talented in many ways. You're also handsome. I'm rooting for you, Mr. Ezequiel."

Considering her tone, he could not detect a note of sarcasm or trickery. It seemed "Bonnie" gave him her genuine blessings.

"Don't you love Jordynn, Dr. Fanelli?"

"I do," Bonnie's response unnerved him. However, she added, "She's outspoken and pretty. It'd be tough not to like her. Still, I don't love her as much as you do. I love her in a more sisterly way."

Ezequiel felt like he had just gone through an emotional roller coaster. He said, "I can sense you're telling the truth. That's a load off my mind. I'm sorry for bothering you, Dr. Fanelli."

Bonnie noticed he was about to leave and stopped him. "That's it? I might not have loved Jordynn that way, but she has real feelings for me."

Ezequiel's heart leaped into his throat. He looked at "Bonnie," who looked better than him and thought about how she was also the miracle doctor. After some thought, he knew Jordynn was crazy about the doctor.

'Things aren't looking good for me!'

Bonnie asked, "Do you know why she wouldn't give you a chance?"

Ezequiel's eyes widened. "Do you?"

She glanced at him and said truthfully. "She told me it's because of your rugged looks."

Ezequiel's jaw dropped. Moments later, he smiled bitterly, saying, "I can't help it if I was born that way. It's in my family's genes."

"Your family?"

"Yeah, all of the Acostas are rugged-looking. Ezequiel rubbed his face dejectedly.

Bonnie asked, "Have you tried facial creams?"

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 347

Chapter 347

“I would’ve done that in a heartbeat if it worked.”

Bonnie extended her hand and said, “Give me your wrist.”

“What do you think you’re doing?” Ivor’s expression turned cold.

“Huh? Is he jealous of Ezequiel?” Bonnie looked at Ivor from head to toe. That can’t be right. I’m disguised as Dr. Fanelli, a guy.”

Ezequiel asked, “Are you going to check my pulse?”

“Mhm.”

He sighed heavily, saying, “I don’t doubt your medical skills, but I was born this way. There’s nothing you can do about genes.”

“Are you sure about that? You’re not the doctor here, I am.” Bonnie checked his wrist pulse and knitted her brow.

Ezequiel saw her expression and sighed again. “Don’t bother, Doctor. I’m okay with looking rugged for the rest of my life.”

Bonnie released his hand and said, “Sure, you can get used to it. Then, you’d have to kiss Jordynn goodbye. You said it’s your family’s genes, right? Don’t you think she’d be worried about having a rugged-looking baby like you?

“That could be her exact concern. That’s why she’ll never accept you, no matter how hard you try to impress her.”

Ezequiel was worried when he heard that. “W–Well, what should I do? I can’t just change the way I look.”

Bonnie chuckled. “That won’t be necessary. I’ll just prescribe you some medicine.”

“H–How do you cure rugged looks?”

“You should see some improvements after a week.” Although Bonnie said a week, she id that to be on the safe side. “Your family genes might be too strong. So, a full transformation might take at least six months.”

Ezequiel felt so moved that he held Bonnie’s hands tremblingly. “Thank you, Dr. Fanelli! I’ll be indebted to you if you can cure my rugged looks. I’ll follow your instructions to the tee.”

Ivor pried his hand off Bonnie’s and said, “You don’t have to hold him so tightly. What’ll you do if you hurt him?”

Just then, Ezequiel noticed how fair and smooth Fanelli’s hands were. “Your hands are so fair and soft, Dr. Fanelli. I swear, they look and feel better than women’s hands. Do you make your traditional concoction of medicine??

“I was born with soft skin,” Bonnie said truthfully.

Chapter 347

Ezequiel felt slightly hurt by her answer.

‘Come on, we’re men who carry our families’ genes. So, why am I so rugged while he’s fair?’

Meanwhile, Jordynn patiently awaited Fanelli’s return at the party hall. She muttered, “That’s strange. Where’s Dr. Fanelli? I don’t see him around anymore, and Ezequiel’s run off, too.”

A lady brushed past her and heard what she said. She asked, “Are you looking for Ezequiel? I think I just saw him with Dr. Fanelli a minute ago.”

‘Crap! Is Ezequiel picking a fight with Dr. Fanelli? Jordynn exclaimed inwardly, ‘Dr. Fanelli looks thin, frail, and very gentlemanly. What’ll I do if Ezequiel lets his anger take over and he does something stupid?’

The more Jordynn thought about it, the more worried she became. She then bolted out of the hall and toward the place the lady had pointed at earlier. After taking just a few steps, she saw Ezequiel walking behind “Bonnie.”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 348

Chapter 348

“If you need anything, please don’t hesitate to call me, Dr. Fanelli. I’ll be there before you know it. That reminds me. Where do you stay? Do you like where you live? I can arrange another villa for you if you need it.

“Do you know where Lenfield Resort is? My family owns a villa there. If it’s all right with you, I can get the keys for you right now.”

Jordynn froze when she saw Ezequiel and Fanelli acting like they were buddies. Jordynn had to pinch her thighs to ensure she was not hallucinating. “Oof, that hurt. Okay, I’m not dreaming.”

Ezequiel heard her and ran over immediately. “What’s wrong? Did you feel a sudden pain? Show me where it hurts.”

Jordynn’s lip twitched when she saw how passionate and thoughtful he was. “No, that’s okay. I feel fine.” “Are you sure? I heard you yelping earlier. Are you too embarrassed to show me where it hurts? Come on, we’ve known each other since childhood.” Ezequiel checked her from head to toe, worried.

Jordynn cocked her head and rolled her eyes. She pointed at her inner thigh and said, “It hurt here. Are you going to check on that?”

Ezequiel blushed and stuttered, “U–Umm, I can do it if you give me your consent. A– After all, we’ll get married in the future. So, I guess that makes it okay.”

Jordynn did not know how to respond, so she ignored him. She approached Bonnie and whispered, “Did Ezequiel look for you just now, Dr. Fanelli?”

“Yeah, he did.”

“Did he treat you poorly? After all, you two are supposed to be love rivals. I thought he’d resent you.”

Bonnie rolled her eyes at Jordynn, saying, “So, you knew what you were doing. Why would you use me to get rid of him?”

“Uh, hehehe!” Jordynn chuckled embarrassedly. “Well, he’s fundamentally a nice guy. Although he might consider you a love rival, he won’t do anything outrageous. Come on, I’m irrious about why you two look like buddies now.

“Also, did he just say he’ll let you stay in one of his family’s villas at Lenfield Resort? That place is just as upscale as Lakemirage Heights now. The latter is the most upscale neighborhood in Pyralis. That means every villa in Lenfield Resort is highly valuable.

“Do you want to know something crazier? I heard Reuben designed each villa in Lenfield Resort. That’s why all the wealthy people in Pyralis–no, everyone in Arvador–want a place there. Not even my family can afford it.

“I can’t believe Ezequiel offered you one of his family’s resorts. Why would he do that? Although, hist family might disagree with it.” Jordynn looked at Bonnie in disbelief.

Chapter 348

The latter said dryly, “Perhaps he offered it to me because I can help with his rugged looks.”

Jordynn

in was shocked. “You truly are a miracle doctor. Just how good are you, Dr. Fanelli?”

Bonnie merely smiled at her. Then, Ezequiel came over and looked at the duo. Although he knew Bonnie had no emotional attachments to Jordynn, he could not help but feel jealous when he saw his beloved swoon at the miracle doctor.

“Over here, Jordynn. I have something to tell you.”

“Gosh, what is it? Why can’t you just tell me here?” Jordynn wanted to stay close to Fanelli. She could not afford to waste a single moment.

Ezequiel shared a look with Bonnie, signaling her to help him out. The latter chuckled helplessly and said, I’ll leave you two to it. I have to go over there anyway.”

Bonnie went to the pool area, not giving Jordynn a chance to stop her. The former thought she had finally gotten rid of Jordynn, but she was unaware that an even bigger headache was approaching.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 349

Chapter 349

A group of ladies swarmed Bonnie.

“Dr. Fanelli, how old are you? I must say, you look young. Do you have a girlfriend? What kind of girls do you like?”

“My dad wanted me to ask if you’re willing to marry someone from my family. Since I’m the only daughter, he’ll let you take over our family business if you marry me.”

The ladies barraged Bonnie with questions. She wanted to leave, but they packed in too tightly. She could not escape, and the circle grew narrower by the second. Ultimately, it got so bad that she could not even stand properly.

Everyone pushed against each other, trying to get closer to Bonnie. That was the only way they could make their proposals to her.

Suddenly, one of the ladies tripped and fell into the pool. Before she fell, she instinctively grabbed the closest person to her. Soon after, everyone fell into the pool together.

Splash, splash! Splash!

The noise drew everyone else's attention. Jordynn glanced toward the pool and noticed Fanelli was not there. She shouted worriedly, "Shit! Someone, help! Dr. Fanelli fell into the pool!"

Immediately after, Ivor ran past Jordynn and dove into the pool. She was baffled, wondering how close Ivor was to Fanelli.

Bonnie knew how to swim, but a chubby lady fell on her. It caused Bonnie to fall to the bottom of the pool, leading to a cramp in Bonnie's calf. Hence, she struggled to swim to the surface. As she began to panic, a familiar figure swam toward her.

It was Ivor.

Meanwhile, Bonnie's consciousness began to fade, and her vision blurred. Ivor realized "Bonnie" was in grave danger and gave her mouth-to-mouth underwater.

Splash!

The duo emerged from the pool. Ivor lay Bonnie by the edge and removed his blazer to put it over her.

Jordynn was anxious when she saw the unconscious Bonnie. "How's Dr. Fanelli doing? Will he be okay?"

Ivor held Bonnie tightly, his expression stern as he exclaimed, "Find him a doctor, now!"

"I-I'll go now!"

Soon after, a doctor arrived. He looked at Ivor and said, "Please put him down slowly, Mr. Ivor."

However, Ivor held Bonnie tighter, saying, "Just check on him, will you?"

The doctor was stunned, but he had to check on Fanelli now. Jordynn was stumped as she leaned closer to Ezequiel and whispered, "Don't you think Ivor is a little too worried about Dr. Fanelli? Do you think they're lovers?"

Jordynn supported most couples, but only when the couple did not involve someone she liked.

Ezequiel said, "Now that you mention it, I saw Ivor and Dr. Fanelli leaving the restroom together. Also, Ivor seemed unhappy when I got slightly too close to Dr. Fanelli."

Jordynn slowly turned and stared at Ivor.

“C—Come on, really?!” she gulped, adding, “I thought Ivor was in love with Bonnie.”

Ezequiel shrugged. After all, he did not know the details between the two.

“Huh?” The doctor gasped and stared at Bonnie. Immediately after, he met Ivor’s fierce gaze.

The latter asked, “Do you want me to claw your eyes out?”

The doctor averted his gaze and said, “D—Dr. Fanelli’s okay. He should wake up soon.”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 350

Chapter 350

A moment later, Bonnie coughed several times and regained consciousness. The first thing she saw was Ivor’s concerned gaze. She had never seen him look at anyone else like that, except her real self.

‘I knew it. He saw through my disguise.’

“Are you okay? Do you feel any pain? Tell me if you are.”

Bonnie smiled faintly and said, “I’m okay.”

“Are you sure?”

“You’re forgetting I’m a doctor. I should know whether or not something’s wrong.” Her words made Ivor feel much better.

He said, “I’ll take you home now.”

“Okay.”

Ivor swooped her up and bridal carried her. Meanwhile, something felt wrong for Jordynn. She asked, "Are you trying to compete with me for Dr. Fanelli's heart?"

"You're the one who's competing with me in the first place," Ivor retorted solemnly and gave her a warning look.

"Uh..." Jordynn was stunned and took a while to regain her consciousness.

Sebastian came over and patted his sister's shoulder.

Jordynn was on the verge of tears as she asked, "Why did Ivor suddenly fall for Dr. Fanelli? I thought he was in love with Bonnie. Now that he's a thing with the doctor, what does it mean for Bonnie? Hell, what does it mean for me?"

Sebastian could not decide if she should laugh or cry. He looked at his sister and asked, "With everything that has happened, how are you still not noticing it?"

"What do you mean? Ivor and Dr. Fanelli are in love with each other."

Suddenly, Sebastian flicked her forehead.

"Ouch! Why'd you do that? It hurt,"

"I did that because you aren't using your brain."

"What does that mean?" Jordynn questioned as she rubbed her forehead.

"Have you seen Ivor that concerned about anyone besides Bonnie?"

Jordynn replied, "Yeah, Dr. Fanelli! Everyone saw it, Sebastian. What's the point of that question?"

Sebastian felt the urge to flick her forehead again but did not. Instead, he shook his head and said, "You're beyond help. It's a wonder how you got into Pyralis University."

Jordynn did not feel embarrassed. She confidently retorted, "You should know that better than anyone else. I wouldn't have gotten in if Dad hadn't spent all that money,"

'Forget it. I should save my breath. Talking to her is giving me a headache,' with that thought in mind, Sebastian turned and left.

"H-Hey, where are you going?! What do you mean by what you said earlier?!"

Ezequiel grabbed Jordynn's arm and said, "Sebastian's trying to tell you that Bonnie is Dr. Fanelli."

“Huh? What are you talking about? Can you repeat that?” Jordynn thought she should make an appointment with a doctor to check her ears.

“It explains why Ivor was so worried about Dr. Fanelli.” Ezequiel marveled at that revelation. Simultaneously, his words also served as a revelation for Jordynn.

“No wonder Bonnie wanted to use the restroom. I never saw them in the same room either. It also explains everything that happened after she arrived. It turns out Bonnie was Dr. Fanelli all along.”

“No wonder she had a medical journal in her bag. The remarks and insights in it were profound, too. Does that mean I wasted time trying to win Dr. Fanelli’s heart?” Although disheartened, Jordynn felt somewhat exhilarated.

Meanwhile, Ezequiel was overjoyed, thinking, ‘Jordynn will have to give up on Dr. Fanelli now.’”

As the couple sat in the car, Bonnie felt uneasy by how Ivor stared at her. She asked, “Are you done? Do you think I like being stared at?”

Ivor lit up and held her hand. “I had my suspicions for a long time. I just didn’t think it was possible. How could someone possess so many talents? Also, you’re profoundly proficient with all your skills, Bonnie, do you have other talents I don’t know about? I’m curious about you!”

Chapter 351

That’s enough, Ivor. Keep your eyes on the road, or you’ll get us killed Bonnie withdrew her hand from

Ivor's

The latter said delightfully, "Don't worry about it. I have steady hands."

"What is that even supposed to mean?"

Bonnie felt he was insinuating something else, but she did not question him. If she knew him like she thought she did, he would turn it into a dirty joke.

Soon after, Ivor stopped at a traffic light and stared at Bonnie, asking. "Who do you think is better looking? Ezequiel or me?"

His question reminded Bonnie of how much she complimented Ezequiel earlier. She even wondered if was getting jealous again.

"That's a dumb question " Bonnie was exasperated.

Even so, he pushed her for an answer, "Come on, I'm curious about it. Do you think I look more handsome than Ezequiel?"

Bonnie palmed her head. Her headache worsened as she looked at Ivor, who was staring at her and awaiting her answer, "Damn it, Ivor. Have a little more faith in yourself. Ezequiel might be good-looking. but he isn't as handsome as you are. Are you happy now?"

Ivor revealed a brilliant smile when he heard that. His smile was so charming that Bonnie's heart almost skipped a beat.

Two weeks passed, and Bonnie had a peaceful life. Trina did not get in her way on campus, while the Rhodes and the Shepards did not overstep their boundaries

Bonnie had just finished her lunch when Orpheus called her, "What's up, Bonwick? Do you remember ho your novel was adapted into a TV drama? I have some exciting news for you. I'll be the male lead!"

His words surprised Bonnie. She said, "You're the lead actor? The hero in my novel is a descendant of an angel and a demon. Heaven and Hell can't tolerate his existence. Are you sure you can stay true to his character?

"He harbors resentment and wants revenge by wiping out all life in the three realms. However, his conscience won't let him do something so atrocious. Can you portray such conflicting inner thoughts?"

“Why do you have such a low opinion of me, Bonwick? What makes you think I can’t pull it off? I’m the best actor, after all.” Orpheus felt slightly offended.

“I didn’t mean anything bad. None of the characters you played was this complex. There’s also your personality to consider. Also, you aren’t exactly-

Orpheus interjected, “Hold it right there! Do you honestly think I’m that ill-suited to play your character?”

Chapte/351

“Um, well...” After some thought, she said, “Now that I think about it, your looks resemble my initial design for the main character.”

“Do

Do you even have to consider that, Bonwick? Come on, you’re hurting me. I think I’m bleeding because of your sharp tongue.” Orpheus groaned. “The shooting starts in a few days. You’re coming because I want to prove how gifted I am.”

He

e was so persistent that Bonnie could not help but agree. She could only clear her schedule and go to the film set.

Three days passed in the blink of an eye. After breakfast, Bonnie went to the filming set. When she reached the entrance, the guard stopped her. The guard noticed how pretty she was and spoke to her politely.

“Is there a reason you’re at this filming set, miss? I can’t just let any passerby in.”

I’m here for Orpheus. We’re buddies. He probably told you about my arrival, right?”

The guards exchanged glances and looked at Bonnie from head to toe.

‘Orpheus had an affair with someone recently. In this hor?’”

Bonnie noticed their silence and frowned, saying, “Did he forget to tell you guys I’d be visiting? Give me a minute while I call him.”

One of the guards said, “That won’t be necessary, miss. Mr. Orpheus told us about you. You’re Ms. Bonnie, right?”

“Yeah, that’s me.” Bonnie nodded.

“This way, please.”

Once she turned a corner, the other guard made a call. “Hello, Ms. Tatiana, Ms. Bonnie has arrived,”

Tatiana was touching up her makeup when she received the call. Her expression turned cold as she asked indifferently. “Did you guys let her in?”

“I’m sorry, Ms. Tatiana. We had no choice since Mr. Orpheus told us to let her in.”

“Where’s she now?” She asked as she admired her manicured nails.

“She just came in a minute ago. If you come over now, you might bump into her.”

“What does she look like? Do you have a picture?”

“I didn’t have a chance to take her picture. Still, that should be the least of your worries. You’ll notice her as soon as you see her,” the guard said confidently.

“How are you so sure?”

The guard patted his chest and replied, “She’s so gorgeous that a sea of men would fall for her. Only a few from the entertainment industry can compare to Ms. Bonnie’s beauty. Also, she has an extraordinarily elegant demeanor.

“That makes her noticeable even if she blends into a crowd. That’s why I’m sure you’ll notice her immediately.”

Tatiana lost interest in her fingernails, asking. “Is she that pretty? Do you think she’s prettier than me?”

The guard’s heart leaped into his throat. “That’s not possible, Ms. Tatiana! You’re the gorgeous rising star, after all. You also come from a prestigious family. Your parents and grandparents are outstanding painters. You have a natural artistic aura that Ms. Bonnie can never compare to.”

Although the guard said that, he inwardly cursed Tatiana.

Chapter 952

‘There’s nothing great about a family of prestigious painters. I don’t know how the other Osbornes are, but Tatiana is an unreasonable and unforgiving pig-headed bully. She’s no stranger to using her status in the industry to put people down.’

Tatiana grunted and kicked her assistant, who was putting on her shoes for her. The former scolded, “Why are you so rough?! Are you trying to break my ankles?!”

The assistant fell backward and covered her chest. Although she was in tremendous pain, she hastily ‘apologized, “I’m sorry, Ms. Tatiana. Please forgive me. I didn’t mean to do that. I’ll be more cautious next time.”

“What are you waiting for? Hurry up and put on my shoes! Why did I hire you if you can’t do such a simple task?”

The assistant was furious, thinking, ‘You’re being uncooperative by not lifting your damn leg. If you did, the shoes would’ve slipped right in.’

“Why are you looking at me like that?” Tatiana squinted at her assistant, questioning, “Do you have something to say?”

“I would never!”

“Of course not! Don’t forget that you’re no longer a Church family member. Your dad and his mistress have kicked you and your mom out of the house. Your mom even has a condition, and you need a large amount of money for her treatment.

“I pity you, Nancy. You helped me a lot before you got kicked out of your family. You supported me and gave me what I have today. Otherwise, I wouldn’t have pitied you and given you such a well-paying job as my assistant. You should be thankful to me. If I fire you, the hospital might stop your mom’s treatment.”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 353

Chapter 353

Nancy felt beaten when she heard Tatiana’s words. The former lowered her head and did her job, putting on Tatiana’s shoes for her.

At that moment, Nancy resembled an obedient dog, pleasing Tatiana so much that she lifted her chin. The latter was once an insignificant actress. However, she buttered Nancy up to gain more resources.

Ultimately, Tatiana became successful and intended to show Nancy how it felt to be inferior.

“Your shoes are on now,” Nancy said as she kept her head down.

“Okay, let’s go. You’re coming with me to see just how pretty Bonnie is. I won’t let her seduce Orpheus. He’s mine!” Tatiana growled.

Bonnie was walking around the film set when Tatiana stopped her.

“Is there something I can help you with?” Bonnie could sense Tatiana was not there to make friends. After all, the latter looked at Bonnie disdainfully as if the latter were an insignificant pest.

“Are

you Bonnie?” Tatiana asked as she looked at the young lady from top to bottom. The former’s menacing expression became increasingly apparent.

It seemed the guard did not exaggerate Bonnie’s looks. She was so breathtakingly beautiful that Tatiana felt jealous.

“Do we know each other?” Bonnie frowned, her dislike for Tatiana growing.

“Hmph, it’s hard not to know you, Bonnie! You made huge messes several weeks ago. Not only did your family disown you, but you were also intimate with Orpheus and a male prostitute at a bar.”

Bonnie coldly responded, “What’s your beef with me?”

Tatiana stepped forward to intimidate Bonnie. However, the former immediately realized how much shorter she was than Bonnie and felt awkward.

Tatiana said, “I’m Orpheus’s girlfriend, so you’d be wise to keep your distance from him. Otherwise, I’ll show you what regret means.”

Bonnie raised her brow and smirked. “He doesn’t have a girlfriend, and you don’t deserve to be his. What’s your name? When I see him later, I’ll tell him to avoid repulsive women like you. Otherwise, he’ll regret it big time.”

“I dare you to repeat that!” Tatiana pointed at Bonnie.

‘I told this bitch to keep her distance from Orpheus, yet she’s threatening to tell him to avoid me!’

Suddenly, Bonnie grabbed Tatiana’s finger, causing the latter to scream in pain, “Ow, that hurts! Let me go now!”

“I’ll do it if you apologize to me.” Bonnie would not allow anyone to insult her and get away with it.

Chapter 53

“Why should I apologize?! All of Arvandor knows you seduced Orpheus and slept with a male prostitute-

Bonnie tightened her grip on Tatiana’s finger.

“Gah! You’re about to break my finger, you bitch! Let go of me right now!” Tatiana screamed in pain as she grimaced.

agonizing

The onlookers were shocked. They did not expect the fragile-looking young lady to be so ruthless and strong.

“Ow, ow, ow!” The pain was so unbearable that Tatiana screamed even louder, “You damn whore! Let me

-Ahh!”

Bonnie continued to tighten her grip while Tatiana began to sweat. Meanwhile, the crowd of onlookers grew. Even Orpheus heard the commotion and ran over. “Bonwick, what happened?!”

Before Bonnie could answer, Tatiana yelled, “Help me, Orpheus! This awful woman is trying to break my finger!”

“I’m talking to Bonwick, not you!” Orpheus said, exasperated.

Chapte 354

Chapter 354

Tatiana gasped, her mouth ngape. Then, Orpheus looked at Bonnie again, asking, "What's wrong? Did she piss you off?"

Tatiana's eyes widened as Orpheus added, "Bonwick, you didn't have to deal with her yourself. You should've called me to do it for you. You don't need to get your hands dirty."

Tatiana was speechless.

Bonnie looked at Orpheus coldly, saying, "She insulted me."

"What?! How dare she insult you!" Orpheus rolled up his sleeves, looking like he was about to smack Tatiana to teach her a lesson.

The film director and producer were shocked. They ran over to stop him. "Calm down, Orpheus! Tatiana is inexperienced and naive. You don't need to get mad at her."

"He's right. If others find out you hit someone on the set, the media will slander you, regardless if you have a good reason for your actions. They might even say you're using your status to hit someone. That'll affect your reputation and this entire production."

However, no one could change Orpheus's mind. He was furious, saying, "I've always treated Bonwick with adoration and respect. Tatiana is disrespecting me by insulting Bonwick!"

Although angry and bitter, Tatiana feared Orpheus would smack her for real.

Meanwhile, the director and producer held Orpheus back with everything they had as the onlookers recorded everything with their phones. The whole filming set was in disarray. A moment later, Bonnie said, "Stop, Orpheus."

"Oh, okay."

Everyone present was astounded. After all, they knew no one could change Orpheus's mind once he decided something. They never expected to see him treat Bonnie's seemingly casual words so seriously.

Tatiana was already jealous of Bonnie. Now, the former even felt resentful.

Nancy held Tatiana and asked, "Is everything okay, Ms. Tatiana?"

"What kind of question is that?! Can't you see the state I'm in now? Why would you ask me that? You must be delighted to see me so miserable!"

"Th—that's not it. I didn't mean it that way."

Suddenly, Tatiana shoved Nandry aside, causing the latter to stagger backward and crash into a vending machine. Tatiana watched as her assistant trip.

Nancy was about to crash into the machine. She would have gotten severely injured if she did not die from the accident. However, Bonnie caught Nancy and asked, "Are you okay?"

Nancy y was on the brink of tears after almost encountering a terrible accident. She looked at Bonnie gratefully, saying, "Thanks. I owe you one."

"It's no trouble at all."

Initially, Tatiana was concerned about accidentally killing her assistant. However, she was furious when she saw Bonnie and Nancy getting along.

“Nancy! You’re an ungrateful pest! I gave you a job when your dad disowned you! How dare you get along rival! Oh, I see what’s happening here. You two got disowned by your families. That must be why you relate to each other so well.”

Bonnie looked at Nancy when she heard that.

“That’s not what’s happening. Tatiana. I’m just-”

Tatiana suddenly screamed bloody murder and interrupted Nancy.

Chapter 355

“How dare you address me so casually! You’re just a commoner, Nancy!”

Nancy pursed her lips and suppressed her emotions. However, Bonnie could no longer stand Tatiana’s pretentious behavior. “Commoner? So what if you’re an actress? Are you trying to say celebrities don’t have to respect others?”

“Your parents gave you a name, so there’s nothing wrong with your assistant addressing you as such. You must be that arrogant for not allowing others to say your name.”

Tatiana retorted, This doesn’t concern you! You can’t boss me around just because Orpheus has your back!”

Bonnie was about to say something, but Nancy hastily stopped, saying, “Thank you, Ms. Bonnie. I’m fine.”

Since Nancy was okay with it, Bonnie could do nothing for her. After all, the latter disliked poking her nose in other people’s business. However, she noticed Tatiana saying something about Nancy sharing a similar fate. That was why Bonnie instinctively supported Nancy.

When Bonnie and Orpheus left, the former asked, “Who’s Nancy, and what’s her background?”

“I knew she’d pique your interest.” Orpheus knew Bonnie pretty well, Hence, he was willing to tell her everything he knew, “Have you heard about the Church family?”

“Do you mean the ones who own that huge esports business?” Bonnie guessed, How Orpheus spoke about the Church family showed Bonnie how potentially prominent and powerful they were.

“That’s right. The head of the family, Larry Church, had a mistress who gave birth to his child before he married Nancy’s mother. Later, Nancy’s mom had a car accident and was admitted to a hospital.

“A few days later, Larry took in his mistress and the kid before announcing to the public that Nancy had beat up her stepmother and stepsister. He then disowned Nancy and her mom.

Bonnie rubbed her chin and said thoughtfully, “Although I met Nancy once, I don’t think she’s that ruthless.”

Orpheus shrugged helplessly, saying. “Do you think a wealthy family like that has a shortage of unpleasant things happening behind closed doors? Who knows the truth? Take you, for example. Outsiders claim you’re a good-for-nothing who doesn’t respect her parents “However, you’re multi-talented and fiercely loyal to your loved ones. I’ll wait until this TV drama gets traction before announcing on my Twitter account that you’re the novel’s author. The Shepards will regret disowning you big time.”

Bonnie said firmly. “That’s not a good idea. It’ll bring me trouble instead. I’m enjoying my peace right now. I can assure you the Shepards won’t regret disowning me.”

“Are you sure? Why wouldn’t they regret it? Your identity as the renowned Jane Austin is baffling enough. You’ve written many popular novels under that pen name, not to mention your other identities and achievements!

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 356

Chapter355

“You just prefer to keep a low profile, that’s all. If you had attended any award events, you could have been more popular than I am.”

“Drop it, Orpheus. I meant it when I said they wouldn’t regret it. They might even hate me more for keeping it from them. That’s the best–case scenario. The last thing I want is for them to beg me to use my skills to make money for them.”

Orpheus reddened with anger when he heard that. “Fine, I’ll keep my mouth shut! You shouldn’t return to them, either, Bonwick. You’re living the life now that you’re away from them.”

At that moment, he thought about Ivor’s menacing expression. Orpheus added, “Uh, yeah. Although you’re indeed living the life, it’s a tad lonely. Ivor is an excellent husband, Bonwick. I must say, you two are perfect for each other.”

“Hehehe...” Bonnie giggled.

Tatiana spiked a bottled beverage and handed it to Nancy, saying, “Give this to Bonnie and tell her I’m willing to make amends and befriend her.”

“I can’t do that. I know you’re mad at Bonnie because you think she has a crush on Orpheus. Still, he clarified the whole thing on the internet. Bonnie is his nephew’s girlfriend or something. The truth is far from what you imagine.”

“You’re so naive and stupid, Nancy! No wonder your father’s mistress and her daughter got you kicked out of the family! Are you going to believe everything Orpheus says? It’s apparent he did it to defend that bitch!”

Nancy highly disagreed with Tatiana, questioning. “Why would Orpheus do something like that?”

Chapter 355

“Bonnie must’ve put a spell on Orpheus for him to do that. The same thing happened to your dad. He raised you for more than twenty years and then disowned you. His mistress and her daughter must’ve also put a spell on him.”

Nancy did not know how to respond to that.

Tatiana shoved the bottle into Nancy’s hands and said, “Ugh, enough wasting time. Hurry up and give this drink to Bonnie!”

Nancy held the bottle, feeling like Tatiana had just handed her a bomb. Suddenly, the former let it go, and it fell to the ground. “N–No, I can’t do something like this. I just can’t!”

Tatiana threatened, “You might as well quit if you refuse to do it. Your mom won’t live any longer without money to continue her treatment. Then, you’ll only have yourself to blame for her death.”

Tears rolled down Nancy’s cheeks. She bit her lip and picked up the bottle before leaving to pass it to Bonnie.

“Ms. Tatiana wanted me to give you this beverage as a peace offering. Ms. Bonnie. She wants to befriend you.”

The director and producer were relieved to hear that. One said, “It’s better to make friends than enemies, Ms. Bonnie. Let’s forgive and forget, shall we?”

The other added, “That’s right. You two don’t know each other well, after all. There’s no need for things to remain so awkward.”

Bonnie was not one to hold grudges. Hence, she nodded and motioned to grab the bottle. Suddenly, Nancy hesitated and withdrew her hand slightly.

“Ahem!” Tatiana cleared her throat, causing Nancy to shut her eyes and loosen her grip.

Bonnie looked at Nancy, who was acting strange and lowering her head. The former opened the bottle cap and sniffed it. Her expression grew grim, and she observed Nancy. The latter looked conflicted at that moment

After some silence, Bonnie motioned to drink the beverage.

Suddenly, Nancy smacked the bottle from Bonnie’s hands and exclaimed, “No! Don’t drink it!”

“What’s going on here? Orpheus was puzzled as he looked at Nancy.

“I–‘m sorry! I–” Nancy choked up and slumped before Bonnie.

“What on earth is happening here?” Everyone present was bewildered.

The next moment, Bonnie said dryly, “Someone spiked the drink.”

Nancy’s eyes widened as she looked up at Bonnie.

Tatiana also looked at Bonnie immediately. Although everyone regarded the latter strangely, she said, “have some medical knowledge and can tell someone spiked the drink. I also know that it’s some sort of aphrodisiac”

Everyone was shocked. If that were true, then whoever spiked the beverage would be despicable. After all, it could lead Bonnie to do unspeakable things and ruin her life.

Tatiana marched over and screamed at Nancy, “I never expected you to be so cruel! What did Bonnie do to offend you? I can’t believe you spiked her drink with an aphrodisiac, no less!”

Chapter 357

“Wh–what?! No, it wasn’t me!” Nancy paled in terror.

“How dare you deny it. Everyone saw you handing Bonnie the drink. You can’t talk yourself out of this mess!” Tatiana roared.

Nancy began to cry, feeling sorry for herself. “You can’t be this unreasonable, Tatiana. You told me to give Ms. Bonnie this drink. You can’t just ”

“Although I told you to give her the drink, it was fine when I gave it to you. You must’ve spiked it after taking it from me!”

“How can you accuse me like that? I–I knew I shouldn’t have helped you, but I need the money for my mom’s treatment. She’ll be heartbroken if she finds out what I did. She’d much rather give up on her treatment than allow me to do something so outrageous.”

Nancy cried her eyes out as she swept her gaze across the place. She bit her lip and added, “Tatiana ordered me to do it because she loves Orpheus. She’s jealous of Bonnie and wants to ruin her.”

“Damn you, Nancy! I can’t believe you’re trying to accuse me!” Tatiana motioned to slap her assistant.

However, Bonnie hastened over and grabbed Tatiana’s wrist.

The latter roared, “What do you think you’re doing?!”

Bonnie stared at Tatiana and said indifferently, “I won’t allow you to hit her.”

“Who the fuck do you think you are?! She’s my assistant, and there’s nothing wrong with me teaching her a lesson!”

Bonnie's expression grew grim. "According to Arvandor's law, you can't do that. Not unless you travel through time and live during the age of slavery. Back then, you could even kill your slave if you wanted to.

"However, your assistant isn't your slave. On the contrary, you should respect her because she's working for you. Do you honestly think being wealthy means you're better than everyone else? You can't attack people just because you want to."

Most of the onlookers resonated with Bonnie's words.

'She's right! We must treat everyone as equals, but the wealthy always think they're better than everyone.

else!"

The wealthy have never shown us respect! They yell at us as if we have no feelings! They don't shy away from cursing at us and our families! Still, we can do nothing about it because we need to put food on the table. We can only bear with it for our families' sake."

Everyone looked at Bonnie, no longer regarding her as a good-for-nothing like the rumors suggested. Soon after, the crowd began to point at Tatiana and murmur about her abusing her status and mistreating her assistant.

As far as Tatiana was concerned, it was all Bonnie's doing. The former would not have become the onlooker's enemy if Bonnie had not spoken up

Nancy glanced at Bonnie gratefully but also felt a pang of guilt.

"Bonnie's such a nice person. I can't believe I almost became an accomplice in ruining her life"

I'm sorry. Bonnie You have to believe I'm innocent."

Bonnie nodded solemnly saying. I believe you.

Nancy was stunned as her eyes widened in surprise

She believes me?

Although it was a beef response, it stirred something in Nancy's heart. On the other hand, it pissed Tatiana off. She questioned. "What do you mean by that, Bonnie? Are you trying to say I'm the culprit? Are you seriously accusing me of spiking your drink?"

Do you intend to tell me you didn't do it? Bonnie was almost sure Tatiana was the one who spiked the "Stop accusing me if you don't have proof! Why would a famous person like myself do something like that if I did, and word got out, it'd ruin my reputation. I wouldn't undermine myself just to take you out. Do you think I'm that foolisher initially, everyone suspected Tatiana. However, they could see her point

Really now? Bonnie squinted. Are you saying you were unaware that Nancy had given me a spiked

Exactly! I had nothing to do with it! Tatiana said matter of factly Didn't you touch the bottle and spike the drink? Do you dare to swear you didn't do it?"

"Why wouldn't I dare swear it since I have a clear conscience Tatiana raised her hand and said, "I swear!

I'd

had nothing to do with the spiked drink. If I lie, God will crush my reputation, and I can never return to the entertainment industry

Everyone began to mutter amongst themselves again,

Tatiana sounds innocent now. Nobody would curse themselves like that Now that I think about it you have a point. Tatiana might love Orpheus, but she's a big name in the entertainment industry. She's also smart. She'd never do something to jeopardize her career over a nobody"

If that's the case, does that mean Nancy did it? If she did, what would be her motive?"

Everyone turned to look at Nancy as she slumped to the ground, ashen. She thought there was nothing she could do to clear her name.

Tatiana's a massive celebrity, and she made such a solemn oath. No one will doubt her now. Meanwhile, I'm just a nobody who got disowned by my family. Who'd believe anything I say?

As Nancy wallowed in despair, Bonnie picked up the bottled beverage and looked at Orpheus. "Get me a clean plastic bag"

"Sure thing, Bonwick! Hey, prop guy. We need a clean plastic bag"

Bonnie put the bottled beverage into the bag and passed it to Orpheus, saying, "Have someone identify the fingerprints. Of course, Nancy's and my fingerprints will be on it. Let's see if there's a third set of prints"

Tatiana's heart leaped into her throat as she looked at the bottle with terror.

Bonnie looked at her and said, "You said you had nothing to do with it, right? That should mean you never even touched the bottle. I wonder what you'll tell us if we find your fingerprints on the bottle

Tatiana gulped as she turned pale. "Well, perhaps I did touch it. M Maybe Nancy set me up by making me touch it? Abal I remember Nancy handing me the drink! Although I took it, I didn't drink it."

Ronnie sneered at Tatiana, spooking her and giving her a bad feeling about everything that had happened.

“Don’t you realize you’re contradicting yourself? You said you didn’t touch the bottle, but now you’re changing the story and saying you touched it.”

It just slipped my mind! It’s only natural to forget certain things. If I go against my oath, it’ll ruin my reputation, and I’ll have to leave the entertainment industry!”

Bonnie’s patience wore thin as she said, “I shouldn’t have wasted my breath with someone as shameless as you. I won’t wait for karma to come for you since it’d take too long. Instead, I’ll punish you right now. You’ll no longer act as the female lead of this TV drama.

“Hahaha!” Tatiana burst out laughing. “Who the hell do you think you are? Why should I give up that role just because you said so?”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 359

Chapter 359

Bonnie remained firm, saying. “You’ll do as I say because I’m the novel’s author.”

What?! She’s Jane Austin? That’s not possible!

Everyone, including the director and producer, was shocked.

“D–Did you just say you’re the original author? Jane Austin is nothing but spectacular. She’s also one of the wealthiest authors in the industry. Are you sure you’re her?”
Tatiana refused to believe it.

Suddenly, Orpheus interjected, “I can prove she’s Jane Austin.”

“Orpheus, why would you lie for her?!” Tatiana roared, displeased.

Orpheus raised his hand and said solemnly, "I swear to the Heavens that I'll leave the entertainment industry if I'm lying."

His oath held more weight than Tatiana's. After all, he had maintained an exceptional reputation in the industry. Moreover, he was upright and had never had an affair or tainted history. Orpheus was a perfect actor and singer.

Now, everyone firmly believed Bonnie was Jane Austin.

"Oh my gosh! I'm a huge fan of Jane Austin! I've read all her novels from cover to cover and even read some of them three to four times!"

"I never thought she'd look so young and pretty. Jane Austin's writings are even comparable to Emily Bronte's. The main female character in this novel is multi-talented. Jane Austin has written many poems, too. I'm starstruck right now!"

"Wait a minute. I thought the Shepards disowned Bonnie because she's a country bumpkin. They also hate her for being a good-for-nothing. I don't get how they can call her that. If she's useless, what does that make us? Are we worse than trash?"

"So, you're saying the Shepards will regret disowning Bonnie when they learn she's actually Jane Austin?" "Huh? I thought they cut ties with her some time ago. Ah, it's pointless to talk about them. They have nothing to do with Jane anyway. She shouldn't care whether or not the Shepards regret it."

"I guess you have a point."

As the crowd chattered, Tatiana gulped and pointed at Bonnie. Then, the former yelled, "So what if you're Jane Austin?! You're just a tiny novelist. You don't have the right to fire me from the female lead role!"

The latter did not have what it took to offend Bonnie raised her brows and stared at Tatiana, hinting that she heard her. Bonnie said, "Not only will I fire you from assuming the lead role of my novel, but I will also ban you from the entertainment industry. Mark my words. I will destroy your reputation."

"You're a nobody!" Tatiana roared even louder, "Do you know who invested in this TV drama?! It's none other than Sheffyn Entertainment. They're the top entertainment company in Pyralis, and I'm one of their celebrities

“Sheffyn Entertainment, huh?”

“What are the chances?’ Bonnie thought.

“Don’t you know them? Wow, you really are a country bumpkin who knows nothing. I can’t believe you’re not familiar with Sheffyn Entertainment.

“Here. I’ll do you a favor by telling you about them. The Sheffyns own Sheffyn Entertainment.

They’re one of the wealthiest and most influential families in the city. Although the Blackburn family is the richest and commands most powers in Pyralis, the Sheffyns are a close second,”

She was amidst her speech when someone shouted, “Mr. Xavier is here!”

“Perfect timing!” Tatiana exclaimed joyfully. “Mr. Xavier, this bitch said she’d ban me from the entertainment industry! Since I’m one of your celebrities, you have to help me.”

Immediately after, she glared at Bonnie tauntingly.

Chapter 360

“Although a great author like Jane might be able to pull some strings, she’s nothing before the big investor. She stands no chance against the Sheffyns,’ Tatiana thought.

Suddenly. Xavier slapped her so hard that her face swelled almost instantly.

Tatiana cupped her cheek and looked at Xavier in disbelief.

“How dare you insult Bonnie! Xavier was enraged. After getting on Bonnie’s wrong side from the street racing incident, he had to work his ass off to redeem himself. Additionally, one of his company’s hired celebrities was foolish enough to offend Bonnie, “Since you’ve offended Bonnie, I’ll do as she said and ban you from the entertainment industry.

“W–Wait, no!” Tatiana shook her head in shock.

Xavier turned to the guards behind him and barked, “What are you waiting for?! Drag her out of the film set immediately!”

The guards approached and grabbed Tatiana by both her arms before dragging her out. She kicked and screamed, “No! Mr. Xavier, you can’t ban me from the industry!”

As her voice grew distant, Xavier turned to Bonnie and said, “I apologize for that. It seems one of my foolish celebrities has troubled you.”

“A celebrity like her just gives the whole industry a bad name. It’s a good thing we banned her from the industry,” Bonnie said indifferently.

“You’re right. Don’t worry about Tatiana. I won’t let her find her way back into the industry.”

Bonnie told Xavier and the director, “That reminds me. There might be some issues with the novel’s adaptation.”

The director respectfully said, “Please tell us your thoughts and opinions, Ms. Bonnie. We’ll work it out with the screenwriter.”

Bonnie took the script he held and said, “You removed one of the characters from the novel. Although she might seem like an insignificant character, she’ll advance the plot and become an integral part of its climax.

“If she’s not on the TV adaptation, it’ll create a plot hole. Besides that, the lines you revised don’t reflect the male lead’s character. You’ll ruin his whole arc...”

“Oh, so that’s how it is. That explains why it felt weird to me when I got the script. Please, carry on, Ms. Bonnie. I must know if anything else contradicts the novel.” The director spoke to her like a student asking for a teacher’s pointers.

Xavier was shocked as he asked Orpheus, “I know the director very well. He’s as stubborn as a mule and won’t let me interfere even if I want to. I’m not exaggerating when I say he won’t compromise his work, even if someone held a knife to his neck. I wonder why he’s so obedient toward Bonnie.”

Orpheus proudly said, “Of course he is! After all, Bonnie is the author of the novel that inspired this TV drama. Why wouldn’t the director listen to her?”

Xavier was puzzled. “A–Are you saying Bonnie is Jane Austin?!”

“In the flesh! Not many can hope to compare to Bonwick.” Orpheus lifted his chin proudly.

Although Xavier might have been at the top of the food chain and had experienced many things, it did not mean he was not shocked by this revelation. Not only was he astounded that Bonnie was Jane Austin, but she was also the nation’s leading researcher.

Xavier had met many highly talented people, but most were exceptional at only one thing. On the other hand, Bonnie found time to be the best street racer and novelist.

“Jeez, I can’t believe Bonnie has yet another identity. Does she have more identities than I know of?”

Meanwhile, Orpheus swelled with pride when he saw how surprised Xavier was. The former said, “That’s right! Bonwick is no ordinary woman. I can tell you another secret, but you can’t tell anyone about it.”

Chapter 361

“What’s the secret?”

“Do you know who wrote my hit songs and created the melody?”

“The composer and lyricists of all your songs kept their names anonymous. Are you going to tell me...” Suddenly, it hit him. Xavier’s eyes widened.

Orpheus had won many Best Actor and Best Singer awards. His latter achievement was primarily due to well-written songs. Many artists in the industry begged Orpheus to let his composer and lyricist write a few songs for them, but none succeeded in convincing him.

The last thing Xavier expected was Bonnie to be the elusive composer and lyricist.

“Th–there’s more?!” Xavier stammered.

“Hehehe! The head of the Jade Horizon Hotel was Bonwick’s apprentice. Oh, you have no idea how delicious Bonwick’s cooking is. Damn, my mouth is watering now. I’ll have to ask her to make me dinner at her place tonight.” Orpheus gulped as he spoke.

Xavier also gulped, but not for the same reason Orpheus did. The former was shocked that Bonnie had so many different identities and was the best in every field.

‘Is she even human?’ Xavier looked at Bonnie in awe, thinking, “Thank goodness I changed my mind in time and bought her that billion-dollar ginseng. Otherwise, she would’ve dragged my family into oblivion with her inhuman skills.’

After listening to Bonnie’s suggestions, the director showed newfound respect for her. Simultaneously, he felt so confident that he knew his television adaptation of her novel would be a massive hit.

“Ah, damn it!” The director suddenly smacked his head.

“What’s wrong? Are you stressed because you missed a part? It’s okay, I can explain it again.” Bonnie looked at the director in puzzlement.

“That’s not what I’m worried about, Ms. Bonnie. We just lost our female lead!”

Since Tatiana had offended Bonnie, Xavier supported the latter and fired Tatiana. Moreover, Tatiana could never return to the industry.

“Just pick a new actress,” Bonni said casually, “Tatiana didn’t look the part anyway.”

Chapter Sal

The director could not help but agree, “She might’ve enjoyed misusing her status and had a Hasty character, but her acting skills were immaculate. Otherwise, I wouldn’t have chosen her as the female lead.

“You should choose someone with better looks,” Bonnie suggested.

The director looked at her admiringly and asked, “Do you have an acting bug, Ms. Bonnie? You have killer looks, after all. I’m confident the drama will be a massive hit if you take the female lead role!”

Bonnie was shocked, “I have no talent in acting, and I’m not interested in it. Maybe you should look for someone better suited for the role.”

The director was disappointed about her response. He looked at her otherworldly beauty and could picture how she would look in a historical dress.

‘It’d be breathtaking! What a shame!’

Bonnie made another suggestion, “How about you open castings?”

“I don’t see another way around it, Ms. Bonnie. That reminds me. We have an opening for the role of a minor character. Do you think you can do it?” The director stared at Bonnie.

She thought, ‘I’ve never tried acting. I’m not into it, nor do I have the time. I need to focus on my work in the research institute, not to mention attending college.’

Chapter 362

“If it’s a minor role, I’ll try it.”

“Which minor character are you referencing?”

“Freya,” the director replied.

“Oh, wow!” Orpheus exclaimed delightfully, “You’ll be playing my ex–wife, Bonwick!”

Although Bonnie finished writing this novel several years ago, she remembered Freya as the male lead’s ex–wife who died while shielding him from deadly arrows. Since Bonnie would not have much screen time, she could probably take a day to finish shooting her parts.

Xavier did not know what to feel. At that moment, he could be the only person who knew that Bonnie was Ms. Bonita.

“If Bonnie’s real identity leaks, the TV drama will be a sensation when it comes out. The other dramas’ ratings will take a plunge then.”

Nancy was teary–eyed as she approached Bonnie and apologized, “I’m sorry for everything that happened just now. I–I didn’t even know–”

“You didn’t spike the drink, so you have nothing to apologize for.” Bonnie held the bowing Nancy up.

“Still, I was an accomplice. I shouldn’t have succumbed to Tatiana when she threatened to fire me. My mom will be so mad when she finds out I sold my soul for money. I don’t think I can forgive myself.” Nancy wiped her tears.

‘I’ll never do anything like that again.’

Bonnie looked at her calmly and said, “Now that Tatiana is no longer a part of the industry, the female lead role is wide open. How about you give it a shot?”

“Huh?” Nancy was utterly stunned.

“Orpheus told me you and Tatiana graduated from Pyralis Film Academy. Also, you’re as good–looking as Tatiana, if not prettier.

Nancy palmed her cheek and said shyly, “Are you sure I can? Although I graduated from Pyralis Film Academy, I’ve never acted in a TV drama. I’m worried I’ll–”

“You need money to keep your mom’s treatment going, right? Based on your current situation, you need an actress's salary to take some of the weight off your shoulders." Bonnie continued to convince Nancy,

Chapter 362

The latter was starting to see things Bonnie's way.

Bonnie added, "I admire you for doing everything you can for your mom. You love her so much that you worked for Tatiana and subjected yourself to humiliation. Also, you originally came from a wealthy family, correct?"

"I can imagine how much working for Tatiana has hurt your dignity. If you could do that, you shouldn't shy away from taking the female lead role."

Nancy looked into Bonnie's unwavering eyes and remembered their shared background and history. The former suddenly understood why Bonnie genuinely wanted to help her even though they barely knew each other.

Nancy felt a lump in her throat as she said, "Th—thank you, Ms. Bonnie."

Orpheus whispered, "Bonwick, are you helping her because you share a similar history?"

"I guess you can say that," Bonnie admitted.

Orpheus looked at Nancy and clicked his tongue before saying, "She's quite pretty. Still, she's too frail and defenseless for the role. I doubt she can portray the female lead's hardiness and decisiveness."

His words did not faze Bonnie. She said, "You have it all wrong."

"What do you mean?"

"Here, I'll give you a scenario. Can you keep yourself together and say nothing if your buddy turns on you and makes you his bitch? What would you do if he began to beat and threaten you?"

"Hell no! I'd die from keeping my frustrations to myself!" Orpheus grew triggered at the thought of it.

"There's your answer. I believe Nancy can pull it off. Do you still think she's frail and defenseless?"

“But that doesn’t necessarily mean she’s tough, right? Maybe she just wasn’t bold enough. to fight back.”

Bonnie raised a brow and said, “Just give Nancy a chance. You’ll find out just what she made of. She’ll prove she has what it takes to assume the female lead role and become your character’s partner.”

Orpheus could only shrug and say, “I guess I just can’t see it yet.

“All right, that wraps it up! I want chicken pot pie and tuna casserole for tonight’s dinner.”

That night, Bonnie and Orpheus went to Lenfield Resort together. The latter said, “This is my first time visiting your place. This place lives up to its name. It’s nothing to laugh about, not even in comparison to the Knights’ house.

“Your villa is the best around, Bonnie. You have the best view, too.” Orpheus looked around the place, wide-eyed.

He was still admiring the place when Bonnie grew slightly annoyed, saying, “Are you going to keep ogling over the place? Maybe we should forget about dinner if that’s what it takes to please you.”

“Hey, don’t do that! It’s been a long time since I tasted your cooking. You have no idea how often I’ve stopped myself from drooling today. I couldn’t stop thinking about your cooking even while we were on the set.”

“Attaboy!” Bonnie nodded.

“Come one, let’s go inside. I’ll be your sous chef.

Bonnie said smilingly, "Sure, that sounds good.

When she finished mushroom soup, Orpheus said, "Let me take that to the dining table."

"Are you sure? It's still scorching," Bonnie cautioned.

"Bonwick, are you worried about me?"

"I'm just worried you'll spill my soup.

Suddenly, Orpheus exclaimed, "Ouch! That's hot!"

Clang!

When the pot fell, some scalding soup spilled onto Orpheus's shirt.

"Quick, remove your shirt!" Bonnie yelled before running over to help.

At that moment, a spine-chilling voice echoed, "What are you two doing?"

The duo stopped as Ivor approached. He looked so angry that he could punch even Orpheus, his uncle. Orpheus's eyes widened, and he struggled to find his voice. Soon after, Orpheus stammered, "1-Ivor, don't do anything rash! You're misunderstanding the whole thing!

However, his words did not work. Ivor was already close, and Orpheus could see his nephew's fists. "Come on, Ivor! I'm your uncle. Are you seriously going to punch me again? Fine, don't say I didn't warn you! I'll tell your father if you hit me again!"

Bonnie stood before Orpheus and shielded him.

Ivor's expression turned grim as he asked, "Are you protecting him?"

Bonnie's lips twitched despite herself. She asked, "What's that supposed to mean? Orpheus wasn't trying to do anything to me."

"I saw you removing his shirt, Bonnie. You're the one making a move on him. I have pride as a man and won't let him off so quickly. I don't care if Orpheus is my uncle!" Ivor said through gritted teeth.

Orpheus retorted, “Are you serious? Then, why would you want to punch me if she’s removing my shirt?”

“Shut up!” Bonnie and Ivor barked simultaneously.

Orpheus was astounded, thinking, ‘I’m the older one here, but they treat me like I’m their child! I deserve more respect, damn it.’

Chapter 364

Houmte looked away from Orpheus and gazed into Ivor’s eyes, saying, “Please control yourself and not get jealous. Stop jumping to conclusions. Although you’re a good man, my patience has limits, and I can no longer stand your jealousy,”

Her minor compliment lifted Ivor’s spirits significantly. He said, “I don’t think you can blame me for that, Bonnte. Wouldn’t you be mad if ladies are constantly around me?”

“Why would I get mad? That just means you’re handsome and charming. Also, you don’t sleep around,” Bonnie squinted at him and added, “It’s unlike you to suspect me for no reason.”

After some thought, Ivor looked at Bonnie and Orpheus several times. Soon after, he saw the spillage on Orpheus’s clothes and the mess on the floor. Being the sharp-witted guy he was, Ivor put the puzzle together and realized what had happened.

“I’m sorry, Bonnie!” Ivor held his fiancée’s shoulders and looked at her intently. “I shouldn’t have suspected you of cheating on me. I promise I won’t let jealousy get the better of me again.”

Orpheus’s lips twitched as he asked, “Do you even believe what you just said?”

Ivor turned and glared at his uncle, silently promising to deal with him if he did not shut up. Orpheus felt a shiver down his spine. He glanced at the spilled mushroom soup and said, "I'll clean up this mess. Damn it, there's goes my soup."

Orpheus picked up a mushroom slice as he spoke.

Bonnie noticed it and asked, "Are you seriously going to eat that?"

"Uh, come on, Bonwick. Give me some credit, will you? Hygiene is my middle name." Although he said that, he felt the urge to eat the mushroom.

Half an hour later, the dishes were served on the dining table. Orpheus gobbled almost everything. He was still enjoying himself when Ivor asked him to leave, "It's getting late, Orpheus. You should finish your dinner and go home.

"It's almost midnight, and I'm sure you're tired from work. You should leave now and get some rest.

Orpheus smiled bitterly, saying, "Gee, thanks for the concern."

Meanwhile, Ivor scooped a spoonful of tuna casserole and put it on Bonnie's plate. "Here, have some more."

Orpheus lost his appetite at that moment. He intended to get back at his nephew by telling him about Bonnie's guest appearance as his ex-wife in the television drama, "Hey, I have something interesting to tell you, Ivor. Honwick visited the film set just now, and the director offered her Bonnie suddenly kicked Orpheus's shin.

"Ouch! Th—that hurt!" He even hopped up from his chair.

Bonnie shrugged at him as if telling him he had it coming.

'He must've forgotten about the earlier mess. Ivar got jealous and almost punched him. How did it slip his mind already? If Ivor finds out I'm acting as Orpheus's ex-wife, he might do something worse than punch his uncle.'

Orpheus looked at Bonnie and understood her gaze.

‘She’s right. I almost fucked up.’

Ivor squinted at the duo before looking at his uncle and asking, “What did the director offer Bonnie?”

Orpheus cleared his throat, adjusted his seat, and continued to eat. He said, “He offered her a role, but she turned it down.”

He told a half-truth, and Ivor, adept at seeing through lies, did not suspect a thing. Even so, Ivor had a hunch there was more to it than that.

Chapter 365

At that moment, Ivor decided to tag along the next time Bonnie visited the film set.

Meanwhile, Tatiana returned to her old ways after getting kicked out of the entertainment industry. She leaned on a wealthy man’s chest and felt sickened.

“You have to help me, Jonathan. Otherwise, they’ll ban me from the industry forever,” Tatiana said as she flirtatiously drew circles on the older man’s chest.

“Are you trying to suck me dry, baby?” Jonathan held her hand and fiddled with them.

“That’s not true. You’re strong and have so much stamina. We can pull an all-nighter, yet you’ll still be raring to go.”

“You always know what to say.” Jonathan kissed Tatiana, and she almost barfed her dinner.

“Come on, Jonathan—you have to help me. Pretty please!” Tatiana suppressed her true feelings and continued to coax him.

Jonathan was turned on and felt like he was on fire. “Don’t worry about it. I’m Xavier’s business partner and his good friend. Some even say we’re like brothers. All I have to do is talk to him, and you’ll be back in the industry in no time.”

Tatiana was thrilled when she heard that.

‘I know how close Jonathan and Xavier are. If I’m not mistaken, they’re related—maybe distant relatives. That’s why I slept with Jonathan in the first place.’

He took his phone and said, “Give me a minute while I call Xavier.”

The call connected in no time. “Hey, Xavier, it’s me, Jonathan. I need a favor.”

Meanwhile, Xavier glanced through some documents in his study. He answered the call, “We’ve known each other for so long, Jon. We’re practically family. It hurts my feelings that you must ‘call in a favor.’ I thought you considered me family.”

“Of course I do! You’re even closer to me than my actual brother. Why would I think of you as anything other than family?”

“Okay, what is it, Jon? I’ll do everything I can to help you.”

Jonathan looked at Tatiana, leaning on his chest and anxiously staring at him. He said, “One of your celebrities got on your wrong side recently. I wonder if you can be the bigger man and let it go. I’ll treat you to a big meal when I can.”

“Oh? Who do you mean?”

“The rising star—Tatiana.”

“Huh?!” Xavier was so stunned he had to put down his pen. “Tatlana?”

Jonathan had a bad feeling when he heard Xavier’s somber response. The former asked, “Did she make a huge mess or something?”

Xavier said solemnly, “I can’t help you with that, Jonathan.”

“Listen, Xavier-”

“No, you listen to me!” Xavier raised his voice, and his expression grew grim. “Since we’ve been friends for a long time, you should take my advice and leave Tatiana. Stop getting involved with her, or you’ll get into deep trouble!”

Those words erased any adoration and intentions Jonathan had for Tatiana. He knew his old friend Xavier would not have said that if it were not true.

Jonathan said, “Tatiana told me she got fired and banned from the industry because she offended someone named Bonnie. As far as I know, Bonnie’s a country girl whose family disowned her. Don’t tell me she has another identity or something.”

After some thought, Xavier said, “I’m supposed to keep it a secret, but I don’t want your to fall apart, old friend. I’ll give you a hint, but whether or not you understand it is up to you. However, you can’t tell anyone I gave you this hint.”

“All right, you have my word. What’s the hint?”

“Bonita.” Immediately after, Xavier hung up.

Jonathan did not understand what Xavier insinuated. The former fell into deep thought, “Bonita? What does that mean? What is Xavier trying to hint at? Bonita... Bonnie... Bonita!” “Bonnie’s-“ Jonathan almost blurted his thoughts. He caught himself and covered his mouth as his eyes widened in shock.

Jonathan paled, and his breathing became unsteady. He was scared.

Tatiana noticed his reaction and looked at him in puzzlement. She asked, Jonathan? Did Mr. Xavier agree to let me return to the industry?"

He gulped and pushed her off the bed.

"How'd it go,

"Ahh!" Tatiana fell face-first, and blood began to drip from her nose. "Wh-why'd you do that?! What the hell, Jonathan?!"

He quickly got off the bed and put on his clothes, saying, "You've crossed someone you shouldn't have and almost dragged me down with you. Please get as far away from me as possible.

"If you try seducing me again, you'll suffer a worse fate than getting banned from the film. industry."

Immediately after, Jonathan bolted out of the room while Tatiana sat on the floor. She looked miserable as she muttered, "When did I cross someone I shouldn't have? Was it Mr. Xavier? It's all that damn Bonnie's fault!

"I wouldn't have offended Mr. Xavier if it weren't for her!" Tatiana could only shout to vent her frustrations. She knew she could not rewrite her fate.

The following day, Sheffyn Entertainment announced Tatiana's ban on Twitter. The netizens were shocked, wondering what had happened to Tatiana. Some even speculated she got on someone's wrong side.

Meanwhile, Trina sat in her room and checked the announcement. She exclaimed, "That's perfect! Now I have a chance!"

She had always dreamed of becoming an actress, but the leading roles were always designated internally. Open casting was a rare occasion in the industry. Nonetheless,

Trina thought she could bag a minor role with her exquisite looks. Even so, she was not content with a minor role.

Vera bought Trina the most expensive makeup kit and jewelry, saying, "Do your best to land the lead role, Trina. Don't forget that you'll be involved in Jane Austin's work. All of her adapted TV dramas are famous.

"Also, Orpheus is the male lead. If you act alongside him, he might fall in love with you.

think we no longer stand a chance with the Rhodes." She sighed when she recalled her family's fallout with the Rhodes.

"You can trust me to do my best, Mom!"

Vera lovingly straightened her daughter's collar and put a lavish bracelet on her wrist. Vera said, "You'll be the talk of the city if you become a big star and succeed in scientific research. When that happens, I'll call everyone we know and brag about it."

Trina frowned and said, "It's a shame I'll never get into Bonita Research Institute."

"Don't beat yourself up. It was Bonnie's fault that you had a fallout with the people at the research institute. She did a number on your bright future. What a pest!"

Trina lowered her head, looking like she was about to cry.

"All right, that's enough. It's bad luck to talk about Bonnie. We've already cut ties with her, so let's avoid mentioning her name for the rest of our lives." Vera patted her daughter's back and added, "Bonita Research Institute isn't the only prominent research facility in the world.

"Pyralis alone contains various well-known research institutes. I know you're gifted enough to work at one of them."

Trina's eyes lit up. "Okay, I'll do my best!"

"Achoo!" Bonnie sneezed. "Achoo!"

"That's a couple of sneezes in a row. I wonder who's bad-mouthing me.

Suddenly, she saw a figure flash past her door. She muttered, “Was that a thief?”

Bonnie stood up and quietly peeked out the door, but nobody was there. Then, out of the corner of her eyes, she saw the figure again. She dashed to the window, leaped out of it, and subdued the figure by grabbing his arm and twisting it back.

“Ahh! That hurts! You’re going to break my arm!”

Bonnie recognized the voice and loosened her grip. She was confused when she saw that it was Ged. She asked, “What are you doing here?”

“Who did you think it was?! You almost broke my arm, damn it!”

“Hey, you can’t blame me. Why were you acting so shifty in the first place? You could’ve walked through the front gate instead of using the window.”

Ged was exasperated, saying, “You have Ivor to thank for that. He’s always so jealous of anyone who gets near you.”

Bonnie had no idea what he was talking about. She asked, “What does this have to do with Ivor?”

“You know how he is, Bonnie. He gets jealous of everything. I just praised you for your looks, talents, and combat skills the other day, and he got pissed off and insisted on fighting me. He even said he needed to spar because he hadn’t been working out.”

Ged recalled Ivor kicking his ass. The former's muscles grew sore at the mere thought of it.

"So what if he did? That has nothing to do with what you told me and that you were sneaking into my place."

"Fine, I'll cut to the chase. I recently set up a boxing gym, and we'll start recruiting students tomorrow. As you know, people tend to challenge gyms. Still, I don't know anyone good enough to defend mine. I came to ask for your help."

Ged paused momentarily and added, "I didn't want Ivor to find out I came here because I only want your help, not his. That's why I was sneaking around."

'So that's what he intended,' Bonnie thought.

"All right, I'll be there tomorrow."

Ged grinned and said, "Perfect! I owe you one, Bonnie. I'll do everything I can to repay you."

The following day, Bonnie followed Ged to his new boxing gym. She had just arrived when Ivor called Ged, asking, "Did you just take Bonnie out somewhere?"

Chapter 367

Ged sighed and said, "I need her for a while. Come on. Sharing is caring, right?"

Ivor questioned, "Would you have been okay if someone took your wife out?"

Ged replied through gritted teeth, "I wouldn't have if she went out with someone I didn't know. However, I'd be fine if she went out with you. If Bonnie's okay with it, you can take my wife out however long you need."

Ged grinned and looked at Bonnie, asking, "Would that bother you, Bonnie?"

Ivor's lips twitched as he said, "Fine, you win this time!"

Ged could burst out laughing now. He never beat Ivor at anything. Finally, Ged pulled one over Ivor.

Bonnie looked around the boxing gym interior and said, "The interior design looks good."

Before Ged could “Of course it does. I spared no expense in building this place. You see- finish, a group of men appeared at the entrance. The leader in all black approached Ged and asked, “Do you own this place?”

“Yeah, I do. It doesn’t look like you guys are here to enroll.” Suddenly, Ged’s eyes widened. He recognized the emblem on their shirts. These men came from the Warrior’s Way Boxing Club. Ged asked, “Are you here to challenge us?”

“Precisely. Our boxing club is just a few blocks down. Since you set up your gym here, you intend to take our customers. You aren’t playing by the rules, my friend.” Trystan, the leader, arrogantly tugged at Ged’s shirt.

Ged grew annoyed and pushed Trystan, saying, “What rules? I’ve never heard of such a thing. If that’s true, then boutiques can’t be next to each other. What about restaurants? That’s such a bullshit rule..

“You must be scared of a little competition because you guys are bad at running a business. You’re just worried I’ll take all your customers.”

Chapter 368

“If you lack confidence and competence, bulldoze your boxing club and stop wasting everyone’s time. After all, people might choose the wrong gym.”

“Hmph!” Trystan turned red with rage. “That’s enough talking. How dare you say we’re incompetent! We’ll fight right now if you dare!”

“Fine! You can’t intimidate me. I’ll get the ring ready. One of my people will fight one of yours in the ring. If you defeat her, I’ll bulldoze my boxing gym immediately.”

Trystan and his gang were pleased with that. He said, “How bold of you. It’s a deal. Who will you send into the ring?”

Ged looked at Bonnie and asked, "Will you please do the honors, Bonnie?"

"Sure thing," Bonnie agreed and entered the ring.

"What?" Trystan was confused before bursting out into laughter. "You're asking an inexperienced girl to represent your gym? You must be trying to lose."

The others joined in his laughter.

Ged confidently retorted, "Laugh while you can. You'll cry your eyes out soon enough."

Trystan noticed his calmness and instinctively glanced at Bonnie, thinking, 'She's almost as beautiful as an angel. Still, how can someone as delicate as her win against my men? This can't be real."

"Stop mocking us and send your strongest fighter to the ring," Trystan urged.

"That won't be necessary. My weakest fighter is capable enough to take you all on." Ged gave Bonnie a subtle look, silently apologizing to her.

'I'm sorry, Bonnie. I had to say that to rile them up.'

She nodded at him to signal she knew what he was doing and did not mind.

Trystan shouted, "You have balls for insulting us! You asked for it. Jamal, you're up!"

"I won't let you down." Jamal balled his fists and jumped into the ring. "You're pretty, little lady. My arms are twice the size of your calves. You should exit the ring while you can, or I'll destroy your delicate face."

Bonnie replied indifferently, "Stop wasting my time. There's a lot of people down there."

"This bitch is insinuating she can take us all on alone!"

Chapter 368

"You might look cute, but you have a nasty mouth. It looks like I'll have to go all out." Immediately after, Jamal raised his fists and strode toward Bonnie.

"Wait!" The sudden voice stopped Jamal.

"Who said that?"

Everyone shifted their gaze to Ged.

Trystan smirked, “What’s wrong? Are you worried your pretty lady will get hurt, or do you want to surrender already?”

“Who said anything about surrendering? I’m pausing the fight because our deal isn’t fair.”

“How so?”

“I’d bulldoze my boxing gym if my fighter lost. What about you guys?” Ged asked. ‘How can we possibly lose this fight?’ Trystan felt good about his chances.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 369

Chapter 369

Trystan glanced at the petite and defenseless-looking Bonnie. He raised his chin and sad, “The same will happen to our boxing club if we lose ”

“Perfect!” Ged exclaimed. He could not wait to see the Warrior’s Way Boxing Club getting bulldozed “We have a deal!

Once Ged and Trystan agreed, Jamal looked at Bonnie and said, “Since you’re so pretty, I let you take a free shot at me.”

Bonnie squinted and asked, “Are you sure?”

Jarmal smacked his chest to demonstrate how hard his pecs were. “Of course I am!”

Bone strode forward and punched his chest. He thought the punch would be soft and powerless and intended to jeer when it connected. However, he felt like he got hit by a sledgehammer.

Jamal even suspected his insides had been smashed. He let out a heart-wrenching scream as he flew out of the ring and fell to the ground. When he passed out, the whole gym fell into a pin-drop silence.

Everyone's jaw dropped, and their eyes widened. Even Ged, who knew how formidable Boonie was, was so dumbfounded that he could barely regain his senses.

"Th—that can't be reall

He took his phone and teed Ivor, "Bonnie's awesome! She just punched a touch and burly fighner named Jamal, and he flew out of the ring. He even passed out! You should be careful around your fiancée, Ivor. She might just beat the shit out of you when you sleep together."

Ivor replied, "What do you mean? Of course, we'll sleep together.

Ged responded, "That's not the point, buddy. I'm trying to say Bonnie might smack you into obEvion if you piss ber off"

"She won't," Ivor replied confidently.

"What makes you so sure?"

Ivor smirked and looked at Bonnie's picture on his laptop. His smile grew wider, and there was nothing but love in his eyes. He replied, "I'll do everything she says and give ber everything she wants. I'll do my best to dote on her no matter what. She'll have no reason to smack me because I love ber that mond."

Ged looked at the text but did not reply. Instead, he muttered, "I think I'm about to throw up."

Meanwhile, Trystan told his men to carry Jamal away as he stared at Bonnie.

At that moment, Micah volunteered to fight. "She packs a punch, Trystan. Still, that doesn't mean Jamal didn't underestimate her. I don't think she's that good. Let me give it a shot."

"Fine, go ahead."

Micah cracked his knuckles and entered the ring. He looked at Bonnie menacingly and said, little Unlike Jamal, I show no mercy even to women. If you're smart, you'll surrender now, lady. Otherwise, I'll break your pretty face."

"Are you done talking? Let's get this over with." Bonnie glanced at him sidelong as she spoke.

Chapter 370

"You're cocky. I'll take you down a notch!"

Instead of balling his fists, he made his fingers look like claws. Bonnie recognized his stance and prepared to fend off his attacks. She blocked his swipes, and he clawed at her again. However, Bonnie bent down and threw an uppercut.

Micah staggered a few steps back and looked at her in shock.

"That's a shadowboxing technique!" Trystan instinctively walked to the side of the ring and stared at Bonnie.

"Don't stop." Bonnie wagged her finger at Micah.

'How dare she taunt me!!

Micah reddened with anger but knew he had to preserve his honor. He charged at Bonnie again, this time not holding back. To everyone's surprise, the duo traded several more blows before Micah suffered a fate similar to Jamal's.

rustan and his gang Bonnie's punch also sent Micah flying out of the ring. She glanced at saying, "Taking you guys on one at a time is too time-consuming. I'll take you all on at once."

“How dare you underestimate us!” Trystan was furious.

“That’s not it. I have something to attend to soon, and you’re wasting my time,” Bonnie said truthfully.

Some of Trystan’s men could no longer take it. One said, “Trystan, let’s take her on together. We’ll win because we outnumber her.”

However, Trystan raised his hand. His instincts told him none of them were a match for Bonnie.

‘What will I do if she beats all of us even if we outnumber her? We’ll never recover from such humiliation. Then, how will we recruit more students?’

Trystan looked at Ged and wondered where he found such a formidable fighter. Meanwhile, the latter grinned, asking, “Isn’t my fighter fantastic? Do any of you want some action? If no one does it, I’ll take it as a surrender.

“Don’t forget to get a shiny bulldozer to knock down your boxing club. I’ll foot the bill if you’re unwilling to pay for a bulldozer.

Chapter 370

Trystan said smilingly, “I agree that none of us are a match for her. Still, you’ll need more than a formidable coach to run a successful boxing gym. That means having a coach as powerful as she is is pointless.

“If

you’re so tough, we can do another match. Let’s have a five–on–five fight instead. Best two out of three. What do you say?”

“You’re just weaseling out of our initial bet! We agreed that you’d bulldoze your boxing club. if she won. You can’t back out of the bet now. You can’t be that shameless,” Ged palmed his forehead and added, “I feel sorry for you, Trystan.”

Trystan balled his fists and said through gritted teeth, “It was just a verbal agreement. We didn’t sign a contract, so it doesn’t count.”

“You little shit!”

“So, will you agree to a team fight, Ged? If you don’t, we’ll bug you every day. We’ll be here for weeks and drive away your potential students.”

“That’s outrageous!” Ged felt tempted to use his background to intimidate Trystan and the gang. However, he was never one to oppress people with his family name. After all, there were rules and laws for a reason, even in combat.

The tension between Ged and Trystan reached a boiling point when Bonnie said, “Fine, we’ll agree on a five–on–five.”

Everyone turned to look at her in shock.

“This time…” Bonnie looked into Trystan’s eyes fiercely. “...We’ll sign a contract.

“Deal!” He readily agreed.

Ged approached Bonnie, looking distressed.

Chapter 371

Ged whispered, “Nonnie, I don’t have anyone else to defend this gym.”

She glanced at the distressed Ged and said, “I didn’t ask if you had enough people, You wouldn’t have asked me for help if you had someone else, right?”

“Umm…”

Although that was true, it did not mean it was pleasant to hear. Ged asked, “Does that mean you can gather some fighters?”

Bonnie pulled out her phone, saying, “Give me a minute, I need to make a few calls,”

“You’re calling them now?”

“Of course. All my fellow students are in Pyralls, too–except Maisy, who spends most of her time overseas.”

Ged's eyes widened. "A--Are they also Master Arturo's students by any chance?"

"Bingo." Bonnie was on the phone already. "Hey, Channing. I need help with a five-on-five team fight to defend my friend's boxing gym. Do you have time to drop by?"

Channing responded, "For you, Bonnie, anytime!"

"Perfect! While I wait for you, I'll call Alfie and the others, too."

Ged was so happy that he grinned from ear to ear. Meanwhile, Trystan and his gang felt uneasy when they saw how happy Ged was.

"Hey, Trystan. Do you think he managed to gather strong fighters?"

"Do you think he's the only one who called for backup?" Trystan asked.

His gang looked at him curiously and noticed his confidence. One of them asked, "Did you get some formidable fighters, too?"

"Of course I did! I can't rely on you worthless punks. You couldn't even deal with a little girl," Trystan lectured his gang.

'How dare he call us worthless? He doesn't even dare to take on Bonnie himself.'

Soon after, Trystan's backup arrived at Ged's boxing gym. They were shocked but quickly felt better about their chances. The fighters Trystan had called were formidable combat masters. Most of them won numerous championships in fighting tournaments.

2/2

"Son of a bitch! That's cheating! Three of Trystan's men are combat masters. They've won several championships to boot. That's just the trio I recognize. Who knows what the other two have achieved?"

Although Ged caused a commotion, his words did not reflect his thoughts, 'Your men might be good, Trystan, but can they hold their own against Master Arturo's students? My guys stand at the top of the combat world!'

Trystan and his gang laughed when they saw how "panicked" Ged was. Trystan asked, "Where are you guys? What's taking them so long?"

Bonnie looked at the door and said, "There they are."

Trystan turned to look toward the door, thinking, 'We'll wipe the floor with them.'

Immediately after, he became wide-eyed when he saw the team. "What the hell! That's Master Channing Charles, Master Mike Fury, Master Alfie Ross, Master Fred Creed, and Master Rocky Marcello!"

"Those guys are the best fighters alive. They learned shadowboxing from the revered Master Arturo. Although my guys are tough, they're nothing compared to those five!"

Initially, the fighters Trystan called were arrogant and confident. After seeing Bonnie's fellow students, they became scared and tried to flatter the combat masters.

"What brings you fine combat masters here?"

Channing replied, "Bonnie called us to defend this gym. Did she call you guys, too? Perfect! We'll kick some ass together."

Trystan's guys began to sweat as Bonnie clarified, "You got it wrong, Channing. These guys are our opponents."

Chapter 372

"Oh, so that's how it is! Then, it'll be a piece of cake. They're no match for us,"

Trystan's fighters trembled when they heard Channing's words. They exchanged glances before turning around and fleeing. Trystan realized what had happened and followed suit, yelling after them, "Hey, where are you guys going?! You can't leave!"

The fighters turned and glared at Trystan. One argued, "We came because we consider you our friend. I never thought you'd set us up like this!"

"Why would you pit us against these combat masters, Trystan?! You must want them to beat us to a bloody pulp!"

'How's this my fault? Who could've known that seemingly defenseless girl to be one of Master Arturo's students? I wouldn't have told my guys to cause trouble here if I had known.

Bonnie watched Trystan and his gang leaving the boxing gym and reminded Ged, "They're getting away. You should stop them."

"You got it." Ged chased after them. "Where do you think you're going? I'm coming with you. I'll help you find a bulldozer to knock down your boxing club."

Trystan turned and lowered his head, saying, "Ged, a wise man once said it's better to make friends than enemies. Let's move past this. You seem like a forgiving person. How about I buy you a meal instead?"

Before Ged could reply, Bonnie interjected, "Trystan, was it? If we were the ones who lost, would you have moved past it? I want an honest answer."

She glared at Trystan so profoundly that he dared not lie to her. He was stumped at that moment.

Bonnie sneered and added, "You wouldn't have done that. After all, you called your gang to kick us out of the area. You're the one who picked a fight, lost, and went back on your words. What made you think you could fool us with some old saying and expect us to forgive you?"

Trystan was stumped.

Bonnie turned to Ged and said, "Since this is your boxing gym, you can decide what to do. I'm an outsider, so I won't say anything."

Initially, Trystan had almost convinced Ged to let things go. The latter was about to be the bigger man," but Bonnie helped him see the truth.

Chole 372

'People like Trystan aren't worth forgiving!

"Fuck this! We'll bulldoze their boxing club!"

Trystan's heart sank, and he was about to say something. However, Ged showed him their signed contract and said, "You won't weasel out of it this time!"

"Damn it!" Trystan glared at Bonnie resentfully. 'It isn't over until I say it is!!

Soon after, Warrior's Way Boxing Club turned into a wreck.

"It's so satisfying, Bonnie! I owe you big time! I know you a little better now. Not only are you multi-talented, but you're also charismatic, especially when helping your friends. I would've let it slide if you hadn't been there. Frankly, you've impressed me thoroughly," Bonnie smiled faintly. "You're exaggerating. That's just how we're supposed to deal with such situations.

"Well, it's getting late. Why don't I send you home, Bonnie? There was something off about how Trystan glared at you earlier. I'm worried he might do something rash." Ged thought of Trystan's glare and felt goosebumps.

"I'll be okay." Bonnie waved. "They can't defeat me even if they gang up on me."

"I know just how formidable you are, but they could be moving in the dark while you're walking in the open. What'll you do if they sneak up on you?"

"Don't worry about me. I have to treat my fellow students to dinner later, so they'll be around. I don't think Trystan and his gang will dare to do anything funny tonight." "Okay then. That makes me feel better."

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 373

Chapter 373

Ged texted Ivor, "Your fiancée is decisive and unyielding! She's destined for big things in life."

Ivor confidently replied, "Why do you think I fell in love with her? After all, birds of a feather flock together."

'Damn it, Ivor!' Ged cursed inwardly, 'I only have myself to blame for bringing Bonnie up. Everyone says we should learn from our mistakes, but I'm a fool who keeps repeating them.'

That night, Bonnie finished having dinner with her fellow students. Channing asked with concern, "How about I send you home, Bonnie?"

"You're doubting my fighting skills by saying that," Bonnie said playfully.

"I'd never do that. I heard about how you and Maisie fought and ended in a draw a while ago. Still, I noticed the guys from earlier today were looking at you pretty menacingly. Although they might not do anything to us, you're still a lady. Sometimes, even the best of us get defeated in an ambush. You understand, right?"

Bonnie nodded and said, "I appreciate your concern, Channing. I understand what you mean, but you guys are busy during the day, yet you came to my aid without question. I'm sure you have responsibilities to tend to tomorrow.

"I don't want to take up more of your time. Also, I already asked someone to come and take me home."

Channing felt at ease hearing that. Mike added, "Is he reliable? I mean the guy who's coming to pick you up. Can we count on him?"

Buzz!

Bonnie received a text. After reading it, she smiled at her fellow students and said, "He's here—let's go outside. You'll find out how reliable he is when you see him."

Soon after Bonnie and the gang left the hotel, they saw an ordinary car waiting for her. She approached the driver's side and said, "He's in there."

She knocked on the window, and her fellow students curiously huddled around the car. They wondered who had come to pick Bonnie up. From her tone, she probably knew the guy well. When the window lowered, they saw Jim's rugged looks.

"I—Is that Jim Ray?!"

Everyone was stunned, but not because of his fighting prowess. After all, they weren't necessarily weaker than him. What surprised them was Jim's profession. Everyone in Pyralis or even Arvador knew Jim was Ms. Bonita's bodyguard.

Chapter 373

However, he had come to pick Bonnie up and send her home. Of course, her fellow students would be surprised to see him.

“I’ll take my leave now, guys. See you around!” Bonnie put her arm out the window and waved at them.

“Bye, Bonnie!”

The group watched as the car drove into the distance. One said, “Channing, Master Arturo mentioned Bonnie being talented in scientific research, right?”

“Master Arturo mentioned that to me, too. Do you think Bonnie is who we think she is?” After some thought, Channing texted Arturo, “Jim Ray just picked Bonnie up.”

Arturo replied, “What’s wrong with that?”

“Isn’t he Ms. Bonita’s bodyguard? Why would he make such an effort to pick Bonnie up?”

Arturo replied briefly. “You just answered your own question.”

The rest of the group gathered around Channing. They froze when they saw their master’s reply.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 374

Alfie gasped and exclaimed, “Whoa! I would have never expected Bonnie to be the nation’s leading researcher! She’s Ms. Bonita? Well, I’m proud to be her fellow student.”

“I agree with you wholeheartedly.”

“Me, too!”

“Me, three!”

Meanwhile, Bonnie looked into the rear-view mirror and noticed several cars tailing Jim’s. ”

Huh?”

“What’s wrong?” Jim asked puzzlingly.

Bonnie lifted her chin at the rear-view mirror and asked, “Do you notice the cars tailing us?”

“I did, but I thought it was just a coincidence.”

After some thought, Bonnie pointed at a nearby alley and said, “Turn here. Usually, no one passes through it. We’ll know if they’re following us if they turn in, too.”

“You got it.” Jim was eager to see who was foolish enough to try something funny with them. Now that he thought about it, it had been a while since he punched someone.

A white car followed Jim, and the driver told Trystan, who was in the backseat, “They turned into the alley. Should I keep following?”

“Obviously, you idiot! That bitch ruined my family business. I want to show her that she messed with the wrong guy!” Trystan was furious when he recalled his boxing club turning to dust.

Jim looked into the rear-view mirror and said, “Yep, they’re following us.”

Bonnie rubbed her chin and analyzed the situation. “It’s probably Trystan and his gang.”

The white car sped up a moment later and motioned to ram into Jim’s car. It seemed they were going for the kill in the isolated alley. However, Jim had prepared for it. He swerved his car at the last second and avoided the white car.

Suddenly, six cars surrounded Jim and blocked all possible escape routes. Trystan’s gang exited their vehicles and closed on Jim’s. They were even holding weapons.

Trystan barked, “I’ll count to three, and then we’ll smash your car if you don’t get out now!”

The driver’s side door swung open, and Trystan froze when he saw Jim. Although ordinary folks might not recognize the latter, he was a boxing club owner. Naturally, Trystan knew who the King of Combat was.

Chapter 374

“M–Master Jim!” Trystan was so stunned that he stuttered. Even his gang looked like they had just seen a ghost.

“In the flesh,” Jim responded. Then, he cracked his neck and knuckles, ready to kick some ass.

Trystan was terrified as he stammered again, “I–It was all a misunderstanding, Master Jim!”

“A misunderstanding, huh?” Jim looked around and said, “You’re all armed and tried to ram into my car. You’ve even surrounded me. How is it a misunderstanding? Do I look like a fool to you?”

“N–Not at all, sir! It was an honest misunderstanding. We got the wrong person. Y–You’re not the one we’re looking for!” Trystan slapped one of his guys. “You idiot! You told me she was in this fucking car, didn’t you?!”

Trystan slapped the guy so hard that the latter felt dizzy. Feeling helpless and mistreated, the guy said, “I didn’t get it wrong. I saw her getting into this car, and we’ve been tailing her ever since.

“Come on, you know I’m better than that. I’ve never made such a rookie mistake. I swear I saw her entering this car.”

Trystan knew his guy well. However, the former panicked even more after hearing what the guy said. Trystan slowly turned and looked at the car’s backseat.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 375

Chapter 375

'Is Bonnie in the car? Then, there's no doubt that she knows Jim well.'

Thud!

Trystan suddenly knelt before Jim, saying, "Master Jim, please have mercy on me. I didn't know she was your girlfriend!"

Bonnie's lips twitched when she heard that. Jim responded indifferently, "She's not my girlfriend."

Trystan smacked himself when he realized Jim was still upset. The former said, "I was stupid to think she was your girlfriend, sir. Obviously, she's your wife. Please forgive me!"

Before Jim could respond, a much more charming and profound voice echoed, "She's my fiancée."

Bonnie lowered her window and peeked around the surroundings. As expected, he was there. Meanwhile, Trystan looked at Ivor and noticed how imposing and menacing the latter was. Although he might not know who Ivor was, he could guess how powerful Ivor was.

Trystan almost cried. He would not have challenged Ged's boxing gym if he knew this would happen. With that, he would not have offended these big honchos.

Bonnie finally exited the car and glanced at Ivor, who was wearing a coat. Then, she looked at Jim, thinking, 'God, help me. Here we go again.'

Ivor's expression grew colder when he realized Bonnie did not care to explain anything. He said, "It seems you and Jim are extremely close."

Bonnie nodded and said, "You're right. We're super close. He's more like my best friend."

She was so straightforward that Ivor did not know how else to vent his jealousy. Hence, he asked Jim, "When will you finish repaying your debt to her, Master Jim? Since Ms. Bonita is the most crucial person in Arvandor, you should be around her 24/7."

“The nation will suffer a substantial loss if something happens to Ms. Bonita.”

Jim chuckled and changed the topic, “Are you going to handle them, or should I?”

Ivor tried to assert his dominance by saying, “I’ll do it since you need to prioritize Ms. Bonita’s safety. I’ll do my job and protect Bonnie.”

“If that’s the case, I’ll back off and let you be the knight in shining armor.” With that, Jim entered his car and drove off.

Chapter 375

Ivor looked at Floys and said, “I’ll leave them to you.”

“Understood, Mr. Ivor.”

When Bonnie entered Ivor’s car, she heard several gut-wrenching screams in the alley. Each scream sounded more desperate than the last. Soon after, she heard Ivor’s stomach growling. She looked at him and noticed how pale he was.

Bonnie asked, “You didn’t eat anything, did you?”

“I came as soon as I finished work.”

Bonnie knew Ivor had a critical project to work on that day. Otherwise, she would not have asked Jim to pick her up from the hotel.

“You were so busy that you had to skip lunch and dinner? You’re already the richest guy in Pyralis, so your health should matter more than money.”

Ivor was overjoyed to see Bonnie’s concern for him. He said, “I thought you knew I was trying to make more money for my future wife.”

“I don’t need your money. I can make my own.”

Bonnie thought, ‘For that matter, I might just be wealthier than you.’

Suddenly, Ivor stepped on the brake, bringing the car to a screeching halt. Before Bonnie knew it, he leaned closer. She could feel his warm breath on her cheeks, causing her heart to skip a beat. Still, she did not let it show. “Ivor, what’s gotten into you?”

He grinned and said, “You admitted it just now.”

“What are you talking about?”

Ivor’s affection slowly chipped away at Bonnie’s calmness.

The former answered, “You just admitted to being my future wife.” Finally, Bonnie noticed it.

I shouldn’t have responded to him without thinking. Still, am I admitting I’m his future wife?’

Honk, honk!

A car behind them honked, bringing Bonnie back to her senses. She pushed Ivor away and said, “Keep your eyes on the road.”

“Of course, honey!” Ivor was so happy that he forgot that he was hungry.

Bonnie said, “There’s plenty of tasty street food at Appetite Avenue. I’d go there and eat everything if I had the time. Do you like street food?”

“Of course I do. I love everything you eat.”

“Really?” Bonnie raised her brows with a hint of playfulness in her eyes. “I love eating liver and onions. I don’t see you liking something like that.”

After some thought, Ivor said, “That’s not true. I like eating liver and onions, too.”

“Okay, why do you always watch and not join in whenever I eat that?”

“Since I love you so much, I want you to have as much as possible.”

Bonnie's eyes glinted with humor as she said, "That makes me feel sorry for you. I'll buy some liver and onions for us tomorrow. You know what? I'll let you have all of it. After all, you did the same for me."

Ivor did not know how to respond. His stumped expression amused Bonnie.

Soon after, the couple reached Appetite Avenue. They stopped at a barbeque stall, and Bonnie said, "I'll have ten grilled squid skewers, please. Make them spicy, okay?"

Ten minutes later, she gave some to Ivor and said, "Bon appetit."

Ivor looked at the grilled squid with onions, which made him lose his appetite. He asked, "Why don't you have a taste first?"

Bonnie rolled her eyes at him, saying, "Are you worried they're poisonous? You know what? I won't argue—I'll just eat it."

She took a bite and savored the taste. "Mmm, it's the best place to go for grilled squids. Come one, have some!"

She handed Ivor the remaining pieces, and he bit into the piece she had just bitten. Bonnie said, "I just ate that part, Ivor."

Chapter 376

"I know that," Ivor said before taking another bite.

"What do you think? It's good, right?"

"Mmm... It's delicious because you ate it."

Bonnie sighed, not knowing what else to say.

Later, Floyd entered Ivor's room, and the latter asked, "Did you finish handling those guys?"

“Of course I did.” Floyd paused momentarily and then asked, “I thought you said Master Jim and Ms. Bonnie could never be a couple. I vividly remember you claiming he doesn’t love her that way, Mr. Ivor. What that in mind, why do you get jealous of Master Jim?”

Ivor replied solemnly, “I might know they’re not a couple, but Jim is still a man. Put yourself in my shoes. Can you handle it if your wife’s best friend keeps showing up around. her?”

“Um...” Floyd scratched the back of his head. “I don’t have a wife or a girlfriend. I can’t understand how you feel, Mr. Ivor.”

He felt his boss’s pitiful glance and got upset, thinking, ‘He’s been single his whole life and only recently fell in love with Ms. Bonnie. Also, he hasn’t even won her heart yet. Ms. Bonnie hasn’t even accepted him as her boyfriend for crying out loud.’

Floyd kept his thoughts to himself. He knew he might not live to see another day if he said it out loud.

Ivor asked, “Did you do what I asked you to do last time?”

Chapter 377

“Of course, Mr. Ivor. I sent someone to watch the film set. I’ll tell you when Bonnie goes there.”

The following day, the director invited Bonnie to ask about the open casting. Since she was the novel's author, and the characters were hers, Bonnie would be lying if she said she did not care about the casting. Naturally, she agreed to meet him.

That afternoon, she went to the film set and bumped into someone from her past. Trina was as surprised as Bonnie. Moreover, the former had a bad feeling about their chance encounter.

After some thought, Trina approached her former stepsister and asked, "Are you here for the female lead role, too, Bonnie?"

'I probably won't stand a chance if Bonnie's also after the lead role. She's just too beautiful, after all.'

"No, I'm not," Bonnie replied dryly.

"Oh, are you just trying to catch me off guard?" Trina did not believe Bonnie because the open casting for the female lead role was today. She thought it could not be a coincidence that she ran into Bonnie now.

Bonnie hated it whenever people doubted her. She smirked and said, "You got me there. I'm here for the audition."

'Damn it! She's here for the lead role, after all!'

Trina began to panic as she asked, "Aren't you already rich? You don't need this role, do you?"

Bonnie replied indifferently, "That's none of your business."

She turned and left immediately after, unwilling to waste a second more on Trina. The latter gritted her teeth and chased after Bonnie, saying, "Bonnie, this role is huge for me. It'll help my future. Can you please skip the audition?"

Bonnie stopped and casually looked at Trina. "I thought I was clear about it, Trina. We're strangers to each other, even if we cross paths. If you're going to keep bugging me, I'll get you kicked out of Pyralis University again. Then, your future will be utterly ruined."

Chapter 197

Her words were so intimidating that Trina paled.

Bonnie continued to walk away, ignoring her former stepsister. Soon after, Bonnie and Nancy approaching Nancy offered Bonnie a cup of bubble tea and said, “Mr. Orpheus told me you love bubble tea, so I bought you one. I hope you like it, Ms. Bonnie”

Bonnie took the bubble tea and saw the guilt in Nancy’s eyes

“Nancy must’ve waited for me here for a long time.”

Noticing Bonnie’s silence, Nancy explained, “Th–the bubble tea is fine, I swear! I can take a sip if you don’t believe me.

As she motioned to do it, Bonnie stopped her and said, “I thought you said you bought it for me. I can’t drink it once you’ve sipped it, right?”

Nancy became misty-eyed. She stammered, “Th–thank you.”

“You have it backward, Nancy. I should be thanking you for the drink. Thanks for being so thoughtful,” Bonnie responded warmly.

Nancy was moved when she saw how friendly Bonnie was. Then, the former noticed Trina glaring at Bonnie and asked, “Do you know that lady over there, Ms. Bonnie?”

Bonnie did not have to turn around to know who Nancy was referring to. She said, “She’s one of the Shepards. Her name’s Trina Nancy’s eyes widened with shock when she heard that.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 378

Chapter 378

‘Is Trina the rumored stepsister? I heard she was gentle and graceful, but she looks like she wants to kill Bonnie.’

Nancy pitied Bonnie, saying, “That reminds me. My stepsister is just like Tina!

Bonnie turned to look at Trina. After some thought, Bonnie asked, “Is your stepsister also a hypocrite?”

Nancy answered, “Well, it’s certainly not because they look alike ”

She and Bonnie exchanged glances and giggled. Since the duo experienced a similar past, they knew what each other had gone through.

Meanwhile, Trina wondered what the duo was talking about.

‘What are those two giggling about? I can’t explain it, but I’m sure they’re making fun of me.

Bonnie and Nancy grew much closer to each other. The former patted Nancy’s shoulder and said, “Although I’m the author of this novel and have a way to give you the lead role, I feel that’s the last thing you want me to do. If I understand you well enough, you’d prefer to fight for your merits.”

“Mhm!” Nancy nodded in approval. She determinedly said, “I’m only asking for a chance, not to rig the game.”

Bonnie had a newfound respect for Nancy after hearing that.

Soon after, the audition began. Trina was nervous, even though she had prepared herself for it. However, her confidence shattered when she heard Bonnie was also here for the audition.

Ultimately, Trina could not even perform to her usual standard. Even so, she did not feel too bad about herself because she knew how beautiful Bonnie was. Trina simply stood no chance at the lead role, even if she had performed well.

“You may leave, Ms. Trina.” The director waved her off coldly. He whispered to the producer, “She couldn’t remember her lines. How dare she come for the open casting. She must’ve thought we wouldn’t take this seriously. Is she looking down on us?”

The producer responded, “She must’ve thought she could land the role by relying on her looks. She assumed we’d overlook her inability to remember her lines because her looks would dazzle us. Also, she might think she can rely on dubbing”

“That’s low. What does that girl take the studio for? What does she take me for? I’m one of the best directors in Pyralls, damn it. I can’t believe she underestimated us. Give me her file. I want to know who she is and ban her from our studio entirely.”

Chapter 378

Trina was still within earshot at that moment. Although the director and producer were whispering, they were still pretty audible. Hence, Trina overheard their whole conversation.

fel

She gritted her teeth and balled her fists, thinking, 'It's all Bonnie's fault! I wouldn't have so nervous if it weren't for her! She's the reason I humiliated myself! Since that's the case, the director and producer emphasize acting skills more than looks.'

'Honestly, I don't think Bonnie can act even if her life depended on it. If she could, Mom and Dad wouldn't have disowned her.'

Ultimately, Trina decided she was not in a hurry to leave. Instead, she stood aside and awaited Bonnie's turn to audition.

Since Bonnie had just seen Trina's embarrassing audition, the latter thought it was only fitting she saw Bonnie's as well. Trina even prepared her phone to start recording Bonnie's audition. The former intended to upload it to the internet to humiliate Bonnie.

Half an hour passed, but Bonnie's turn never arrived. Instead, Nancy stepped forward to audition, and Bonnie cheered for her, "Give it your all, Nancy. You can do it."

"All right!" Nancy took a deep breath and started acting.

Bonnie felt satisfied with her performance. Nancy had memorized her lines well and portrayed the female lead role flawlessly.

'I knew Nancy would be perfect for this role!'

"Marvelous!" The director instinctively applauded Nancy. Afterward, he stood up and approached Bonnie.

Trina wondered what was happening.

'Wasn't the director praising Nancy? Why is he approaching Bonnie instead?'

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 379

Chapter 379

The director humbly asked, “Ms. Bonnie, what do you think about Nancy? Did she portray your character well enough?”

Trina watched as everything went down and overheard what he told Bonnie. The former was shocked. Even an ordinary person could tell Bonnie was the author of the novel they adapted into the television drama.

Trina remembered the author’s name as Jane Austin, a highly prolific author.

‘Bonnie is Jane Austin! That explains why she’s so rich! She doesn’t have a sugar daddy, after all. She’s already the wealthiest author on earth! Sheesh!’

Trina remembered something else that was essential.

‘Bonnie lied to me! She didn’t come for the audition!’

Bonnie smiled at Nancy and told the director, “I already knew she would nail the female lead role. Still, I couldn’t just say that aloud. I didn’t want it to affect your judgment.”

“You’re an excellent judge of character, Ms. Bonnie! It’s decided-our gal!” The director called Nancy over and shook her hand. “I’m sure we’ll work together perfectly.”

Nancy joyfully cried as she said, “Th—thank you, sir. I have you to thank, too, Bonnie.”

Bonnie handed her some tissues and said, “You fought for that role and earned it. You don’t have to thank anyone but yourself.”

Nancy said sobbingly, “Although you say that, Tatiana would have still been abusing me now if you hadn’t shown up when you did.”

“All right, enough crying. You’re the female lead, and we’ll start shooting soon. How will you do that if your eyes are swollen from crying?”

“Bonnie makes a fine point. Go home and get some rest, Nancy. We’ll see you tomorrow and sign the contract to make everything official.”

“Okay!” Nancy wiped her tears and asked Bonnie, “Hey, are you free tonight? I’d like to buy you dinner.”

Bonnie did not want to reject her offer, so she said, “Sure thing.

As the duo motioned to leave the set, Trina took off after them, furious. “Bonnie, you’re too much! You didn’t come here for an audition like you said! Why did you lie to me?”

Boone shook her head and said, “I swear, Trina You always hit a new high of idiocy and shamrissness where you open your mouth How can you be so bold? You’re the one who bugged me about whether or not I care for an audition.

4 old was but you didn’t believe me Instead, you kept bugging me. I had no choice but to say yes.

Thima’s breaching became uneven as her anger boiled within her. At that moment, Bonnie brushed past her.

Trina suddenly yanked Bonnie back, roaring, “You’re not going anywhere! You just don’t want me to succeed in life, so you lied to me! Why did you agree to come to Pyralis when my parents offered to bring you here? They’re my parents, and they raised me. You had no right stealing their love from me?”

Nancy balled her fists and bit her lips. She saw Trina as a spitting image of her hypocritical stepsister.

Trina said. “I know I’m an outsider, but I can’t stand this, You’re the one who snatched Bonnie’s parents and their love from her. What makes you think you’re the Shepards’ rightful daughter?!”

Nancy was the same as Bonnie. The former was the rightful daughter of the Church family. However, her father disowned her.

Trina shoved Nancy’s face out of the way and retorted, “Who the hell do you think you are?! You have no right to poke your nose into my family affairs!”

If Bonnie had not caught Nancy in time, the latter would have fallen to the ground. Bonnie looked grim as she took her phone and made a call, “Russell, it’s me, Bonnie. I need you to expel Trina from Pyralis University with immediate effect.”

Trina froze in shock when she heard that.

Chapter 380

“No! Bonnie, you can’t do that! You have no right” Trina yelled hysterically.

Bonnie casually said, “I did it because I can. If you’re dissatisfied, you can always call the university president and ask him to expel me, too.”

“You know I can’t!” Trina pointed at Bonnie tremblingly. Trina turned red with rage before passing out.

Nancy stared at the fainted Trina and then at Bonnie with a newfound respect. However, there was also a hint of confusion in Nancy’s eyes. She said, “You’re so good at this that you even made your hypocritical stepsister pass out. I don’t get why the Shepards disowned you, Bonnie.”

Bonnie responded truthfully, “You might not believe it, but I’ve exposed Trina’s lies and true colors in front of my parents countless times. Still, they continued to believe her blindly. They even started thinking I forged evidence to set Trina up. That’s how my ‘bad reputation’ came around.”

Nancy’s heart ached for Bonnie. Unable to suppress her emotions, Nancy patted Bonnie’s

Meanwhile, Ivor received reliable information. He asked, “Is Bonnie playing a minor role?”

“That’s right, Mr. Ivor,” Floyd answered.

“Are there any intimate scenes?”

Floyd felt a chill down his spine. “None whatsoever.”

He knew Ivor would ask such a question, so her went ahead and found out about it. Nonetheless, his answer lifted Ivor's spirits a little.

"There is something else, though." Floyd felt stressed.

"What is it?" Ivor asked coldly.

Floyd wished he could get rid of his goosebumps at that moment. He said, "Ms. Bonnie will act as Mr. Orpheus's ex-wife."

Ivor squinted and asked, "When will they start shooting?"

"In three days."

Ivor tapped his desk several times and then gestured at Floyd. "Gather some men and..."

The Shepards were furious as they visited the hospital. Vera questioned, "What happened, Trina? You were okay today, and now, you're in the hospital. I thought Pyralis University took you back. Why'd they expel you again?"

Vera was irritated as she thought, "Why do bad things always happen to our family?!"

Trina walled, "1-It was all Bonnie's fault! She caused this!!

"Bonnie? What does this have to do with her?" Vera was shocked. "Did she go back on her word and tell Mr. Russell to expel you again?"

Before Trina could answer, Gresham denied it, "I don't think that's what happened. Bonnie never breaks her promises.

Vera roared, "Why are you defending her?! Do you still consider her your daughter? I can't believe what I'm hearing right now!

"Why are you yelling? I never considered Bonnie as my daughter."

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 381

Chapter 381

Exasperated, Gresham glanced at Vera sidelong. "Let's be fair. Bonnie might love making things up and lack common courtesy, but you can't say she goes back on her promises."

Vera silently recalled her interactions with Bonnie and realized Gresham might have a point. Gresham said, "Trina, tell us everything. Did you and Bonnie argue or something? She wouldn't have gotten you expelled again without a good reason."

Trina looked miserable as she stammered, "I-I, um... Bonnie and L... Uhh..."

"Out with it! Stop wasting my time."

"Well..."

Gresham squinted and asked, "You went to the film set today, right? Did you run into her over there?"

Trina gulped, confirming her father's suspicions. He pried, "What happened between you two on the film set?"

Trina felt conflicted and hesitant. She also regretted what had happened. She would not have blamed Bonnie if she had known it would come to this.

"Why aren't you saying anything, Trina? I'll get someone to discover the truth if you don't talk. It won't take long before I get to the bottom of it." Gresham sounded solemn this time, no longer as affectionate as he usually was with his daughter.

Trina gritted her teeth and stared at her father pitifully. Gresham stared at her and then turned to his assistant beside him, saying, "Do it."

"Right away, sir."

"Wait, don't do it! I-I'll tell you everything!" Trina took a deep breath and told her father what had happened. However, she omitted certain parts. "I saw Bonnie at the film set and thought she was also there for the audition. I always feel inferior because I know she's much prettier than me."

“Bonnie told me she was there for the audition, and it made me so nervous that I could barely remember my lines. I didn’t know she lied to me until after the auditions concluded.

Bonnie wasn’t there for the audition at all.

“I got mad and chased her for an explanation. I also asked why she didn’t want me to succeed, and then she called Mr. Russell to expel me.

Vera stomped and roared, “Damn that Bonnie! She stepped over the line!”

Gresham rubbed his chin and stared at Trina, studying her expression. He felt she was hiding something and asked, “What was Bonnie doing at the film set if she wasn’t there for the audition?”

Trina froze, thinking, ‘I tried keeping the story simple and omitted certain parts. How can Dad still see a loophole?’

Why aren’t you speaking again, Trina?” Gresham’s voice was sterner now that he sensed something was wrong.

Even Vera felt something was amiss. “Hurry up and tell us, Trina!”

It seems I can no longer hide it. I must come clean, or Dad will discover the truth, and even Mom will hate me.”

“I didn’t find out about it until much later, but Bonnie’s the author of the novel they’re adapting for the TV drama.”

“What did you say?” Vera was slightly stunned. “She’s the author? What TV drama are you referring to?”

“U–Um, the one I auditioned for.” Trina stammered.

Before Vera could figure it out, her husband exclaimed in shock, “A–Are you telling us Bonnie is Jane Austin?! She’s the renowned novelist?!”

Vera’s eyes widened as she remembered seeing Bonnie typing away at lightning speed. The former was curious and asked Bonnie what she was doing. Bonnie told Vera she was writing a novel, and the latter believed it. After all, anyone could write a web novel.

Vera also remembered asking Bonnie about her pen name, and Bonnie told her it was Jane Austin. At that time, Vera took her phone and searched for that pen name online.

Vera was surprised that it was a big-shot novelist's name. Moreover, Jane was the wealthiest in the industry.

Vera was furious back then and immediately left Bonnie alone. The former did not want to waste her time with Bonnie and thought it was not the first time Bonnie lied.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 382

Chapter 382

"Bonnie might not be tired of lying, but I'm sick of it." Vera thought.

Gresham grew agitated as he held Trina's shoulders and asked, "Are you serious about Bonnie being Jane Austin?!"

Trina was frightened when she saw how angry her father was. Meanwhile, her mother was strangely silent and staring off into space.

Gresham shook his daughter and yelled, "Spill it, Trina!"

She felt like he was about to crush her shoulders. Trina said, "It's true, Dad. Bonnie is none other than Jane Austin!"

After hearing the indisputable truth, Gresham and Vera froze. The latter's jaw almost hit the floor, and she could not find her voice. A moment later, she uttered, "Bonnie's the wealthiest novelist in the world. How much do you think she makes yearly?"

Vera gulped and turned to her husband. She asked, "Do you think we should meet with her?"

"What will you do if we meet with her? Are you going to ask her for money?" Gresham asked, annoyed.

“Well...” Vera could not form a complete sentence even if she tried.

“What would people think of us if you did that? We’d look like people who disown their own when they’re useless and reclaim them once we consider them valuable.”

Vera’s expression grew increasingly pathetic.

Gresham sighed and added, “You’re her mother and should know how stubborn Bonnie is. We were the ones who disowned her, too. We can all beg for her forgiveness, but she’ll never rejoin our family. Can you look past your pride and kneel before her?”

Vera was speechless.

“We might be related to Bonnie by blood, but we don’t have the fortune to be her family. Also, we signed the agreement and officially announced that we’ve cut off all ties with her. Vera, you might not care about our pride, but I do.”

“Although you say that, Bonnie is Jane Austin and the miracle doctor. If she rejoins our family, it will-”

Before Vera could finish, Gresham interjected, “Do you think she’ll rejoin our family?”

Chapter 362

That was all it took to make Vera give up. She remained silent for a long while before saying, “Our agreement stipulates that we’ll always remain strangers to her. A stranger’s glory doesn’t concern us at all.”

Vera said that to comfort herself, but she regretted disowning Bonnie.

Three days later, Bonnie left her house and saw Ivor’s car at the entrance. She knew he had not failed to send her to school, no matter what. As the morning sun shined on her in the passenger seat, she noticed Ivor monitoring her every move. She asked, “Is there something on your mind?”

Ivor asked back, “Are you free this afternoon?”

Bonnie’s eyes widened as she thought, ‘Did he find out I’ll be shooting a scene with Orpheus this afternoon?’

Ivor casually added, “It’s nothing major. I’m just trying to make conversation.”

“Oh, I see.”

If Ivor would not say anything, neither would Bonnie. When she reached the campus, Orpheus texted her, “I’ll see you two in the afternoon, Bonwick!”

She replied, “okay, got it.”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 383

Chapter 383

Bonnie enjoyed her sleep in the lecture hall when one of her unhappy classmates ratted her out, “Professor Christopher, Bonnie’s sleeping during your lecture.”

He looked at Bonnie and then glanced at the student who complained. He said, “You should know how adept she is at computer science. Not even I could do what she did.”

“You’re too humble, Professor Christopher.”

“I’m not acting humble, you little- Ahem!” Christopher almost cursed. “It’s not a stretch to say that not even all the professors combined can hack into Pyralis University’s security system. Bonnie, on the other hand, did it with ease. There’s nothing I can teach her. Instead, I wanted to ask her to give me some tips.”

The students were shocked when they heard that.

One student said, “Professor Christopher, Bonnie’s still a student. Although she might be outstanding, it doesn’t excuse her from sleeping during lectures.”

Christopher grew exasperated, saying, “You’re all just jealous of her. If you were as good as her, I wouldn’t have cared if you all had an orgy during my lecture!”

Ding! Ding! Ding!

Bonnie’s alarm suddenly rang. She opened her eyes, checked the time, and realized it was almost half past one. Even though it would take her half an hour to get to the film set, she knew she could make it there before two.

She said, "Professor Christopher, I have some matters to attend to. I need to head out for a while."

"Sure thing, Bonnie. I won't hold it against you." Christopher sent her out warmly. "Can I ask you for some pointers later if I have questions about computer science?"

"Of course you can, professor." Bonnie nodded. "I'll help you when I have time."

"Thanks a bunch, Bonnie. Travel safe." Christopher was so happy that he grinned, making everyone else in the lecture hall question how the world worked. Moreover, he had something harsh, and the students were unsure if they could get over it.

As Bonnie left the campus, Ivor received a call from Floyd, "Ms. Bonnie is on her way to the film set, Mr. Ivor."

Ivor quickly ended his meeting and left the conference room, looking grim. The top management personnel were stunned as they exchanged glances.

They wondered what had happened. After all, they had never seen Ivor so stern. He also liked dragging out his meetings but ended it sooner today. Some employees even wondered if the company was going through a financial crisis.

Meanwhile, Bonnie wore a historical costume at the film set. Since the male lead's ex-wife was an ordinary woman, her get-up had to be a little bland. Hence, she only wore a plain hairband. Even so, her alluring looks amazed everyone.

Nancy stared at Bonnie admiringly. "Jeez, Bonnie, I think you're glowing I feel like I'm looking at an angel who fell from heaven. If you had taken the female lead role instead, the TV drama would have been a massive hit."

"Come on, Nancy. I know I'm not cut out for acting. On the other hand, you're sincere when you act. It's a skill perfect for portraying a naive and kind-hearted character." Bonnie was not trying to make Nancy feel better. It was just her honest opinion.

Suddenly, someone screamed, "Oh, no! Orpheus is missing!"

The director became worried, saying, "Where could he be? It's the only day it'll rain for the whole month. We'll have to wait another month to shoot this scene if we miss it. Why are you all standing around?! Hurry up and look for him! Did anyone try calling him?"

Bonnie took her phone and said, "I'll give him a call."

“Here I am.”

She heard a deep voice behind her.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 384

Chapter 384

Bonnie turned and looked at the man behind her, only to notice him wearing his mask. She wondered why he already had his mask on when they had not even started shooting.

In the plot, the male lead was the cursed child of an angel and a demon. His face was hideous and resembled that of a hellspawn's. The villagers were terrified of him, and even kids stoned him.

The main character then wore a mask to cover his hideous face. However, fortune smiled upon him when he eventually found Freya, who looked past his shortcomings and fed him. Moreover, she healed him with her herbs. As time passed, they fell in love.

The director asked, “Where’d you go, Orpheus?”

“Orpheus” deepened his voice, saying, “I had a stomachache and went to the toilet.”

“Huh? What’s wrong with your voice? You sound weird.”

“My throat’s a little sore, but I’ll be okay. I’ll just drink some water, and it’ll pass.”

“Oh, okay then. Hurry up and prepare for the shooting. It’ll start raining soon.” The director looked at the cloudy sky and said, “Here, let’s go through the scene we’re about to shoot.”

“Orpheus, you pin Bonnie to the ground and kiss her.”

“I thought there weren’t any kissing scenes.”

Bonnie looked at “Orpheus” curiously, thinking, ‘I can’t explain it, but something seems off about Orpheus today.’

“Didn’t I write it on the script that it’s a fake-out? Your enemies will appear before you can kiss her. Freya will then shield you from the arrows and die. As she draws her last breath, she’ll remove your mask and reveal your face.

“To the audience’s surprise, you’ll be hideous and good-looking. You’re so stunning that no one can ever compare to your looks. It turns out the aforementioned curse subjected you to a cruel fate. The woman you love more than life itself is destined to die before you,” the director rambled on.

“Understood.” Orpheus nodded.

Meanwhile, Bonnie kept staring at “Orpheus” and then pointed toward the paddy field. She said, “It’s about to start raining. Let’s go.”

Chapter 384

“All right then.”

When the duo reached the paddy field, the director yelled, “Action!”

“Orpheus” pinned Bonnie to the ground. The girls who were watching the scene blushed, but no one knew he stuck one of his hands behind Bonnie’s head.

Her eyes widened as she stared at the eyes underneath the masks. Moreover, “Orpheus” firm chest reminded Bonnie of someone. As Bonnie was shocked by the realization, “Orpheus” lowered his head and motioned to kiss her.

Thump–thump! Thump–thump! Thump–thump!

Bonnie felt her heart pounding and increasing in speed. As their lips drew closer, “Orpheus” stopped.

“Huh?” Bonnie was surprised. ‘If it were Ivor, he would’ve never passed on a chance to take advantage of me. What made him stop?’

“Splendid work! Well done, you two!” The director was thrilled. “All right, prepare the archers!”

Everything was in place when an arrow suddenly flew at them. Bonnie instinctively pushed Orpheus” away.

Gush!

The arrow embedded itself in her. The director could see the emotional shifts in Orpheus’s” eyes through the monitor. It seemed like “Orpheus” could not believe his wife was dying. He had fallen into a boundless abyss and drowned in anguish.

A prop arrow protruded from Bonnie’s back as she glanced at “Orpheus,” who looked. anguish and sorrowful. She smiled at him and stayed in character, asking, “W–Will you let me see your face?”

The main character had never shown Freya his face because he feared she would despise him, just like the villagers did.

“Very well,” “Orpheus” said huskily.

Bonnie slowly removed his mask and revealed his stunning face.

“Wh—what’s going on?” The director and everyone else were shocked.

“Hey, that’s not Orpheus! Will someone please tell me who this man is?!”

“Cut!” The director yelled.

Bonnie was slightly annoyed as the man still held her waist. She said, “The director said cut. Why aren’t you letting me go?”

“I’m just holding my future wife’s waist. It has nothing to do with them,” Ivor said firmly.

“When did I become your future wife?”

“Where’s Orpheus?”

“He’s okay.”

Suddenly, someone yelled in pain, and the person’s voice grew closer, “This is ridiculous. What kind of nephew treats their uncle this way? I can’t believe Ivor hired someone to kidnap me and strip me of my clothes.”

Bonnie looked toward the voice and saw Orpheus with his hair in a mess. The director looked at him and then at Ivor...Then, he thought about the rumors he had heard a while ago.

‘If I remember correctly, that guy is Orpheus’s nephew. It’s not hard to guess why he came here. After all, Orpheus said Bonnie is his nephew’s fiancée. The show might be an even bigger hit if I got Ivor to play the main character and Bonnie to play the female lead.’

Meanwhile, Orpheus and Ivor argued. The former questioned, “Do you know how ridiculous you are?”

Ivor retorted, “Do you know how ridiculous it is for you to play out such an intimate scene with my fiancée?”

“I can’t do this anymore! Please talk some sense into him, Bonwick!” Orpheus felt helpless and could only drag her into the argument.

Bonnie palmed her forehead and said, “That’s how your nephew is. I can’t help you even if I wanted to.”

The director came over and asked, “Orpheus, is he your nephew?”

Orpheus felt slightly troubled as he answered, “I think it’s pretty obvious since he’s handsome. That gene runs in our family.”

The director had to admit that Orpheus’s nephew was indeed dashing.

Orpheus said, “Let’s move it, director. The rain has stopped. I need some touch-ups before we can reshoot this scene.

That won’t be necessary. We got some good footage.”

Orpheus was stunned when he heard what the director said.

“A—Are you just going to use what you shot earlier? B—But, that’s not me, though! I know my character wears a mask, but we have different eyes! My avid fans can tell that it’s not me!”

"It'll be fine. I'll try not to use a close-up. If I do, we'll do some post-processing work to Photoshop your face in there." The director loved what he shot earlier.

"Will it work?" His lips twitched a little.

The director glanced at Bonnie while Orpheus looked at him. Then, the director whispered, "Do you your nephew will let you pin his fiancée to the ground? For Heaven's sake, he kidnapped you before the shooting even started.

"If you did that in the scene, do you think he'll let you walk off the film set in one piece?"

He couldn't help but feel pain all over his body at what the director said. Turning around, he realized Ivor was shooting him a cold glance. He trembled all over immediately.

Fine. It

'Fine. It looks like I'm going to have to let it go.'

The director rubbed his chin thoughtfully and said, "Perhaps we should let your nephew take on the male lead role. We can modify the script and say the female lead looks like Freya. That way, Bonnie could keep acting.

"I'm such a genius! It'll take a lot of rewriting, but I think I can pull it off. After all, I have Jane by my side!"

Orpheus's lips twitched more crazily the more the director talked.

"I'm fine with it, but they've officially announced I'll be the main lead. Do you think my billions of fans would accept it?"

The director sighed and said, "What a shame. I wanted them to play the roles."

Orpheus was utterly pissed off. "What's the meaning of this, director?"

Looking embarrassed, the director didn't respond to him. Walking over to Ivor, he asked, "What line of work are you in? Are you interested in trying your hands on the entertainment industry?"

Before Ivor could respond, the director heard Xavier's voice from behind him.

"To what do I owe the pleasure, Ivor? What are you, someone so high and mighty, doing here at my film sey?"

Ivor looked at him blankly. "I didn't want to be here, but my fiancée's here."

"As far as I could gather, Bonnie is no longer engaged to you. So, calling her your fiancée might not be all that appropriate." Xavier smiled nonchalantly.

Chapter 980

Ivor responded with an equally calm face, "My fiancée didn't complain about it. You're just an outsider. Who are you to pass judgment on my private affair?"

"You're right. After all, Bonnie didn't seem to be bothered by it. I am just an outsider. I should've minded my own business. Now that you're here, why don't I do what every good host would do and buy your dinner?"

Ivor was about to reject his offer, but Bonnie agreed.

"Sure thing."

"Why did you agree to it?" Ivor was a little displeased. Bonnie and Xavier were getting a little too close for his taste.

Xavier looked exceptionally stunning. It was just that he has rather dark characters.

Flashing a smile at Ivor, she said, "Aren't you competitors? You should jump on the offer if he wants to buy dinner. Order all the expensive food and drinks. That way, you can chip away at his finances. What's more, you can annoy him."

"You make a fine point. I'm lucky to have such a sharp-witted fiancée."

"I told you I'm not your fiancée."

Xavier, who was walking in front of them, would've stopped in his tracks if he hadn't forced himself to keep walking.

"Count me in!" Orpheus took off after them. "I'll lend a hand in chipping away at the Sheffyn family's finances."

He turned around and looked at the director and the others. "Stop filming, guys. The rain is getting heavier, anyway. Come on. We'll all go together. Mr. Xavier's buying us dinner."

Xavier couldn't hold it back anymore. Stopping in his tracks, he turned around, looked at Orpheus, and hinted at him.

'Am I the one buying dinner, or will you pay for all of this?'

However, Orpheus acted as if he didn't notice it and continued asking others to join them.

Chapter 387

Orpheus had been calling everyone to join the dinner long before he noticed the director was still frozen. He walked over puzzlingly. "Why aren't you moving? Xavier's buying us dinner!"

The director turned around and faced him. "Is your nephew the CEO of the Knight Group?"

"Hush." He put a finger on his mouth and checked his surroundings. "Don't tell anyone about it."

Now that he had a definite answer, the director couldn't help but take a sharp breath. In addition to Ivor's identity, he is also shocked by Orpheus's undertaking.

Everyone knew Orpheus attained what he had in the entertainment industry by relying on his talent and commitment to his job. If word ever got out that the CEO of the Knight Group was his nephew, the entire industry would be shaken.

At the next moment, the director glanced at both Bonnie and Ivor.

If Ivor's identity were revealed in the future, his television drama would be all over the news. Then, there was Bonnie and her identity as Jane Austin.

"Geez!" He clapped. "What I would give to make it happen. I wouldn't even have to promote the television drama. The viewers' rating will be through the roof!"

The next day, Avril and Bonnie were in their lecture hall. The former was staring at the latter with utter disbelief and admiration in her eyes.

"D—Did you go away to play a minor role in the television drama that adapted Jane Austin's novel? On top of that, you were in the same scene with Orpheus, the Best Actor?"

Bonnie was tempted to tell her the truth. Ivor took Orpheus's place in that scene. However, it wouldn't be appropriate to tell the public about it. So, she didn't come clean with Avril.

"Oh, my! You're impressive, Bonnie! That is so badass! If our classmates find out that you were in the same scene with Orpheus, they will be green with envy!"

She looked at Bonnie with sparkling eyes. At the next moment, her eyes grew dim a little.

"I guess it makes sense. How are you not supposed to be a badass? You're Ms. Bonita. Your other identities might be extraordinary as well, but none of them are as breathtaking as the fact that you're Ms.

Bonita.

"Speaking of, Trina is obsessed with working at Bonita Research Institute. Tsk tsk tsk. I wonder what she'll think when she finally finds out that you're Ms. Bonita, the person she looks up to the most!"

Avril was anticipating the day's arrival.

Bonnie paged through a book and said casually, "It doesn't matter what she thinks."

"You're right. She's such a nobody. I'm sure you don't concern yourself with the likes of her." Avril said with a smile as she stared at Bonnie.

Chapter 387

Bonnie felt a little uneasy by her stares. She stopped whatever she was doing and looked at Avril. "Just speak your mind, Avril. Stop buttering me up and looking at me this strangely."

"That's why you're awesome. You can tell at first glance that I've something bothering me." Avril a thumbs up.

gave her.

"Go ahead."

“Ahem.” Avril cleared her throat and leaned closer. “I might not have made any noteworthy contribution to the world of scientific research, but I want to see what the best research institute in Arvador looks like.

“Um... Do you think you can show me around the place? I promise you, Bonnie. I won't stir up any trouble there.”

Bonnie burst out laughing. “Here I am, thinking it was something huge. It's nothing worth mentioning at all.”

“That's where you're wrong. It's not worth mentioning in your eyes, but it's a big deal among the average citizen. Almost everyone in Arvador—no, the entire world, knows who Ms. Bonita is!”

At that moment, Natalee came over. Lifting her chin, she said, “One of you skipped classes quite frequently while the other has the lowest grades. How do you have the face to be discussing about Ms.

Bonita?”

Avril couldn't stand Natalee's arrogance. “What's it to you? Why are you such a busybody?”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 388

Chapter 388

“So, what if I’m a busybody? I idolize Ms. Bonita. She was the heroine in a classic underdog story. She relied on nothing but her commitment and talents to attain the marvelous achievement she has today.

“You guys, however... Heh! I can’t stand people who don’t take their studies seriously, such as you. You simply don’t have the right to talk about Ms. Bonita anytime you want!”

Avril parted her lips. It took her several seconds to take it all in. Then, she turned around and looked at Bonnie. She wasn’t sure how to respond because Bonnie’s face showed no hints of frustration.

“Has the cat got your tongue? Is it because you have nothing to say to defend yourselves? Figures. It’s the truth, anyway.” Natalee said arrogantly.

“Why do you insist on being a pain in our butts, Natalee? Is it because you wrongly accused Bonnie of stealing Rene’s necklace and got humiliated eventually? Are you trying to regain your pride because you’re pissed off by what happened last time?”

Avril’s words hit home.

Natalee’s face turned red from rage. It got worse when she stole a glance at Bonnie and discovered that the latter didn’t even bat an eye at her. Instead, Bonnie was paging through her book while looking slightly bored.

‘She doesn’t even see me as a threat! Wait a minute. Why can’t I understand the book in her hand?’

‘Is the book in Italonian? Does she understand it? Is she just trying to look cool?’

“Heh!” Natalee raised her voice and snorted. “Just how pretentious are you, Bonnie? That book is in Italonian. Who are you trying to fool here?”

She succeeded in drawing the rest of the class’s attention to Bonnie. All of them cast a glance at the book in Bonnie’s hands. Even Avril looked at it, too. It was, indeed, in Italonian. She didn’t even realize it until now.

“What is that, Bonnie?”

“Is that what it is? Can you...

“Can you understand it?’ Avril almost blurted it out before she clamped her mouth shut.

‘Bonnie’s the nation’s leading researcher, not to mention a badass. She developed the latest nanomaterial. How is an Italonian book supposed to stump her?’

“She couldn’t have understood it!” Natalee didn’t believe that Bonnie was that good.

“She’s just putting up an act. Can’t you tell? I’ll swallow the book if she really understands it.”

Bonnie raised her delicate eyes slowly, revealing a little frustration in them. Then, she held the book up and read its contents out loud in fluent Italonian.

Her classmates didn’t understand Italonian, but It was evident she wasn’t speaking gibberish. After all, her accent was just so on point! Every enunciation sounded like music to their ears.

She finished reading an excerpt and handed the book to Natalee.

“You’re going to eat it now, Right? Here. It’s my treat. Don’t be shy.”

Natalee’s face turned red from rage.

“Eat it!” She pushed the book inches closer to Natalee and raised her voice.

Natalee felt the stares from everyone and was on the verge of tears.

Then, Rene said, “Stop picking on her, Bonnie. We’re all friends. Why do you have to be like this?”

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 389

Chapter 389

“Are you sure your eyes are working right? Natalee came over here to fight with me. Then, she offered to make a deal. Nobody forced her at all. Don’t you think she picked on me?” Bonnie said mockingly.

Rene was stumped a little. “But, she...”

“What is it? Are you going to say we’re classmates?! Am I supposed to forgive her unquestioningly? Should I have become the bigger person even if she slaughtered my entire family and desecrated my ancestors’ tombstone? After all, we’re classmates. Right?

“Are you trying to say I don’t love my classmates if I don’t forgive her?” Bonnie said dryly.

“1. Um...” Rene couldn’t think of anything to say.

Bonnie continued leisurely, “Explain something to me like a three-year-old kid. Why didn’t Natalee apply your logic and show her classmate some love earlier? Why did she viciously attack me like that? Don’t you think she’s the first to neglect to love her classmate?”

“How does this work, exactly? Why can’t I defend myself when she picks on me? Come on now, Rene. You’ve always seemed nice and easygoing, which is why everyone was quite fond of you. I didn’t know you were this unreasonable and despicable.”

The other classmates heard what Bonnie said and turned their gaze onto Rene.

All of them initially thought she was this soft, understanding lady. Now, however, it seemed like they gave her too much credit..

On the other hand, Rene could feel the disdainful look of her fellow students, as if they were already keeping a distance from her. She got panicked.

“Bah! You’re just vicious, Bonnie! Rene’s such a nice girl, yet you spoke harshly to her. I see what you’re doing. You’re trying to drive a wedge between her and everyone else.” Natalee roared furiously.

Bonnie straight up hurled the book at her and said. “Swallow it.”

Natalee shut up immediately.

She raised her eyebrows and said, “I was going to spare you, but now... You have to swallow it. Otherwise, you’ll suffer the same fate as Trina.”

Natalee wasn’t even fazed by what she said. “Wh—who do you think you are? What makes you think you can just expel me as you see fit? Are you the university president?”

Coldness traced her eyes, and she said faintly, “I’m your worst nightmare.”

At this moment, her patience had come to an end.

“I’m going to count to three/If you don’t swallow the book, you’ll be expelled.”

“Hahaha...” Holding her belly, Natalee laughed maniacally. “Did you hear it, everyone? I’ve seen a lot of bluffs in my time, but this one has got to take the cake.

Chapte 389

“Goodness, Gracious! This one’s hit my funny bone. Good job, Bonnie. I almost bought it.”

The rest of the classmates burst out laughing as well.

“Look at her go. I would’ve thought she was about to become the university president if I didn’t know better.”

any

“I just don’t get it. She’s such a good-looking girl, but why does she talk that nastily? Sheesh! What a waste.”

“You said it. To be frank, I would’ve been with the fact that she was a good–for–nothing. What matters most for a lady is that she looks beautiful. I didn’t want to admit this, but I probably would’ve hit on her if she wasn’t so nasty and had a sharp tongue.”

“Me too. Hehehe...”

Avril couldn’t hold herself back anymore. “You guys are the ones who are nasty. What did Bonnie do to offend you? Do you have to talk about her like that?”

“It’s okay, Avril. We don’t have to bother ourselves with a bunch of clowns.” Reaching out, Bonnie stopped her and looked at Natalee again.

“Three.”

‘Is she seriously counting down now?’

“Heh!” Natalee smirked and looked at Bonnie disdainfully.

“Two.”

“Keep going! Keep going, I said! Let’s see how you’re going to expel me today?”

“One.”

At the next moment, Bonnie pulled out her phone.

Then, the school counselor stepped into the lecture hall and said, “The university president’s looking for you, Natalee.”

“What? The university president’s looking for me?” Natalee seriously thought she had misheard the counselor.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 390

Chapter 390

'I'm just an ordinary university student. Why would the president of Pyraxis University be looking for me?'

"What are you waiting for?" The school counselor cried out when she realized that Natalee was frozen to the spot.

"C-Coming." Natalee came back to her senses and followed the school counselor. She mocked Bonnie when she brushed past her. "You've counted to three, but I'm still a student here. You've achieved nothing. but embarrass yourself.

"Here's some free advice for you, Bonnie. Stop pretending as if you're some big shot around here. Karma's going to bite you in the butt eventually. How shameful!"

"Why, you..." Avril had just taken a step after her when Bonnie held her back. "She has gotten on my nerves! Let me go, Bonnie. I can't stand her anymore!"

Bonnie watched as Natalee left. She pondered briefly before slowly saying, "I think I know why she's summoned to the president's office."

"Huh?" Avril was very curious about it.

Bonnie gave it to her straight. "He did it for me."

"Say what now?"

Avril was confused by her answer.

"If I didn't know what she's capable of, I would've thought she was making a bland joke."

However, she stared at Bonnie for a long time and realized the latter was wearing a severe expression. Slowly but surely, it dawned on her, and her jaw dropped further by the second.

"Rumor has it that our university president has found someone to take over his position. A-Are you that the person he's talking about?"

Bonnie got a headache the moment Natalee brought this up.

“Russell is such a pain in the butt. I’ve repeatedly turned him down, but he insists I take over his position. The research institute had taken up a lot of my time. I can’t oversee Pyralis University, too.”

Avril took a sharp breath. At that moment, she had no words to describe her feelings.

On the other side, Natalee had just arrived at the president’s office when she realized the president was looking at her sternly.

She felt a chill down her spine.

‘Did I break the university rules? Let’s assume that I did, but does it warrant the president himself to deal with me? There are so many students in this university. How’s he supposed to do it if he has to handle every student issue?’

Chapter 390

“Are you Natalee Walsh?” Russell might’ve been old, but the air of authority about him was unmistakable.

She trembled a little before she responded, “Y–Yes, sir.”

“You’re expelled.”

His words struck her like a thunderbolt, shocking her to the core.

“W–Why are you expelling me, sir? I’ve been good, and I’ve never done anything to break the rules! Why are you doing this? Don’t you think you owe me a reason, sir?”

– fellow stu

“You picked on and failed to show respect to your university. How about that?”

‘Pick on my fellow student?’ At the next moment, Bonnie’s image flashed in her mind. Then, she also thought about what happened earlier. ‘Is this about Bonnie? How did the university president find out about it, though?’

‘Also, what are the odds that the school counselor came to the lecture hall right after my fight with

Bonnie?’

‘Wait a minute!’

“I’ll admit that I did have some squabbles with Bonnie, but I won’t admit that I disrespected the university!”

‘I didn’t even offend any other students, much less professors. I just don’t like Bonnie. That’s all.”

Pulling a document from his drawer, he said, “This is the official approval for appointing the next university president.”

Natalee stared as he gave her the document, confused about what she should do now.

Russell gestured at her, and she took it and read it.

She was so shocked the next moment that her eyes almost popped out.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 391

Chapter 391

“Wh—why would the paper have Bonnie’s name on it? Is it someone else with the same name? Yeah! That has to be it. Is this a different person who’s also named Bonnie?”

Natalee’s voice grew weaker towards the end of her sentence when she realized how solemn the university president looked.

Slowly but surely, she looked more and more miserable. Then, she staggered and fell on the floor.

Her mind traveled back to what Bonnie told her.

'She said she could expel me anytime she saw fit. Then, there's Trina. She also picked a fight with Bonnie.'

She wasn't sure if she could cry or laugh about this disaster.

"Who would've fucking known that Bonnie's the next university president?! Who in their right mind would even think about something like this?"

She felt she could throw her head back and howl at the sky.

Natalee's classmates had been waiting for her return for a long time, and she was finally back. After all, they were very curious about why the university president summoned an ordinary student like her.

To their surprise, Natalee looked ashen.

"What happened to her? She looked like her mom had just passed away.

"You said it. What in the world happened? Why isn't she saying anything?"

The gossiping students kept throwing around guesses, trying to figure out what happened to Natalee.

Avril, who knew the truth, felt superior to the others. "What else could it be? She's expelled, of course."

"What nonsense are you talking about, Avril? Why would she be expelled for no good reason? You're just nasty and want bad things to happen to her." Some of the classmates spoke up for Natalee.

"Why was she expelled? Why, it happened before our very eyes a while ago. Did it slip your mind already?"

"Hahaha. Are you talking about the deal Bonnie made with Natalee?"

"Exactly!"

All of them couldn't help but roll their eyes at her.

Everyone was debating over the truth when Natalee came before Bonnie. Taking a deep breath, the former bowed deeply at Bonnie with all eyes on them.

"I'm sorry, Bonnie. I should've known better than to pick a fight with you. I mean, I did do it on purpose."

Silence hung over the lecture hall.

Everyone was shocked!

They were so baffled by Natalee's actions that they began questioning their worldview. It took them several seconds to come to their senses, and started muttering again.

"What fresh hell is this? Are my eyes deceiving me? I think I just saw Natalee apologizing to Bonnie. Moreover, she apologized to her properly, even giving a bow and everything. Wh-what's going on here?"

One stunned classmate stiffly said, "Your eyes are working fine. You're just dreaming. We're all sharing the same dream about the whole thing."

Natalee was still bowing to Bonnie. She was biting her lips, and her eyes turned red.

Bonnie glanced at her condescendingly and nonchalantly.

"Did you find out about it?"

1 did! I know everything now. I'm sorry! I mean it! I can't be expelled. My family struggled financially and had to take up jobs to support my tuition fees.

"It wasn't easy for me to get into Pyralis University. How can I look them in the eyes if I'm expelled? What am I supposed to tell my parents?"

Natalee was shaken by the thought of it so much that she could just kill herself.

Bonnie merely stared at her calmly.

"You come from a modest family, and you represent their hopes. Maybe you should've spent more time studying instead of always picking fights with your fellow students.

"Did you think you'll have your pick of jobs because you're going to graduate from Pyralis University? You couldn't be more wrong if you think that's how it works."

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 392

Chapter 392

“Of course, you’d have your pick of specific jobs, but what about the best companies? Have you thought about working in one of the top five hundred companies in the world? For that matter, have you thought about making something of yourself?”

“Did you think the university was the end of your academic life? Well, news flash, Natalee. Pyralis University is just the beginning of your life. You’ll have to work harder than you’re doing now if you want to succeed.”

Tears flowed down Natalee’s chin, and fell to the floor. She hung her head and said, “I’ll hold onto your words dearly, Bonnie. Trust that I’ve seen the error of my ways. I won’t do this again. I’ll stop wasting my time and my life. Instead, I’ll focus on my studies.

Bonnie nodded satisfyingly. “It’s important that we learn from our mistakes, and you did just that. Fine. I’ll give you another chance. I hope you’ll cherish it.”

“Thank you! Thank you!” Natalee was so happy that she shed tears of joy and then cried even harder.

The rest of the classmates were stunned by what they saw.

The way Bonnie talked to her was nothing like when fellow students talked. It was more like a teacher lecturing a student.

Russell was watching the entire thing through the footage. Raising his hand, he stroked his beard.

“I knew I had the right person in mind. Bonnie is perfect for taking over my position.”

It wasn’t about Bonnie’s talents so much as it was about her character.

Once their classes ended, Avril pulled Bonnie away and ran toward the entrance.

“Why are you in such a hurry?”

“How could I not? You promised to take me to the research institute. No one can contain the excitement!”

Bonnie chuckled and shook her head. “I feel I need to remind you. No photographs.”

“Geez. Do you think I’m that much of a fool? This is Bonita Research Institute, the most advanced research facility in Arvandor. You guys study the most essential things in the world.

“With that in mind, why would I take pictures? I wouldn’t even dare do something like that.” Avril said as she pulled Bonnie into the car. They had just gotten in when Flynn squeezed into the car as well.

“What are you doing here?” Avril said, exasperated.

“Hehe!” He flashed them a smile and said to Bonnie, “Can you give me a tour of your research institute as well?”

“What makes you think she should bring you along? Not only are we best friends, but my mother is her godmother. Bonnie loves my mother deeply, too.

Chapter 397

“My point is that we’re like family. So, it’s okay for me to go. Perhaps you should kill your time somewhere far, far away.” Avril straight up asked him to leave.

That riled him up. “Ivor is my cousin. She’s something of a sister-in-law to me. I’m her family, for real. What makes you think I’m an outsider?”

“Come on They aren’t even a couple now. Stop pretending to be her family and get out of the car.” Avril gripped his clothes and pulled him out of the car.

“Ivor gets jealous at the slightest stuff. Do I look like a fool who’d say it before him? Cut your crap and get out of the car.”

Tried as she might, but she couldn’t yank him away. Then, she looked at Bonnie angrily.

“Look at him, Bonnie...”

“Let him come,” Bonnie said casually.

“Thank you, Bonnie!” He yelled out of excitement.

Turning around, she gave her a sidelong glance and said, “I’m not your sister-in-law.”

“Take her advice, Flynn. Stop saying she’s your sister-in-law!” Avril growled.

Flynn ignored her and flashed Bonnie another smile. “Alright, I’ll listen to everything you say, Bonnie. After all, you’re my sister-in-law.”

Bonnie didn’t know what to say for a second there.

“I notice a common trait among the men in the Knight family. All of you are shameless.”

“Guilty as charged.” He nodded. “With that said, there’s another scarier common trait you didn’t know.”

“What’s that?” Avril asked, curious.

Bonnie was a little curious, too.

“All men in the Knight family get jealous easily and love their wives to the death!” Flynn said proudly.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 393

Chapter 393

Bonnie and Avril were speechless.

“I’m just at a loss for words. Is this something to be proud of?” Avril said.

“Why, of course! The fact is that it’s all up to the men if their family is going to have some peace and harmony. The family will be chaotic if the man doesn’t respect his wife.

“However, if the man doted on his better half, his family would be surrounded by peace. This is an old family saying that’s stuck with the Knights for generations.”

Avril might’ve felt speechless, but she couldn’t help but think that Flynn made a fine point.

Half an hour later, they arrived at the research institute.

Bonnie had just taken a few steps when she turned around and realized both were rooted to the spot.

“Aren’t you guys here to see the institute? What are you waiting for?”

“You don’t get it, Bonnie. This is a solemn, almost sacred moment for me. I have to offer up a prayer before I walk inside. Otherwise, I would be disrespecting the research institute. As far as I’m concerned, this is hallowed ground.” With that, Avril brought her hands together and started praying.

Then, she said, “Amen.”

Her lips twitched a little. “This is a research institute, not a church.”

“Avril has a point, Bonnie. We have to show this place the respect it deserves.” Looking solemn, he clasped his hands and bowed. Then, he bowed a second and third time.

Bonnie’s lips twitched again. ‘Should I just help them set up an altar or something?’

“Hey, I’m going inside now.”

“Alright. We’re done. Wait for us.”

Not long after, Avril and Flynn went into the world–renowned research institute. Both of them acted like a couple of bumpkins stepping foot into the city for the first time and swept their eyes across the place, as curious as a cat.

“Dang! Isn’t this the latest scanner? They’re costly! I can’t believe there are so many of them here!” Flynn made a beeline to the scanner he talked about and got all excited.

On the other hand, Avril saw one of the old professors buried in his work. Her eyes sparkled immediately.

“Is that Professor Jamie Harper? He won a Material Science Award. Hey, that’s Professor Riley Chambers. She won an International Science Award. Professor Charlie Knowles is here, too. He’s awesome. He won a lot of awards, too. Moreover, he skipped grades constantly and made a name for himself when he was twenty.”

Her voice was too loud and irritated one of the old professors.

“Who’s making a ruckus and disrupting us?”

Shocked, Avril covered her mouth. I’m a dead woman. They’re the world’s greatest scientists, and I’ve offended them.”

Jamie turned around and looked at her displeasingly. He was about to say something when he saw Bonnie, who was standing next to her, and he immediately adopted an altogether different attitude.

“Greetings, Ms. Bonita! I’ve finished the task you entrusted me. You’ll find the report in your office.”

“Okay, Good work.” Bonnie nodded in approval.

Jamie was overjoyed to hear it. “Just doing my duty, Ms. Bonita.”

“I’ll leave you to it.” She waved at him.

“Alright. I’ll tend to my experiments at once.”

Avril watched as Jamie left at Bonnie’s instruction, and she remembered how prominent he was in the science industry. Of course, she knew about Bonnie’s real identity, but she couldn’t wrap her head around how much of a badass the latter was right now.

The prominent professors respectfully greeted Bonnie while the duo went to Bonnie’s office. Avril wast stunned the entire walk.

She had always known Bonita was this remarkably prestigious character who stood at the world’s top. So, she had nothing but respect and admiration for the nation’s leading researcher,

Ever since she found out that Bonnie was, in fact, Bonita, she was all the more surprised. At times, she still couldn't believe it.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 394

Chapter 394

Avril saw Bonnie doing exceptionally well in her expertise. She also noticed the old, prominent professors' respect toward the latter. That was when she truly understood just how incredible her best friend was!

Flynn shared her sentiment. He could feel more of what she was feeling now because he tried to kidnap Bonnie once. The moment when the tanks and helicopters showed up was so traumatic that it was seared into his memories.

"I'm going to buy dinner later, Bonnie. Go ahead and eat anything you want!"

Bonnie turned around and looked at Avril. "Should we take his offer?"

"Of course! We have to go. We'd be fools if we didn't eat a free meal."

Flynn's parents, Gunnar and Sydney, were chatting with a company CEO in a coffee shop adjacent to the Bonita Research Institute.

"Is your son coming back to Arvador, Dominick?" She asked.

"That's right. This son of mine has been wasting his time for a while now. It's about time he comes back and takes over my company."

“Does he have a girlfriend?”

It didn’t take a genius to know what she was getting at.

“Are you going to recommend someone to him?”

“I like that you go straight to business, Dominick. I have a niece who’s just twenty–one years old, and she came from a prestigious family, too. She’s well–versed in music, chess, painting, and more.

“Needless to say, your family, the Shermans, is reputable as well. I think it’s a good match. How about we set up an old–fashioned blind date for the young fellows?”

Dominick rubbed the side of his head, feeling a slight headache.

“I don’t think I can make that kind of call. He doesn’t like artistic ladies. He’s looking for someone good at cooking, intelligent, and pretty. Moreover, he loves it when a lady knows her way around a fight and commands an imposing air.”

“Gee...” Sydney parted her lips a little. “I–I’m not sure if you can find such a perfect, all–rounded lady. Dominick. Are you sure such a person exists in the world?”

“Don’t get me started! I don’t even know where to begin! My son’s already twenty–five years old and has been single for as long as he has lived. He practically gave me a head full of grey hair. Frankly, he went overseas searching for one such lady.”

His headache grew worse the more he spoke about it.

Suddenly, he saw a young lady from across the road, and his eyes sparkled. “What a beautiful lady! She’s like an angel from heaven. I wonder how’s her cooking?”

22

Gunnar and Sydney got curious and looked at the lady he was staring at.

At first glance, they discovered that the lady’s beauty was beyond this world. Then, they realized something.

Isn’t that Bonnie? Also, why’s Flynn walking behind her?”

Dominick scanned her from head to toe, his eyes full of adoration. “She’s standing quite far away, but I can sense she’s quite a tough lady!

“It’s a shame, though. She looked so frail and defenseless that a strong wind could’ve blown her away. I don’t think my son would’ve liked her, after all.”

Someone charged at Flynn and snatched his phone before bolting. Bonnie saw it and took off after him at a frightening speed. She quickly caught up to the thief and pinned him to the ground.

“Splendid! She’s both beautiful and powerful! She’s the one. I’ve found my future daughter-in-law!” Dominick said and made to go after Bonnie.

“Hold your horses, Dominick.” Sydney looked a little uneasy. She tried to keep it together, but it was hard for her.

“I have to hurry on over. Otherwise, I’m going to miss out on such a fine daughter-in-law. My ancestors had only ever had one son. I finally managed to have a couple of them, but my youngest son was stolen from me when he was just born.

“Sigh. Let’s drop this sad topic. My eldest son is the only one who could carry on the Sherman family’s lineage. The universe has finally shown us mercy and given me such a perfect daughter-in-law. I will miss this golden opportunity if I don’t grasp it right now.”

Chapter 395

Dominick couldn’t wait any longer and dashed out of the coffee shop.

Sydney and Gunnar swapped glances before they took off after them. “Don’t go over there, Dominick. Sh

she’s Bonniel

Hmm?” Dominick stopped, turned around, and looked at the married couple. “Do you guys know her?”

“She’s a good–for–nothing who got disowned by the Shepards.”

“So, she’s the infamous Bonnie!” Dominick was mildly surprised. Then, his eyes were filled with.

admiration as he glanced at the young lady.

“Everyone keeps saying she’s a good–for–nothing, but she got into Pyralis University and won the Best Scholar Award. If my family had one such good–for–nothing, then my ancestors would’ve smiled upon us from heaven.

“Save your breath, guys. She’s immensely talented, beautiful, and a powerful fighter. This is the chance of a lifetime! The universe must’ve taken pity on us, Shermans, and granted us a gift in the shape of a perfect lady.”

He had made up his mind. He would dote on his daughter–in–law if she married into his family.

Realizing that Dominick walked away again, Gunnar pulled his arm again. “You’ve got to listen to me, Dominick. Not only was she disowned by the Shepards, but she was also Ivor’s fiancé.”

“What?!” That shocked Dominick to his core. Turning around, he looked at Gunnar with widened eyes. “1–Is

“That’s right.”

“Oh, so that’s how it is. That settles it, then.” Dominick patted his chest gratefully. Wasn’t their engagement supposed to last for a month? It’s been way longer than that now. Moreover, it was called off. So, it’ll be fine.”

“The engagement has been called off, but Ivor fell in love with her and doted on her very much.”

Now, this got Dominick rooted to the spot.

“Isn’t it true that your nephew isn’t very interested in ladies? Rumor has it that he was actually into dudes. What made him change his mind?”

“That’s something we’re dying to know, too.”

Dominick was stunned for a couple of seconds before he rested his gaze on Bonnie, who had walked far away from him before he glanced at Flynn.

“Eh? A little birdie also told me that your son was kicked out of Pyralis because of her. Shouldn’t he hate her guts? But why does he walk behind her, acting like he was her henchman?”

He had just said it when he saw Bonnie reaching out and knocking Flynn in the head. Then, the latter chuckled, looking as happy as ever.

The sight of it had all three of them stunned.

“I—Is that your son? Isn’t he quite cocky most of the time?” Dominick thought he no longer knew who Flynn.

was.

He wasn’t clone because even Gunnar and Sydney thought the same thing.

“I don’t think that’s our son. Let’s just leave.”

Bonnie was having dinner in the hotel when she heard a commotion at the entrance.

“Open your eyes and look at this fine establishment. This is a five–star hotel. How do you figure it’s okay to beg for money at a place like this?

“Ew. Your clothes are downright filthy. Get the heck out of here! You’re scaring our customers away. I will have you kicked out if you do not cooperate!” The security guard looked at the beggar fiercely and roared.

The boy was six years old. Holding out a cracked bowl, the boy looked pitiful and said, “Please, sir. Show some kindness. My grandpa’s heavily ill, and he’s about to die.

“All he wants is to have some nice food before he moves on to a better place. That’s why I’m here. I beg you. I’ll take whatever leftover you have.”

“I said, get the heck out of here. Do you hear me?!” The security guard shoved the young boy hard. The boy staggered and fell to the ground.

“What do you think you’re doing?!” Bonnie angrily dashed to the entrance and helped the boy up.

“Are you okay? Did he hurt you?”

Raising his arm, he noticed it was scraped on the ground. There was some blood seeping out from the wound, too.

Bonnie’s face grew grim. Shooting the security guard with a cold, brutal glare, she said, “He’s just a kid. It’s bad enough that you lack any sort of sympathy and refuse to give him some food, but you made it worse by shoving him so savagely.

“I take it back—a lack of sympathy isn’t your issue. You downright lack what makes us human.”

The security guard was embarrassed. “I—It’s part of the job description. I have no choice but to oblige it.

“Job description? Alright. Tell me, then. Does your hotel have a rule saying you must shove a kid?” She was gripped with an intense rage.

on me!”

Elvan didn't Flynn

even bat an eye at him. Instead, he looked at the hotel manager and said, “Tell the hotel owner I'm firing this security guard on his behalf.”

“That's not necessary, Mr. Flynn. You can fire whoever you see fit.” The manager said, trying to gain favor with him.

The security guard slumped onto the floor. He had lost his job in the blink of an eye.

“I'm fine, miss. This is just some minor bleeding. I've survived worse wounds than this one.” Holding up his cracked bowl, he looked at her with reddened eyes.

“My grandpa's dying, miss. His last wish is to have some nice food. Can I please have some of your leftovers?”

Turning her head sideways, she looked at the hotel manager. “Prepare several takeouts and give it to him.

Put it on my tab.”

“Alright. I'll relay your orders to the kitchen right away.”

“T-Thank you, miss! Allow me to get down on my knees to thank you properly.” The young boy was about to kneel when she pulled him up.

“You're a man. You shouldn't get down on your knee unless it's an emergency.”

“Okay. Roger that, miss! I'll keep that in mind.”

Avril stepped forward and took her arms. “Let's go back to our dinner. The dishes are going cold.”

“Sure.”

“Buzz buzz buzz...” She was getting a phone call.

It was Ivor.

“Have you had dinner?”

“I’m in the middle of it. How about you?”

He was somewhat disappointed when he heard her response. “I had just finished my work and was about to invite you for dinner.”

“Oh, you’re welcome to join us. It just so happens that Avril and Flynn are here, too.”

Flynn almost dropped his utensils at that. A moment later, he raised his voice and looked at her phone fearfully.

“Do you want to talk to him? Sure. I’ll pass him the phone.” She said and handed it over to Flynn,

Sway

He looked at the phone the way he would a live grenade.

“H–Hello? Is there anything I can do for you, Ivor?”

“You scem to be quite close to her now. I keep noticing you showing up beside her.”

‘Holy hell... Flynn took a sharp breath internally. Then, he had an idea and said hastily, “I’m just worried that someone might kidnap Bonnie. So, I’m keeping her safe on your behalf.”

“Acceptable. Good work, Flynn.” Ivor nodded in approval.

He hadn’t hung up his phone for over a few seconds before Ged dashed into his office.

“Dinner tonight?”

“That’s a no. I’m going to look for her.”

Ged's lips twitched immediately. "Will he give me a break? Did he have to make me feel bad about being single when he sees me?"

"It looks like things are going well between the two of you. Come on, give me a straight answer. What have you guys been doing now?"

"We got to first base," Ivor responded proudly.

"Uh... Damn it! Did it take you this long just to hold her hand? How long will it take before you guys get to home base?!"

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 397

Chapter 397

Ged was at a loss for words.

Then, he said, "Bonnie's such an extraordinary lady, Ivor. There's going to be countless guys trying to win her heart I think there's a good chance she has as many guys hitting on her as you do from ladies.

"She might have more people hitting on her than you do. If you keep moving at a snail's pace, someone else might win her heart. I heard that Dominick's eldest son is returning from overseas soon. I think you know him better than I do.

"After all, you guys used to be the closest friends back in the day. Although he's completely different from you in terms of character, and he's a bit of an airhead, he likes the same thing you do.

“You guys are practically the same regarding tastes and preferences! To make matters worse, he’s exceptionally stunning and is very good at making people like him. What will you do if he returns and falls in love with her?”

Ivor’s hands, which were holding a ballpen, clutched it tighter instinctively.

“Bonnie doesn’t like guys like that.”

“You can’t be sure about that! Bonnie might’ve been a mature lady, much like you are, but what do they say about people loving their opposites? She just might have a thing for men like Thaddeus Sherman.”

“Crack!” Ivor snapped the ballpen in half.

Ged stopped speaking immediately. Clearing his throat, he said, “Ahem. Well. You did spend a longer time with Bonnie, after all. You do have that in your cards. You probably stand a bigger chance of winning her heart

“How about this? I will show you a move to help you get to home base tonight.”

Ivor relaxed a little when he heard it.

“What is it?”

“You’ll seduce her. She won’t know what hit her. Ask her out for a swim tonight. If memory serves me right, you have a villa with a pool. Take her there, strip yourself naked, and throw yourself to her.”

Ged found his idea thrilling, but Ivor was frowning when he turned and looked at him.

“What’s the matter? Don’t you think it’s a swell idea? I think it’s the perfect plan!”

Pursing his lips, Ivor said, “What you said reminded me of what Bonnie told me.”

“What do you mean?”

“We’ve just gotten our certificates then. I told her not to intervene in my personal life or even try to seduce me. Then, she told me I could stuff it because she wouldn’t bat an eye at me even if I got naked.”

For a second there, Ged wasn’t sure what to say.

Chame: 397

“This is your fault. Why do you have to be this nasty back then? Great job, Ivor. You could’ve won her heart with my amazing plan.”

“Are you forgetting something? You were ten times harsher than I was back then.” Ivor retorted and said....

Ged parted her lips. Every bad thing he said about Bonnie was flashing in his mind now. How he wished he could slap himself now.

The night rolled on.

Bonnie and Ivor arrived at his villa in a car.

“Just what kind of a surprise did you prepare for me?”

Half an hour ago, Ivor took her away abruptly and said he had a surprise for her.

“You’ll find out,” he said, trying to lure her in. Then, he opened the car door for her.

Bewildered, she walked into the villa.

The first thing she saw was the pool when she got inside. It was brimming with rose petals. She was at a loss for words.

“I—Is this the surprise you got for me?”

“I noticed you loved swimming the last time we went to the beach. So, I made some arrangements.”

This was all Ged’s ideas.

Crouching, she reached into the pool and scooped up a handful of rose petals. “The pool is so huge. How many roses did you use for this?”

“Oh, it’s nothing. I bought all the roses from every florist in ten blocks.”

She didn’t know what to say to that.

“Come on. I prepared a swimsuit for you. Go ahead and change into it.” Then, he realized she was still frozen to the spot. So, he reached out, gave her a gentle shove, and led her to the fitting room.

“Relax. I picked normal swimsuits for you.”

She felt helpless as she was led into the fitting room, and once she went inside, she was stunned yet again.

There were swimsuits as far as the eyes could see. There had got to be at least eight hundred pieces of swimsuits here.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 398

Chapter 398

No one was in the pool when she got changed and came out.

“Where’s Ivor? Is he still changing? I thought he was just putting on his swimming trunks. I’ll just dive into the pool. I can’t take the rose petals, but I’d be lying if I said I hated flowers. If this is what he prepared for me, I might as well see how it feels so the roses won’t go to waste.”

After she got into the pool, she scooped some water and rose petals and poured them on herself.

Woah. This is something else.”

“Huh? It’s been such a long time. Why isn’t he here yet?”

That was when she heard a loud splash. The next moment, a head full of rose petals broke the water’s surface.

Out of pure instinct, she clenched her fist and pounded it like she would a whac-a-mole.

“Argh...” The painful grunt sounded familiar.

Her eyes widened in response. However, he was already whacked back into the water and sank to the bottom by the time she knew what was happening.

“Ivor!”

She yelled out his name but received no response. She knew how strong her fists were. Without a moment’s delay, she took a breath and dived into the water.

He had already sunk to the bottom when she reached him.

It was a life-or-death situation. So, she did mouth-to-mouth breathing the moment she wrapped her hands around him. Then, she brought him up to the surface.

Pulling him out of the pool, she realized he was in a comatose state.

“Ivor! Wake up, Ivor!”

Nothing she did could rouse him from his coma. She was very panicked now. Running her hand across his head, she realized it was swollen.

‘I have to save him now. If I let this drag on for too long, he might lose his memories or become a blabbering fool, even if I managed to save him.’

Reaching out, she pressed on his chest with her fingers rhythmically.

Not long after, he threw up a mouthful of pool water and came to.

She sighed in relief and asked, "How are you feeling?"

"Cough cough..." He coughed a little and sat up.

She saw it and immediately helped him up. "Why aren't you responding to me? How do you feel?"

The next moment, she realized he looked at her as if he didn't recognize her.

Her heart skipped a beat.

"Are you..."

"Who are you?"

As soon as he said it, she was dumbfounded. Then, she scanned him from head to toe. 'Did he lose his memory for real?'

"Do you not remember me?"

Raising his hand, he rubbed his forehead. Then, his brows knitted tightly. He looked like someone doing his best to recall his memories but couldn't.

"Take it easy. I think you lost your memories as a result of a blunt force, but it's just temporary. You'll get them back in a few days." She would take him to the hospital and do a full scan.

'After all, this is his brain we're talking about here. I couldn't check it just by looking at it. I'll need the equipment in the hospital.'

"Okay." He nodded slightly.

"Here. Let me help you get back to your room." She guided him back.

Not long after, she was tucking him into bed. "Get some sleep."

'Man, I feel so guilty. However, I'm not the only one to be blamed here. I thought a thug snuck into the place and was about to sneak up on me.'

She was in her thoughts when Ivor suddenly pulled her to the bed. The next thing she knew, he had her binned beneath him.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 399

Chapter 399

At the next moment, Bonnie's eyes widened with rage. She asked coldly, "Are you tricking me?"

Ivor panicked when he saw her reaction. "I was just trying to spook you."

Bonnie huffed and balled her fists. After a couple of seconds of silence, she shoved him aside aggressively. "I can't stand it when people lie to my face."

"I'm sorry. I was just-"

"That's enough. I don't want to hear it. Do you think it's funny trying to play me for a fool? Well, I think it's childish!"

Slipping out of bed, she straightened up her swimsuit and left without glancing at him.

"Bonnie!" He panted lightly, took off after her, and held her waist.

"I know I'm childish. I shouldn't have resorted to getting your love and concern this way. Now that I think about it, I realize it's childish and something I'd never have done normally. I've no idea why I did something like this. Perhaps being in love does mean acting like a fool."

"Let me go." She said with a blank expression.

Instead of doing what she said, he wrapped his arms around her waist tighter.

“I would’ve been pissed off if I were you too. After all, I shouldn’t toy with something like this. Isn’t it true that what matters is that we learn from our mistakes? Please forgive me, Bonnie. Give me one more chance. I swear, I won’t do something like this ever again.”

However, she was pissed off right now. So, all she wanted was some privacy and silence.

“I won’t repeat myself. Let me go. Otherwise, you won’t see me again.

It felt as if someone had stabbed him in the heart, and the blood in his veins was frozen. Even his breaths grew weaker.

‘Is this how it feels to break up with the lady you love?’

“I’m going to count to three. One!”

He let go of her immediately, not willing to risk it.

Then, she left the villa without so much as a glance at him. He watched as she went and couldn’t help but feel disheartened.

“Buzz buzz buzz...” Ged was calling him.

Ged hit him with a barrage of questions when he answered the phone.

“How did it go, Ivor? Did you manage to win her heart? Hahaha! I know I’m right! If you want to win a lady’s heart, you’ll have to sleep with her. She’ll give it to you after that. You don’t even have to ask.

Chapte: 395

“Don’t you think you owe me a big one? How about some reward for your matchmaker?”

He said a lot. Then, he realized Ivor was eerily quiet.

“Ivor? Why aren’t you saying anything?”

“Hello? Can you hear me?”

vor...

“She broke up with me.” It was a brief response, but it was enough to silence Ged.

He didn't find his voice until after a long time. “Break up? Are you sure that's the right word? You guys weren't even a couple in the first place.”

He intended it as a joke to liven up the conversation. The next thing he knew, he felt Ivor's signature coldness through the phone.

“Ahem! That was just a joke. Let's get serious now. What on earth happened? Did you do everything like I said? It should've worked. How did it backfire on you?”

Ivor took a deep breath. His face was grim, and his eyes were filled with misery.

“Stay put. I'll be there in a minute.” Ged hung up the phone and rushed over to his friend's side.

I Love You Miss Genius (Bonnie Shepard) CHAPTER 400

Chapter 400

“So, that's the whole story.”

Uh...”

It took Ged a long time to process everything Ivor told him.

“All I can say is that Bonnie is a tough lady. She knows what she wants and won't compromise her vision and settle for anything less. Frankly, you're one lucky bastard if you manage to marry her. No, I take it back! You'll be the luckiest bastard alive if you end up marrying her.”

“That’s a given.” He gave Ged a sidelong glance. “I know better than you just how precious she is.”

“There’s no need to wallow in sadness or despair. If you look at it from another angle, it’s a good thing.” Ged said analytically.

“What do you mean?”

Can’t vo

figure out something this simple? They say we do foolish things when we’re in love, but why do

I get the feeling that you’ve become a fool yourself?

“Bonnie is this mad at you because she cares a lot about you! Think about it. If someone she deemed worthless threw a fit in front of her, she would’ve remained indifferent and ignored that person, which, in turn, drives the person crazy.”

Ivor nodded in approval. “Keep going.”

“Here’s a question for you. Have you seen Bonnie this mad in your life?”

He pondered on the question for a couple of seconds. Then, his eyes sparkled. He sounded jovial when he spoke. “Are you trying to say that she loves me?”

“I won’t say that it’s necessarily love. She has feelings for you, at most.” Ged said truthfully.

At the next moment, Ivor glared at him.

“Don’t give me that look! I’m telling you the truth. You need a dose of reality right now. Judging by your current situation, you should leave her alone for a couple of days. Give her some peace.”

Frowning, he asked, “A couple of days? Are you trying to kill me?”

Ged remained quiet. ‘That decides it. Ivor is smitten,

“It’s up to you, I guess. By all means, pester her as you will. That’ll end things between the two of your immediately.”

Ivor fell silent fell silent at once.

Bonnie went back to her villa and lay on the bed. She tossed and turned, but she just couldn't fall asleep. She couldn't explain it, but she was still angry until this moment.

She had never been like this.

Chapter: 400

Then, she got to thinking about Ivor's swollen head. He might've pretended to have lost his memories, but she did pound him very hard in the pool.

She was kept awake until three in the morning before she finally fell asleep.

She fully intended to sleep in the next day. Little did she know that she'd receive a call early in the morning.

It was Welma on the other end of the phone. So, she shoved her frustration deep down before she said, Hello? What is it. Mom?"

"Are you

you still sleeping? Didn't you usually wake up early? Did you pull an all-nighter yesterday?" Welma asked concerning

"Yeah. I stayed up quite late last night."

"I know you're young, but you can't pull an all-nighter like that! Oh, I know. Did you hang out with Ivor last night? Is that why you stayed up so late?"

Bonnie couldn't help but frown when she heard his name.

"Hello? Are you still there? Bonnie?"

"Oh, uh... Is there any reason you're calling me Mom?" She came back to her senses and changed the topic immediately.

“Oh! It’s about your aunt, who lives in Pyralis. She insisted on recommending a hotel owner to you.”

“Exactly! I told her that you’ve got a boyfriend, but she wouldn’t believe me. She even said that this sort of excuse was overused and tired.

“She told me that the hotel owner was young but accomplished. He managed to run a successful coffee shop at twenty–eight.”

“Just turn it down, Mom.” She rubbed the side of her head. She needed to catch some sleep now.

“I tried, but I think you know how that aunt of yours is. She’s not going to believe you’re in a couple unless she sees how lovey–dovey you and Ivor are with her own eyes.

“Here’s an idea. How about you and Ivor show up together to the blind date? That’s going to solve our dilemma!”
