

God, the Real Miss Hated Everyone Equally

Chapter 73

Chapter 73

Early in the morning, Brielle got into the car sent by the program team and went to a training ground to gather. Over a hundred program team staff had already arrived and set up the filming equipment. The contestants from all over the globe had already arrived. When Brielle arrived, more than sixty contestants had already arrived. When they saw Brielle, they all looked at her in unison. After all, she had been too popular during this period of time. Even though Wilderness Survival had already ended some time ago, the famous scenes she had contributed were still being widely shared on various video platforms both inside and outside the country. As long as one was online, almost every day, they would be able to see videos of her crawling on the ground and fighting with monkeys. However, almost all the people who came to participate in Extreme Survival looked down on Brielle. In their eyes, Oscus' Wilderness Survival was nothing more than a game of pretend, not to be compared with the intensity of Extreme Survival. No matter how awesome Brielle was in Wilderness Survival, in front of so many real and talented big shots, she had to be a grandson with her tail between her legs! After about half an hour, all the contestants arrived. There were a total of 198 countries in the world, and a total of 100 countries had chosen to participate. The staff of the program team first sent all the contestants a translation headset. This headset could be translated by the languages of various countries, avoiding the problems of the players' communication difficulties. At the same time, the live broadcast on the Internet started. Netizens from all over the world who had been waiting for a long time quickly rushed into the live broadcast room of the various countries' cooperation platforms.

The director held the loudspeaker and began to speak, "In the past 17 years, Extreme Survival has been loved and supported by friends from all over the world. All of our staff here express our gratitude." "Because of everyone's support, our program has been able to go so far." "Now I announce that the 18th season of Extreme Survival has officially begun!" "There are a total of 100 contestants participating in this season." "Among them, I will formally introduce a few celebrities...." "Jeb! from the Widi, 30 years old. He participated in our program ten years ago and won the championship of that year! Since then, he had been a mercenary and fought in the XLY battlefield. He often broadcasted live and was very famous on Twitter. I think everyone knows him!" "Jeb!, do you have anything to say?" The staff immediately handed over the microphone. Jeb! had a standard white look: blonde hair, blue eyes, and skin that was rough from the wind and sun. He was tall, standing at least 1.95 meters, and strong, with muscles all over his body. His hair was curly, and his chest hair was long and curly, peeking out from every corner of his vest. He looked... like a savage. Jeb! took the microphone and said confidently. This year's No. 1 will also be me!" There was a chorus of compliments. Brielle's eyes darkened as she looked at Jeb!. Jeb! was one of the people who had hurt Sister Nyla in the past. Next, the director introduced the contestants from several countries. F u kuyu from Baga. Deadie from Helly. And so on... Like Jeb!, they had all participated in the season ten years ago. They did not get first place in that season, but after that, they participated in other seasons and each won first place. They were all very strong. When they spoke, they took the opportunity to show friendliness to Jeb! and complimented him openly. The director continued, "Next, I have to formally introduce a contestant from Oscus She's Brielle!" "It has been ten years since anyone from Oscus has come to participate, right? This time, we have finally attracted a contestant from Oscus. This is really rare!" "I believe everyone has heard of this Brielle. She is a star from Oscus. She participated in the very popular shooting of Wilderness Survival a while ago and became famous in every corner of the world. She is also one of the popular competitors today!" When the director introduced the others, his tone was very normal. However, when he introduced Brielle, there was ridicule and mockery. As the director finished his words, there was a burst of laughter at the scene. The contestants looked at Brielle with disdain. There were also people who mocked her without any reservations. "She took a kindergarten version of Wilderness Survival' and thought that she was very powerful. She actually dared to come to participate in Extreme Survival. I bet she won't be able to live after one hour." The people of Oscus are still the same. They actually dare to come and participate. The disabled people in their country are already enough. Do you need us to help them create one?" "Hahahaha..." The words they said were transmitted into Brielle's ears through synchronous translation. The live broadcasting rooms of various countries also installed synchronous translation apps. The words they said only took a few seconds to translate into the language of their respective countries and repeat in the live broadcast with AI voice.

Because of Brielle's participation, Oscus attracted a lot of attention. The capitalists saw a huge business opportunity and bought the copyrights of synchronous live broadcast. Therefore, on Oscus' side, there were countless netizens watching the live broadcast. When they heard the ridicule of those people, they were furious. [Why are those foreign people so lacking in manners? Even if the other country's players are weak, they can't look down on people. Do you understand how to respect people?] [I'm so angry. I really want to tear their mouths apart!] [Those few are from the demon country, damn country, outrageous country, and dog country, right? In the future, we will boycott any products of their country and sanction their economy!] It's all Brielle's fault. If she didn't participate, our Oscus wouldn't have been ridiculed. She was the one who humiliated all of our Oscusian people. She should have died to atone for her sins!] Brielle must have deliberately sought fame to boost her popularity and notoriety. She is so shameless as to be willing to sacrifice her reputation in order to draw the attention of the nation. [There are some people who shouldn't be too outrageous. If Sister E has the courage to participate, it is worthy of praise. You don't even have the courage to participate. What qualifications do you have to mock Sister E?] [Those people insulting our country is not Sister E's fault. It is those people who have no manners. How can you blame Sister E:] [Some people just feel too inferior; no matter what they say, treat them as if the dogs were cheering; their words not having the weight of an imperial edict, just barking a few times. Why do they feel that our country has been humiliated?] [It's true; they expel feces and lose their quality, which is the face of their country. If the people of their country think they are right, it only confirms that they are a group of animals. So why should we care about the opinions of such a group?] [I thought of Baaoma's words: You hadn't even scratched the surface of what you wrote about me, all that you said is right back at yourself.] [Disgusting! How come there are so many of Brielle's water army? They are so shameful, yet they are still stubbornly trying to make up for it.] [It's fine if they lose face, but they still refuse to admit it. They even stabbed others, Brielle's fans are just as shameless as her. It makes people nauseous!]

At the scene.

Brielle took the microphone...