Mission To Remarry Chapter 774

Fortunately, the spray they formulated worked in no time. Mere seconds after Roxanne sprayed the children all over, they stopped itching, simply in a daze from the high fever.

After spraying them all over, she turned and looked at the man behind her. She handed the spray in her hand to him. "Go and deal with it in the bathroom, Mr. Farwell."

Dipping his head slightly, Lucian took the spray and went into the bathroom.

Roxanne, on the other hand, opened another bottle of spray and sprayed herself in the bedroom.

Having done that, she sprayed the room. Then, she took some disinfectant upstairs and sanitized the room.

When she had finished sanitizing the place, Lucian so happened to step out of the bathroom.

At the sight of her bustling around in the bedroom, he strode forward with a frown, planning to help.

"Carry the kids out. This room has to be left unoccupied for two days," Roxanne instructed, noticing his intention.

one by one and placed them on the couch for the time being. Subsequently, he headed back to

was the middle of the night, so Roxanne was a tad drowsy after she had finished doing everything. She was planning to go downstairs to check on the children when she collided with a solid chest the moment already reached out and supported her by the stumped for several seconds before she abruptly jolted back to reality. At once,

I came upstairs to see whether you needed my help," Roxanne lifted the spray in her hand. "I've already dealt with things here. Next, you need to sanitize your Lucian grunted in acquiescence.

them went downstairs, one after another, to sanitize his her shoulder at Lucian after having sanitized the car. She then elaborated, "The windows have to be opened tonight for the air fully. Having done that, she reminded him, "Remember to also sanitize your house tomorrow. This bacteria is highly before following her children's symptoms had been alleviated by far after they had used the spray. Hence, they would be fine once their sleep on the couch, for all

Lucian shook