

Mission To Remarry Chapter 914

When the assistant thought about how Jack had invested twelve billion in Herbscape Group, he found himself unable to continue speaking.

Despite everything, twelve billion was a hefty sum. Even if Herbscape Group was a hot potato, keeping it around meant that they would be able to see where the twelve billion was going.

If they threw the hot potato away, it would mean throwing the twelve billion into the gutters.

“Do tell me how you’re planning to deal with this,” Jack urged with a frown.

Jack’s voice snapped the assistant back to his senses, and he had no choice but to steel himself and continue.

“If we keep Herbscape Group around, I’m afraid it’ll affect Damaris Group’s reputation, so...”

Jack arched a brow.

The assistant squeezed out, “So, the best way to deal with this is to cut ties with Herbscape Group as quickly as we can.”

It’s even better if we do it before the news of Herbscape Group’s executives landing in jail spreads.

Jack thought as well, though his heart having heard that someone was of the same do as you say, then.” Jack waved a hand. “Didn’t Farwell Group always want it? Do ask them if they still was obviously done by Farwell Group. Without a doubt, Farwell Group would want Herbscape of the acquisition was another he felt it was better to get a little bit of his investment back than to keep Herbscape rake in any profits for him, but it might even bring more assistant hesitantly uttered. “Won’t we be doing exactly what Farwell in dismay, “Well, what company other than Farwell Group would be willing to buy Herbscape Group if they wanted to, they wouldn’t dare and replied,

that, he turned and went documents on the table to the ground, wearing

Group had hand, so they had no choice but up the call the moment

a while, Mr. Lacroix. What can I help you

I was ignorant to have ruined