

Chapter 204 Being Found

Isaac's sudden behavior startled Camila.

She quickly pushed him away and cried, "What are you doing? Get off me! You don't want the medicine from the swab to smudge your clothes, do you?"

Isaac snatched the swab in her hand and threw it on the table. Then, he pinned her body to the bed using the weight of his body.

But instead of struggling, Camila adjusted herself to a more comfortable position.

All of a sudden, a loud bang sounded from the living room.

"What was that?" she whispered, her expression looking tense.

Isaac's brows furrowed, clearly displeased by that sudden sound.

"Is there anyone in the living room?" she asked him.

He let out a sigh as he nodded.

Based on his reaction, she was able to figure out who the person was. "Is it Forrest?" she guessed.

"He's drunk," he answered. "I had no choice but to bring him back."

As soon as he said this, a clattering sound rang from the living room, followed by a shrill scream.

Camila pushed Isaac off her and straightened her clothes

up. "Go and have a look at him!"

Looking annoyed, he sighed disappointingly before walking out of the room.

As soon as Isaac turned on the light in the living room, he saw Forrest, who should've been on the sofa, lying prone on the floor. The scene was pure chaos. The table was in disarray, the floor was wet, and shards of glass were scattered everywhere.

With a disgruntled expression, he approached Forrest and shouted, "Get up!"

However, Forrest was too drunk to respond.

Meanwhile, Camila went to the living room, already fully dressed. When she saw what had happened in the living room, she exhaled a deep sigh. From the looks of it, it seemed that both Laura and Forrest were having another rough patch. They were at each other's necks again, weren't they?

"I'll make him a cup of honey water," she said before walking towards the fridge in the dining room.

Behind her, Forrest was starting to wake up.

He looked like he wanted to vomit.

"Forrest, if you throw up here, I'll kick you out!" Isaac warned.

While Forrest didn't say anything, he managed to stop himself from vomiting.

Camila was about to help him up and make him drink the honey water she had made, but Isaac pulled her aside.

Camila shot a confused look at him. "You're worried about him, right? If you weren't, you wouldn't have brought him back here. Why are you yelling at him?"

Even though she was right, Isaac didn't want his woman to be tending to another man.

He took the water from her hands and placed it on the table. "Go back to your room and sleep. I'll take care of this."

Camila glanced at her watch and noticed that it was indeed late. Since tomorrow would be her first day at work, she had to wake up early. Isaac was right: she needed to rest.

However, as soon as she returned to the bedroom, she realized that Isaac wasn't the type of person who knew how to take care of others. Would he throw Forrest out of the house?

So, she opened the door and went back to the living room. When she got there, Isaac had already called the driver for help. The driver was helping Forrest up from the floor and helped Forrest drink the honey water.

However, Forrest kept wriggling and complaining that he was uncomfortable.

Isaac stood aside and sneered at him. "Then why did you drink so much?"

Forrest snorted. "I wasn't feeling well."

"Are you feeling better now?" Isaac asked him.

Forrest couldn't utter a response.

In fact, he actually felt worse.

Not only was he depressed, he now also felt like the world was spinning around him.

He felt as if the universe took pleasure in making him suffer.

The skies were turning orange as the sun began to rise. Camila glanced at Forrest, who was lying on the sofa, and took a deep breath. She had no time to check on him now since she had to go to work soon.

So, after eating the breakfast, she left the house at once.

Today seemed to be the beginning of a very unusual day.

Today, the Paramount Corporation was going to make its first investment in the Hexagon Inc.

They would be investing a total of six hundred million dollars.

From the looks of it, it seemed that the Paramount Corporation could still afford the money.

Once the money was transferred, Travis shook hands with Alick, the CEO of Hexagon Inc.

"I hope we'll have a pleasant working relationship!" Travis said. "I hope the parts that you've developed will make me a big fortune."

Alick smiled at him and replied, "It sure will. Once it's launched, I'm sure you'll come out as the biggest winner."

Hearing this, Travis burst into laughter.

That was right!

The research had already reached the final stage, which was the stage that needed the least money. Now, he could reap all the benefits without doing any work.

A smirk formed on Travis' lips. He was certain he would make a fortune.

 +120 Points at most

Meanwhile, Alick sighed in front of him. "I don't know how to explain to my good friend that I chose you for this cooperation."

Travis chuckled and patted him on the shoulder. "Well, I hope we can be good friends in the future."

"Of course we will." Alick's lips curved into a meaningful smile.

However, Travis was so overjoyed that he failed to notice that was something amiss.

After all, he had just invested a lot of money in a project that he thought would be successful. Soon, he would be earning a lot of money from it.

That was why he was in a good mood.

Right now, Travis felt like he could skip work, so he went ahead to see Lilith.

He had been neglecting her these past few days. As a result, she was furious at him.

"I thought you had forgotten about me," Lilith complained with a pout.

"As you know, I've just taken over the company. There's a lot of things that need to be done! Are you mad at me?" Travis grabbed her waist and pulled her closer to him. "Well, tell me what you want. Whatever it is, I'll buy it for you," he whispered to her.

Lilith smiled and buried her face on his chest. "I don't want anything. As long as I'm with you, I'm happy."

A look of affection was swimming in her eyes. She really liked him.

"By the way, my mother has already accepted you," Travis told her. "The last time she and I spoke, she asked me to bring you home for dinner."

Lilith's eyes widened in delight. "Really?"

Travis smiled at her. "Really. I would never lie to you." After a slight pause, he added, "How about I bring you home to meet my parents today?"

Lilith looked away and scratched her head. "Well, I haven't prepared any gifts yet. I can't meet your parents empty-handed! I have to buy gifts for them!"

"They already have everything they need. No need to trouble yourself," he replied with a chuckle.

"But if I don't prepare anything for them, they might think that I'm impolite." Lilith truly cared about her image. She wanted to make sure that Travis' family had a good impression of her.

Seeing that he wouldn't be able to persuade Lilith, Travis had no choice but to agree. "Fine, fine. Do you want to go and buy gifts now?"

She nodded vigorously.

After that, he drove her to the shopping mall.

Lilith knew that Audrey liked jade, but she didn't have enough money to buy a good one for her. In the end, Travis was the one who paid for the gifts that his parents would like. Once they were done shopping, they left the mall.

As they went out, they saw a familiar car, which looked very similar to the car that Gunter owned.

Travis was about to walk over and say hi when a woman holding a lot of shopping bags popped out from behind him. She walked past him and headed straight to the car.

Suddenly, Travis' jaw almost fell to the ground.

Who was that woman?

Why was she getting into his father's car?

He let go of Lilith's hand and said, "Wait for me here."

Then, he walked quickly towards the car.

As soon as he pulled the car door open, he saw the woman sitting in the car together with Gunter.

Travis' face darkened at once.

"Dad, who's this woman? Why is she in your car?" he asked. There was a hurt look on his face.

Gunter had never expected that his son would find out his secret. "You didn't see anything! Forget what happened today, and more importantly, don't say anything to your mother!"

As Travis stared at both Gunter and the woman beside him, he began gnashing his teeth in anger.
