Jaylen's words were absolutely meant to provoke.

"Really?" Isaac asked as the corners of his mouth slightly twitched. His voice sounded deep and clear.

Jaylen kept his eyes at Isaac, staring at him vigilantly. "Yes. If you see it, I'm sure you'll get angry. In fact, there's nothing between me and Camila. I just deleted the footage in case you'll misunderstand."

It would be better if he didn't explain at all.

The more he explained, the more people would feel that something shameful had happened last night.

Hearing this, Willie scoffed. "I think the reason you deleted it was because you were afraid that others might see your shameful deeds, right?" he said, his words full of disdain. He had a problem with Jaylen for a long time already.

In his opinion, Jaylen was a shameless man.

It turned out that the result of Jaylen's explanation wasn't as good as he expected.

Just looking at Willie's eyes, Jaylen was sure that Willie was thinking that he had done something bad.

Isaac's face darkened as well.

Should he continue explaining?

If he did, would Isaac further misunderstand the situation? Would it help if he played the two videos in his possession?

He didn't think either of those would help.

"Anyway, believe it or not, I didn't take advantage of her," Jaylen said before he turned around and ran away.

To say that he fled wasn't an exaggeration.

After all, he was really afraid that Isaac might catch him.

From an outsider's perspective, they might construe Jaylen's behavior as admission to guilt.

"No questions, Jaylen is a despicable man. However, I don't know if he took advantage of Camila," Willie said.

Isaac had wiped Camila's body and was sure that no one had touched her.

However, the way Jaylen was behaving as though he was trying to hide something made Isaac feel more suspicious towards him.

"Find a way to hack into his computer," Isaac ordered.

If he had kept a copy of the surveillance video, Isaac would have a way to find it.

Willie nodded. "Okay. I'll do it as soon as possible."

He would try his best to deal with Jaylen.

All of a sudden, Isaac's phone began to vibrate.

When he picked it up, Alick's name was flashing on the screen. "Hello, Mr. Johnston," he greeted.

"Has the result of the identification come out already?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Tell me."

Alick began reporting the findings. "The woman named Greta is your biological mother. We've already sent someone to monitor her. We also heard that she has come back to the country."

Isaac stood still as he clenched his jaw. "I see."

Different names started to swirl in his mind.

Cathy, Greta: how were they related to each other?

Isaac pondered over this for a while.

"Find out who the man beside her is as soon as possible," Isaac ordered flatly.

Everyone who knew Isaac well knew that whenever he looked calm, that was when his heart was most restless.

After all, no one could stay calm after finding out that a family member who was presumed to have died turned out to be alive ten years later.

"Okay," Alick answered.

As Isaac hung up the phone, a cold look flashed in his eyes.

There was no trace of emotion in his calm face.

Even Willie, who wasn't as observant as Alick, noticed that Isaac was currently in a bad mood.

Thus, he tried his best not to provoke him.

"I'm going to check on Jaylen," Willie said, as though he was walking on eggshells.

Isaac just nodded and didn't say anything.

Willie scurried away as fast as he could.

Isaac went home alone.

When he entered the room, he saw Joe lying in the rocking chair. He walked over and picked him up.

As soon as he did, Joe waved his arms happily in the air. His face was as bright as the sun, looking very pleased that someone was holding him.

"Mama..."

This was the only sound that Joe knew how to make.

"Mama..."

Isaac sat on the sofa with Joe in his arms. Simply looking at Joe was enough to quell the emotions raging in his heart.

As parents, no one could be so ruthless to leave their children alone, right?

Cathy had been hiding abroad this entire time. Perhaps she didn't mean to do that and had difficulties of her own.

It was not that she had forgotten him.

"Mama..."

Isaac gently pinched Joe's cheek and said, "Call me daddy."

This made Joe giggle as he buried his head unto Isaac's arms.

After a while, Isaac's neck was drenched with saliva.

"It's time for Joe to eat," Glenda, who had just arrived, said.

"Let me be the one to feed him," Isaac insisted.

"Okay." Glenda handed the bowl with a delicate spoon inside it to Isaac.

From the looks of it, Joe was quite hungry. He ate a lot of food.

Even though Isaac wasn't skilled at taking care of a little baby, he could at least feed his own kid.

Usually, after Joe had finished eating, he would fall asleep for a while.

But today, he was particularly energetic.

Perhaps it was because he was in his father's arms that he didn't want to sleep yet.

Since Joe wasn't going to sleep anytime soon, Isaac continued holding his son in his arms for a while. All of a sudden, Willie came over.

Indeed, Willie was very dependable when it came to investigating.

"I found the surveillance videos that Jaylen had left," he reported.

Hearing this, Isaac looked up.
