

Chapter 255 Let's Have Another Baby

"I don't know whose wedding it is," Glenda answered.

She hadn't opened the invitation since the delivery guy dropped it.

Camila picked the card up and opened it. "Forrest?" she gasped in surprise when she saw his name.

Her eyes instantly searched for the bride's name... Divya Guzman.

Wasn't that the woman Forrest had sex with?

Camila frowned.

It was barely a few days since he broke up with Laura.

And already, he was settling down with another woman?

How would Laura take this?

She didn't even want to imagine how it would crush Laura.

Camila sighed dejectedly.

Isaac glanced at it over her shoulder in silence.

He was quite familiar with Forrest, but he preferred to stay out of his personal issues.

He also didn't want Camila to get involved in it.

"Forrest is an adult. He knows what he is doing. Don't think too much about it."

"Yeah. I don't give a damn who Forrest is going to marry. That's his business. But I can't help feeling bad for Laura. She is my friend after all.

"It's just so frustrating that I can't interfere." She sighed heavily.

"I'm glad you understand that."

"I'm honestly taken aback. I never expected this. After spending so many years with Laura, he never brought up the prospect of marriage. He only just hooked up with this Divya, and already..."

Camila sucked in a breath as Isaac suddenly grabbed her wrist and pulled her into the room.

"What are you doing?" Camila asked in confusion.

Isaac didn't say a word.

He put his arms around her waist, pressed her against the closed door and went to kiss her.

Camila stood frozen, shocked.

It was still light outside.

"Isaac, what are you doing?" she asked in a hushed tone.

"Let's have another child."

Whenever he wasn't with his wife, Isaac felt empty. The only time he felt truly alive, was when he was with her.

He loved her, and he didn't hide it.

Camila's mouth suddenly went dry as she looked into his eyes. Isaac had a knack for arousing her without any effort.

But, she didn't let her body think for her.

"Joe is still small. Maybe when he grows a little older?"

Isaac stopped what he was doing and looked down at her with a quirked eyebrow. "Is that why you have been taking pills?"

"What? How..."

Isaac fetched the bottle of vitamin C pills from the desk, shutting her up

"Well, my intention wasn't to hide it from you," she said quickly.

"So?"

At least this time, he was willing to let her explain.

The only issue was that she couldn't tell him why. If she said it was for work, he wouldn't like it one bit.

She hugged him tightly, then looked at him with her beautiful eyes. "It's not that I don't want another baby. But Joe is still too little. It will be better when he grows older."

"Really?"

Isaac squinted his eyes at her. He knew the truth.

The real reason was that she didn't want the baby to affect her work.

So he said, "Well, I like children and I want a girl."

"I know," Camila said with a soft smile.

Then a thought suddenly crossed her mind. "Do you know that Debora is still alive?"

"What?"

This was the first he was hearing of it.

"Yup! She had plastic surgery and married Ryder."

Isaac narrowed his eyes. Debora was still alive?

Actually, the first time he saw Ryder's bride, he did see a resemblance to Debora.

Little did he know that she was actually the one.

Isaac clenched his fists in anger. Whenever he thought of that bitch, all he could think was that she hurt Camila and killed their child.

Camila could already see him getting worked up. She held his hand and said, "You can't focus on her right now. The priority is Greta's health. After she killed the child Ryder was expecting so much, Ryder won't help Debora anymore. Right now, I'm more concerned about Greta. I came home with a copy of her CT scan. We should find a neurologist to see what is actually in her brain."

"I can take care of that," Isaac said and she nodded.

Isaac looked down at Camila and pinched her nose fondly. She had successfully changed the topic. "Your little trick won't work this time."

Camila pouted. "But you'll still help me, won't you?"

Isaac chuckled. "I don't get how you always get away with everything. I can't seem to say no to you."

"But that's good, right?" She smiled cheekily.

Isaac laughed and shook his head.

Confused, Camila asked with a smile, "Why are you laughing?"
