

Chapter 277 Are You Still A Man

The atmosphere was tense and quiet for a moment.

Then, Divya broke the silence first.

"Laura, right? Forrest told me about you. I had no idea you were coming for the wedding," she said with a smile, as if nothing just happened.

Laura frowned upon hearing this. Forrest spoke about her to Divya?

Just great! He spoke to his current woman about his ex.

Laura felt humiliated beyond belief. She forced a smile on her face and said, "I only came to wish you a happy marriage with children."

She then looked at Forrest and added, "You know, your Forrest is a very sensitive man. You must take good care of him and hold him tightly. Make sure he doesn't waver when he sees another woman."

"Forrest is not that type of a person!" Divya said calmly, and went to hold Forrest's hand. "Don't forget it's our wedding. We still have many guests to greet. The wedding is about to begin. What I'm trying to say is that you can go to the hall. My husband and I need to go in."

It was really unsettling how she stayed calm the whole time.

Not once did she attempt to quarrel or get angry.

Very few people had this kind of tolerance she had.

Even Camila couldn't compare with her in that aspect.

If Camila saw Isaac holding another woman to kiss her on their wedding day, she would go crazy. That much was obvious.

Forrest avoided Laura's gaze, maybe in shame and left with Divya.

Aldrin however, couldn't take the disrespect.

What the hell did Forrest think he was?

Wasn't he the one that chased after Laura and made her fall for him? And now, after he had taken full advantage of her, he thought he could just leave

On an impulse, he held Forrest on the shoulder, turned him around and punched him hard in the face. "Shameless man! I can't believe you call yourself a man!"

This finally got Divya angry. "What do you think you're doing? How dare you hit him?"

Aldrin only spared her a glance and snorted.

"Why shouldn't I? He isn't man enough to do things and admit it. What about what he did to Laura?"

"You're crazy! Forrest is more than ten thousand times the man you will ever be. That is, in all aspects!" Divya snapped and rushed to look at Forrest's wound. With a huff, she wiped the blood at the corner of his mouth, her eyes full of pity. "Forrest, are you okay?"

"I'm fine." He nodded.

Then he looked at Aldrin and said, "I won't make this a big deal just because it's a good day for me today. However, I won't let the likes of you anywhere near my wedding."

Forrest called the guards and they came running. "Mr. Walters."

Forrest nodded towards Aldrin and said, "Throw this man out!"

Aldrin scoffed and even let out a small chuckle. "I don't need you drive me away. I absolutely abhor men like you."

After one last disgusting look at Forrest, he held Laura's hand in his and said in a soft tone, "Let's go."

Forrest's face darkened as he watched Laura leave with the young boy.

Divya frowned when she saw the look on his face. She tugged at his dress and said, "Let's go, Forrest. The wedding is about to begin. Remember that our parents are waiting for us. We can't let them down."

Even a fool could get the hidden hint in her voice.

Forrest gulped silently and nodded curtly. "Okay. Let's go."

He looked back at Camila and said, "Let's go, Mila."

Then Divya looked back at her with apprehension.

"And she is..."

"I'll introduce you to her later," Forrest said.

"Okay!" Divya smiled and walked ahead with Forrest.

When Camila returned to the hall, she didn't have to look for Isaac. Although he was surrounded by many people, it was impossible not to notice his presence. He was without question the most eye-catching person in the crowd.

She just let him be and found a place in the corner to drink a glass of juice.

"Excuse me, please. Miss Camila Haynes?" A waiter suddenly stood in front of her.

Camila dropped her glass and looked up at him. "How can I help you?"

"You have a note. Here." He gave her the note. "Someone asked me to give it to you."
