

Chapter 340 Alick Was Almost Driven Mad

Alick seemed to be forcefully pressing on a woman.

Though Camila couldn't see her face, she noticed her slim legs.

She blinked her eyes in surprise as she wondered if Alick had a girlfriend.

She was curious to know if he had brought his girlfriend to Faymoor.

"Alick, let go of me this instant. If you don't, I will yell rape!"

The woman's voice rang out with anger as she threatened him.

Camila's thoughts raced.

It became clear that their interaction was far from flirtatious.

She immediately turned away, understanding that regardless of their relationship, she shouldn't intrude in their privacy.

As she closed the door behind her, she unexpectedly found Isaac standing in the corridor.

His gaze was fixed steadily upon her.

Camila was shocked, questioning whether or not he had seen her peeking at Alick earlier.

She honestly didn't intend to eavesdrop on them.

Her curiosity had just gotten the better of her.

"I promise I didn't see anything," she hurriedly said in explanation.

However, Isaac remained silent and walked towards his room.

Camila was left speechless with confusion written all over her face.

She was unable to decipher Isaac's intentions.

She wondered if he believed her explanation or not.

His unpredictable attitude perplexed her.

Nervously following him, Camila put on a facade of calmness and inquired, "Mr. Johnston, did you have a good rest yesterday?"

Isaac entered the room.

However, he gave her no response, leaving Camila even more perplexed.

She realized that the more she spoke, the more she might make silly mistakes, so she quickly changed the topic saying, "I will prepare a medicated bath for you."

Camila proceeded to the bathroom, intending to fulfill her self-assigned duty.

But just as she entered, Alick suddenly burst in.

He was clutching onto a woman.

Alick's state of mind had been greatly affected by Annis, who had almost driven him to madness.

He felt like his every waking moment had been haunted by her.

She wished she could be with him constantly.

However, due to Annis's identity, he didn't dare to take any action.

Confused and unsure of what to do, Alick exclaimed, "Mr. Johnston, she's driving me crazy!"

"I believe you're far from being crazy. If you were crazy, could you tell me where my mother's grave is?"

Annis fearlessly confronted Isaac.

She was convinced that despite them having different fathers, the fact that they shared the same mother somehow immuned her from getting harmed by Isaac whether or not he liked her.

That sentiment was what made her act so recklessly.

Alick, filled with frustration, wanted to strangle Annis, but he knew he couldn't.

"Mr. Johnston," he called, pleadingly hoping for Isaac's assistance in dealing with Annis.

Isaac examined the wound around Alick's eye and made a decision. "Ask your father to meet with me tomorrow."

Annis's eyes lit up with hope as she asked, "Are you going to tell my father?"

"Do I need to inform you about our conversation?" Isaac retorted, his voice now cold and distant.

It became apparent that Isaac had never considered himself Annis's brother.

Unfazed, Annis thought that if Isaac was willing to see her father, it meant there was a chance to talk.

Perhaps, he could even disclose her mother's grave.

"I'll inform my father right away!" Annis exclaimed, her happiness evident.

Observing the situation, Alick breathed a sigh of relief.

"What if you acknowledge her as your sister?" he asked Isaac, seeking further resolution.

Isaac pulled his collar to loosen his shirt and issued a warning, "You can leave now."

Having made an appointment with Nelson, Isaac believed that it would help resolve the issue with Annis.

Recognizing Annis as his sister was out of the question.

As Isaac unbuttoned his shirt, he directed a cold stare at Alick, issuing a warning, "If you dare to talk nonsense again, I won't help you."

Alick promptly fell silent, knowing better than to push his luck any further.

Just then, Camila emerged and announced, "The water is ready." ②

Isaac stood up and made his way towards the bathroom, while Alick stole a quick glance at the location of the surveillance video before leaving the room.

Camila, observant of Alick's gaze, deduced the position of the surveillance camera.

However, she remained composed and showed no sign of suspicion.

She quietly took a seat on the sofa.

Repeating her words from the previous day, she said, "Please relax and try not to overthink."

Just then, her phone began to ring in her pocket. Retrieving it, she noticed the caller ID displayed Jaylen's name.

Thinking that he might have uncovered the reason behind Aldrin's bankruptcy, she answered the call in French, saying, "Hi."

"This is Jaylen," he responded.

He was obvious unaware that Camila was being surveilled.

Puzzled by her choice of language, he wondered why she wasn't speaking English.

"I know it's you," Camila replied, keeping up the French conversation.

It wasn't until then that he realized the potential inconvenience and suggested, "My people just sent me a message about Aldrin going bankrupt... It's a complicated situation. Let's discuss it face to face."

Upon taking a quick glance at the time and about to respond, Camila's attention was abruptly diverted as the bathroom door swung open.

She looked over.

Just then...
