Janet smiled calmly. Seeing the bewildered look on Allie's face, she explained, "There's no other criminal here. The police are here to arrest you because I called them. You stole and sold the Turner family's business secrets not long after Miss Turner's passing. Don't you know that that's a crime? I was just calling the police to help the Turner family."

Allie's heart leaped to her throat. "Janet, you haven't thought this through! Aren't you afraid that the police will take away the information you want?"

"My husband will definitely find a way to get the information I need. But what about you? Is there someone from your family that can save you from prison?"

Allie's nagging pissed off Vivian even more.

Judging from what happened today, she could see clearly that Allie was an even bigger idiot than Janet.

"Relax. You did well. Everything's going according to plan," Vivian said with a confident smile.

This was a slow-acting scheme.

Even if Allie couldn't extort a large sum of money from Janet, the documents Janet copied had a virus.

The second Janet clicked on one of the documents, the damage would be done. Then, the next step of Vivian's plan would commence.

She hurriedly typed back, "You sold me some drugs last time." Since the dealer didn't know who Charis was, Janet thought she could pretend to be her. Perhaps, she would find out something useful.

The response came quickly. "You want more?"

Then he leaned against the table, staring at Janet pensively.

Janet didn't want him to find out that she had met someone related to Charis, so she covered her face, pretending to be embarrassed. "Oh, gosh, how embarrassing! I can't believe a horror movie scared me that much!"

Brandon pursed his lips tightly. He didn't seem to believe a word she said.

"What're you doing? Just put them in the dishwasher." Brandon followed her into the kitchen in confusion.

"You don't remember, do you?" Janet mused while proceeding to wash the dishes. "Back then, we didn't have a dishwasher, and so we used to separate the work. One cooks while the other washes the dishes. Since you cooked dinner for us, I have to wash the dishes. It's only fair."

In fact, it had been a long time since Janet and Brandon last had sex.

She could see the lust in Brandon's deep-set eyes, which made her nether regions tingle in anticipation.

Her red lips parted slightly, and her breathing grew erratic.

Brandon slowly unbuttoned the rest of his shirt and started kissing her chin, neck, and collarbone.

He expertly took off Janet's dress and started licking the corner of her breast.

When Janet woke up the following morning, she found herself alone in bed.

Sore from last night, she made her way downstairs awkwardly.

To her surprise, the sofa in the living room had been replaced. The new sofa was upholstered in black leather, so it wouldn't absorb any fluids... Janet blushed furiously.

Brandon had just cooked breakfast and was setting the table when he saw Janet staring at the sofa. He smiled and called her. "Time for breakfast, honey."

"Oh, okay," she said shyly.

"Mr. Wesley, are you okay?" Janet hurriedly apologized to Draco and checked if his hand got scalded.

Draco waved his hand dismissively and set the glass on the table. "I'm fine, but what about you? You were so absent-minded just now."

Janet averted her gaze. "I'm sorry. My mind was elsewhere..."

Draco looked at her kindly. "What's wrong? Is the stress getting to you?"

Janet shook her head with a faint smile, but it still seemed that she hadn't come back to her senses yet. Her eyes were glassy as she said, "No..."

Dalores came over to Janet's side and said cheerily, "Hey, Janet, let me sit next to you, okay?"

Janet smiled awkwardly, knowing that there was no polite way to refuse her.

Dalores plopped down next to her and struck up a conversation. "I've seen your works before. You're so talented. I'm sure you can become an independent designer in due time. Your family will support you for sure. I know the White family also has a lot of connections in the fashion industry. With your talent and your family's support, I'm sure you have a bright future ahead of you."
