Chapter 841 Who Designed The Dress

Laney was stunned silent, standing there in utter embarrassment.

Meanwhile, Kelly casually walked over, greeted Imani in French, and shook her hand.

"Mrs. Sampson, Mrs. Harding doesn't speak French. I will act as her interpreter."

Imani immediately apologized to Laney in broken English. "I'm sorry. I've been living in France for a long time and I'm used to speaking in French. I'm afraid my English is getting a little rusty now."

People all looked in Laney's direction as she suddenly started running towards the door.

"Be careful. You're pregnant." "I'm here. Don't be afraid," said Garrett, holding Laney close to him and gently touching her face.

Vera and Kelly looked at each other, both surprised to see Garrett there.

Garrett approached the center of the room, his arm firmly around Laney's waist.

"Mrs. Sampson, you're as beautiful as ever!" Garrett greeted Imani in fluent French.

Chapter 843 No One Can Bully Laney

As Kelly and Laney walked out of the manor, Kelly could sense the tension between Garrett and Vera.

Stepping forward, Kelly spoke on Vera's behalf. "Mr. Harding, it has nothing to do with Mrs. Harding. We had no idea that our business partners would suddenly come to visit. This wasn't anticipated. You can't blame your mother for it."

Chapter 844 Take My Side

With his hands on the steering wheel, Garrett braked suddenly and asked, "Honey, what's wrong?"

Laney crossed her arms across her chest and sighed. "Listen, you're a father now," she said. "You should stop being so reckless."

She was genuinely worried that something bad was going to happen to Garrett.

Taking several deep breaths, Laney tried to calm herself down.

Garrett unbuckled his seat belt and held Laney close, stroking her hair. "Don't be angry," he said. "It's not good for you or the baby." He kissed the top of Laney's head and promised, in a solemn voice, "I know. For you and our child, I'll be more careful in the future."

Chapter 845 A Suspicious Lame Man

The next day, at Barnes International Airport...

It was time to board the plane. Brandon was still holding Janet's hand, reminding her to take care of herself. "Don't go out alone at night. Lock your door and never open it even if someone knocks on it."

Janet nodded in response, taking her suitcase from Brandon. "Okay, darling, you can go back now. Time for me to board the plane. I'll call you when I land."

But Brandon was still concerned. He gently stroked Janet's hair and said, love in his voice, "Don't forget to miss me."

Chapter 846 Looming Danger

Janet and Draco boarded the plane and settled down in their seats.

After putting their luggage away in the overhead compartment, Draco turned to Janet. "Do you want something to drink?"

Janet had been talking with Brandon before boarding the plane. They had spoken for a long time, so her throat was indeed a little dry. "Yes, please. Orange juice would be good. Thank you, Mr. Wesley."

As the two of them fell into a conversation, they didn't notice the man sitting behind them. He was wearing a baseball cap, which he pressed down to cover his face. A strange, unsettling smile appeared on the corners of his mouth.

Chapter 847 Jorge Is On The Plane

As she walked, Janet became aware of a tall, slender person following close behind. She cast a wary eye behind her but saw nothing out of the ordinary.

"How may I assist you, Miss?" With a smile, the steward inquired. This female passenger's apprehensive gaze puzzled him.

"It's just... I mistook you for someone else. I apologize." Janet managed a smile and was full of remorse. What had caused her sudden paranoia?

Perhaps her oversensitivity sprang from her apprehension of going to the Iridescent Show.

Janet shook her head and then entered the bathroom.

Chapter 848 Watch Your Back

"Jorge?" Janet's heart skipped a beat.

But she wasn't sure if it was him. The man in front of her was wearing a baseball cap and his face was almost completely covered in shadow.

As the man approached her, Janet suddenly sensed danger.

She turned around and tried to escape. In the process, she accidentally bumped into the flight attendant serving the passengers behind her.

Janet and the flight attendant both fell to the ground.

Chapter 849 An Invisible Wound

Even once she was out of immediate danger, Janet stayed where she was on the floor.

She didn't have time to chase after Jorge right now. Jorge seemed to have done something to Draco, which worried her a great deal.

She became even more upset when Draco's lips turned pale.

"Mr. Wesley, are you sure you're not hurt?" Janet wasn't sure what Jorge had done. She insisted on checking the condition of Draco's arm. "I saw him touch it," she explained.

Janet was sure that Jorge must have been making an attempt on her life, but she couldn't tell exactly what he'd done. She had only vaguely recalled that there had seemed to be something in Jorge's hand. She had assumed that it had perhaps been a knife or another deadly weapon.

Chapter 850 Ask Brandon For Help

Janet suspected that there was something fishy and Jorge must have done something to Draco when he pushed him.

However, she didn't tell Draco all her doubts, at least not without proper evidence. It had been a chaotic scene, and Janet hadn't been able to see it all clearly.

It was currently all just her suspicion.

But Janet couldn't rest assured unless Draco received a thorough check-up at the hospital.

Janet helped Draco off of the plane and back through the boarding gate.

Brandon was wandering back and forth at the gate, looking frantically through the crowd who had just come out.
