

Mommy 36

Chapter 36

She did her duty and took away what she could of his curse in this session. Just like the first time, it came with hallucinations, exhaustion, and hunger. Her b*dy seemed to be used to this already and had also gotten better at resistance, especially against the hallucinations. It was much better than last week, when she had hallucinated k*ssing him. She didn't want a repeat of that

After the first hour of treating his plague, she took her third break to eat.

The meditation room had different corners and layers. She had picked the left corner to stay and eat last week, and it had remained that way. The Lycan king had the food supplied to that corner and the heat and incense reduced.

He normally would remain in the main area, having much heat and incense, until she returned. The room was still a wonder to her. From its structure to the little details, it showed a lot of knowledge, and knowing Marion had drawn out the idea blew her away every time.

She kept her focus on her meal; she needed to finish and return to her work.

Usually, the Lycan king kept himself busy with something, as he had always done, but this time he didn't.

He came to the left corner of the room to stare at her.

She didn't take notice of his gaze as her hunger had overridden her other senses. However, after a while of eating and stuffing herself with the delicious food provided, she noticed him quietly staring at her. Startled, she slowed down and gulped the food in her mouth. It almost choked her out, as she hadn't chewed properly before swallowing. Her eyes watered.

"Are you okay?" he asked, a little alarmed at her difficulty.

She nodded and wiped off the tears from her face. I am fine; I'm okay, she told him.

She wasn't okay; her throat was sore from the huge swallow it just took

He didn't seem to believe her, though, but said nothing, instead, he rose from his seat and approached where she sat at the table, eating. He picked up a glass of water and handed it to her. She took it from his hand and gulped the entire content.

She felt instant relief and wondered why she didn't think about it after swallowing that much. Also, why was he watching her eat?

"Thank you; I shouldn't have swallowed as quick as I did." She told him, feeling embarrassed that he had seen her go through that

"It's fine; it happens to the best of us."

"Well, it wouldn't have happened if you didn't stare at me." She mumbled to herself, but he seemed to have heard it.

He gave her an apologetic look. "I am sorry I robbed you of privacy by staring, but I wanted to figure out what was wrong

She sighed, annoyed. They were back to this again: "Nothing is wrong"

"You do not have to lie, I can tell something is wrong. It's all over you."

How could he tell something was wrong with her but couldn't put it together that perhaps, seeing Vivian and her team, could have triggered it? Maybe he did and wanted confirmation.

She didn't know if he was being genuine in his concern, but so far, he had only shown genuine care for her.

"You said Vivian and her team would get punished for what they did. I saw them coming out of the court earlier, and they didn't look like they had suffered any punishment. Help me understand, then. Because I've tried to and can't understand why they looked untouched

"The decision and the punishment they deserved were carried out by the council" he told her. "In the last week, they did not fout ther council allotted pusschnitt. But they damessed fit so them, with the plague would have time had the hand of Nipha Lakan. I woul del that will not change the rapped and he hack to Hedded and blowed her. The seat her dry spinner and dough Faded to mid Aleve he knew why she was silent all this me

When she fed with her bring desk of the plagur. Her joli for the day was dotie

Unlike last week, the Lacan king called ja had done wording right by selling him the h answer to the I she hated the Jace arrived and took her out of the healing some de

the th

May did thing in bringing my ba made her wonder if she herself" She didn'), know the not weakness. They will always have his

thee to the dogs

She had to bacio san than alat dels thr