Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1206 [Eleven Jewell]

“Of course not. I was just thinking out loud, Mrs. Jewell,” said Olivia.

Just then, there was a knock on the door. It was Keegan and the rest.

“Mr. Jewell, Ms. Garcia needs some papers signed to keep the baby. Could you help contact her family?” Keegan said.

Albert was taken aback, but Hylda was the first to react. “She didn’t lose the baby? How is that possible?!”

Albert was so immersed in the joy of his son being alive that he did not pay much attention to what Hylda had said. However, the others present heard it word for word.

Stella looked at Hylda and raised an eyebrow. “Why do you sound awfully certain that Ms. Garcia would have a miscarriage, Mrs. Jewell?”

Realizing that she slipped up, Hylda quickly tried to regain her composure. “Well, I lost my baby. Is it wrong to think that she would’ve lost hers too when we both fell off the gazebo?”

Sophia was offended by the group’s sudden intrusion, specifically Stella’s. So, she frowned and said, “Why are you here, Stella?”

Stella shrugged and smirked. “I’m here to watch the show. It’s funny how your mom was the other woman, and now she’s the one who’s being cheated on.’

“You bitch-“

Keegan’s expression darkened. He grabbed an empty IV bottle from the table and threw it toward Sophia. The bottle shattered in front of her feet, and shards of glass flew across the room.

Sophia was still in shock when Keegan’s cold voice sounded in her ears. “Remember who you’re talking to.”

Ethan, who had just returned from downstairs, witnessed the situation and quickly stepped forward to shield Sophia. “Don’t you think your behavior is a little inappropriate, Mr. Kane?”

Keegan glanced at Ethan coldly and said, “And, who are you to say that to me?”

‘Who cares if he’s acting insane right now? He’s protecting Stella, and that’s what matters,’ Felicity puffed her cheeks and thought. ‘No wonder Stella is infatuated with him. I’d probably fall in love with someone if they defended me like that too.’¹

Meanwhile, Vermont was holding back his laughter. ‘I can’t believe Keegan did that. I guess Stella must’ve rubbed off on him. The only other person who would’ve done that is Marshall,’ he thought.

Marshall was the type to treat everyone with kindness. Keegan, on the other hand, was indifferent to social status or beauty. He treated everyone equally. Even though getting along with someone like that was not easy, Keegan would not purposely embarrass people in front of others. Ethan was just unlucky to have bumped into Keegan that day. Normally, Keegan would not even bat an eye at him.

Ethan did not look pleased. He seemed as though he was ready to burst into anger, but Albert quickly intervened. “What did the doctor say, Keegan? Is the child okay?”

“The child is fine for now. But, they found some drugs in Ms. Garcia’s system, and there’s still a risk of miscarriage. The doctor said they’ll do their best to ensure that she and the baby are safe,” Keegan withdrew his gaze and said in disdain.

Albert was taken aback. “Drugs? What kind of drugs?”

Stella casually glanced at Hylda. As expected, her face turned paler upon hearing about the medicine.

Keegan did not hold back. “Abortion pills,” he said.

“Abortion pills?!” Albert’s heart trembled. “Wasn’t it the fall that caused her to bleed?”

“I’m not too sure about the details. Maybe you should ask the doctor,” Keegan replied. He knew that some things were better left unsaid to avoid suspicion.

Not long after, Xenia’s attending doctor arrived and explained her condition to Albert. The more Albert listened to what the doctor said, the darker his expression became. “We’ve asked Ms. Garcia about the pills, and she insisted that she didn’t take any. However, she mentioned that she had a glass of juice at the wedding that tasted strange. She thought it was just that it had gone bad, so she didn’t drink much of it. As a result, it did not cause any serious complications.”

After a brief pause, the doctor added, “Mr. Jewell, if the drugs were administered during the wedding, I suggest Mrs. Jewell should get a blood test as well. It’s possible that her miscarriage was caused by the pills.”

Hylda realized that Xenia wanted to pin the blame on her, and she quickly retorted, “There are two types of abortion pills, Mifepristone and Misoprostol. The former terminates pregnancy from within, while the latter induces contractions to expel the embryo from the body. There’s no way someone could’ve drugged her with those on the same day she nearly had a miscarriage.”

The doctor was taken aback and said, “I never specified the type of drugs found in Ms. Garcia’s system, Mrs. Jewell. Why are you so certain that it’s one of the two you mentioned?”

Hylda, who was caught off guard, replied, “Aren’t those two the most common ones in the market?”

“Mrs. Jewell, I think the most important thing now is to find out whether you have been drugged. Don’t you care about finding out what happened to your child?” said Olivia.

Hylda’s abnormal reaction raised strong suspicions in Albert’s mind. Her fear of checking the surveillance footage, her aversion to getting a blood test, and her fall from the gazebo all pointed to her wanting to get rid of the child.

“Isn’t having a child later in life supposed to be a joyous occasion? Why does she seem so indifferent? It’s not like she was pregnant with someone else’s child,” Felicity muttered.

This statement struck a chord in Albert’s mind. ‘Hylda had no reason to reject the child, especially after learning that Xenia was also pregnant.

She’s a smart woman. She must’ve known that having another child meant that she would get a larger share of the family’s wealth. Yet, she still didn’t want the child. The only possible reason for that is the child was not mine.’

Hylda’s heart sank upon hearing that. Sophia pointed at Felicity and yelled, “What kind of nonsense are you on about, you moron?!”

Felicity’s eyelids twitched as she yelled back, “You know I’m right, bitch!”

She was about to roll up her sleeves and teach Sophia a lesson, but Vermont hugged her from behind and pulled her away. “Let’s stay focused on the situation and not cause any trouble,” he said.

Felicity kicked her feet in protest and complained, “That bitch literally called me a moron when she looks dumb as hell.”

She pounded Vermont’s shoulder as she continued, “Can you be more like Keegan? He couldn’t wait to tear Sophia apart when she disrespected Stella. Yet, here you are, pulling me away while she’s calling me names. You’re my boyfriend. Shouldn’t you be on my side?”

Vermont put his arm around her shoulder and said, “Don’t worry. I’ll avenge you.”

Meanwhile, in the hospital room, Albert had already figured out everything.

He stared at Hylda with a tense face and asked, “Whose baby was that?”

Hylda felt a knot in her heart, but she remained defiant. She held Albert’s hand and tried to sound composed. “Who else’s baby would it be, Albert? Of course, he’s yours.”

“If that’s the case, why don’t we do a DNA test? They haven’t disposed of the embryo that was just removed, right?” Albert sneered.

Hylda’s fingers trembled when she heard that. She gritted her teeth and said, “Don’t you trust me?”

“I trusted you, yet you played me like a fool!” Albert replied coldly. After that, he pushed Hylda’s hand away and strode out of the room.

Stella leaned against the door frame, as she watched the scene unfold with a mocking smile. “I guess the lovely couple’s relationship is now in shambles,” she said.

Hylda’s expression turned cold upon hearing that. “Did you have something to do with this?” she asked in a low voice.

Stella looked up and said, “I wish. If it were me, I would have brought your lover to Albert right away and show him how blind he’s been.” Her expression was indifferent, and her words were filled with resentment, making it difficult for Hylda to determine her involvement.

“Why did you show up at the wedding?” Hylda questioned.

Stella smiled and said, “Didn’t Albert tell you? He plans to adopt me as his daughter at your wedding. I wasn’t thrilled about it, but I didn’t mind causing you some distress. Although, I didn’t expect you to have another obstacle to deal with. What a twist of fate we have here.”

Hylda’s face turned uglier by the minute. “You bitch!” she yelled.

Keegan reached out to grab another IV bottle when Stella said, “If you’re going to throw things at people, do it on your own accord. Don’t pull me into it.” With that, she turned around and left. Keegan dropped the bottle and quickly followed her while calling her name.

Hylda looked defeated. She no longer cared about Albert adopting Stella with the situation at hand. Til be doomed when the DNA test results come back,’ she thought.

“Hylda...” Ian’s gaze wandered to his sister.

Hylde pursed her lips and said, "You should go. Don't come over in the next few days."

As soon as Ian left, Sophia also saw Ethan off. "Mom, is that child really not dad's?" she asked Hylde in a low voice.

Hylde did not give a direct answer. Instead, she said, "Hurry home and take Hugo to the address I'm about to tell you. Don't let your dad know about this."

Sophia was startled and nodded quickly.

At that moment, Hylde knew that she had no other choice but to protect Hugo. She knew that Albert would not take it well when he found out that the child she bore was not his. 'He'd probably think that Sophia and Hugo are not his offspring too,' she thought.

Meanwhile, a car pulled up in front of Stella when she walked out of the hospital, and someone pulled her into the vehicle. She fastened her seatbelt and heard Keegan's cold voice saying, "Aldor, head back to Royalpark Villa."

Stella hesitated for a moment and whispered, "I promised to stay with Felicity tonight."

Keegan shot a glance at her, and Stella felt nervous. "But... I can keep you company if you want," she said.

Aldor remained silent.

'Why does Ms. Jewell seem unusually compliant and understanding today? And, what's up with Mr. Kane? He looks a little annoyed. Didn't Mr. Snyder say that they were killing it? Why doesn't it feel like it?' thought Aldor.

"Are you sure?" Keegan asked Stella coldly.

Stella immediately nodded and said, "Yes. I'm sure."

Keegan snorted in response.

Realizing that she was in the wrong, Stella approached him and said, “Are you alright, Mr. Kane? You’ve been playing along with me all day. Do you want a shoulder massage?”

Keegan glanced at her and moved closer. Stella then immediately started to massage his shoulders.

Seeing that, Aldor’s eyes widened. ‘Did Mr. Kane and Ms. Jewell exchange statuses?’

“Can you put a bit more effort into it? Haven’t you eaten already?” Keegan demanded discontentedly.

Stella gritted her teeth, wanting to hit him, but decided otherwise. After all, she was the one who had been unreasonable before. So, she put on a nice smile and said, ‘Sure, Mr. Kane. Is this okay?’

“Uh... It’s alright,” Keegan replied.

Seeing Stella sweat despite the cool autumn weather, Aldor considerably turned on the air conditioner.

When Stella felt the breeze, she immediately said, “Can you please turn off the air conditioner, Aldor?”

Aldor was puzzled. “Isn’t it hot back there, Madam?”

Stella shook her head. “It is, but I don’t deserve the special treatment. Mr. Kane worked so hard today in supporting me and my plan. Yet, I still made him mad. Running the air conditioner will consume more fuel, and fuel costs so much right now. I’m not worthy of spending Mr. Kane’s hard- earned money when he’s mad at me.”

Hearing that, Keegan could not help but laugh. However, he immediately put on a straight face when Stella looked at him. He did not want her to know that she had won him over.

Stella then leaned in with a smile and said, “Are you not mad at me anymore, Mr. Kane?”

Keegan gave her a sidelong glance and said, “I’m furious.”

“I’m trying to cheer you up.” Stella tugged at his sleeve and softly said, “Please don’t be mad anymore, Mr. Kane. It’s bad for your health.”

“Nice try, but that won’t work,’ Keegan replied.

Stella thought about it for a while and said, “How about I tell you a joke?”

“No thanks.”

“Then... Do you want to hear about something that happened at my class reunion?”

As soon as she mentioned that, Keegan was reminded of Spencer inviting her to their class reunion, and he got even more annoyed. “No. I don’t want to hear about it.”

“Don’t you want to know what my classmates said about you?”

Keegan’s ears perked up upon the sound of that. “What did they say?” he asked.

“They said I’m lucky to have a husband like you. Not only are you rich, but you’re also handsome and smart.”

Aldor was amazed by how good Stella was at talking Keegan up.

Keegan was clearly flattered, and a faint smile appeared on his face. He glanced at Stella and said, ‘You’re not so bad yourself. You have extremely good taste in choosing your partner, unlike me.’

His words rendered Stella speechless.

Stella glared at Keegan and said, ‘Thanks, but that did not feel like a compliment.’ She then looked away and thought, ‘What a mutt! I should have known better than to try to appease him!’

Meanwhile, Keegan’s mood lightened up a bit after teasing Stella.

Soon, they arrived at Royalpark Villa. When they got out of the car, Aldor called out to Keegan and handed him a bag. "Mr. Kane, Mr. Snyder dropped this off for you before he left."

Keegan grabbed the bag and was about to open it to see what was inside, when Stella yelled, "Keegan, I forgot the code for the door.' He closed the bag and dismissed Aldor before walking toward Stella.

After their divorce, Keegan rarely stayed at Royalpark Villa, so the housekeeper did not need to live there permanently anymore. Thus, she would only come over every two days to clean up the house.

Upon entering, the place looked deserted. Keegan placed the bag he was carrying on the couch and went to the kitchen to grab himself a glass of water.

Stella poked her head through the door and looked around before she finally walked in. Although she had lived in Royalpark Villa for three years, it felt odd to be back after so long. Nothing much had changed in the house since Keegan had not moved anything. The two couple pillows on the couch were still placed together side by side, just like when Stella and Keegan were still married to each other.

Stella then walked over and sat on the couch. When she reached out to grab the throw pillow, she noticed that the bag Keegan had left there. She picked it up and saw the hospital logo on it. 'Is Keegan not feeling well?' she thought.

She looked toward the kitchen and yelled, "Did you grab a prescription earlier?'

"What?" Keegan's voice came from the kitchen.

"I'm talking about the bag with the hospital logo," Stella said.

Keegan was washing some cups as he replied, "Oh. It's from Vermont."

It was unclear whether Stella heard him, but she said, 'I'm going to open it up and take a look.'

"Sure." Keegan opened the cabinet, grabbed two tea bags, and placed them into the cups. He then came out of the kitchen with two cups of tea and saw Stella sitting on the couch. She was lost in her thoughts.

When Keegan approached her, he saw what was in the bag and blushed. Vermont had given him a bunch of adult products. He hurriedly put the drinks down and said, "I didn't buy those!"

"Oh, okay. What does this one do?" Stella asked, pointing to one of the items.

Keegan was taken aback. 'Why is she being so open about this?'

He glanced at the item and said, 'I have no idea.' Then, he paused for a moment and added, "Are there any instructions?"

Stella looked at the manual and tossed it to Keegan. 'It's in another language. Can you translate it?'

Keegan was confused. He glanced over the instructions and said, "Are you sure you want me to translate this verbally?"

Stella did feel shy about the situation, but her curiosity got the better of her. She had never seen adult products in real life before. 'It looks so weird. I want to know how people use it,' she said.

Keegan read through the instructions and pursed his lips. "I don't know how to translate this." "Really?" Stella grabbed the manual back, and after struggling to read the first sentence, Keegan said, "Why don't I show you how to use it?"
