Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1216 [Eleven Jewell]

“I promise,” said Stella.

Keegan finally let go of the topic of Stella’s ex-boyfriend and focused on counting the points he had accumulated.

Curious, Stella leaned over as Keegan opened the calculator app on his phone. “How many points do you have as of right now?” she asked.

Keegan turned his phone away and refused to show her. “I’m not gonna tell you that. You’re too calculative, Stella. You might take off some points if you know my total.”

‘Psh. I could still take off some points without knowing your current total,’ Stella thought. Suddenly, her phone rang while Keegan was busy with his score. Stella saw that it was Trevor and gestured to Keegan to stay quiet as she answered the call.

“Hey, Stella. Do you have time for lunch today?” Trevor asked.

Stella glanced at Keegan, who gave her an encouraging look. “Is the family coming?” she asked in a low voice.

Trevor paused and said, “I won’t invite them if you’re not ready.”

Stella fell silent. She thought about the elderly couple who had come all the way from Royalburgh just to see her and realized that Wenham was not getting any younger. “Bring everyone out for lunch and send me the location,” she said after some time.

Trevor was a little surprised to hear her say that. He then smiled and said, “Alright. I’ll pick you up in a bit.”

“No, that’s fine. People are spreading rumors that you’re my sugar daddy. It’ll be hard to explain ourselves if the media catches us in a car together.”

“In some way, I am. You’re the heiress of the Saun family. It’s only fitting that I take special care of you.’ Trevor coldly snorted.

Stella laughed for quite a while before saying, "Should I quit acting then and just inherit the family business then?"

"You can do anything you want as long as you're happy," Trevor chuckled.

His words sent a wave of warmth to Stella's heart. "I think I'll stick to acting. I really want to excel in this industry."

"And I'll support you no matter what. I'll provide you with every resource I can find. Just say the word, and I'll make it happen. You're the best, Stella. I know you'll achieve anything you want," said Trevor.

Stella did not know how to respond. 'Now I know why Keegan always teased Trevor for being obsessed with me,' she thought.

After hanging up the phone, Stella got out of bed and washed up. Keegan had asked Aldor to send over several sets of elegant-styled clothing for her to choose from. She looked extremely graceful when she tried them on. Since it was her first formal meeting with the Saun family, Stella took it very seriously and spent almost an hour doing her makeup.

Keegan understood her nerves and did not rush her. Instead, he texted Trevor, saying: [Give her a few more minutes.

She's a little nervous.]

Surprisingly, Trevor did not scold him this time: [Take your time, and drive safely.] He replied.

[Sure thing, my dear brother-in-law.]

Trevor did not respond.

Keegan drove Stella to lunch after she finished getting ready. She was unusually quiet along the way.

"Mr. and Mrs. Saun Sr. are kind people. And you've already met Uncle Wenham. Don't worry, Stella. Just be yourself. I'm sure they'll love you," said Keegan.

Feeling anxious, Stella clenched the hem of her clothes and asked, "Aren't you going to accompany me to meet the Sauns?"

“I’ll meet the family when I want their approval for your hand in marriage.”

Previously, Keegan thought that Trevor had fallen for Stella and insisted on tagging along whenever she met up with him. Now that he knew she was part of the Saun family, he realized it was inappropriate for him to show up uninvited.

Soon, Stella arrived at the designated location. Keegan handed her a mask and reached out to fix her bangs. “Don’t worry. You’ll be alright. Call me if anything happens. I’ll be waiting for you outside.”

Stella scratched his hand lightly in response and put on a hat before stepping out of the car.

Keegan only withdrew his gaze after Stella went inside The Deli. Then, he received a message from Carter: [Please pay me and my wife for showing up.]

Keegan read it and replied with a screenshot of a medal: [It’s being made. I’ll send it to your wife’s place later.]

Carter texted a reply: [A medal worth thirty bucks? Come on, the gifts we brought are worth more than that.]

Keegan took another screenshot of their conversation and forwarded it to Lena: [How much do you want? I’ll pay you.]

[Don’t listen to him. We didn’t bring any gifts.] Lena replied.

After that, Keegan sent a screenshot of Lena’s response back to Carter.

Carter kept quiet for a while before sending him a middle finger emoji. Keegan loosened his tie and asked: [What about the thing I asked you to investigate earlier? Any updates on that?]

Carter corrected him: [It wasn’t an investigation. You wanted me to steal the information.]

Keegan replied with an indifferent face: [Isn't hacking into other parties' security systems something you do when you're bored?]

Carter replied in a serious manner: [It's more like assisting them to patch their vulnerabilities.]

Carter was so good with computers that he could easily bypass the firewalls of most cybersecurity systems and even modify their data without being traced.

Although Lena came from an ordinary family, she was very prideful and independent.

Carter's parents were unhappy with this marriage and even expressed their disapproval in front of the couple and behind their backs more than once.

Lena had a very strong sense of self-esteem and insisted on doing property notarization with Carter right after they married. She wanted to make her stance clear that she would not take advantage of Carter even if they were to get a divorce in the future.

However, the notarization was never successful because whenever they went to the notary office, there would always be something wrong with the computer systems.

Lena had no idea why, but all his friends knew.

They knew Carter was the one tampering with the system.

He was not worried that Lena would take advantage at all. He even hacked into the notary office's computer system to avoid making the property notarization.

Keegan felt regretful as he thought about that.

When he was in the midst of divorcing Stella, he was consumed by anger and couldn't think clearly. If he had been more composed and cleverer, he could have approached Carter to hack into the Civil Affairs Bureau's computers. That way, he would not have to turn himself from a husband to an ex.

As Keegan thought about that, he asked: [Can you hack into the Civil Affairs Bureau's system and revoke my divorce with Stella?]

Carter's eyelid twitched as he replied: [I can even change your father's status to being alive. Do you want me to do that too?]

His response left Keegan speechless. Carter continued:

[Your divorce, like your father's death, is already a fact. Stella doesn't even share an account with you anymore. Are you out of your mind? Besides, the office is full of cameras. Do you think the staff working there are blind?]

Keegan did not want to give up: [We can hack the surveillance system too.]

Carter was speechless at his suggestion.

Lena finally had a day off last night, and they planned to stroll by the river. However, Keegan called them for help, and their plan was disrupted. They would have a date after helping Keegan, but Lena received a new case and had to leave.

Carter blamed Keegan for not getting to spend time with Lena. He replied to Keegan with another middle finger emoji upon reading his last message.

Then, he said after venting his frustration: [The autopsy report of Yolanda Fenley confirms that she died from an overdose. There's nothing suspicious about that, but...]

[But what?] [But no one knows if she injected the drugs herself or not.]

Carter replied: [According to Lena's remark, the angle of her injection was from top to bottom. However, most people would do it from bottom to top when self-injecting. Also, the injection site was on her upper arm. It just doesn't seem right, even though she had a habit of injecting from up to down.]

Keegan frowned: [Why is there no further investigation into this?]

Carter replied: [That's because no other person's hair or fingerprints were found at the scene. Her family was not bothered to claim her body either. Cases like these usually go unresolved, and you know it too. Besides, there wasn't even a suspect involved in this case, and there's not much the prosecutor can do.]

Keegan pursed his lips without replying. It was terrifying that something was suspicious, but no physical evidence could be found.

Carter thought about something and sent another text to Keegan: [Oh, by the way, your wife's disguise last time was pretty good. I can't believe you couldn't recognize her after sitting at the same table for so long. Lena is curious to know her makeup artist, as she wants one of her team members to learn from them to improve undercover investigations and avoid being detected.]

Keegan kept quiet.

Stella saw Trevor making a phone call in the lobby, dressed casually in a shirt and trousers as soon as she entered The Deli. His outfit seemed more relaxed and simple compared to the previous times she had seen him.

Stella sized him up and realized... that there were indeed some resemblances between them. She finally realized why Felicity always used to say that Trevor looked familiar.

As she was still lost in her thoughts, Trevor turned around and walked toward her. Stella tightened her grip on her bag and stood in place, feeling a little uneasy. However, Trevor gently held her wrist and said, "Come with me."

Stella pursed her lips and followed him like a little kid. After getting into the elevator, Trevor finally turned to look at her. Stella was wearing a cap and a mask, so he could only see her eyes. However, those eyes were enough to fill Trevor's heart with a bitter feeling.

He reached out to gently brushed Stella's long hair behind her shoulder and said softly, "Grandpa and Grandma can be too friendly sometimes. Just tell me if you feel uncomfortable and want to leave later. I'll take you home, and they won't have a problem with it."

Stella paused and felt a lump in her throat.

She realized that besides Keegan and Rainee, there were still others who still cared about her feelings and looked forward to reuniting with her.

Suddenly, her heart was filled with warmth as she lowered her gaze. She chuckled and said softly, "Bro, I may not be as chatty as them later, but it doesn't mean I don't like them."

Trevor was taken aback. He smiled and wrapped his arm around her shoulder. "Welcome home, Charmie."

Stella was taken aback. Then, she softly asked after Trevor let go of her, "Charmie? Is that my original name?"

Trevor took the gift, which was prepared by Keegan, from Stella's hand. He spoke warmly, "It's the nickname Mom gave you back then before we gave you a real name because we didn't know if you would be a boy or girl. It would be Charlie if you were a boy."

As Trevor pondered the past, he couldn't believe what had happened. Back then, they had lost both the mother and the baby. But the real shock came much later when they discovered that the baby had not actually passed away; instead, it had been switched with another.

'Charmie... What a beautiful name. The Sauns must be looking forward to this child's arrival.'

They got off the elevator, and Trevor led her to the door of a private room. Then, he knocked on it and pushed it open.

Stella, come on in." He turned around and said with a smile.
