Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1254 [Eleven Jewell]

Hylda replied coldly, "What do you think? You were supposed to look after Hugo, yet you managed to lose him as soon as I sent him to you!"

Lydia defended herself. "It wasn't entirely my fault. It was dark, and Hugo ran out on his own. There are so many children in the kindergarten. How am I supposed to keep an eye on everyone?"

In fact, Lydia was not feeling guilty at all.

Albert invited all the prominent figures of Rivera to his second wedding. Lydia wanted to attend and take this opportunity to expand her social circle. She wanted to know more people of higher social status so that her son would have better opportunities in the future.

However, Hylda did not allow her to be there and made it clear that she did not want any of Albert's "poor relatives" to attend her wedding.

Although Rainee did not like them too, she still invited them to her wedding. So, the fact that Hylda was not even bothered to hide that she hated them made Lydia furious.

Lydia thought to herself. 'Not only that she didn't allow us to attend her wedding, she wanted us to take care of her child. She should be grateful that I didn't refuse to help.'

Hylda did not want to argue with her. She was very disgusted by a scheming bumpkin like Lydia. So, she asked coldly, "Why did you call?"

Lydia finally got to the point. "Stella, that illegitimate child, hired a lawyer to sue us. She claims that we occupy the Spade family's land and demands us to move."

Hylda was taken aback as her expression immediately darkened. "She's onto us already?"

“The lawyer she appointed sent us a letter demanding we move out in three days, or they’ll sue us for property infringement. Hylda, I invested more than a million in this kindergarten back then. You’ve got to reimburse me if we really must move out because you were the one who said there wouldn’t be any problems. You should bear the responsibility now that she’s coming after us.”

Hylda got so angry that her eyes twitched.

What a dumbass! I can’t believe that she’s trying to put all the blame on me instead of trying to solve the problem!’

Hylda took a deep breath and suppressed her anger. Then, she said in a deep voice, “What’s the point of saying something like this now? You’re aware that I invested more money than you did, right? Have I ever paid you less than you deserve? How could you think of running away just because of an issue? Even if I reimburse you now, the kindergarten is still registered under your name. Do you think you can stay out of this?”

Lydia’s face turned red. “You’re the one who suggested it!”

Hylda replied flatly, “Didn’t you make money out of it? Could you ever have bought a house in the city center of Rivera if it weren’t for me? Do you think your son could’ve found a decent girlfriend?”

Lydia’s expression turned awful. She despised hearing that condescending tone from Hylda as if she owed her life to her!

“What should we do now, then? Are we just going to sit here and get sued?”

Hylda sat up. “Yeah, why not? Our kindergarten is huge and has so many students. Do you think we can move out just because she demanded us to? The parents and authorities will never agree to this! Besides, we have the title deed. Why are you so afraid of her?”

Although Hylda was right, the thought of going to court terrified Lydia. She had never set foot in a courtroom and always had a bad feeling about that place.

“Should we hire a lawyer, then?” Lydia asked.

Hylda pondered momentarily before saying, “You don’t have to do anything now. Just continue running the kindergarten as usual. Let’s see what they’ll do after three days, and we’ll come up with a plan by then.”

Lydia had no idea what else to do, so she listened to Hylda.

Hylda hung up the phone, and her face immediately darkened.

She just got kicked out of the Jewell residence, and now Stella was demanding the kindergarten she invested in move out. Albert terminated all her bank cards, and the kindergarten was her only source of income. 'What a bitch Stella is. She's trying to ruin my life!'

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1255 [Eleven Jewell]

Bella's fans were still trying to defend her one week after Andrea's fall got exposed.

They flooded Bella's Facebook account with messages like [We believe in you.], [Justice will prevail.], etc.

The fans argued with the netizens and agencies. They were like a doting mother refusing to believe their child was a murderer, as others claimed.

Instead of finding those comments funny, they were rather pathetic to Stella.

Fans would always be the ones who suffered the most behind every fallen idol. They regard their idols as shining lights and role models, but knowing a person's true nature through a screen is impossible.

After all, fans were also the victims of the capital packaging of idols. Stella found it pathetic that when the idol failed to uphold the law and moral boundaries, their fans became the ones who had to face ridicule and scorn from the public after their idol's wrongdoings got exposed.

Perhaps someone could not bear to see how these irrational fans blindly defend their idol anymore, so that person leaked a recording of Bella's voice a few days later.

"These brainless fans have lost their minds! Do they think they can boss me around just because they boosted my viewership? I'll sign with whoever I want. Who are they to tell me what to do? They really think my success relies on them, huh? They only managed to boost my magazine sales last week by a million copies. Do you know how many copies Vincent West sold at the same time? Almost twice my figure! They claim they're my fans, yet they do nothing practical to support me. All they do is stir up troubles!"

The recording went viral across the internet as soon as it was uploaded.

People who were not even Bella's fans could tell it was her voice, let alone her devoted fans.

Her fans boosted her sales and viewership, yet she betrayed them and called them brainless. Her fans could not find any other reason to support her anymore.

So, her fans started unfollowing her on her social media accounts. Her Facebook feed which was once filled with fans defending her was now flooded with angry remarks from her ex-fans.

All of Bella's social media accounts were suspended the same afternoon. The accusation of her involvement in a criminal case had become indisputable, leaving no one to speak for her anymore.

"How satisfying! A terrible idol like her should've been exposed long ago! I can't believe how much money she made!"

Felicity scrolled through the comments and videos criticizing Bella and scolded, "Can we donate all the earnings of these fallen idols to charity? The thought of these rubbish celebrities getting canceled yet still living a luxurious life anger me!"

Her words made Stella laugh. "You should consider changing your career then. You can reform the entertainment industry once you become the Minister of Culture."

Felicity paused. "It's fine. I like my current job better."

Then, she continued, "Who do you think leaked this recording of Bella? Could it be Keegan?"

Stella shook her head. "I don't know, but it doesn't feel like it. IV

"How do you even feel that?"

Stella chuckled. "I couldn't do this before, but now I can."

“How so?”

Stella said, “He’s constantly seeking approvals and asking me to give him merits for what he has done now that we’re together. He would have already demanded rewards from me if he had leaked it.”

She suddenly received a video call from Keegan as she spoke, and she answered.

Felicity was unaware of that, and her head was filled with scenes of Keegan the mutt begging Stella for merits. She instantly felt relieved as she pouted and said, “Don’t give him merits so easily! Do you remember how wicked he was before? He wanted you to go home, and he called the cops on me to force you to return because he was too prideful to talk to you himself. The few hours I spent at the police station will be in vain if you reward him so quickly!”

Stella kept quiet.

Felicity scoffed. After seeing the weird look on her face, she said, “What’s wrong? Are you too eager to marry him and can’t bear to deduct his marks now? Is he more important than your best friend?”

Stella pursed her lips and whispered, “I’m on a call with him.”

Felicity was puzzled.

Stella showed her the phone screen. Suddenly, Felicity saw the gloomy face of Keegan staring at her.

The puzzled look on Felicity’s face turned surprised instead.

“Haha.” Felicity forced a laugh and waved her hand. “Hello, Mr. Kane.”

Then, she directly hung up the call before Keegan could say anything.

Keegan froze in confusion.
