Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1341 [Eleven Jewell]

Keegan stepped outside and gave Stella a call.

He felt a little relieved after knowing that she was still in the room. He then spoke to a hotel staff to prepare some food and bring it to the room later. Then, he took the elevator upstairs.

He opened the door, and the room was brightly lit.

Keegan closed the door, walked inside, and saw Stella sitting with her legs crossed while playing a game on the bed.

He approached her, sat down next to her, and wrapped his arm around her waist. "What are you playing?"

Stella's face remained emotionless, as she played the game. "Escape Room – One Hundred Ways to Kill Your Boyfriend."

Keegan was speechless.

'Is that... really the name of a game?'

Keegan thought to himself for a moment. 'Even though I didn't do anything extraordinary tonight, it was at least acceptable, right? She has no reason to be sarcastic, does she?'

Maybe it's really just the name of a game.'

Keegan asked, "How does this game work?"

"It's very simple. You just have to search the room for usable items and find a way to murder the boyfriend in order to win.

Keegan kept quiet.

'This game... is so violent. How did it even get approved?'

Keegan thought for a moment before he asked again, "Why did the developer of this game choose a name like that? Did her boyfriend cheat on her?"

Stella replied resentfully, "He should just be castrated if he did! What he did is worse than cheating!"

Worse than cheating?' Keegan put himself in Stella's shoes and said, "Did he scam her for money?"

Stella snorted coldly. "He gifted something another woman gave him to his girlfriend. Don't you think he deserves to die? if

Keegan was taken aback. "Maybe it's because he thought that it was something that his girlfriend would like?"

Stella glowered at him. "What? Something that another woman had worn? What's even worse is that he accepted gifts from another woman!"

Keegan pursed his lips and said, "You're right. He shouldn't have done that. It's inappropriate for him to do so when he already has a girlfriend."

Stella gritted her teeth. "You think so too, right? So, tell me, how should he die?"

Keegan thought to himself, 'Well, I don't think he deserves to die just because he did that.'

However, after seeing the stern look on Stella's face, he said, "What do you think?"

"What do I think?" Stella ground her teeth. "I think he should be castrated and chopped into a million pieces!"

Keegan was shocked.

"Should I stay outside for a while and come back in after you're done with this level?"

He felt like his girlfriend was getting a little too into the game.

Stella glanced at him. Then, she raised her left arm and jingled the bracelet on her arm. In an instant, her voice took on the tone of Jaylene. “Keegan, do you think this bracelet looks good?”

Keegan was taken aback. He frowned and asked, “Why are you imitating her?”

“Oh,” Stella said coldly. “Am I not doing it right? Let me try a different tone.”

Then, she pretended to speak like Jaylene again. “Keegan, I can give it to you if you like it.”

Keegan kept quiet.

What Stella said was almost identical to what Jaylene had said to him during the dinner back then.

Suddenly, he remembered Stella’s sarcastic remarks from just now and asked, “Did you think that Jaylene gave me this bracelet?”

Stella glared at him. “Isn’t that what happened? She told me everything!”

Keegan brought his brows together and responded, “She told you that she gave it to me?”

“You better not deny it. How could she recognize it right away if it wasn’t hers?”

Keegan explained, “It originally belonged to her, but she didn’t give it to me. Instead, I bought it from her.”

He hurriedly took out his phone and began searching through their chat history.

After scrolling through the messages, he had finally found a contact named “Red Agate Bracelet Seller”, and its notification setting was set to “Do Not Disturb”.

Keegan tapped into that contact, and Stella immediately saw the last message from that person. [Keegan, I’m having my birthday party the day after tomorrow. Any chance you have time to come?]

Keegan did not even read it. Instead, he opened the transaction records and quickly found a transaction history of ninety thousand dollars.

Fearing that Stella might not believe him, he further explained, “I had Aldor find someone to appraise the value of this bracelet back then, and I paid her based on the market value at that time. She refused to take it, so I told Aldor to go to the bank the next day to wire the money to her. Aldor probably still has the receipt. I’ll give him a call right now...”

Keegan was eager to clarify himself and was about to call

Aldor.

Stella looked at him and reached out to hold his wrist. “It’s okay. I trust you,” she said softly.

In fact, she did not fully believe in what Jaylene said to begin with.

However, she was sure that the bracelet did belong to Jaylene.

She did not look at the bracelet closely when Keegan had given it to her previously.

However, after speaking to Jaylene just now, she examined the bracelet after going back to her room. Then, she spotted the extremely tiny initials “J.S.” in the corner of the bracelet’s gold charm.

That was the initial of Jaylene’s full name, Jaylene Saun.

Stella felt uncomfortable after seeing that.

Jaylene did not tell Keegan anything about that when she sold it to him. Clearly, Keegan was unaware of that as well. He only bought it from Jaylene because he thought that it looked good.

However, it was clear that Jaylene's intention was not just to sell the bracelet.

She deliberately sold a bracelet with her initials engraved to Keegan...

Stella knew exactly what she was up to.

Keegan believed that the blind date was a secret to both sides, but it turned out that he was wrong.

Once he came to that realization, he also figured out why Jaylene would know that he was not a good drinker when he ate with the Saun family for the first time.

He was starting to get worried that Jaylene's feelings toward him were far from being just a simple infatuation.

Keegan heaved a sigh of relief upon hearing what Stella said. Having learned from his past mistakes, he was very afraid of misunderstandings.

However, his expression turned grim as soon as he thought of how Jaylene tried to stir things up.

He took the bracelet off Stella's hand and said in a deep voice, "I'll tell Aldor to return this to her tomorrow!"

"Forget it." Stella grabbed his hand. "She's going to think that her plan succeeded if we were to return it now."

She took the Red Agate Bracelet back from Keegan and flatly said, "Let's keep it for now."

Very soon, Marshall got into the car with Molly and left.

In the car, Molly asked, "Marshall, where's the stripper?"

Marshall turned the steering wheel emotionlessly and asked, "Why are you still looking for him?"

Molly gritted her teeth and said, "I want to know who set me up!"

Marshall replied calmly, "Calling the police is the best way if you really want to know. Why didn't you want to do that?"

Molly clenched her fists. "I don't want my reputation to be tarnished!"

"Is that so?" Marshall swept his glance across her. "You better not do anything to Stella. She's not someone you can mess with."

Molly's back stiffened before she said in a disdainful tone, "There's no one I can't afford to mess with. Are you warning me?"

"I'm just reminding you," Marshall spoke flatly.

Molly scoffed, "Stella is Celeste. Marshall, it looks like she's the one that you fell for, huh?"

Marshall tightened his grip on the steering wheel, as he pursed his lips and said, "You should think about how you're going to explain this situation to Grandpa once he finds out about it."

Molly side-eyed him. "This is nothing compared to you falling in love with Keegan's ex-wife. If things really escalated, I'll just tell them that you-Ah-"

Marshall suddenly made a sharp turn before Molly could finish her sentence, causing her to hit her head against the window. "Ouch!" Molly screamed.

"What are you doing?"

Marshall's expression darkened. "If you dare to mention Stella's name to anyone in our family, I wouldn't mind reminding the Lowe family about the truth behind Zane's drowning."

The look on Molly's face changed, and her voice turned sharp. "What nonsense are you talking about?"

Marshall looked nonchalant again, as he said, "You know what I'm talking about. I won't repeat myself."

Molly's eyes were filled with fear, and she clenched her fists. She stared at Marshall, but she just could not muster a word to say.

Felicity kept Vermont awake until three in the morning before the drug finally started to wear off.

The drug was so strong that she could not stop herself from seducing him at all.

Vermont had to stop her from going wild on him, and at the same time, talk to her to distract her.

Felicity went straight to sleep after the drug completely wore off, and Vermont was so exhausted that his dirty thoughts had vanished. He wrapped Felicity in a bath towel and placed her on the bed. Then, he fell asleep right next to her.

The next day, Felicity only woke up when the sun was hanging high in the sky.

She felt weak, and her mind was like mush.

When she opened her eyes and saw the unfamiliar surroundings, she could not figure out where she was.

However, it did not take her long to remember that she came here with Stella to celebrate Jaylene's birthday.

She wanted to rub her eyes, but she realized that she could not move her arm at all as if something was trapping it.

She lowered her head slowly, and she saw herself wrapped in a bath towel like a cocoon. Vermont had his face buried in the pillow, and his arm was tightly wrapped around her while he slept.

Felicity jumped off the bed with a sudden jolt, causing Vermont to flip over onto the floor.

"Fuck!"

Vermont hit his back on the floor, and he cursed as he opened his eyes. He saw Felicity sitting energetically on the bed, and he heaved a sigh of relief. Then, he yawned and asked, "You're awake. Are you still not feeling well?"

Felicity's eyelid twitched.

'Not feeling well?

'Why would I?'

Then, she started recalling what had happened last night.

She remembered saying to Vermont, "Oh, Stinky Cucumber. Why are your pecs so massive?"

Then, she saw herself asking him, "Did... Did it feel good when we made love for the first time?"

She even saw herself fumbling with Vermont's pants and said, "Let me wake him up for you."

In the end, she remembered getting into the bathtub with Vermont...

'So, what did I really do?' Felicity wondered to herself.

Seeing her silence, Vermont sat up and placed his fingers on her forehead. "Why is your face so red? Are you having a fever?" he asked.

Felicity moved back a little instinctively to avoid his touch.

Vermont paused, pursed his lips, and pulled back his hand.

Felicity's mind was a mess, and she realized that she had not been herself last night.

She figured that she was not drunk, as she did not blackout. In fact, she could remember a lot of things very clearly.

As she thought about the embarrassing things she did last night, she desperately wanted to dig a hole and bury herself right then and there.

She just realized that she had some feelings for Vermont, yet she did all those things in front of him. She just could not accept it!

She clenched the bedsheet and softly asked, "Was there something wrong with the drink I had yesterday?"

Vermont nodded. "Someone spiked the drink. It was originally for Stella, but you took the fall for her." He was a little upset in his heart, but he said, "I'll take you to the hospital for a checkup later."

"Is Stella okay?" Felicity immediately asked.

Vermont scoffed. "She's a lot smarter than you. She knows not to drink something offered by a stranger. But you, you downed it all! If it weren't for me, you would've hooked up with any guy on the street!"

Felicity was speechless.

Her usually sharp-tongued nature was nowhere to be found.

It was not that she had suddenly changed her personality, but she simply felt too awkward.

Because she realized that she was not wearing anything under the blanket.

She did not even dare to ask Vermont if he had taken off her clothes last night.

Vermont softened her tone after seeing her silence, as he thought that she might still be overwhelmed by what had happened last night. "It's just some shady stuff. You'll be okay once it wears off. Y-You should get freshened up. I'll wait for you outside."

Vermont left the room, and Felicity immediately roughly ran her fingers through her long hair.

'What exactly did I do last night?

'I almost slept with him!'

Her face reddened, as she regretted her actions. Suddenly, she realized another problem. She figured that Vermont's condition might really be incurable because he did not do anything to her last night despite her state...

She still could not get over the fact that she actually developed feelings for Vermont. Yet, she discovered something even more shocking today. The man that she had fallen for was a limp noodle.

She could not help but wonder to herself, 'Is this what the fortune teller meant when she said that I'd have a major challenge when I'm twenty-five and a smooth life will follow if I can overcome it? Otherwise, I'd have a life of hardship. Did she know that I'd fall in love with Stinky Cucumber?'

'Falling in love with someone that has erectile dysfunction is indeed a life of hardship. I can't imagine what life is going to be.'

Felicity got changed and walked out of the room with her mind filled with thoughts.

Vermont had been waiting outside for quite some time. When he saw Felicity coming out, he said, "Let's go. The car is here."

He took her bag from her, grabbed her hand, and led her to the elevator.

Felicity lowered her gaze and glanced at their intertwined hands before shifting her gaze to her bag on Vermont's shoulder. Then, she thought to herself, 'Stinky Cucumber seems like a pretty decent and dependable guy other than the fact that he has a lot of exes.' However, she had second thoughts right after. 'Damn it. So what if he's dependable? I can't spend the rest of my life with him just because he's dependable, right?'

Besides, he has always treated his friends well. Although he might be impotent, it doesn't necessarily mean that he's into me.

Like he said, he wouldn't have asked me to be his fake girlfriend if it wasn't for the issues he's having...'

Felicity's mind was in turmoil.

Vermont faced the elevator doors, as he looked at the girl whose expression kept changing. Then, he suddenly said, "Miss Bandit, be my girlfriend."

Felicity could not figure out what he was trying to say, as she frowned and asked, "Am I not your girlfriend right now?"

"Like for real," Vermont said.

Felicity's body stiffened, as she stuttered, "Y-You're joking, right?"

"I'm not." Vermont turned his head and lowered his gaze at her. "After spending these days with you, I found out that you're an amazing girl. Not only can you cook and play video games, but you're also incredibly loyal. I enjoy being around you very much, and I want to be more than just your friend. I want to hug you, kiss you, and take our relationship to the next level."

Vermont's voice possessed a captivating allure. With each word he spoke, Felicity would blush harder.

As he said those words, he had already taken a few steps forward to pin Felicity against the wall.

He lowered his gaze and looked at her. His eyes were filled with sincerity and was eager to know what Felicity was thinking.

Then, he softly asked, "What's your answer?"

Felicity's heart was at her throat, as she had never experienced anything like this before.

In the past, the boys who liked her in school would never confess to her, and they would lose contact with each other right after graduating.

So, this was the first time that someone had confessed to her.

Vermont was so straightforward and direct that it left her heart in chaos.

She just realized that she might like him a little yesterday, and now he was confessing his feelings to her so directly.

She found it hard to accept that things progressed so quickly in such a short time. So, she stuttered again, "Wh- What answer..."

Vermont smiled as his dimples appeared at the corner of his lips, making him look both handsome and charismatic.

He spoke again in a gentler tone. "Will you be my girlfriend?"

Felicity's head was in a mess, as she was not sure if she would be fine with dating someone that had erectile dysfunction...

"Felicity?"

Vermont got a little anxious. He could hold himself back last night, but he changed his mind after experiencing what happened.

He figured that it would probably take Felicity a very long time to realize that he had feelings for her, so he did not want to risk losing her to another person.

"I... I don't want to..."

Vermont froze, as his face turned slightly pale. Then, he asked with his shivering lips, "What did you say?"

Felicity clenched her fists and avoided his gaze. She lowered her head like an ostrich, as she stuttered again, "I-I don't have those feelings for you. I-I think we should just stay as friends."

Her words left Vermont devastated. That was his first time getting a taste of rejection.

His heart trembled, as he tried to suppress his emotions." Don't you... like me at all?" he asked in a deep voice.

Felicity's heart felt uneasy upon hearing that, but she simply could not think straight. Vermont's unexpected confession, his current condition, and her own complicated emotions all hit her at once. She was unable to handle all of them at once, so she could only resort to avoidance.

"It's not that, but... I just... I see you as a good friend, like how I see Stella, my best friend."

"Best friend..." Vermont mumbled.

When he realized he had feelings for Felicity at the very beginning, he already knew that he would not succeed that easily.

Felicity had her own preferences and the type of guys she liked. And Vermont was not one of them.

Despite his efforts to keep her close to him and thinking that he would have a better chance of winning her over that way, he still failed miserably.

Vermont's Adam's apple bobbed, as he swallowed. It took him a while to speak again. "I'm sorry for making you uncomfortable."

He took a step back as he spoke, and his expression did not look as passionate as before. Instead, it turned cold and distant as if he had suddenly put up a barrier between them. Then, he said, "Just forget about everything I said. Let's just go back to how things were before."

Felicity was taken aback, as she subconsciously tugged at her clothes.

'Go back to how things were before...

Before when?

'When we didn't know each other, or when we were pretending to be a couple?'

Felicity turned to Vermont.

'He would always offer to help. I'm sure he would help Stella carry her stuff too if she was here.'
