Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1479 [Eleven Jewell]

Darcie said, “Jaylene has been staying in the hospital for the past few days, and I had a lot of work to do in the office. I couldn’t spare the time, so it got delayed.”

She shifted her gaze to Stella and smiled as she continued, “I wanted to talk to you about it, but it seems you brought it up first before I could.”

She appeared to be smiling, but her eyes did not look friendly at all.

Stella had a smile on her face, too, “Actually, I’m not in a hurry too. It’s just that I know you’re a busy person and it’s difficult for you to have some free time. I have a pretty busy schedule, too, and I have to rush over to the set at any time with just a phone call from my team. That’s why I thought it’d be better to finish it as soon as possible since I have a day off today.

You’re my elder; it won’t be right for me to keep you waiting. That would be impolite.”

Darcie tightened her grip on her utensils, shot her a glance, and pressed her lips together, “You’re overthinking. After the meal, we’ll rest and get it done.”

Stella nodded, “Thank you, Darcie.”

Darcie replied amicably, “We’re family. There’s no need to be so polite with me.”

Stella smiled and lowered her gaze as she thought, ‘Her patience is impressive. I’ve pushed her buttons this much, yet she can still hold back her anger. I’d probably dump this bowl of soup on the person who openly tried to set me up like that.

‘She may look like a kind person, but she isn’t even willing to give Trevor a room here. She’s so cautious around me and Trevor. Is she afraid we would snatch Jaylene’s share of the family property away?’

After the meal, Darcie played two rounds of chess with Wenham and took the initiative to get the paperwork done.

Trevor stood up and said, "Let's go together. I'll have to take Stella back home after we're done."

Darcie paused without objecting.

On the other hand, Stella loaded the valuable decorations she took from Jaylene's room onto the car.

Changing the shop's ownership was a complicated process, but Stella did not mind at all when it came to making money.

They left the house at two in the afternoon and did all the procedures until evening, finally submitting all the necessary documents.

Once everything got approved, The Velvet was officially Stella's property.

When they came out of the office, not only that Stella was not tired, but she was also full of energy. She said enthusiastically, "Darcie, let's eat something together since you've spent so much time with me on this."

Darcie looked at her calmly and said, "It's fine. I've made an appointment with a friend for a skincare treatment tonight."

"Okay, we'll have a meal some other time then."

Darcie paused before she lifted her gaze and said, "Stella, I've put a lot of effort into operating The Velvet. Now that it's in your hands, I hope you'll take good care of it for me."

Stella smiled, "Of course. I'll take good care of my own business, Darcie. Don't worry about it."

Darcie's gaze darkened, but she did not say anything more.

After Darcie left, Stella said, "Trevor, she'll never be able to mistreat you anymore with me around."

She could not believe that her silly father was oblivious to what Darcie had been subtly doing. He even thought that Trevor not having a room in the house was nothing unusual.

Stella realized that Trevor, being a man, might not be as sensitive to a woman's subtle manipulations as she was. This led her to suspect that Darcie might have taken advantage of Trevor many times over the years.

She had no intention of causing trouble at home after returning to the family. Darcie was Wenham's wife, and Jaylene was his adopted daughter. If everyone could live together peacefully, she would not care how much of the family's wealth would be divided between them in the future. However, if they had ulterior motives and tried to take advantage of her and her brother, she would never just sit back and let it happen.

If they would not live harmoniously, then she would play the game by their rules.

Trevor paused momentarily before a hint of warmth appeared in his eyes. Although they did not grow up together, they were blood siblings and had a special place in each other's hearts.

When their mother was pregnant with Stella, she hoped that Trevor and Stella could rely on and support each other. And now, it seemed like that wish had come true.

Chapter 1480

'Stella cares about me.'

That thought lasted only for about ten minutes. When he was driving past the office of Vinci Rivera, Stella told him to drop her off there.

Trevor furrowed his brows, "It's after work hours. Why do you want to come here?"

'He's working overtime today.' Stella put on a mask and a cap and picked up the items she had looted from Jaylene's room. Then, she said to Trevor, i'm going to put a couple of these decorations in Keegan's room. His office is too boring."

Trevor's eyelid twitched, "What about my office?"

Stella replied, "What if Jaylene wants them back when she sees them in your office? She's your sister, too. Plus, you grew up together. Would you have the heart to not give them back to her?"

Trevor kept quiet.

If Stella had bought the decorations for him, he would definitely not give them to Jaylene. However, the thing was that Stella acquitted these decorations through "unconventional" means, so he would most probably give them back.

He understood why Stella would not give the decorations to him, but he was still upset!

He felt he had a special place in his little sister's heart just a while ago. But now, he realized that plenty of other things had a special place in her heart. Other than money, Keegan the scumbag was also one of them!

He could not get over it!

'I should've been firmer and not agreed to their relationship so quickly!' he thought.

Stella opened the car door and waved at Trevor, "Be careful on the road. Bye."

Then, she went into the office without turning back.

Trevor massaged his temple, 'Hmph! I cant believe she put another man before me!'

With the VIP card given by Keegan, Stella did not have to register her entry at Vinci Rivera. All she had to do was swipe the card, and the receptionist would allow her to pass.

She walked into the elevator with her bag and pressed the button for Keegan's office floor.

When the elevator reached the seventh floor, it stopped.

Stella paused. The elevator she was in would only stop at the floors the executives were working on. She had never experienced it stopping on other floors on the way up, so she was surprised.

As she was thinking about it, the elevator doors opened. Stella lifted her gaze, and her expression immediately darkened.

Jackson was shocked, too, as he was not expecting anybody to be in the elevator.

He paused for a moment before stepping inside. Then, he pressed the button for the floor he wanted to go to.

Stella looked at the floor numbers on the screen emotionlessly.

Jackson looked at her from head to toe and said, "Stella Jewell?"

Stella kept quiet.

Jackson frowned and tried to remove her mask. Stella forcefully slapped his hand away and said coldly, "Get away from me!"

Jackson chuckled, "I knew it was you. Ms. Saun, why did you come to our office instead of staying home?"

Stella ignored him.

However, Jackson continued, "You had such an ugly divorce with Keegan. Why are you still keeping in touch with him? Do you still have feelings for him?"

"What does that have to do with you?"

Jackson chuckled softly, "Stella, Keegan is a heartless and unfeeling man who doesn't even care about his own mother. Why don't you date me instead? I look like him, and I don't mind being a rebound for you."

Stella was utterly disgusted by his words. She turned to look at Jackson and said nonchalantly, "Do you have a mirror in your office?"
