

Read Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1606 -1610 [Eleven Jewell]

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1606 [Eleven Jewell]

Caline had specialized laboratories and different rooms for storing various scents. When Stella was there, she got to smell fragrances she had never encountered before. It was a delightful experience for her.

Darcie was very gracious and decided to accompany Wenham in giving Stella a comprehensive tour. She held a high position in the company, and everyone treated her with the utmost regard. Amidst the respect, there seemed to be a hint of awe.

Stella did not have enough time to observe the situation to be entirely certain, but she realized something strange-the headquarters surprisingly did not have any employees with more than twenty years of service.

Wenham mentioned that Caline's predecessor was called Enchanted and was established twenty-eight years ago. At the time, they recruited girls around 18 or 19 years old to work in the store. 'Based on their age, they wouldn't be retiring yet, right?' Moreover, when the classic fragrances were first introduced, Enchanted had already made a name for itself. The initial employees held company shares, but strangely, none of them stayed until the end.

"What's wrong?" Wenham quickly asked when he noticed that Stella was lost in thought. "Are you tired?"

Stella snapped out of her trance and shook her head. "I'm just a little surprised.

The employees in the company are all so young."

Darcie stopped and said, "In recent years, the company has introduced a lot of new advanced equipment, making operations more automated. Older employees had difficulty operating them, so we hired young people since it's easier for them to catch up. The senior employees have been reassigned to relatively lighter duties in subsidiary branches. r»

"I see." Stella did not bring up the topic again, but she could not shake the feeling that something was off. She had visited the equipment room, and the machinery was not particularly difficult to handle.

After returning from Caline, Stella made sure to jot down everything she had seen and the questions she had.

She called Aldor and asked if he could help her look into something.

Aldor chuckled upon hearing her request. "Of course, but you'll have to wait a little longer. Maybe I'll be able to help you after the election. Mr. Kane has a lot on his plate right now, and I need to assist him in his tasks."

"That's fine. You can focus on your job. I'm not in a rush." Stella paused for a moment and asked in a low voice, "Is Keegan not done with his work yet?"

"The election is tomorrow. Mr. Kane still has some matters to attend to," Aldor paused. "Would you like me to pass the phone to him?"

"No. I'm scared I wouldn't want to hang up if I heard his voice over the phone. I don't want to take up his time. Just let him know that I'll pick him up after the election. I'll be there whether he wins or not."

Aldor smiled. "Alright, I'll be sure to convey that."

Vinci Rivera's chairman election was held on the day before New Year's.

Keegan woke up early, and as soon as he came downstairs, the housekeeper brought him a neatly pressed suit. "Sir, Mrs. Kane delivered this last night. She wants you to wear it today."

Keegan looked at the white suit with a black shirt that the housekeeper was holding. He was slightly puzzled. He was not particularly fond of light-colored suits. There was only one white suit in his wardrobe, which Stella had bought, and he had not worn it many times.

'It seems that she really likes seeing me in white,' Keegan smirked slightly. He took the suit and went upstairs to get changed. He headed to Vinci Rivera following that.

As soon as Keegan arrived at the company, he spotted a familiar figure not far from the entrance. He smiled and said to Aldor, "I'll get off here. Find a parking spot and meet me upstairs in a moment."

Aldor nodded in response.

On that chilly winter morning at 7:30 a.m., the streets bustled with vehicles, yet few pedestrians were in sight. The leaves were twirling in the air, as the brisk wind whistled.

Stella was wearing a beige-colored coat with a thick scarf wrapped around her neck. She smiled and waved at Keegan from a distance.

Keegan's breath formed a white mist in the cold air. He quickened his pace when he saw Stella.

Stella, too, happily hurried toward him. However, her expression abruptly changed from joy to alarm. "Watch out!" she shouted in terror.

Keegan did not have time to process her warning when he felt a heavy blow to the back of his head.

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1607 [Eleven Jewell]

There was no one else on the empty street, so neither of them noticed it when the heavily dressed man approached Keegan from another direction.

It was not until he got closer and suddenly pulled out a baseball bat from his jacket that Stella screamed at Keegan to alert him.

However, it was already too late. The man forcefully swung the bat at the back of Keegan's head.

Stella's pupils contracted, as she dropped the thermos in her hands. She screamed for help and rushed toward Keegan.

Keegan felt a sharp pain in his head. He staggered and narrowly avoided the second hit. He somehow managed to kick the attacker's knee, causing him to groan and kneel on the ground.

Keegan's vision was going dark, but he used all his remaining strength to twist the attacker's arm behind his back and remove the mask from his face.

As soon as he saw the man's face, a van came out of nowhere and sped toward Stella.

Keegan was shocked, and his attention immediately shifted to Stella. He stumbled toward Stella and shouted at her, telling her to run.

However, after just taking a few steps, he was struck from behind again. His legs went weak, and he fell to the ground.

He felt something warm seeping from his head, and then he heard Stella's heartbreaking cries.

He wanted to shout for her to run. But he could not make a sound, as his vision gradually turned darker.

The van was just a distraction. Just as it was about to hit Stella, it swerved and grazed Stella's leg, causing her to fall. Then, it was driven toward the man not far away.

The van's rear door opened, and someone from inside the van violently pulled Keegan inside. Just as the door was about to close, a hand suddenly clung to it.

The man in the backseat was shocked. Then, Stella sprayed something in his eyes, instantly burning and blinding him.

“Fucking bitch!” the man cursed.

While the man was rubbing his eyes, Stella took the opportunity and secretly threw her phone under the seat.

The security guard on duty heard the commotion and ran toward them.

The driver of the van urged, “Close the fucking door!

Someone’s coming!”

Stella held onto the door handle even tighter, knowing that someone was coming to help them. She wanted to do whatever she could to save Keegan.

However, the attackers were ruthless and completely ignored Stella’s actions. The driver immediately stomped on the gas pedal.

The van suddenly accelerated and dragged Stella forward. She noticed that she could not hold on and was about to let go of the door. But the man in the back seat grabbed her by the collar and violently pulled her into the van.

The man was so rough that he caused Stella to knock her head against the van.

Before she could react to what was happening, her mouth and nose were covered by a piece of cloth that had a pungent smell to it. She quickly held her breath and struggled, but she soon became still.

That man slapped her face, made sure that she had passed out, and threw her to the side.

The look on the driver's face changed. "Are you out of your fucking mind? Why did you pull her in?"

The man in the backseat, who wore a baseball cap, looked at him and retorted,

"She saw my face. Would you prefer to let her go so she can report us to the police?"

The driver did not argue further with him when he saw that the security guard was getting closer. At that moment, they quickly fled the scene.

The security guard could not catch up with the van, so he rushed back to their office to call the police.

However, as soon as he arrived, the security captain stopped him. "The bosses are coming soon, and you were supposed to show the drivers where to park their cars.

Where did you go?"

The security guard panted and replied, "Captain, someone dragged a woman into a van at the entrance. It looks like a kidnapping. We've got to call the police."

He had just gone out when he heard the commotion. He only saw Stella being dragged into the van, but he did not know that Keegan was there too.

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1608 [Eleven Jewell]

The captain was taken aback. Then, he immediately stopped the security guard when he saw him dialing 911. “What are you doing? It’s broad daylight, and who would dare to kidnap someone right outside the company? It’s probably just a small fight between a boyfriend and a girlfriend. You must’ve misunderstood it.”

“But it didn’t look like that at all, and the surveillance cameras-“

“Stop your nonsense and get back to work. Her parents will call the police if she’s really been kidnapped. You have no business being so nosy. The meeting today is very important, and everyone from the board will be coming today. If you bring the police here and disrupt the meeting, do you think you can handle

the consequences?”

The security guard hesitated upon hearing that. The election was a big deal, and there was nothing he could do to handle the consequences if he made a mistake. He could only pray that what his captain said was right and that it was nothing serious.

Aldor arrived at the office, made sure that all the documents were ready, and started waiting for Keegan.

However, Keegan was nowhere to be seen even after thirty minutes. So, Aldor took out his phone and called Keegan.

However, Keegan’s phone was turned off.

Aldor frowned. Keegan would rarely turn off his phone, especially on such an important day.

Suddenly, Aldor felt a little restless.

He tried calling Keegan two more times, but it still would not connect. So, he called Stella instead.

The call was connected, but it was not answered.

'One is turned off, and the other is did not answer. This couldn't be just a coincidence, right?'

Aldor looked at the time and decided not to wait any longer. He rushed out of the office.

Just when he was about to step into the elevator, his phone rang.

It was a call from the board of directors' office. Aldor stood outside the elevator and answered the call.

"Aldor, the board of directors has added some documents for the meeting. Come pick them up."

"Sure, I'll send someone to collect it now."

The person on the other end said, "Please collect them personally. They're all confidential and sealed documents. Each office's assistants are required to collect them in person to avoid any unwanted trouble."

Aldor furrowed his brows, as he looked at the elevator's door opening. "Okay, then. I'll be there now," he said in a deep voice.

After hanging up the phone, Aldor took the elevator upstairs instead of going down. Meanwhile, he dialed Vermont's number.

Vermont had just returned from buying breakfast downstairs and was slightly surprised to see Aldor's call.

He answered it and said teasingly, "Aldor, are you worried that Keegan might lose the election, and you're looking for a new boss?"

However, Aldor did not play along with him like he always would. Instead, he said in a deep tone, "Mr. Snyder, I can't contact Mr. Kane."

Vermont was taken aback. "What do you mean by that?"

Aldor then told him about what happened briefly. "Mr. Kane told me to wait for him upstairs, but it's been over half an hour now. He didn't come up and even his phone was switched off. I tried calling Mrs. Kane, but it wasn't answered either. I have something to do right now, and I can't check on it. Would you please try calling Mr. Kane? The general meeting will deny all entry fifteen minutes after its commencement. We can't afford to let anything happen to Mr.

Kane at this moment."

Vermont's expression immediately turned serious. "I'll do that right now. Wait for my call."

"Okay."

Vermont tried calling Keegan for a few times after hanging up. Then, he quickly went home to get his car key after failing to reach him.

Felicity had just finished brushing her teeth, and she was puzzled when she saw

Vermont changing hurriedly. "You haven't had breakfast yet. Are you leaving?"

she asked.

Vermont buttoned up his heart and said, "Keegan and Stella have gone missing."

The captain was taken aback. Then, he immediately stopped the security guard

when he saw him dialing 911. "What are you doing? It's broad daylight, and who would dare to kidnap someone right outside the company? It's probably just a small fight between a boyfriend and a girlfriend. You must've misunderstood it."

"But it didn't look like that at all, and the surveillance cameras-"

"Stop your nonsense and get back to work. Her parents will call the police if she's really been kidnapped. You have no business being so nosy. The meeting

today is very important, and everyone from the board will be coming today. If you bring the police here and disrupt the meeting, do you think you can handle

the consequences?"

The security guard hesitated upon hearing that. The election was a big deal, and there was nothing he could do to handle the consequences if he made a mistake. He could only pray that what his captain said was right and that it was nothing serious.

Aldor arrived at the office, made sure that all the documents were ready, and started waiting for Keegan.

However, Keegan was nowhere to be seen even after thirty minutes. So, Aldor took out his phone and called Keegan.

However, Keegan's phone was turned off.

Aldor frowned. Keegan would rarely turn off his phone, especially on such an important day.

Suddenly, Aldor felt a little restless.

He tried calling Keegan two more times, but it still would not connect. So, he called Stella instead.

The call was connected, but it was not answered.

'One is turned off, and the other is did not answer. This couldn't be just a coincidence, right?'

Aldor looked at the time and decided not to wait any longer. He rushed out of the office.

Just when he was about to step into the elevator, his phone rang.

It was a call from the board of directors' office. Aldor stood outside the elevator and answered the call.

“Aldor, the board of directors has added some documents for the meeting. Come pick them up.”

“Sure, I’ll send someone to collect it now.”

The person on the other end said, “Please collect them personally. They’re all confidential and sealed documents. Each office’s assistants are required to collect them in person to avoid any unwanted trouble.”

Aldor furrowed his brows, as he looked at the elevator’s door opening. “Okay, then. I’ll be there now,” he said in a deep voice.

After hanging up the phone, Aldor took the elevator upstairs instead of going down. Meanwhile, he dialed Vermont’s number.

Vermont had just returned from buying breakfast downstairs and was slightly surprised to see Aldor’s call.

He answered it and said teasingly, “Aldor, are you worried that Keegan might lose the election, and you’re looking for a new boss?”

However, Aldor did not play along with him like he always would. Instead, he said in a deep tone, “Mr. Snyder, I can’t contact Mr. Kane.”

Vermont was taken aback. “What do you mean by that?”

Aldor then told him about what happened briefly. “Mr. Kane told me to wait for him upstairs, but it’s been over half an hour now. He didn’t come up and even his phone was switched off. I tried calling Mrs. Kane, but it wasn’t answered either. I have something to do right now, and I can’t check on it. Would you please try calling Mr. Kane? The general meeting will deny all entry fifteen minutes after its commencement. We can't afford to let anything happen to Mr.

Kane at this moment."

Vermont's expression immediately turned serious. "I'll do that right now. Wait for my call."

"Okay."

Vermont tried calling Keegan for a few times after hanging up. Then, he quickly

went home to get his car key after

failing to reach him.

Felicity had just finished brushing her teeth, and she was puzzled when she saw

Vermont changing hurriedly. "You haven't had breakfast yet. Are you leaving?"

she asked.

Vermont buttoned up his heart and said, "Keegan and Stella have gone missing."

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1609 [Eleven Jewell]

Felicity was taken aback. "Gone missing? Stella just asked me how to make apple porridge this morning, and she even sent me a picture of it after she was done. She told me that she was going to bring it to Keegan."

Vermont paused. 'Try contacting Stella now and see if you can reach her."

Felicity immediately tried contacting Stella through both calling and messaging.

The call was connected, but no one answered. And her messages were left unread.

Now, the both of them grew anxious.

They would not be anxious like this if this was some other day.

However, today was the chairman's election meeting of Vinci Rivera, so both of them going missing at a time like this made them overthink.

Vermont immediately suspected that Chandler might be the person behind this.

Chandler and Keegan were equally capable in the company, and both of them had a significant chance of winning the election. A few years ago, Chandler was more influential and powerful than Keegan, but things had changed.

Although the Saun family seemed as though they did not care about the election even after Stella's return to the family, they were secretly doing a lot of things to support Keegan.

Anyone with a clear mind could see who the better chairman would be. No matter how hard Chandler tried to maintain his relationship with other shareholders, they were still more concerned about their personal interests. So, even before the meeting started, many of them had already switched sides.

If Keegan did not arrive at the meeting in time and it was canceled, his reputation would definitely take a hit. Then, Chandler would probably initiate an impeachment protocol along with other shareholders, causing the next election to be delayed indefinitely.

The longer it dragged on, the harder it would be for Keegan to get rid of Chandler.

Keegan had prepared for this battle for so long, yet he went missing on the most important day. Vermont could not convince himself that it had nothing to do with

Chandler.

Vermont and Felicity acted separately, with one going to Vinci Rivera to check on things, while the other contacted Stella's friends and family to check if anyone knew where she went.

Aldor was asked to go upstairs, but the person who was supposed to give him the documents was nowhere to be seen.

Aldor was not the only one coming to collect the documents, so he figured that it would be inappropriate for him to rush that person. He stared at his watch anxiously, hoping to hear from Keegan soon.

When he finally got the documents, there were only about ten minutes until the meeting started.

Vermont was squatting down outside of Vinci Rivera's office. He could see some bloodstains on the ground and some of them were not dried yet. And he saw some apple porridge spilled on the ground. He could not find the thermos anywhere and thought that the janitor had probably taken it away.

He thought about the apple porridge that Felicity had mentioned earlier and said in a hoarse voice, "Aldor, something bad has most probably happened to them."

Aldor's expression changed.

Someone urged Aldor to go upstairs and prepare for the meeting, as it was going to start soon.

Aldor wiped his sweat away and tried to calm himself down. "Mr. Snyder, please call the police to find them. I'll take care of the meeting and tell Mrs. Kane Sr. about this."

"Sure."

Stella had inhaled some hallucinogenic substance, but she did not lose consciousness because she had held her breath. However, her limbs felt weak, and she did not dare to move or open her eyes.

The sight of Keegan covered in blood was still vivid in her mind. She had no idea how bad his injuries were. He was right beside her, but she could not even bring herself to look at him.

She was terrified, but she tried her best to keep her emotions in check and remain calm.

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1610 [Eleven Jewell]

Stella recognized the kidnapper that Keegan had unmasked earlier. It was the same person who attacked Marshall previously.

'Is he here to take his revenge on me?

'No, that can't be right. He was going after Keegan, and he only pulled me into the van because I didn't let go.

'Why would he do this to Keegan? Could it be that it's related to today's meeting?'

Stella's mind was a mess, and she was overwhelmed by her own assumptions.

However, she knew that it was not the time to find out the kidnapper's motive.

Instead, she needed to find a way to save Keegan and herself.

The kidnapper had searched both of them thoroughly and took away their phone and other electronic devices. The phone that Stella had secretly thrown under the seat was the only thing they did not take, which offered Stella a glimmer of hope.

Her phone was on silent, and she needed to send out a message before the kidnappers found it.

As she thought about it, she heard the driver answering a call. She could not hear what the caller said, but the driver replied, "Don't worry, he's not going anywhere."

Stella's heart sank. It turned out that Marshall's assailant was not the mastermind, and there were others behind it.

The driver was very cautious during the entire call. He did not reveal any name or details about the caller and quickly hung up after the call.

Stella did not get any other useful information, so when the kidnappers were talking to each other, she opened her eyes by a tiny gap to glance around.

Keegan was thrown in the back row and lying horizontally with his hands tied behind his back. She could not see his face from her position. Instead, the only thing she could see were the bloodstains on his white suit.

Stella's heart broke. However, she suppressed her emotions and continued to look around. Then, she noticed that the phone she had thrown into the van earlier was right under the seat of the kidnapper on the left.

In truth, it was a very noticeable spot. But none of the kidnappers had expected her to throw the phone under the seat, so none of them checked.

Stella could not make any big movements, as both of her hands and legs were tied. So, she had to wait for the right time.

After some time, the driver stopped the car. Based on what Stella heard from their conversation, she knew that they were going to buy some food and water.

The two kidnappers in the back got out, leaving the driver waiting in the car alone.

The driver took out a cigarette. Then, he began searching for a lighter but could not find one anywhere. He glanced at the people behind, made sure that they were still unconscious, and stepped out of the van.

When Stella did not hear any sound in the van, she quickly opened her eyes.

She moved toward the door and attempted to open it.

However, when she realized that it was locked, she knew that there was no chance for her to call others for help. They were in the middle of nowhere, and she could barely see any houses nearby, let alone people.

She turned around and managed to retrieve her phone after a few attempts.

She could not even unlock her phone due to how scared she was. When she finally managed to do so, she opened a random chat, shared her live location, and dialed 911.

Her tears almost fell out the moment when the call was connected. She quickly told the police about what was happening, kept her phone connected, and hid it in a more concealed spot.

The kidnappers had yet to return, so Stella crept back to the rear. She knelt on the ground and called out to Keegan with a trembling voice. “Keegan, Babe, wake up. You’re scaring me.”

Her voice shook, and when she looked at Keegan’s pale face and bloody head, her heart wrenched.

Keegan’s eyelids twitched as if he had heard Stella’s voice. Then, he opened his eyes and said in a hoarse voice, “Stella...”

Stella’s heart trembled, and she almost burst out crying.

“Everything’s going to be okay.” She gently rubbed her face against Keegan’s cheek and tried her best to keep herself calm. “Don’t be scared... I’ve already called the police.

They’ll get us out of here soon. Don’t worry... we’ll be fine...” she comforted Keegan,