Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1833 [Eleven Jewell]

Vermont was unconcerned. “Keegan is a grown man, not a fool. I’m sure Jaylene won’t be able to snatch him away.”

“Did you not see what happened at the banquet? She kept filling Keegan’s glass. It’s clear she has ill intentions,” Felicity persisted.

Vermont giggled, “What? Are you worried she’ll get him drunk and take advantage of him?”

Felicity glared at him and said, “Well, it’s not entirely impossible, is it? What if Keegan gets drunk, loses his judgment, and does something inexplicable?

Stella will never forgive him..”

Vermont laughed heartily. He held Felicity’s hand and said, “Miss bandit, you’re inexperienced in love. You don’t understand men well.”

Felicity did not understand what he meant.

“Using alcohol as an excuse for inappropriate behavior is just a lame attempt by men with ulterior motives. If a man wants to misbehave, even a sip of vinegar can make him drunk. If he’s not interested, no amount of alcohol will work.

Judging from Keegan’s character, he wouldn’t stoop to such actions.”

Felicity felt somewhat reassured, but as she listened to Vermont’s knowledge of such tactics, she narrowed her eyes and questioned, “Do you often pretend to be drunk and engage in inappropriate activities?”

Hearing that, Vermont chuckled. He kissed the back of Felicity’s hand and looked at her tenderly. “While I’m no saint, I’ll never stoop to such tasteless acts.”

After a pause, he complained, “You, on the other hand, have such poor alcohol tolerance. I can’t believe you got drunk and discussed art films with strangers you’ve just met.”

Annoyed and embarrassed, Felicity slapped him on the head and said, “Shut your mouth!”

Vermont saw her angry expression, and his heart softened. Just as he was about to say something, Keegan and Jaylene exited the elevator.

Felicity patted his arm and said, “Here they come. Watch, Jaylene is definitely going to take Keegan away in her car.”

Vermont rubbed his chin. “Didn’t he look fine when we left? How can he be drunk in just over ten minutes?”

“Did you forget how low Keegan’s alcohol tolerance is?”

Stella said he gets dizzy after just one glass of white wine.”

Felicity shook him and said, “Quick, think of a solution. Keegan’s chastity is on the line!”

Vermont’s eyelids twitched. “Why are you more concerned about his innocence than mine?”

Felicity scowled. “I’m safeguarding Stella’s marriage.”

“And how are you doing that?”

“Haven’t you heard that celibacy is a man’s best gift for his partner? With your track record, you should be grateful that I still care about you.” i Her response left Vermont speechless.

‘Damn it!’ Vermont’s expression turned ugly. ‘What has she been reading online these days?’ As expected, Jaylene did lead Keegan to her car.

Felicity egged Vermont on, “Go over there and ram into the back of her car!”

Vermont could not believe her. “Lady, that’s against the law!”

“We’re in an underground parking lot. There are no pedestrians around. What are you afraid of? Don’t tell me you’re worried about denting your car

Vermont defended his decision, "I think there's no need for unnecessary sacrifices. We should avoid whatever we can."

Frustrated, Felicity retorted, "You scum. Aren't you Keegan's best friend? Is your car worth more than his chastity?"

Vermont responded calmly, "My car cost over seven million dollars. Keegan's chastity isn't worth that much."

Felicity was about to bite back. However, at that moment, a figure suddenly appeared in front of Jaylene's car. It was Aurora.

Vermont held Felicity's hand down and said, "Aurora is here. We might not need to sacrifice my car anymore."

Felicity maintained a defensive posture while keeping an eye on Aurora, who approached the car window and exchanged words with Jaylene. Subsequently, Aurora moved to the other side, opened the back door, and entered the vehicle.

Soon after, she closed the door, and they drove off.

Felicity frowned. "Why did she join them?"

Vermont started the car, "Jaylene won't do anything to Keegan with Aurora there. Are you reassured now?"

"How do you know she won't do anything?" Felicity had zero trust in Jaylene's character.

Vermont smiled faintly, "Jaylene has always presented herself as gentle, virtuous, and diplomatic. Even if she had ulterior motives, she wouldn't dare to act upon them in front of Aurora. We all know Jaylene has feelings for Keegan, but why hasn't she confessed?"

"Because she knows it would damage her reputation. That's why she chooses to only engage in flirtatious behavior. If the situation blows up, she can make it seem like Keegan initiated it. Jaylene is a strategic person. I'm sure she wouldn't dare to do anything in front of Aurora," he continued.

Felicity cursed, "That pretentious bitch!"

"Let's tail them and see what's going on."

Inside Jaylene's car, Keegan found himself seated between Aurora and Jaylene.

His face appeared flushed, and the scent of alcohol lingered around him. With half-closed eyes, he leaned against the seat in silence.

Jaylene opened a bottle of water and handed it to him while saying, "Are you still feeling uncomfortable, Keegan? Do you want some water?"

Keegan took a sip, looking weary.

"Thank you for giving us a lift, Jaylene. I wouldn't manage my brother in this condition alone otherwise," Aurora expressed her gratitude.

In a soothing tone, Jaylene replied, "It's no trouble. Since Keegan and I came together, I want to ensure he gets home safely."

She then took out a handkerchief and gently wiped the water droplets from Keegan's lips.

Aurora observed Jaylene's actions and smiled, "Jaylene, you're really thoughtful. If my brother marries you, the two of us will surely get along well."

Jaylene lowered her eyes and whispered, "Aurora, don't say such things.

Keegan's heart belongs to Stella."

Aurora dismissed it, "That was before. He doesn't even remember her now. He gets annoyed every time he sees her face, and they've been quarreling a lot recently."

All of a sudden, Keegan coughed several times, his face flushing red, possibly due to water or something else.

Jaylene hurriedly patted his back. After Keegan closed his eyes again, she said, "How could that be? Keegan survived a life-threatening situation. Stella should treat him well. Why would they be quarreling?"

Aurora snorted, "If my brother were gone, most of his assets would have gone to her. Now that he's back, the will is null and void. I'm sure she's not happy about that." 3

Jaylene dismissed Aurora's claims, finding them more reflective of Dahlia's opinions of Stella.

She smiled and commented, "You're reading too much into it. Stella genuinely cares about Keegan's well-being. Growing up in the Jewell family, surrounded by individuals like Albert, whose character is questionable, may have shaped her demeanor. And Keegan, well, he's quite straightforward. Disagreements are bound to happen."

Aurora scoffed at the mention of the Jewell family. "She certainly learned a lot from Albert's never-ending greed."

Without delving deeper into the conversation, Jaylene asked, "Aurora, I heard you're living in Keegan's house now. Is that true?"

Aurora nodded. "If Stella can help my brother regain his memory, then so can I.

If she's living there, I'll be there too. I need to keep a close watch on her and prevent any chance of her trying to reignite old feelings with my brother."

Jaylene chuckled, "You're such a child."

Aurora took her hand and said, "Jaylene, while my brother is intoxicated, do you see an opportunity here to get close to him? Keegan is an honest man. If a relationship develops between you two, he'll surely take responsibility. I bet Stella will have to keep her distance if anything happens."

A blush tinged Jaylene's cheeks as she gently patted Aurora's hand, chastising her in a hushed tone, "Stop talking nonsense."

Aurora shrugged, "I was just joking. If Keegan decides to investigate, he'll find out who did it, especially with surveillance everywhere nowadays. I don't want to end up back in prison."

Jaylene's mind settled slightly. Aurora was right about the omnipresent surveillance cameras. If someone probed the incident, the truth would surface.

'This approach is too risky.' Jaylene was a little glad that Aurora got into the car. It dispelled the unrealistic fantasies she had harbored earlier. Knowing that Keegan wasn't committed to Stella, she felt no immediate sense of urgency to step in.

However, the decrease in their interactions left her somewhat anxious. “Aurora, has your brother remembered Stella at all?”

Aurora coldly sneered, “If he ever regains his memories, the first thing he would do is kick me out of Royalpark Villa. I hope he never remembers.”

Jaylene breathed a sigh of relief and pulled out a bottle of medicine from her bag, “Aurora, this is the medicine Dr.

Stone prescribed for Keegan. I got it from abroad through a friend. You should hold onto it and have him take it according to his previous dosage when he wakes up.”

Aurora took the medication and said, “Jaylene, you’re so good to my brother. I truly don’t know what he saw in Stella.”

Jaylene lowered her eyes and smiled without saying anything. Though, her gaze looked somewhat disdainful.

Initially, Jaylene planned to send Keegan back to Royalpark Villa. However, Aurora said that she could drop them off at the intersection.

“The driver is on his way. Stella has been suspicious of my brother. I’m afraid she’ll complain to Grandma if you go in with us. Grandma is getting older and tends to believe whatever Stella tells her.”

She continued, “At the same time, your dad has been worried that Stella might not settle well into our family, so he frequently visits Grandma. I’m concerned that he might misinterpret the situation if he overhears any of Stella’s grievances.”

Jaylene understood Aurora’s opinion. Wenham had indeed been visiting the Kane family often lately, causing her to be worried and eager to see Keegan.

She felt considerably relieved, knowing that Keegan’s attitude toward her remained unchanged and with Aurora confirming the poor relationship between him and Stella.

“Alright,” she said, passing her coat to Aurora. “Take this. It’s cold outside.”

Aurora was deeply touched, her eyes turning red. Gratefully, she took the coat, her voice hoarse, "Jaylene, besides my mom, you've been the kindest person to me."

Jaylene smiled and comforted her with a couple of words.

She then gave her a gift that was originally intended for Darcie.

Soon, the Kane family's driver arrived. He stepped out and assisted Keegan into the car alongside Aurora.

Jaylene bid them farewell through the lowered window as they drove away.

Then, she averted her gaze, tossed out the water bottle Aurora had used, and remarked, "Let's go."

"How irresponsible!" Felicity cursed fiercely.

Vermont patted her head and said, "Are you reassured now?"

Felicity got out, poured out the water bottle, and threw it in the trash bin. She then ran back to the car and said, "Take me home." "Sure," Vermont chuckled softly.
