Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1856 [Eleven Jewell]

Stella wanted to remind Keegan that there was no extra bed at home. Plus, Wenham had a bad back; sleeping on the sofa would not be suitable for him.

However, Keegan directly sent Aurora away.

Well, to be precise, Aurora was deceived and forced to leave.

At first, when Aurora saw Wenham coming, she asked, "There's no more bed at home. Where is Uncle Wenham going to sleep?"

Keegan threw her jacket at her and said, "Go out and get something to eat."

Although Aurora was reluctant, she was still afraid of Keegan and dared not disobey him. She put on her jacket and asked him what they wanted to eat.

Keegan gave her a bunch of instructions. He then sent her out, locked the door, and said flatly, "After you buy everything, go back home and eat them yourself.

Don't come back tonight."

Only then did Aurora realize that Keegan had kicked her out of the house to make room for his father-in-law. She was furious. She banged on the door, clamoring to come in.

However, Keegan turned on the noise reduction system, and the house became quiet.

They could see Aurora shouting through the window, but none of them could hear a word she was saying.

After knocking on the door for a while and seeing that no one responded to her, she grumbled and left.

Stella was very surprised.

Aurora was never easy to deal with; it was unexpected that she would quiet down so quickly today.

After she left, Keegan had the maid change the bedding in Aurora's room to a new set for Wenham.

Wenham was exhausted and went right to bed after taking a shower.

After Stella finished washing up, she lay in bed, holding the bracelet Trevor had given her earlier. She could not sleep at all.

Keegan came out of the bathroom and saw Stella staring at her phone blankly.

He tossed the towel aside, sat on the other side of the bed, and said softly, "Sleep early. We have to go to the airport tomorrow morning."

Stella snapped out of her thoughts, nodded, and put her phone on the nightstand.

Keegan lay down, too, and switched off the lights.

Both of them remained silent, neither speaking a word.

After a while, Stella asked, "Keegan, where did you find our passports?"

Keegan replied flatly, "I don't know. Maria gave them to me. You can ask her."

Stella did not say anything more and tossed and turned in bed, unable to fall asleep.

After a while, Keegan said, "If you don't sleep now, you should stay home tomorrow and get some rest. I'll go with Uncle Wenham."

Stella frowned, "Do you think I can sleep at a time like this?"

"Even if you can't, you have to." Keegan shut his eyes and spoke softly, "Take care of yourself first, and then you'll have the energy to deal with other things."

He paused before adding, "Or do you want me to tell Uncle Wenham that you haven't slept all night?"

Wenham was worried about his son and was equally concerned about his daughter, especially since she was pregnant.

Stella's expression turned ugly. She gritted her teeth, "How despicable of you!"

Keegan held her tightly and said, "Believe me, I'll do it." Stella closed her eyes and tried to calm herself down. After ignoring Keegan for some time, she finally fell asleep.

However, she did not get a peaceful sleep. In her dreams, she saw Trevor boarding the plane. During his journey back, the plane lost control and disintegrated in the air. Trevor was crushed and could barely be recognized.

Stella woke up in a cold sweat from the nightmare. She looked out the window and realized that it was just beginning to dawn, but Keegan was no longer by her side.

She glanced at her phone and found out that it was not even 7 a.m. yet.

She then lifted the blanket and got out of bed. After draping her jacket over her shoulders, she walked out of the room.

The house was silent, with only Maria tidying up Aurora's room.

Suddenly, Stella had a bad feeling. She quickly dialed Keegan's number, but there was no answer. She tried calling Wenham, but it was the same.

With a pale face, Stella returned to the bedroom. She discovered that the passports and visa documents were missing from the nightstand.

'Asshole! Not only did he leave without me, but he also hid my passport and my visa!' Stella cursed inwardly.

She quickly got changed and left the house with a cold face.

She could still reach Keegan's phone, but he just would not pick up. So, she figured that they probably had not boarded the plane yet.

Stella then randomly took a car from the garage and rushed to the airport.

Along the way, she received a call from a salesperson who would not stop selling her house. She was already in a bad mood, and the calls only added to her irritation.

She answered it and spoke sternly, "Which real estate agency are you from, and what's your name? Where did you get my personal information? Who sold it to you? Are you aware that what you're doing is harassment? I can sue you in court!"

There was a moment of silence on the other end, followed by a voice saying, "Why do you sound so upset early in the morning? Did Keegan make you angry?"

Stella's heart dropped, and she almost crashed into the car in front. She quickly pulled over and said hoarsely, "Trevor, you're still alive?"

Trevor was speechless. Then, he asked, "Is there something wrong with that?"

"No... Not at all." Stella could not help but burst out crying.

She cried uncontrollably, leaving Trevor puzzled as he asked, "What's wrong?"

Who made you sad? Is it Keegan the scumbag? I'll beat him up when I come back."

Stella choked up, "No one made me sad. It's you. Do you know how worried you made us?"

Trevor had no idea what happened. He had just landed and was completely unaware of the private plane's crashing.

"Trevor, what happened? Why weren't you on that plane?"

Trevor's face darkened. He started telling her everything.

After talking to Stella on the phone that day, he did board the plane. However, he received a phone call from a friend right before taking off.

The friend had successfully obtained information about Raynard's past. The friend was going to send the details to Trevor's phone, but given how cautious he was, he decided to meet this friend in person.

The friend lived pretty far away from the airport, and the round trip would take nearly two hours. Meanwhile, the pilot was going to take a detour to pick up his daughter, who was studying abroad, making the schedule very tight. If Trevor were to meet his friend and come back, the pilot might only be able to pick his daughter up at midnight.

Of course, it was not safe to keep a girl waiting alone for several hours. Besides, Trevor was unsure about the exact traveling time. So, he had the pilot take the plane to pick up his daughter first, and he would catch a later commercial flight after obtaining the information.

So, they parted ways at the airport. Trevor took a cab to meet his friend while the pilot and copilot flew the plane loaded with supplies back to Rivera.

When Trevor got what he wanted and went back to the airport, it had already been three hours. Then, he booked the earliest flight back to Rivera.

The private plane crashed into the sea five hours after taking off. At that time, Trevor was still on the other commercial flight without any phone signal, so he did not know about the accident. He slept for a few hours on the plane, which had just landed long ago.

As soon as he disembarked, he called Stella. The flight arrived earlier than expected, so he wanted to tell her not to come and pick him up. However, he did not expect his family to think that he was on the crashed plane. Therefore, he had no idea why Stella broke down after hearing his voice.

After the private plane landed in Mystonia, it was thoroughly inspected; there were no issues before taking off. He could not figure out why the plane ended in a crash.

When Trevor thought of his purpose of going to Mystonia this time, his heart sank.

It took Stella some time to finally recollect herself, “Trevor, I’ll go to the airport to pick you up now. Look for Dad and Keegan at the airport; they were about to fly to Mystonia to find you.”

“Okay,” Trevor said. “Be careful while driving. We’ll talk again when we meet.”
“Sure,” Stella said. She called out to Trevor before hanging up, “Trevor.”

Trevor paused.

Stella’s voice was still hoarse as she said softly, “Please let us know in advance if you’re changing your flight. Don’t make us worry.”

Trevor’s heart softened, “Got it. I will next time.”

Through the airport broadcast, Trevor quickly found Keegan and Wenham, who were about to board the plane.

When Wenham heard his son’s voice through the loudspeaker, he thought he was imagining things. His anxious mood only subsided a little until he finally saw Trevor in person.

As Trevor walked over, Wenham raised his suitcase and smacked him on the butt, scolding, “Stupid kid! Why didn’t you call us to let us know that you’re safe?”

“You’re such an idiot! You made us so worried!”

Trevor, a grown man, being scolded by his father at the airport with Keegan watching, instantly felt extremely embarrassed.

He gritted his teeth and said, “You’re the one who thought I was on that plane.”

“How is this my fault?”

Keegan watched their interactions for a while before finally speaking up, “Uncle Wenham, you can beat him up later at home. There are so many people watching. Let’s not embarrass him.”

Trevor’s lip twitched, “Are you hearing yourself?”

Keegan replied seriously, "Your father is only doing this because he loves you.

Please be understanding."

Easy for you to say because you're not the one getting smack!' Trevor thought to himself.

Of course, Wenham did not hit him hard. He was just too worried. Although he was usually strict with Trevor, he was his and his wife's first child. How could he not be worried?

So, after hitting him twice, he stopped. Then, he hugged Trevor so tightly that even his fingers were trembling.

Trevor's body stiffened. It took him a while to relax.

After Freesia passed away, Wenham had been in a slump for a long time. He had not hugged him like this for a long time, especially after he grew up. They would not even talk about personal matters with one another as they felt they had a tacit understanding.

However, even fatherly love needed to be expressed.

Trevor patted Wenham's shoulder, sighed, and said in a low voice, "Everything's okay now. I'm back now, right?"

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1859 [Eleven Jewell]

Stella arrived at the airport shortly after, too. When she saw Trevor, she rushed into his arms and hugged him tightly.

After returning to the Saun family, Stella had never expressed such intense emotions.

Although the family showed great warmth toward her, spending more than twenty years apart still cast a subconscious sense of estrangement in their daily interactions.

Trevor sometimes thought that it would be difficult for Stella to form a close bond with him after so many years of not being together.

However, now that he was hugged tightly by Stella, he realized that he might have been overthinking.

He figured that she had probably gotten the reserved trait from Wenham.

Although they might not express their feelings openly, they care deeply about their family members.

Thinking about her crying over the phone just now and looking at those puppy-like eyes, Trevor could not help but rub Stella's hair. Then, he said warmly, smiling, "You're about to be a mother. Don't cry so easily; my nephews and nieces will make fun of you."

Stella sniffled and said hoarsely, "I'm going to whoop whoever makes fun of me."

Trevor clicked his tongue, "The father should be responsible for educating them.

Whoop their father instead."

Keegan was left utterly speechless by his response.

Stella did not say anything in response to that or even spare Keegan a glance.

She grabbed Trevor's arm and said, "Dad, Trevor, let's get in the car first and talk."

She picked up the suitcase from the ground as she spoke. When Keegan was about to reach out to help, she moved away from him.

Keegan paused.

Trevor looked at them, took the suitcase from Stella's hand, and threw it to Keegan, "How inconsiderate of you!"

Keegan remained silent.

After getting into the car, Wenham asked about what happened. Then, Trevor recounted everything he had shared with Stella earlier.

Wenham broke out in a cold sweat on his back upon hearing that. After a long pause, he said, "Appreciate that friend of yours. He saved your life."

Trevor said deeply, "Yeah, sure."

Although he had decided to collect the documents himself, he owed his friend a favor for his timely phone call. If his friend had called him an hour later, Wenham and Stella might have been on their way to Mystonia to retrieve his remains.

Trevor quickly contacted the embassy in Mystonia and told them what happened.

The embassy informed him of their search progress, stating that they had located the black box and were currently salvaging it. However, the two pilots were still missing, but it was very likely that they died in the crash.

After talking with the embassy, Trevor decided to fly to Mystonia again the day after New Year. He wanted to investigate the cause of the accident and handle the funeral affairs of the two pilots.

One of the pilots was a foreigner, while the other was from Rivera. Both of them had extensive flying experience; one was even Trevor's instructor when he was learning to fly. They were friends with each other.

On that day before taking off, the pilot even mentioned that he was going to pick up his daughter, who was studying abroad, to celebrate New Year together.

However, just a few hours later, everything changed.

Compensating the pilots' families was the last thing Trevor worried about. He had to find out the true cause of the plane crash as he could not let them die in vain.

Halfway through the journey back home, Wenham suddenly remembered to call Darcie.

When the call was connected, Darcie asked concernedly, "Wenham, have you guys landed?"

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 1860 [Eleven Jewell]

“Wenham said, “We’re not going to Mystonia anymore.”

“What?” Darcie was puzzled.

Wenham continued happily, “Trevor is back. He didn’t board the plane that crashed. For some reason, he took another flight. He was on that plane, so he couldn’t call us.”

Darcie’s expression changed slightly. She could not help but tighten her grip on the phone as she asked softly, “Are you saying that Trevor is safe? Is he with you now?”

“Yeah, I’ll let him speak to you for a while,” Wenham said before handing the phone to Trevor.

Before Darcie could recollect herself, Trevor’s voice came through, “Darcie, it’s me.”

Darcie’s heart skipped a beat. After a long pause, she said, “I’m glad you’re back. You’ll never know how terrified we were when we received that phone call from the embassy yesterday. We thought that you were... It’s great that you’re safe now. I’ll have Sandra prepare some extra dishes when you come home with your dad. It’s New Year’s Eve today; let’s have dinner together. Forget about the bad things that had happened.”

Trevor smiled lightly, barely noticeable, “Thank you, Darcie. We’ll be home very soon.”

Darcie then told them to be careful on the road before hanging up.

After that, she felt uneasy.

She paced back and forth in the room. After thinking about it for a long time, she dialed a number on her phone.

As soon as the call connected, a man’s voice came from the other end, “Darcie...”

She immediately said with a stern face, "Trevor's back."

The man paused before exclaiming anxiously, "How is that possible? I saw him board that plane with my own eyes."

"Just shut up already!" Darcie's expression turned unpleasant, "I told you not to do these unnecessary things. Why didn't you listen to me? Why did you have to act against Trevor?"

The man spoke roughly, "He's already onto the nurse. If I don't do anything, he will trace it back to me sooner or later!"

Darcie responded coldly, "How could that happen? Even the police can't do that!

Are you forgetting who you are now?

"That nurse doesn't know anything. So what if Trevor met her? You're the one who made things worse! If someone tampered with his plane, do you think that he wouldn't connect it to the investigation he was conducting? You're so stupid!"

The man remained silent for some time, his heavy breathing expressing dissatisfaction.

After a while, he asked, "Why are you so scared of me acting against Trevor?"

He's Wenham's son, not yours. Do you really think you're his mother after raising him for so many years? Or are you too comfortable with your current life and want to continue being Mrs. Saun?"

Darcie's expression darkened, "What nonsense are you talking about?"

"You know very well what I'm talking about! If Trevor is gone, Stella will be the only one we have to deal with. She's not going to pose any threat to us. That old thing is not even bothered to hide his favoritism, so why are you still so worried about his son? I think you're living too comfortably and have forgotten about the past." i Darcie clenched her fists tight, still feeling angry. Then, after a long pause, she said, "I know you're doing this for Jaylene, but now is not the right time to act.

What you did raised suspicion, and with how Trevor is, he will surely investigate this matter thoroughly. You might not care about what would happen to you, but have you thought about Jaylene?”

The man was taken aback and remained silent.

“Don’t forget what you said to me when you accepted everything back then.

You’d better not tell me that you regret it now!”

The man kept quiet. After some time, he finally spoke, “I’m just worried. I don’t feel good when I see Jaylene getting mistreated like that. As long as you and Jaylene can have a good life, I don’t mind staying anonymous for the rest of my life...” 6
