Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 981 [Eleven Jewell]

Stella did not get mad at Molly. Instead, she said slowly, "My parents...sterilize animals, Ms. Moore. I can give you a 20% discount if you ever come over. We don't even need to use anesthesia. Three minutes per animal. Though some animals may seem wild, they immediately become docile once they are neutered. So much so that they would stop barking at people."

Everyone was at a loss for words.

They knew Stella was insinuating something else.

It was obvious that Molly knew it, too, judging from the ugly expression on her face.

However, before she could speak, Stella said, "Here it comes."

Stella pulled off the handkerchief, and a fluffy gray animal was gnawing on a peanut in Molly's palm. It was a mouse.

Molly was shocked to her core when she met the rodent's eyes. She screamed and threw the mouse right at the bride.

The bride was startled and took a few steps back. Her foot tripped over the chair, and the groom rushed to pull her up.

However, both of them lost their footing and fell to the ground.

This incident surprised the guests, and everyone quickly went up to check on the newlywed.

Duncan reacted fast enough to pull his wife on top of him. He was not hurt, but he was in shock.

When he helped his wife up, her face was pale, and her stomach began to throb and hurt.

Duncan panicked and carried her in his arms, wanting to head to the hospital.

Carter quickly stopped him and said, "Let Corbin take a look first. It'll be faster than going to the hospital."

Corbin immediately went over and checked the bride's pulse.

Molly was startled by the accident.

Then, after realizing what had happened, she pointed at Stella and said, "It's all her fault. If she hadn't turned those pompoms into a mouse, I wouldn't have tried to get away from it."

Stella ignored her and looked at the bride with concern. She just wanted to play a trick on Molly; she did not expect her to throw the mouse at the bride.

"If something happens to her, I would be the one to blame" novelebook.com she thought.

Molly tried her best to push the responsibility on Stella, "She did it on purpose just because my question hurt her pride. She deliberately turned those pompoms into a mouse to scare me. This woman is vicious, Marshall. Why would you be with someone like"

"Shut up!"

Marshall cut her off with a stern face.

Soon after, Corbin frowned and said in a low voice, "Get her to the hospital. She's bleeding. We need to check the fetal heart rate."

Duncan's face turned pale. He carried his wife and rushed out of the building without caring about anything else.

The night was ruined; all of them had an ugly look.

"That's all for today, everyone. It's getting late. Let's all go back. I'll update you all about the situation in the group," said Carter.

Since the matter had come to this, it was the only way to go.

Stella felt guilty and asked Carter to apologize to the bride and groom on her behalf.

Molly, however, refused to admit her mistake and kept throwing the blame on Stella.

"You SHOULD apologize. You knew there was a pregnant woman here. Why did you pull out a mouse and drag me into this mess?!"

Carter frowned, "Ms. Moore, if I remember correctly, Ms. Thompson asked you to hold the pompoms tight several times. But you were arrogant and didn't listen. You're free to go if my cousin-in-law is fine. But if anything happens to her, the Moore family will owe us an explanation!"

Molly was furious, "What does this have to do with me? How would I have known that she'd pull out a mouse?!"

"Enough!"

Marshall yelled, grabbing her wrist so hard that Molly turned pale from the pain. He put on a straight face and did not bat an eye at her.

"Please send my apologies to Duncan and his wife and tell them we'll visit soon." novlebook.com Marshall looked at Stella, and without waiting for him to speak, she said, "You go first. I'll take the cab."

Marshall pursed his lips and said, "I'll call you."

Stella did not answer. She watched him leave with Molly, who was upset.

Each of the guests left after that.

When Stella passed by Keegan, she whispered, "I need to go to the bathroom. Wait for me."

Keegan touched the back of her hand with his to show that he understood. He did not have much to drink today; the alcohol content of the drinks was relatively low. He was not fully drunk but did not feel very well either. However, he remembered what Stella told him and obediently waited for her in the corridor.

When Howard came out of the guest room, he saw Keegan standing at the end of the corridor, getting some air. He then decided to walk over and said, "Keegan, long time no see."

Keegan froze and did not answer him.

Howard did not find it awkward.

Instead, he continued, "I was busy a while ago and couldn't attend Mrs. Kane Sr's birthday party. How is she?"

Stella just came out of the restroom when she heard Howard's voice.

"Sounds like they're exchanging pleasantries. The birthday party was over months ago"

Stella did not want to interrupt the two men, so she stood out of their sight and listened quietly.

"She's fine," Keegan answered concisely.

Howard continued, "Your mom invited my mom for tea a few days ago. I heard she went to the hospital two days ago. The doctors said she had a cyst. I noticed she had lost a lot of weight. She kept talking about you, though. Talking about how she worries if you're being taken care of."

Stella's expression was hard to read at the mention of Dahlia. She had been so busy with work that she had not heard from her for a long time. She knew about Dahlia leaving the Kane residence but never asked Keegan about it.

A while ago, Stella had heard from Olivia that Dahlia was renting a house in their neighborhood. She seemed to have been kicked out of the Crosby residence as well.

However, Stella was busy then, so she did not ask for more details.

"It seems like Dahlia is at the end of her rope. She's probably planning to trick Keegan into taking her back again, and Howard is obviously here to speak for her"

The corners of Keegan's mouth twitched when he heard about his mother. He looked at Howard and said, "Shouldn't she be telling me—her son—that she misses me and not you, an outsider?"

"My mom was the one who told me. She's worried about your mom's health. You should visit her if you're not too busy with work. It's not easy for her, you know, being alone, especially since your dad is gone," novelebook.com Howard explained.

Keegan was already feeling dizzy before this.

Hearing that, his face turned cold immediately.

"I don't need you to lecture me. I know what my responsibilities are. Take her into your home if you pity her that much. Go be the caring son she wants me to be."

Howard was taken aback for a moment. He did not expect Keegan to say something like that and did not know what to say.

Keegan ignored him and left with a sullen face.

Soon, Stella received Keegan's message: [I'll wait for you in the car.]

When she got into the car, the man was already leaning against the seat, resting. He did not even open his eyes when she entered.

' I guess he must be asleep" thought Stella.

"Madam..."

Aldor whispered.

Stella brought her index finger to her lips, gesturing him to stay silent, and whispered, "Home."

Aldor immediately started the car after that.

Stella grabbed the makeup remover wipes from her bag and removed her makeup while looking into a compact mirror.

When she was almost done, she put down the mirror and saw Keegan looking at her with his head tilted.

"You awake?" novelebook.com Stella asked in a low voice.

Keegan pursed his lips.

"I wasn't asleep."

"My head hurts," Keegan said.

Stella beckoned him over and said, "Come here."

Keegan came closer and asked, "Why?"

Stella put his head on her lap and massaged his temples.

"To help you with the headache," she said.

Keegan took in her scent, buried his face in her arms, and closed his eyes.

Stella had strong fingers and great techniques.

Keegan felt a lot better after a while.

"I just heard you talking to Howard,"

Stella brought up.

“Oh.Don’t mind him,” said Keegan.

Stella pinched his hard and stubbled chin, asking, “Aren’t you moping because of what he said?”

Keegan froze for a moment and let out a low laugh.

Stella was puzzled.

“What are you laughing at?”

“Are you thinking that I’m feeling down because I feel sorry for her but don’t know what to do because, at the same time, I care for you?”

“Is that not what’s happening?”

Keegan grabbed Stella’s hand and put it on his forehead, “You don’t know her at all.She’s not trying to trick me into going back for her; she’s forcing me.Today, it’s Howard’s mother; tomorrow, it might be Marshall’s or Vermont’s family.She will use those who don’t know the truth and are close to me to get me back.Parading your family problems out to the world is not a good thing.She’s doing it because she’s betting that I’d take her back into the home to save my reputation.”

Dahlia was a selfish, narcissistic, and arrogant person.

Keegan was the one who kicked her out of the Kane residence.

Even if she was unhappy, Dahlia would never ask Keegan to take her back herself.She wanted him to be the one to take the first step.

Keegan knew her all too well.

When his father refused to help the Crosby family clean up their mess, Dahlia quarreled with him and ran away from home with Aurora.

No matter how many times the Kane family asked her to return, she refused.

However, she kept telling Quentin’s friends about her unstable life and complicated pregnancy.

No matter the reason, anyone would judge the Kane family if they found out a pregnant woman, who was about to give birth, was living on her own instead of with her husband.

In the end, Quentin was the one who had to compromise.

Now that the same trick was being used on him, Keegan found it pathetic.

Their little mother-son relationship was over the day Dahlia was cruel to Stella.

Keegan did not expose his mother or take things to the extreme because he wanted to leave her the last piece of decency.

However, whether Dahlia was sick or not, he would not change his decision.

‘ I wouldn’t have kicked her out of the house in the first place if I cared about what others think’ Stella stroked the top of his head and asked, “Then why are you so glum?”

“I was just bummed to see Howard,” novelebook.com said Keegan.

Stella was confused.

“Why? Didn’t you have a good relationship with him before?”

“It was average, I’d say.”

“Would you have let him come over if it was just average?”

Stella poked at him and said, “He used to come over a lot when we first married.”

Thinking of this, Stella smiled, “He even complimented me on my desserts.”

Keegan got even more upset when she said that.

‘ He doesn’t know shit! I’d rather give them to the dogs than that guy!”

Stella was taken aback.

‘It’s confirmed; Keegan is drunk.He would never swear or say such things if sober” she thought.

However, he is also cute when he swears.

Stella was amused and decided to play along.

“What did he do to deserve this reaction from you?”

After a long time, Keegan pursed his lips and told the story in bits and parts.

From his incoherent speech, Stella found out that Keegan disliked Howard because of her. She never thought that she would be the reason.

The details were both funny and heartbreaking.

Stella did not know Keegan very well when they first got married.

So, she decided to talk to his friends to find out what he liked.

Since they did not really know her and may not want to engage with her, Stella often made desserts to bribe them into letting her learn more about Keegan.

Keegan's friends were good people.

After receiving her gifts, they would tell Stella about his likes and dislikes.

Keegan did not know about this at first, but when he found out, he had a fight with her.

Stella always thought it was because he was ashamed of her trying to flatter his friends with desserts.

But now, she realized it was because Keegan overheard Howard saying mean things about her.

He would tell people that she was "all beauty, no brains" or that she was using her looks to get favors from men and climb to the top.

Keegan chose to use nicer words in his explanation because the ones Howard had used were way worse.

Howard's comments affected other people's perceptions of Stella at the beginning of her union with Keegan for a long time.

Keegan was understandably upset when he heard that.

He had let Howard into his home and treated him well, yet Howard went behind his back and badmouthed his wife.

So, Keegan went off on him right there and then.

When Keegan returned home that day, he saw Stella burn her hand making desserts.

She even asked him to bring some for his friends when they met the next day.

Keegan's face turned dark He did not hold back from telling her that she should stop putting effort into these things and that it was useless.

Stella felt hurt after Keegan burst her bubble. novelebook.com She was so angry and disappointed that she threw away all her dessert molds and did not talk to him for several days.

From then on, she subconsciously avoided his circle of friends.

As Stella listened to Keegan ramble on about the incident, she suddenly asked, "So it's not because you don't like me around your circle of friends?"

Keegan was stunned and frowned, "Isn't it you who don't like being around them? You pull a long face whenever you're invited to a gathering."

Stella was surprised, "When have you ever invited me? "Did you forget?"

Keegan asked.

Stella was taken aback for a moment.

"Give me a hint, Mr.Kane."

"Vermont held a grand opening ceremony for his company.I asked if you wanted to come along, but you pulled such a long face that you looked like a donkey.You even told me I could bring whoever I want," Keegan grunted.

Stella thought about it and recalled the incident.

It was nothing like the version Keegan provided.He was not the type to ask if someone wanted to go nicely.His exact words were, "Vermont is holding a grand opening for his new company today.He asked if you wanted to come.Do you? I won't bring my secretary if you do.There won't be enough seats."

No one would be happy to hear that invitation.

'Well, you've already decided to bring your secretary.So why would you need your wife there?' novelebook.com Stella thought.

"You can bring whoever you want because I'm not going!" She replied.

Stella pinched Keegan's ears and gritted her teeth, "Is that even a proper invitation? You literally asked me if I wanted to go AFTER you planned to attend the event with your female secretary."

Keegan frowned in pain and whispered, "I didn't plan on doing that. I just said that on purpose so you'd care about me."

Stella was speechless.

'Has he never been in a relationship before?! What the hell was he thinking?! Why would I care about him after he told me that he would bring another woman?!" thought Stella.

"So, the only reason you didn't let me make food for your friends anymore was because Howard was talking shit about me?" She asked in a low voice.

Keegan pulled her hand off his head and kissed it.

He looked up at her and said softly, "Stella, you know I'm not good with words sometimes. I wasn't mad at you for giving them gifts. I was mad that you worked so hard to prepare those desserts for them just to be slandered. Then, when I saw that you burned your hand, I got even angrier. I bought you some ointment for the burn and even wrote you a note, but you threw it away without looking at it."

Stella was quiet for a while.

"I didn't see any ointment."

Keegan was taken aback for a moment. He then defended himself by aggrievedly saying, "I bought it. I swear. I'm not lying to you."

Stella believed him because he was not a good liar when drunk.

'If Keegan bought the ointment, and I wasn't the one who threw it away... that means the previous nanny did it. The nanny was loyal to Dahlia, so it was most likely her. Dahlia must've instructed her to throw the ointment away, just like how she ordered the nanny to put a box of contraceptive pills on the table for Grandma to see. Dahlia did not want Keegan to have a good relationship with me since the beginning of our marriage"

'On the other hand, Keegan was not very good at hiding his emotions. So, seeing Howard again might have triggered those unpleasant memories and upset him"

"Our children would be in kindergarten by now if only you knew how to use your words better," Stella sighed.

Aldor was amused by this.

'You're really no better than Mr.Kane, Madam" he thought.

Stella glanced at him and asked, "What are you laughing at?"

"Mir.Kane probably doesn't want to have a child so early now.

He just got into a relationship.So it's likely that he would want to spend more time with just the two of you, Madam,"

Aldor joked as he turned the wheel.

Stella did not say a word.

The road to their home was closed when they were halfway back.

An accident had occurred on their usual route—a big tree had fallen on a few passing cars.

Although there were no casualties, vehicles could not pass through the road because of how huge the tree was.

They were waiting for someone to come and deal with it.

Thus, authorities had to temporarily close off the road until the mess was cleaned up.

Aldor had no choice but to make a U-turn and take a long detour.

Keegan was not feeling too good at that moment.

He sat up and tugged his tie, frowning.

"Do you want to throw up?" novelebook.com Stella asked as she grabbed a plastic bag and opened it.

Keegan shook his head and said, "I'm kinda itchy.

When he said that, he could not help but scratch his wrist.

Stella was taken aback.She pulled his hand and pushed the sleeves up, just to see his arm covered in rashes.She frowned, "Did you eat something you shouldn't have?"

Keegan shook his head.He could not remember what he had eaten.

All he knew was that he had to keep scratching.

Soon, the rash spread to his neck.

Stella was familiar with this condition.

It was like when Keegan triggered his allergies from eating mangoes in the past.

Aldor changed onto a new route and hurried to the hospital.

When they arrived at the hospital, the doctor prescribed Keegan two medicine bottles and an IV drip.

Stella did not want to take up Aldor's time since he lived with his parents, so she sent him away and stayed to take care of Keegan.

Keegan's body was so itchy that he could not help but scratch himself.

When Stella could not hold him down, she would threaten him and say, "I'll leave if you keep scratching yourself."

Keegan would then hold onto her and not let go.

The itch was hard for him to bear; sometimes, he rubbed his body on the bed to relieve it.

Stella decided it would be easier to just lay on the bed with him and grab his hands.

"Just bear with it for a sec. It'll stop itching after the medicine kicks in."

Keegan gradually fell asleep after some coaxing.

Stella could not help but drift off to Keegan's steady breathing.

When the doctor came to make rounds the next morning, Keegan woke up to see Stella sleeping soundly. He pulled the blanket over her and made shush gesture to the doctor.

The doctor quietly finished the check-up and left.

Stella did not wake up until it was almost 9:00 a.m.

She opened her eyes and saw Keegan's handsome face close to hers.

Stella pinched his cheeks as she said hoarsely, "Why were you so fussy last night? Keegan found her words ambiguous, hearing them early in the morning. He could not help but think about how she had asked him to follow the doctor's orders and feel distracted.

"when are you going to give me my reward you talked about yesterday?" asked Keegan.

Stella was still a little confused by his question.

"What reward?"

Keegan's eyelids twitched at the sound of that.

'Do you only know how to start fires and not put them out?'novelebook.com he thought.

He took her hand, put it on his chest, and moved it down slightly.

Stella froze and sprang up instantly. She quickly withdrew her hand and stared at the man.

"Behave yourself! This is a hospital!"

She gritted her teeth and said.

Keegan laughed and stopped teasing her. He then kissed her head and said in a low voice, "Let's pack up and get you home."

"Mhm," Stella replied, pulling Keegan's clothes up to check his rashes.

She was relieved that the red spots had faded quite a lot.

The two packed up and proceeded with the discharge procedure.

Keegan was queuing up at the front desk while Stella waited at the corner of the lobby.

Her hair hung loosely on her shoulders as she did not tie her hair up, and her mask covered most of her face.

Those who did not personally know her would have a hard time recognizing her.

Stella was staring at Keegan.

Among the people in the long queue, she could see Keegan's head floating above the crowd.

'How can he be so tall and handsome? I can't stand how he lay in my arms last night, acting like a needy puppy.

He's so cute! Ah!' Stella's heart was full just thinking about how that man was hers.

Suddenly, Stella heard a familiar voice saying, "I can't put it off any longer. Seeing as the month is going to be big, things are going to be harder if I don't do it now."

Stella paused and glanced aside indistinctly.

Hylde was dressed in low-key clothing, and a handsome young man followed behind her as they walked past Stella.

The two were busy talking and did not notice her. Stella pulled up her mask and followed them. She knew Hylde would recognize her, so she did not dare to tail her too closely. The two seemed to be arguing about something.

Hylde did not look too good.

The man put his arm around her waist as though comforting her.

They finally hugged but quickly let go and got on the elevator.

Suddenly, someone tapped on Stella's shoulder. She was shocked at first but relieved when she turned around and saw that it was Keegan.

"All done?" novelebook.com She asked.

"Mhm," Keegan replied.

"What are you looking at?" Stella pulled him aside and said, "I saw Hylde and her fake brother, Ian, here. They just got on the elevator."

After saying that, she continued in frustration, "I was afraid she would recognize me, so I didn't follow them too closely, which meant I couldn't clearly hear what they were saying."

Keegan glanced at the elevator and said, "This elevator is used for even-numbered floors. The wards are on the twelfth floor and above, the operating room is on the fourth floor, the men's health and urology department is on the eighth floor, the orthopedics department is on the tenth floor, and the obstetrics and gynecology department is on the sixth floor."

Stella was taken aback for a moment and made a guess based on what she had just heard, "She's here for an abortion?!"

Keegan was uncertain about Stella's theory.

Stella went into combat mode and quickly contacted Xenia, asking her to find a way to bring Albert over so that he could stop Hylda from getting an abortion. She explained the plan in detail, and when she hung up, she saw Keegan staring at her.

"What's wrong?"

"I thought you asked her to bring Albert so he can catch Hylda having an affair," said Keegan.

Stella's face looked cold.

"Hylda is very cautious when it comes to her relationship with Ian. Judging by Albert's character, he wouldn't believe me if I didn't provide any substantial evidence. The fact that Hylda is eager to get rid of that child is the best evidence I can get. I'm not letting her win so easily. I don't care if she wants an abortion. I want her to continue the pregnancy and have Albert personally drag her to give birth!"

"She got together with Albert when my mom was pregnant, let my mom raise her wild child, and finally tried to kill her. She caused all of this herself. I want her to have a taste of her own medicine! Only then can I relieve the hatred in my heart."

Keegan opened Stella's hands, interlocked her fingers, and said in a low voice, "I'll take care of what's inconvenient for you. If you want revenge, I'll do it. You don't have to do the dirty work."

Stella's expression softened slightly, and she whispered, "Do you think I'm scary?"

Keegan thought about it momentarily and said, "The most serious thing you've ever done to me was slap me. Is this favoritism I smell?"

Stella was speechless. She held his hand and said in a low voice, "Your standards are too low. Aren't you afraid that I'll hurt you one day?"

Keegan laughed, his eyes brimming with certainty.

You won't. You can't bear to see me hurt."

Stella smirked and said, "Maybe I will if you fall in love with someone else. I'm a very jealous and vindictive person. You have to think about this during the probation period. There is no turning back once you choose me."

Keegan leaned over and whispered in her ear, "Do you know what I regret most when we got divorced?"

Stella said, "Leaving me with nothing?"

Keegan was at a loss for words.

"Please broaden your perspective. Don't just think about money." novelebook.com Stella chuckled and asked, "What is it then?"

Keegan lowered his eyes and said, "The thing I regret most during our divorce was that I didn't burn our marriage certificate immediately after receiving it. You wouldn't have been able to divorce me if there wasn't a marriage certificate."

Stella did not know what to say. She wanted to tell him that a marriage certificate could be reissued and that divorces nowadays do not necessarily require complete documents.

But she decided not to.

There was no way that Keegan did not know all that.

He was clearly trying to be romantic by insinuating that their divorce was the thing he regretted most.

Stella rarely felt comfortable with Keegan being cheesy, but this time, she coughed and said, "We can burn it together if there's ever a next time."

Keegan immediately took out his phone and said, "Can you say that again? I want to record it as proof."

Stella stayed quiet.

At first, she wanted to let Keegan leave while she waited here for Albert to arrive, but Keegan was worried that she could not handle it alone and insisted on staying together. He reminded her that Albert wanted her to become his goddaughter because he found out she and Keegan still had feelings for each other.

"How will the show go on if I'm not here?" He said.

Stella thought that it made sense, so she let him be.

After Xenia hung up with Stella, she called Albert and told him she had fallen and was bleeding.

Albert took it as a sign of miscarriage and could not care less about sending his son to school anymore. So instead, he hurriedly rushed over to Xenia's place. He planned to send Xenia to the nearest hospital. Still, she insisted on going to the one in the city, saying that their obstetrics and gynecology department was the best in Rivera.

Albert was so eager for a child that he naturally went along with her. He drove Xenia to the city hospital in ten to twenty minutes. Once they got on the elevator, Stella and Keegan took another elevator and followed them.

At that time, Hylda had just finished her preoperative evaluation. She was about to go to the operating room when she bumped into Albert, dragging a young woman to the outpatient department in a hurry. "Don't worry...

Don't worry... I'm sure everything will be fine..." He comforted the woman in a low voice.

Hylda was bewildered. In a fit of rage, she completely forgot about her situation and sternly said, "Albert, what are you doing?!"

Albert was startled. When he saw Hylda, he was taken aback momentarily, and his expression suddenly became a little embarrassed. "Hylda, what are you doing here?"

The woman who came with Albert froze when she heard Hylda call his name and quickly turned away. Hylda walked over to them with a cold face and gritted her teeth. "Why are YOU here? Who is she?"

Albert hesitated for a long time before saying, 'She's an employee in the company. She's not feeling well, so I brought her here to see the doctors.'

"Why would she need to come to the OB-GYN? And why does she need you to bring her?" Hylda was not going to fall for Albert's lies that easily. She worked hard to get to where she was and would not let someone come and take everything away from her, especially not with the same methods she once used.

Albert had two big problems now. He never expected to meet Hylda on such an occasion. His mind was in a mess, and all he could say to comfort Hylda was, "I'll explain everything at home. First, she needs a doctor.'

“What’s wrong with her?” Hylda looked at the young woman, and her eyes darted to her stomach instantly. “Did you knock her up?” Hylda asked in a sharp voice. Her yelling caused people in the hallway to turn around and look at them inquisitively.

Albert felt slightly uncomfortable and whispered, ‘I told you I’ll tell you when I get home. Stop causing a scene, and stop embarrassing yourself.’

A few people in the obstetrics and gynecology department could not help but take pictures and video recordings of the scene in front of them and post them on Twitter.

“Oh, so you know how embarrassing it is, huh?” Hylda turned pale with anger. “She doesn’t even look as old as your daughter, yet you got pregnant?! Do you have no shame? Does SHE have no shame?! I’m literally pregnant with your child!”

As Hylda said that, she grabbed Xenia’s hair and said bitterly, ‘You bitch. How dare you steal someone’s man? Did your family not teach-’ Before Hylda could finish her sentence, she saw Xenia’s face and froze. ‘She looks... so similar... That face... she looks just like Rainee when she was younger.’

Xenia and Rainee looked identical. So much so that when she glanced at Hylda, a chill ran down Hylda’s spine, and her legs turned into jelly.

Hylda violently pushed Xenia and said, “Who are you?!” Xenia was unstable on her feet. Her body swayed, and she fell to the ground. Albert was so shocked that she slapped Hylda in the face and went to help Xenia up.

Albert looked concerned as he comforted Xenia, just like when Hylda saw him treat Rainee with her own eyes back then. ‘With everything I did to get what I want, I still can’t compete with that face.’

Chapter 989 Hylda was trembling with anger, and her stomach was starting to ache.

She staggered and seemed to be unable to steady herself.

At the same time, Ian just returned with a form.

Seeing this scene, he immediately stepped forward to help her, “What’s the matter, Hylda?” Hylda was pale and fainted without saying a word.

Albert heard Ian shout and saw Hylda pass out with blood stains on her skirt.

Suddenly, Albert panicked.

The two pregnant women were rushed to the emergency room.

Keegan had an acquaintance in the city hospital.

He called her in advance so that Xenia would not get exposed for her fake pregnancy.

The doctor said that Xenia was experiencing miscarriage-like symptoms.

She prescribed some pills to prevent the miscarriage and asked her to go home and rest.

Albert was relieved after hearing that.

Hylde and the baby were also safe.

The doctor told them that she was too emotional.

Paired with her age, it strained her body and caused the bleeding.

However, the baby was in good health, and the fetal heart rate, along with other data, was stable.

Just as Albert let out a sigh of relief again, a nurse came in with a form and asked for a family member's signature.

Albert grabbed it before Ian could and saw that it was the abortion confirmation form.

His expression changed immediately.

"What the hell is this? An abortion confirmation form? No one's having an abortion.

Did you make a mistake?" The nurse was afraid she had made a mix-up, so she quickly checked the information provided and asked, "Isn't this Ms.

White's ID number?" Albert frowned, "It is her, but we didn't say we would have an abortion!" "we have her signature right here, stating that she wants to terminate the pregnancy." the nurse said.

Then, after pausing, the nurse continued in a low voice, "Do you need time to discuss this?" Albert looked at Hylde's signature on the paper, and his expression turned ugly.

Hylde had told him that she was going to church earlier that morning to pray for the children, but it turned out she was getting an abortion at the hospital.

'She didn't tell me about her pregnancy at first, and now she's hiding an abortion from me.

I wouldn't have known about this if I hadn't come to the hospital today.

I wouldn't even know that my child was gone!' Albert became very angry thinking about it.

It just so happened that Hylda woke up at the time.

Albert walked to her hospital bed with the document in his hand and was about to throw them at her, but Ian stopped him in mid-air.

Tan was a gentle and handsome man.

He was not too short, but he was thin.

However, he was naturally much stronger than Albert because he was young.

He clutched Albert in his arms, and Albert could not move for a while.

"Albert, Hylda is still pregnant with the child.

Are you planning to have a funeral for the child so soon?" Ian asked solemnly.

As soon as Albert heard that, he immediately surrendered.

Ian was a part of the Moore family; Albert could not afford to offend him.

So with a sullen face, he held the consent form and questioned Hylda.

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 990 [Eleven Jewell]

"You lied to me, saying you were going to church, yet you came here to abort a baby. How could you make such a big decision without consulting me first?!"

The image of Xenia's face was embedded in Hylda's mind.

When she saw Albert, she felt sick to the stomach and couldn't help but dry heave. Ian quickly grabbed a bucket and put it next to the bed.

Hylde tried to throw up for a long time, but nothing came out. Her face was paler than before.

Seeing how rough she looked, Albert softened his attitude.

He sat on the edge of the bed and took Hylde's hand, whispering, "Didn't we agree to keep the baby? Why on earth are you doing this?"

Hylde withdrew her hand with a cold face and asked, "How long have you been with that woman? How many months old is that bastard?"

Albert was a little upset when he heard his child being called a bastard, but Hylde was pregnant and had just bled earlier, so he patiently explained, "She's an intern at the company. I've brought her to a few of the meetings with clients. One time, I drank too much, and when I woke up the next day..."

Albert did not go on, but everyone understood what happened next.

"I felt guilty and wanted to tell you about it several times, but I didn't know how to start. I thought about firing her but found out that she got pregnant after only one time."

Hylde could not take another second of that disgusting explanation, but she suppressed her anger and asked, "So what if she's pregnant? Why do you want her baby? Are you going to replace me with her like you replaced Rainee with me?"

"What are you talking about?"

Albert was not happy.

"I didn't want this, Hylde. Heck, I'm older than her father. Do you think I'm that shameless? She's just a little girl who contacted me in panic when she found out she was pregnant. I haven't figured out how to handle it yet."

"Do you even need to think about it? Just get her to abort it!"

Hylde didn't actually care about how, where, or when Albert got together with Xenia.

All she cared about was the child in that woman's belly.

She did not want her children to divide their inheritance with an outsider.

Albert hesitated, "Hylde, you know that our family is small, and I like children very much. Look, we can give her some money after she gives birth to the baby and ask her to leave. We'll raise the baby ourselves. Since he will be around the same age as the baby in your belly, we can tell people you gave birth to twins. No one will suspect a thing. You'll also have one more son to care for you when you're older."

Hylde was mad at Albert's reply, "Do you think I'm Rainee? Do you think I want to raise my child and someone else's for you? I already have children and can simply give birth to more if I want to. Why would I want to care for a bastard? Hurry up and deal with that woman. If you don't, I will do it. I can assure you I won't be compassionate."

"Why would you come for an abortion if you can have a baby?"

Albert was running out of patience.

"I know you don't want to give me a son. Do you think I'm dumb?"

'It's all Hylde's fault. She stopped having sex with me. I wouldn't have to have sex with other women if that weren't the case!' Albert thought. Hylde was furious, "Do you know how old I am? I'm at an advanced maternal age. Have you considered my safety? We already have Sophia and Hugo. Aren't they enough?"

"What's the point of having a daughter? They just leave with other men when they get older. How can I let my daughter inherit such a big family business? Hugo... Hugo is an enigma. He's seven years old, yet he can't even utter a complete sentence. Do you know what people say about that behind my back? They say he's retarded!" Albert said angrily.

"How am I going to continue the Jewell family lineage if there's actually something wrong with him and I don't have any more children?" Stella and Keegan heard those words loud and clear from outside the hospital room.

'They say that cells regenerate every seven years, yet Albert has not changed at all over the years'
