

Chapter 33 Convoy

Layla couldn't believe Nora said that in front of their parents.

Caroline then looked at Layla and asked, "Is that true?"

Layla couldn't deny the truth so she nodded and said, "Yes."

"How could you.....Not even once?" Caroline asked.

Layla lowered her head and didn't give any response.

"It's my fault, this has nothing to do with Layla. I couldn't forget about Nora. I have been waiting for Nora to return in the past three years. I don't want to waste Layla's time anymore now that she has found herself a better man. She will be better without me."

"Layla Alexander!" Caroline called after everyone left.

William brought Nora back after the dinner and Layla knew his parents were very upset with him.

They felt sorry for Layla after they heard what William said.

Caroline called again pulling Layla out of her deep thought and Layla quickly rushed to her mom.

"What does William mean about you having a better man?" She asked Layla.

"It's....."

"Who on earth is better than William? What are you thinking?"

"You heard all of that. He doesn't love me, and we have never slept together before. So now I just want to find another man who truly loves me no matter if he is rich or not, as long as he is good to me, that's all I need."

"Do you think you can? You are not young anymore. Everyone has been seeing me as a joke because of the divorced incident. Do you know how bad it has affected our image?"

"You don't even care about me."

"I do care about you! Bring that man to meet us another time I need to know what kind of man he is."

"Mom, your mind changes at the speed of light you know? You just said that you don't agree with William divorcing me and now you want me to bring another man back."

That man doesn't even exist, who would Layla bring back?

"If the man you bring back doesn't satisfy me, you go and steal William back like how Nora did today." Caroline said angrily.

"William was never mine. How do I steal? He is not an object."

William's heart never belongs to her and Layla knew that.

"I don't care." Caroline said stubbornly.

"Mom, you only want William. You wouldn't be satisfied with any man I bring back."

"Luckily you know that! Go and take back what's yours then!"

Layla knew her mother wouldn't give up until she does as she said, "Okay. I will go find him tomorrow."

"Now." Caroline said.

"What? It's already late, Mom."

"It's only 10 now." Caroline protested.

And with that, Caroline pushed her out of the front door.

It was raining heavily outside and Layla hasn't been able to stop any cab beside the road.

Layla started to feel cold because she didn't have time to grab her coat when her mother pushed her out of the door. She knew her mother was trying to help her but this wasn't a good idea.

Suddenly, a few cars stop beside her.

There were almost 15 cars stopped beside the road!
