

Mr. President's Sweet Wife

Chapter 5 The wrong person

The maid saw Layla and introduced her to Amelia, "This is Doctor Layla Alexander."

Amelia Spencer quickly stood up, she scanned Layla up and down and said, "A woman?!"

"Nice to meet you Miss Spencer. My name is Layla Alexander." Layla said politely. She doesn't want to piss anyone off here, she was just here for work.

"You don't look like a doctor." Amelia Spencer said impolitely.

Layla was too young and being a woman made Amelia cautious.

Layla smiled and said, "I was going to meet you, Miss Spencer, after knowing who you are."

Amelia Spencer sat down and looked at Layla. The most important thing right now is to help Blake remember everything so she won't pick on Layla.

Amelia felt ironic being cautious to a doctor because Blake never look at another woman than her before he lost his memories.

"Can you really help Blake get his memories back?" Amelia asked.

"I will try my best." Layla said. She can't make any promise.

"Why are you here then?" Amelia asked angrily.

"There were a lot of good doctors here before trying to help Mr. Spencer but they didn't succeed. So, it's normal if I fail to help him." Layla said. Trying to hold back her anger because of this rude woman.

Amelia looked at Layla and when she wanted to say something back, Blake Spencer walked down the stairs. He is still wearing his pyjamas and when he saw Amelia Spencer, his facial expression changed.

"Blake." Amelia greeted him.

Blake Spencer looked like he just saw a ghost and asked, "Why did you come again? You are hard to get rid of, you know that?"

He didn't know why he was so angry whenever he saw Amelia Spencer. Looking at her made him uncomfortable. He couldn't believe that this is the woman people said he loves so much before the accident.

Unbelievable.

Amelia Spencer didn't know what she did wrong so she looked at him in fear and said, "You have no idea how scary you look right now, Blake. You used to treat me like a princess."

Blake then said, "Get out of here now. I don't want to see you."

He acted like he couldn't bear to see her.

Layla started to think that what George said last night was nonsense. This is not a way to treat a person who you love so much.

Amelia was quick to say, "Don't be angry, Blake. I just want to see if you are fine. I am worried about you."

"Get out." Blake said again.

Amelia then turned to Layla and said, "I really hope that you can give me back my Blake, Doctor Layla."

Amelia believes that once Blake remembers everything, he wouldn't treat her like this. She used to be the person he loves the most in the world and now she is the person who he hates the most.

Layla looked at her and said, "I will try my best."

The maid escorted Amelia out of the mansion and George was right, she always cries while leaving.

Layla looked at Blake and she didn't dare to talk to him after seeing him being so angry.

She just kept quiet hoping that Blake didn't see her there.

But that was impossible. Blake walked towards her with his serious face.

Layla started to be afraid.

"Are you okay?" Blake asked while his facial expression changed to a gentle one.

"Did that crazy woman do something to you?" He asked.

"No, I'm fine." Layla answered. What Amelia said to her just now, she doesn't care much about it, but Blake showed that he cares a lot.

This is how she used to treat Amelia Spencer according to what George said.

He will be rude to anyone but not Amelia Spencer.

Layla felt sorry for Amelia because of his attitude towards Layla now.

After the breakfast, Layla walked into the study room that George has arranged for her. This is the study room Layla will be using while helping Blake getting his memories back. She did some research and even called her professor.

The window was wide open and the wind keep coming in. Layla stood in front of the bookshelf and read some related book. Blake stood by the door looking at her.

He admires Layla who was so focus on works and she looked like a drawing. She is very different from Amelia Spencer.

Suddenly, Layla's phone started to ring.

She quickly retrieved her phone from the desk and looked at the call id. It was her mother, Caroline Alexander.

"Mom." She picked up the phone.

"I heard that William divorced you! What happened?" Her mother asked.

"How did you know that?" Layla didn't expect that her mother would know this before she told her.

Comments

Gift