

Chapter 9 Pain (2)

Layla's phone suddenly rang and that brought her back from deep thought. It was William Jones who called her.

She picked up the call.

"Nora is in the hospital you work now. Can you come now?"

Layla told her mother to go back first and then she rushed to the hospital.

She didn't know why she would be so nervous when she knew that Nora was in the hospital.

When she walked in the emergency room, one of the doctors came up to her and said, "Layla! I saw your husband carried a pregnant woman here just now and I thought that it's your husband's mistress."

Layla's heart skipped a beat when she heard what the doctor said. She smiled and said, "Impossible. That woman is my cousin, my husband was just helping."

She knew better than anyone that once all of these were exposed, her and William's lives would get affected. She will be the talk in the hospital.

So, Layla decided to lie.

After hearing Layla's explanation, the doctor then smiled and said, "I believe that your husband wouldn't have a mistress. Do you remember Erica in the gynaecologist department? I heard that her husband brought his pregnant mistress home a few days ago."

Layla just nodded and didn't say anything. She then walked to Nora's ward.

William looked at her coldly when he saw her, "Nora miscarriage."

Layla nodded and said, "The doctor in the emergency room told me just now."

Layla felt like she was a cruel woman because she thought that Nora deserved it when she knew that Nora miscarriage.

When Layla tilted her head up, she saw that William was staring at her.

"What?" Layla asked.

"What did you say to Nora upstairs?" William asked.

Layla couldn't believe what she just heard and William started to ask question again, "What did you said that trigger her and made her miscarriage?"

Now, Layla knew the reason why William wanted her here, he just wanted to question her. He thought that it was Layla who made Nora miscarriage.

Layla felt like her heart had been stabbed by a knife, and it hurts a lot.

He then stepped closer and said, "If you have any problem with her, you could have talked to me! You don't have to hurt her!"

Layla felt like she was going to suffocate because of William's remark of hurting Nora.

"I understand that you are not in a good mood and right mind because of what happened to Nora. But I didn't hurt her. I have nothing to do with her miscarriage."

She was the one who suffered the most!

"Let's pretend that you didn't do this. I hope this will be the last time." He looked at her disappointedly.

Layla has been holding tears since yesterday and now she just wanted to hide in a room and cry.

"Doctor Layla! Please sign this." One nurse ran towards her with a paper in her hand.

Layla quickly wiped the tears away and took a deep breath.

After she signed the paper, she decided to leave the hospital.

After she walked out the front door of the hospital, she stood there for a while watching all the cars on the road.

Two cars stopped in front of Layla and George came down from one of the cars.

"Doctor Layla." George greeted her.

He then opened the door and Blake Spencer appeared in front of Layla.

A lot of people were looking at them when Blake Spencer got out of the car.

She quickly covered her face, afraid that someone might recognise her.

"You didn't keep your promise, Doctor Layla." Blake Spencer stepped closer and said.

"What are you doing here!" Layla asked.

"You said you will be back by afternoon and it's getting late now."

"It's only 6, it's not late."

She really didn't plan to go back to Blake's mansion.

Blake pulled Layla's hand down and said, "You didn't pick up my phone the whole day."

He looked very sad because of that and that made Layla feel sorry so she explained, "I didn't hear my phone ringing, I was working."

"You didn't pick up my phone purposely." He stated.
