Chapter 370

"Aren't we going back?" Lily was curious about where he was taking her.

Everyone left, and it was just the two of them.

"I said before that I wanted to reward you with a trip, but the competition was delayed. Let me make it up to you now!"

Alexander said with great interest. It was not known where he got the convertible sports car. He drove her on the highway, which was like a scene in those romantic movies.

"Wait, I have an appointment with Olivia and Jenny!" She sighed and felt regretful when she thought about it.

Plans that had been made earlier had to be scrapped because of last-minute errands.

"Am I not better than them?"

While driving, he turned to look at her with dissatisfaction. He gets jealous pretty quickly, regardless of anything. It was unbelievable!

"Okay, you're the best! Now concentrate on driving!" she replied, as she used her hands to rotate his face to look forward.

In any case, safety always came first. He was overly excited about that praise, and a big smile was raised on the corner of his lips. He wanted to comfort her, and said, "Come with me this time, then you can join them the next."

"I can't take that many days off. What makes you think I'm that free?" She muttered softly.

Alexander thought she was just like him, taking days off whenever she wanted to. He was the big boss, but she was just a small employee.

"Did you forget about me?" He turned to look at her with a smug smile.

Lily was silent. He suddenly remembered that for the past two days, he had been calling George directly.

The things he explained were all directly related to her.

So in essence, only a fool would not know their relationship!

"Did you make our relationship public?" she asked nervously.

"No," he replied smoothly, and looked at her again, Alexander took her hand and said, "George might have guessed it, I didn't tell him. He does know that you're on my side, and there's nothing wrong with that. Just let him know if there's anything you need to do or anything you need help on."

Lily pursed her lips and said nothing.

"I know you want to rely on yourself, but you're also not relying on me! For example, participating in this competition. Even if the company recommended you to come because of me, you would not be able to win first place if you didn't have the capability to. I didn't control the game, so you're still on your own!"

With that, he brought her hand to his lips and kissed her.
