

Mr. Warner Your Ex-Wife is Brilliant by Paula Chapter 376

Chapter 376

When Courtney arrived at the company, Drake was already conducting a meeting with the senior executives in the conference room. He was explaining his departure from the company and the handover of various matters.

The senior executives were taken aback when they heard that Drake was leaving the company. They wanted to dissuade him, but they didn't know how to say it.

However, Drake was resolute and didn't listen to anyone's dissuasion. He calmly handled the major company affairs.

Near the end of the meeting, Courtney rushed to the company and barged into the conference room.

Everyone noticed Courtney's arrival, including Drake, but he didn't stop and continued with the arrangements.

Courtney panicked because she knew her son's personality well. He was serious about this.

"Everyone, leave." Courtney glanced at the people in the conference room and spoke.

The executives looked at each other, then at Drake, who had stopped speaking. After a moment of hesitation, they all left the conference room.

Once everyone had left, Courtney immediately looked at Drake and asked with a trembling voice, "Drake, what are you plans?"

"You saw it yourself. Since you believe I'm incapable of managing the Warner Corporation and bringing a better future for it, then I'll return it to you. From now on, do whatever you want with it, and I won't interfere in you and Jane's affairs either."

All of this came back to Jane. Courtney's heart burned with anger once more.

“All because of her. What kind of spell did she cast on you to make you so desperate for her?”

“Ask yourself who’s under a spell. Why do you have to break us apart? You weren’t like this before. Why have you suddenly become so unreasonable?”

Drake retorted with sharpness.

This was his mother standing before him, someone he had respected since he was a child. However, at this moment, Drake felt that he couldn’t see her clearly anymore.

Courtney’s heart ached from Drake’s words. She lowered her head, feeling a dull pain.

“Drake....I...”

“Don’t say it’s for my own good or for the good of the Warner Corporation anymore. If you truly care for me, then you shouldn’t do these things that make me hate you.”

“We already have enough grandchildren. If not, Jane and I will have more children in the future. You don’t have to keep pushing people towards me. Do you want everyone to laugh at the Warner family?”

Courtney felt hurt by Drake’s words, and she looked up at her son’s cold gaze, feeling terrified.

“That’s not it. How could I want people to laugh at the Warner family?”

“Mom, I’ll make it clear. If you continue to interfere in our affairs, I will leave the Warner Corporation. I don’t care who takes over the company”

TO 26

Drake said coldly. He rarely used such an extreme approach, but he didn’t want to use it on his mother.

“Are you doing this all because the three children don’t feel close to me? In the past, Zachary used to listen to me, but now even Zachary doesn’t follow my instructions. I feel uncomfortable, so I thought...”

Courtney’s words trailed off, and tears fell from her eyes.

Drake understood his mother's pain, so he softened his tone and gently said, "Zachary has always been a good grandson to you, and Zane and Zoe are the same. As long as you treat them sincerely, they will understand your intentions."

"The same goes for Jane. If you stop being unreasonable, even if she doesn't call you 'mother, she will still respect you."

Drake rarely tried to persuade others with a soft approach, but he couldn't bear to use a harsh tone on his mother.

Gradually, Courtney calmed down a bit upon hearing his words. "Is what you said true? Will the three children really accept me as their grandmother?"

Courtney was still uncertain and regretted sending Zane away to that special place, but she had no other choice. She was also thinking about the future of the Warner family.

"They will. Look, in the past, Zane and Zoe didn't even acknowledge me as their father, but now they have accepted me, haven't they?" Drake spoke in a gentle tone.

Hearing this, Courtney also recalled that her two grandsons had indeed accepted Drake. She let out a deep sigh of relief.

"Alright, I understand. I won't interfere in your affairs with Jane anymore."

Hearing this, Drake felt relieved. His mother could still be persuaded, so he didn't have to resort to extreme measures.

"I promise you that I won't interfere in your affairs anymore. You must take good care of the Warner Corporation. It's your father's lifelong effort, and it can't fail in your hands." Also, don't make my previous choices wrong.

Drake didn't finish his last sentence, but Courtney understood. Thinking about how she had chosen Drake over Darnell, she felt even more painful.

Drake noticed the sorrow in his mother's expression. He gently held her hand and spoke in a softer tone, saying, "Mom, you should trust me."

Courtney nodded and left the company feeling emotionally drained.

Outside the Warner Corporation building, the butler called out to Courtney when he noticed her troubled expression.

Courtney snapped back to reality, lowered her eyes to hide her pain, and said calmly, "Let's go back. to the old mansion."

Perhaps she had indeed grown old and should refrain from interfering too much in young people's affairs.

In the car, Courtney received a call from Marina. After the incident the day before, Marina's reputation had soared, and she sounded a bit lost.

Even if she couldn't win Drake's heart, she could still marry into the Warner family with the support of the old lady. It was within her reach.

Unfortunately, after she answered the call, she sensed that something was wrong with Courtney's attitude as her words sounded indifferent.

"Your child in my belly, I will arrange for someone to take care of it. If it turns out to be Drake's, the Warner family won't treat him poorly. But if it's not...

Courtney didn't finish her sentence, but her attitude was clear.

Marina was startled by the words, unable to comprehend what had happened to make Courtney's attitude change so drastically.

After the call ended, Marina felt restless and anxious. What should she do now? If Courtney was no longer on her side, how could she protect herself?

Mr. Warner Your Ex-Wife is Brilliant by Paula Chapter 377

Chapter 377

When Jane received Marina's invitation to meet, she was taken aback and instinctively wanted to refuse.

She didn't want to see Marina at all, let alone listen to her nonsense, as she knew she was being targeted for harm.

However, Marina was persistent and insisted on meeting Jane at a cafe. Annoyed, Jane finally agreed to meet her.

When Jane arrived at the appointed cafe, she noticed that it was quite crowded, not only on the bustling street but also inside the cafe, where there were plenty of customers.

She found Marina in a conspicuous spot and walked over with a cold face, taking a seat with an indifferent attitude.

“Speak. What do you want?” Jane didn’t want to waste time and went straight to the point.

“You should know why I’m here to see you.” Marina looked at Jane with jealousy and resentment hidden in her eyes.

Her appearance was no worse than Jane’s. If it weren’t for her poor family background, she wouldn’t have become an older man’s mistress during college and now wouldn’t be ineligible to get the man she liked.

“Jane, I really envy you. You can make a man so devoted to you and willing to give up everything for you.”

Marina looked at Jane, her red lips slightly parted as she spoke coldly without a hint of warmth.

“I don’t want to hear your nonsense. The path of life is chosen by oneself. When you made that choice, you should have thought about the consequences.”

Jane’s words were cold and indifferent, not moved by Marina’s words at all.

Marina’s expression tightened, but then she put on a sweet smile, “Alright, I won’t talk nonsense. Let’s talk about the child in my belly.”

“You won’t let me into the Warner family, so what do you plan to do with the child in my belly?”

Hearing this, Jane coldly snorted, “The child in your belly has nothing to do with me.”

“But it’s Drake’s child.” Marina sneered.

“Is that so? Then would you dare to have a paternity test after the child is born?” Jane retorted just as coldly, her gaze piercing.

Marina’s face showed no panic; instead, she wore a cunning smile. “Of course... I won’t give birth to her, but as long as I want, she will be Drake’s child.”

After saying that, Marina suddenly stood up and grabbed Jane’s hand. Startled, Jane didn’t understand what Marina was trying to do and struggled to pull her hand back. However, Marina suddenly let go, and then she fell heavily to the ground.

As screams and gasps rang around, Jane finally realized that Marina had set her up. Meanwhile, Marina held her stomach in pain and wailed.

Mr Warner, Y

18435

Chapter 377

“My child! Save my child!”

“Jane, I know you don’t like me and don’t want me to have Warner’s child, but how could you be so heartless and harm my unborn child...”

As Marina’s voice echoed, many onlookers took out their phones and recorded the scene.

Just yesterday, Courtney had taken Marina to an important event, making headlines. It was rumored that Marina was the daughter-in-law Courtney had chosen for the family. And today, there was already a big scandal about her. How could people not pay attention?

Seeing the increasing number of people recording, Jane finally understood that Marina had planned this carefully.

Without wasting any words, Jane immediately called the police while Marina was taken away by an ambulance.

There was no way she would just wait to be cyberbullied after being falsely accused. This woman was malicious, and she couldn't let her off easily.

After reporting the incident to the police, Jane also called the hospital's ambulance. After all, she couldn't understand how just that push could cause Marina to miscarry. The truth needed to be investigated by Dr William Harrington.

After the ambulance took Marina, Jane followed them to the hospital.

By the time Dr William finished the investigation at the cafe, he arrived at the hospital. Marina had already been wheeled out of the operating room, but she was still unconscious.

In such a short time, various news and videos about Jane pushing Marina and causing her to miscarry had exploded on the internet. The headlines were full of stories about a wife from the Kennedy family being ruthless, not tolerating any women around her, and even harming her own flesh and blood.

The power of the internet was frightening, and while Jane heard about the rumors, she didn't bother to read them. She focused her attention on the police investigation into Marina's case.

When Drake rushed over, Dr William had just handed the blood test report of Marina to the police. The report showed that Marina's blood contained traces of drugs used for inducing a miscarriage, although they were almost undetectable.

In other words, Marina had planned the miscarriage herself.

Jane had already guessed this result, but seeing Dr William hand over the test report, indicating that the truth would be investigated, she felt more at ease.

Once Drake made sure Jane was okay, he pulled her into his embrace and asked with concern, "Are you hurt?"

"I'm fine." Jane answered nonchalantly.

Dr William glanced at the affectionate couple and left dejectedly.

After confirming that Jane was fine, Drake finally let her go and spoke with a slightly annoyed tone, “You knew she had bad intentions, so why did you go to meet her alone?”

“It was my carelessness.” Jane lowered her head and admitted her mistake. She thought that with so many people around, Marina wouldn’t dare to harm her, but she didn’t expect Marina to be so

10.03

Mr Warner. Your

184 57

Chapter 377

cunning.

From the beginning, Marina wanted to frame her, not hurt her.

“The rumors outside are flying all over the place, saying that this uncaring wife from the Kennedy family won’t tolerate any women around you, and even harmed your own flesh and blood.” Jane raised her head slightly, looking at Drake’s handsome face.

Hearing this, Drake gently touched Jane’s face affectionately and said, ‘I’ll clear things up.’

“How are you going to clear it up?” Jane wasn’t really upset by the rumors. After all, they were just a few rumors, and in time, no one would remember them.

Especially in this rapidly changing era, rumors would soon fade away.

“Announce the marriage news, publicize the date of our registration, and clear your name!” Drake said without hesitation.

“But won’t people say that you are a scumbag? We registered our marriage a long time ago, and back then, you were openly with Annie.” Jane narrowed her eyes and said.

“A wanderer returns, and it’s worth more than gold. I’ll just say I, Drake, was blind in the past, but now I’ve come to my senses.” Drake didn’t care about others' comments. He couldn't let Jane bear so many rumors alone, and announcing the marriage news was the best way he could think of.

Mr. Warner Your Ex-Wife is Brilliant by Paula Chapter 378

Chapter 378

As Drake had said, once the news of their marriage and the date of their registration were announced, the rumors about Jane being a gold digger and scheming to marry Courtney would naturally be dispelled.

More public opinion now focused on Drake, criticizing him for being a playboy who was already registered but still entangled with other women.

However, there were also many people who envied Jane for waiting patiently for Drake and finally winning his heart back.

The rumors were varied, but they didn't affect Jane and Drake, who were busy preparing for their wedding. Jane's wedding dress had already been designed and was waiting to be completed. Once it was done, they could set the date for their wedding.

Unexpectedly, during this period, they received a wedding invitation from overseas. At first, Jane was unaware of this, but she happened to see it on Drake's phone. It turned out that Drake was going to attend Matthew Hughes's wedding.

Upon learning this, Jane's first thought was to prevent April from finding out about it.

When Drake came out of the bathroom, he found Jane looking at his phone and asked warily, "Honey, did you see anything?"

The day before, he had received the wedding invitation from Matthew, and he had chatted with Matthew about the wedding.

Drake had no intention of telling Jane about his relationship with April. He was afraid that she would feel sorry for April.

Seeing her phone taken away, Jane wasn't too angry and just looked at Drake with a hint of annoyance. "You are so afraid of me seeing it, didn't you plan to tell me from the beginning?"

"Honey, it's not that I'm afraid..." Drake smiled wryly.

"Hmph, just keep it from April then." Jane snorted coldly.

Though she was angry, it was ultimately between April and Matthew, and she couldn't interfere.

She was only sad for April. Now that she was pregnant with that man's child, he was going to marry another woman. Anyone in her situation would feel heartbroken.

"Honey, I know you feel for April, but it's their matter, and we can't do anything about it." Drake comforted the angry Jane.

"Forget it, they were not meant to be together in the first place." Jane sighed, thinking about how to keep the news of Matthew's wedding from April.

Matthew's wedding would probably become a hot topic, and she didn't want April to see the news about it.

"How long until the wedding?" she asked.

"Half a month." Drake honestly answered this time.

"Are you planning to go to the wedding together?" Drake asked.

2/8

"Wedding? I might as well go to his funeral. He wants me to attend his wedding?" Jane said unkindly before turning around and leaving the room, intending to visit April.

Drake watched Jane leave with a bitter expression. He should have deleted those chat records earlier.

April's pregnancy was over five months, and her belly was showing. When Jane arrived, April was sitting on the bed playing with her phone.

"You're pregnant; you shouldn't play with your phone too much." Jane took April's phone and stopped her from continuing.

"I'll just play for a while; otherwise, I have nothing else to do." April helplessly said.

"After three months, the pregnancy will be stable. How about we take you out for a walk? Is there anywhere you want to go?" Jane asked with concern.

Now that she had a regular job, she had more free time.

After thinking for a moment, April seriously answered Jane, "If you have the time, how about taking me to Eldoria?"

Hearing this, Jane agreed immediately without hesitation.

"Sure."

Eldoria had always been a place she wanted to visit, and it was also the place that person had promised to go with her. But in the end, they never had the chance to go together.

The next day, Jane told Drake about taking April to Eldoria.

Drake didn't refuse and agreed to accompany them after settling his work and attending Matthew's wedding.

Jane wouldn't go to the wedding, so she could take April out for a break.

"Remember to bring a few people for protection." Drake reminded her. He wouldn't feel at ease if it was just Jane and April alone.

"I know."

The trip to Eldoria was soon arranged, and Jane didn't bring the three little ones along. She was afraid it would be too dangerous, and after explaining it to them, they didn't insist on following.

However, just before boarding the plane, a familiar figure followed them on board.

April, who was pregnant, was seated in first class, and Jane had booked the seat next to her. But to her surprise, a familiar face took the seat beside them—it was Dr William.

Seeing Dr William, Jane was surprised and quickly understood why he was here.

April was also surprised, knowing the reason why Dr William had followed them. However, she couldn't say anything and had to pretend that nothing had happened.

During the flight, April still felt somewhat uncomfortable. Just as Jane was about to call the stewardess to get a cup of hot water, Dr William took the initiative.

He called the flight attendant and handed her a glucose powder, asking her to make a cup of glucose water.

10 03

Jane watched as Dr William meticulously took care of April and couldn't help but feel moved.

In the end, Dr William was a good person. Regardless of his past actions to help her and the children, he had a good character. Unfortunately, he had no future with April.

After getting off the plane, Dr William continued to follow them. His purpose was evident.

Upon arriving at the designated hotel, Jane took April into the room, and April grabbed her hand.

"Let him in, I have something to say to him." April said.

Jane hesitated for a moment, then nodded and went to find Dr William.

Upon hearing that April wanted to see him, Dr William's face lit up with a smile. "She's willing to see me?"

Dr William had wanted to talk to April alone many times, but every time he got to Jane, April didn't speak to him properly.

Now that April finally wanted to see him, Dr William felt overjoyed.

“I’ll go right away.” After being delighted, Dr William couldn’t wait to see April.

Jane sighed and went to the hotel balcony, from where she could overlook the beautiful Luminesa Lake under the blue sky. The gentle breeze blew, bringing coolness and relaxation, making her feel much better.

In the room, Dr William’s smiling face gradually faded as he listened to what April had to say.

“Dr William, thank you for taking care of me before. I know your feelings for me, but we don’t have a future together. So, don’t be fixated on me anymore.”