Chapter 430

When Jane received Sarah's call, it was already midnight. The three kids were already fast asleep. She had washed up and getting ready to hit the bed when her phone rang.

On the phone, Sarah's voice was extremely weak. After receiving the call, Jane did not hesitate at all. She immediately dressed and rushed to the address that Sarah said.

When she got there, Jane looked around and found Sarah on the bench.

She walked over and found Sarah leaning on the bench. At a closer look, she found out that at the woman's face was filled with cuts and bruises.

Jane instantly became angry. "Sarah, what's going on? Who hit you?"

Sarah just cried there and did not say a word.

"Is it your husband?" Jane had a guess, but she to make sure, so she won't make a mistake in the future steps she plans to take.

Hearing Jane's question, Sarah cried and nodded, her heart even sad.

She did not expect Michael to hit her, and no one in the family helped her, especially her mother-in-law. She even asked Michael to use more force.

Sarah's nose was broken and her face was swollen. When she left the house, she vowed not to return again. However, she realized that she had nowhere to go. In the end, she called the only person she knew who would never hesitate to help her.

Seeing her friend's state filled Jane with unadulterated rage. The bastard's going to pay.

"Sarah, never go back to him anymore. They say that there are only zero or countless times for domestic violence. He did this to you, and he will definitely do it again in the future. You're still young, so there's no need to be trapped by him."

While Michael was beating her, her daughter has been there, witnessing it all. But she never said a word, never showed even the tiniest reaction, she, along with her grandmother, just watched Michael almost kill her. The pain she felt back there was not just physical, her heart was extremely hurting too.

Her daughter doesn't seem to love her. What reason did she have to stay?

With her final decision, Sarah raised her face. Because she had cried for too long, her eyes were swollen like walnuts.

"Jane, please help me. I don't want to stay by his side anymore."

"Okay, if you want a divorce, I'll do my best to help you." Jane immediately agreed.

"Stop crying, I'll take you to the hospital first." Jane helped Sarah, ready to take her to the hospital to see her injuries.

Sarah did not refuse this time, she obediently let Jane take her away.

Due to work, Jane was not able to always check on Sarah in the hospital. Fortunately, Sarah only suffered skin trauma, so her movement wouldn't be affected at all.

Jane let her rest in the hospital, while she was taking care of the divorce.

Chapter 430

At this rate, Sarah could only pin all her hopes on Jane.

Soon, Michael received a divorce letter from Jane's legal team.

Michael panicked the moment he opened the divorce letter.

However, the one who sent the divorce letter was a gold lawyer from the Royal Group's specialized team of lawyers, the lawyer told him:

"If Mr. White resisted the divorce agreement, then I will meet you in court, remember to prepare.

Reading that the case can possibly reach the court, Michael panicked even more.

Michael hit Sarah out of impulse. Later, when he thought about it, he still regretted it.

He wanted to find Sarah and apologize to her, and then coax her back, but after three days of searching, he could not find a single trace of Sarah. He has left no other choice but to wait for her return.

Michael was comforted by the fact that their daughter was home, it would be impossible for Sarah to ignore her and would always come back.

But in the end, he was still muttering about Sarah when he should be muttering about Jane's ability.

He knows about Sarah and Jane's friendship, and Michael would never break them apart.

After all, the reason why Michael went to find Sarah was that, after the class reunion, he learned about the relationship between Jane and Sarah so he went to bring his wife back.

Michael had a lover outside who happened to be an employee of the Warner Group. She did not know Jane's important position in the Warner Group. But she had heard of it.

After learning that Sarah is a close friend of Jane, they encouraged Michael to stabilize her relationship with Sarah first, they can use her to get in touch with Jane, and then they can take things to the next level.

Michael listened to them, but that night, totally lost it, the alcohol he took did not help in calming his nerves.

“I can’t get a divorce. Tell me where my wife is. I’m going to bring her back.”

Michael refused to divorce, he instead asked the man of his wife’s whereabouts.

Of course, his lover would never disclose any crucial information. She advised Michael that if he still wants to see the woman, he either had to sign the divorce agreement or see Sarah in court and then left.

Looking at the lawyer’s letter in his hand, Michael badly needed help, and he could only think of one person that can help her, his mistress, to be precise,

The woman he was in love with was an employee of the Warner Corporation’s branch company. And she’s not working in the Warner Corporation Building but in a high-end office building.

Michael went to the building and called the woman. The woman received swiftly went down after receiving the call.

The two of them met at a coffee shop. Once they’re seated, Michael showed the lawyer’s letter to the woman.

“Say, what should I do now? Does she really want me to sign the divorce agreement? She wants me to compensate the divorce fee of 20,000 dollars.

The requirements in the divorce agreement were made by Jane based on Sarah's situation, and Sarah agreed.

20,000 dollars of divorced property was not too much. In recent years, although Sarah did not have a job, she had paid more than 20,000 for the family.

The woman saw that Michael is restless with panic, and immediately said, "Don't worry, the matter is not that serious yet, didn't tell I tell you to treat her well for the meantime, why did you still hit her?"

Compared to Michael, the woman cared more about her promotion and making a fortune.

Michael was obedient and willing to spend money for her, otherwise, the woman would not look down on him.

Now that his wife was in close contact with Jane again, she was still thinking about clinging on to Jane.

"I drank too much. I couldn't control it for a while."
