

Mr. Warner Your Ex-Wife is Brilliant by Paula Chapter 432

Chapter 432

With the manager's words, Alison stopped making trouble and left obediently.

After she left, the manager's eyes became stormy.

After work, the manager invited Alison out to dinner. Alison thought that the manager had figured out a way for her, so she immediately agreed.

Afterward, the two of them went to dinner together. When the meal was over, the manager offered to send Alison home.

She was a little hesitant. Although she had an affair with the manager, she was also involved with other men. If she let the manager send her back, would her other relationships not be exposed?

Just as she was hesitating, the manager immediately said, "Otherwise, why don't we go to a hotel?"

Alison paused for a moment, thinking that she still had to rely on the manager to resume her work, so she could only nod.

"Alright!"

The next day, Jane arrived at the office. After the morning meeting, Daniel rushed in.

"Miss Bentley, it's not good!"

"What?" Jane looked up from the pile of documents.

"The woman you told me to fire yesterday is dead." Daniel looked at Jane, a little uneasy.

Hearing this, Jane was immediately shocked. After she regained her senses, she immediately asked, "What happened? How did she die?"

“We don’t know the situation yet. The police are still investigating this. The only news we got was that the other party was dead, and we heard that it was very likely that she committed suicide. As for the reason, I heard that it was because she was fired.”

Hearing Daniel’s reply, Jane’s brows furrowed.

“Do you think it’s possible to commit suicide because you were fired?”

“It’s been rumored like this outside. Also, someone broke the news that she committed suicide because of you.” Daniel frowned as he said this.

“Because of me?” Jane looked puzzled. She had never met or seen Alison before, so how could it be because of her?

“It’s rumored that she was fired because she offended you. It’s made everyone in the branch panic, and had a big impact on the company,” Daniel replied.

Hearing this, Jane frowned and thought for a while before she spoke.

“Keep an eye on this matter. Also, find out who else this woman had contact with before she died,” Jane coldly instructed Daniel.

“Yes.” Daniel immediately responded and left the office.

After Daniel left, Jane pondered the ins and outs of this matter. She felt that there was something fishy behind it.

Chapter 432

There were no clues, so she could not figure out what the problem was.

At this moment, Jane’s phone suddenly rang. She picked it up and saw that it was actually Adam’s call.

Jane did not hesitate and immediately answered the call.

“Adam...” Jane’s attitude was as respectful as ever.

“Where are you?” Over the video, Adam asked with a smile..

“In the company. Is there something wrong?” Jane asked suspiciously.

“What, I can’t look for you?” Adam said jokingly.

“Of course not,” She replied with a smile.

Immediately, the two no longer joked around, and Adam also explained the purpose of his call.

“I really have something to talk to you. When are you free? Let’s have lunch together?”

“Okay,” Without any hesitation, she immediately agreed to him.

When it was time for lunch, Jane rushed to the restaurant that Adam had said.

Originally, Adam had just come from Berlin, so she should have invited him first.

When she reached the place, she found that it was an old restaurant hidden in an alley.

Not only was the shop old but the interior was also decorated with wooden windows and tables from many years ago. Fortunately, it was still clean.

Jane walked in and saw Adam in the hall at a glance.

Adam also waved to her, who immediately walked over.

“Hey!”

“Sit down first.” Adam greeted Jane to take a seat, then told the waiter to bring out the food he ordered.

Jane once again observed the surrounding environment. Although she did not dislike it, she still asked in confusion.

“It’s your first time coming here to Silverbourne, so why don’t we choose a fine –dining restaurant? At least it’s clean there.”

Hearing this, Adam smiled indifferently, and then said, “We have to dress up to go there.”

“Also, it’s pretty good here. If you don’t believe me, look at that vase on the table.”

Hearing that, Jane followed Adam’s gaze. The decoration of the place was very simple.

On one of the tables, there was a porcelain uranium vase with a blue background. It looked pretty good and looked very novel.

Jane looked at it for a while, but could not see anything extraordinary, then looked at him.

“What did you see? Why didn’t I see anything?”

“You’re still too inexperienced,” Adam chuckled.

“Please advise me, Jane was not discouraged and directly asked him to explain to her.

Chapter 432

Adam smiled, then took a bite of a piece of vegetable, and then slowly said.

“It’s a shame that you’re the Teacher’s last student. You can’t even see this simple technique?”

Hearing this, Jane’s eyes lit up, and immediately said, “Are you saying that this thing has been covered up?”

He nodded and continued, “This is a good thing.”

Seeing that Adam was very moved, she immediately asked, “Can you see what it is?”

“It’s not a very valuable thing. It’s probably a plain-colored porcelain that was loved by a certain king in the Arthur Dynasty. It’s just that someone used some tricks to restore it to this kind of blue-green patterned porcelain.”

“The other party’s methods are not very clever. They also used the simplest restoration materials. If they want to restore it to its original state, it just needs some time.”

Listening to Adam’s words, Jane looked at the porcelain on the table again, as if she could see a little of its original appearance.

“You came to Silverbourne this time for this?” Jane asked.

Hearing this, Adam retracted his gaze and looked at her.

“Not entirely.”

“It’s also because of you,” Adam said indifferently.

“Because of me?” Jane was puzzled, not understanding what he meant.

“Well, let me ask you, is your husband’s name Drake Warner?” Adam asked.

Hearing this, she immediately felt a strange feeling in her heart.

“Yes. You know him?” Jane asked nervously.
