Chapter 433

The last time, when Drake went to Berlin, for some reason, the two of them had not met, so Jane was puzzled why Adam would ask her about this.

“Not exactly. I’ve met his father,” Adam said.

“Is that so.” Jane’s nerves relaxed, as long as it was not related to Drake exactly.

Seeing that Jane’s expression relaxed, Adam laughed lightly, “You relaxed so quickly, aren’t you worried about what I’m going to say next?”

Hearing this, Jane’s nerves tensed up again. “Just say what you have to say, don’t scare me!”

“Do you know the four major families in Berlin?” Adam asked first.

Hearing this, Jane nodded. She knew that Zoe had been captured by the Franklin family of the four major families in Berlin before because they wanted to poach her heart.

Although Drake had taught the Franklins a lesson, he had always been worried that they would retaliate, so he handed over the company to her and sought greater power to protect her and the children.

“I know some, but I’m not very clear.”

“Then you don’t know about the involvement between the Warner and the four major families in Berlin, especially your husband Drake’s father. Among the big families, the Warners could also be compared to them.”

Hearing this, Jane was shocked.

However, if Drake’s father was not powerful, then how could he become the richest man in Silverbourne?

“The last time you went to Berlin, did you offend the Franklins and expose your identities?” Adam continued to ask.

Hearing this, Jane nodded and her heart tightened.

“Is the Franklins trying to get revenge on us?”

“You can say that,” Adam nodded.

Then he said, “You know my surname, Flaire, and you should also know that I am from the Flaire family of the four major families in Berlin. For the sake of our relationship, I won’t hide this from you.”

“The Franklins found my aunt and plan to deal with you,” Adam said indifferently.

Hearing this, Jane’s brows furrowed even more.

“Since you said it was your aunt, would your aunt agree to the Franklins?” Jane asked worriedly.

“If your husband was not David’s son, my aunt wouldn’t care about the Franklins at all, but your husband was, so it’s very likely.” Adam was a little helpless. He shook his head.

“What do you mean? Could it be that your aunt and my father-in-law have a grudge? Jane asked in confusion.

“You can say that. Besides, it’s still an unresolved hatred.” The corner of Adam’s mouth showed a helpless smile.

“Is it a ‘love’ grudge?” Jane blurted out almost immediately.

Hearing her words, Adam was stunned for a moment, then he said, “How did you know?”

Adam had said so, the only thing Jane could think of was love and hatred.

It was Adam's aunt, so she must be a woman. To be able to feud with Drake's father, apart from emotional entanglements, what else could happen between a man and a woman?

"I just took a guess," Jane replied to Adam's doubts.

Adam laughed bitterly and then talked to her about the emotional entanglement between his aunt and Drake's father.

"Way before my family has been included among the four families, we were already well-known."

"And my aunt is also a famous person in her generation. Not only did she come from a medical family, but she is also a rare medical genius. When she was still young, she had already been a military doctor!"

"It was also there that she met Drake's father. My aunt is good at everything, but she has a stubborn temper. She must get what she likes."

"It's said that Drake's father was also the best soldier in the army at that time. He was highly regarded and cultivated. However, he was good at everything, except for my high-spirited aunt. That's how it unfolded."

"As for what happened in the middle, we don't know. Anyway, in the end, Drake's father did not hesitate to give up his bright future and left Berlin. As time passed, his reputation gradually disappeared in the country."

"And my aunt never married!"

After listening to Adam's description, Jane felt incredible.

But emotional matters were always elusive. Besides, Drake's father had already passed away.

If Adam's aunt really did something against the Warner family because of the emotional grievances that year, it would be too unreasonable.

"You know, I'm too lazy to care about family affairs. I also just overheard the Franklins looking for my aunt, so I'm giving you a tip," Adam said.

Jane came back to her senses and looked at Adam gratefully, "Thank you. If you can tell me the news, it's already very good."

"Actually, my aunt is also very pitiful. I always thought that it must be because of Drake's father that she never married," Adam sighed helplessly.

"But that's all from the previous generation. Besides, you can't force things like feelings. She can't do anything to the Warners just because of what happened back then," Jane replied, also helpless.

If Adam's aunt really did something to them, Jane would not hesitate to fight back.

"Actually, you don't have to worry about my aunt. You should pay more attention to the people in the Franklins. That's a bunch of despicable people"

Adam did not seem to have a good impression of the other party's family, so he said coldly.

"I see. Thank you."

"If you want to thank me, help me find a way to get that vase." Adam looked at the blue and green porcelain vase on the table again.

Seeing this, Jane agreed, "Okay, just leave it to me."

The matter of the vase was easy to solve. It was nothing more than spending money. What Jane was worried about was the retaliation from the Franklins.

However, Drake was not here yet. She did not know if she could deal with the m alone.

After finishing the dinner with Adam, Jane successfully helped him buy the vase he wanted and then left the restaurant.

“Do you want to stay in Berlin for a long time? Do you have a place to live?”

“Not yet. Why, do you want me to live at your house? Won’t your husband mind?” Adam teased.

Jane’s cheeks reddened, and she immediately explained, “Of course, it’s good for you to stay with me. As for my husband, he’s not at home. Even if he’s at home, it’s not something that can’t be explained.”
