

Mr. Warner Your Ex-Wife is Brilliant by Paula Chapter 434 -

Chapter 434

Chapter 434

Hearing Jane's words, Adam was slightly surprised and was not polite to her.

"Since you've already said that then I won't be polite to you anymore. Do you have a full set of cultural relic restoration equipment there?" Adam asked more.

"Yes." Jane nodded. Although she usually did not invest a lot of time in this area, she also had various professional equipment and a special workshop.

Hearing Jane's answer, Adam was even more satisfied.

"That's good. I'll go there for a few days and restore this porcelain bottle to its original state."

Jane did not say much. She had to go to the company in the afternoon, so she let Adam go to the villa.

She called the butler of the villa. After Adam went there, the butler would naturally receive him.

Because of what happened to Alison, Jane had to return to the company to preside over the affairs, lest anyone cause trouble.

However, when she arrived at the company, she could not even get into the company's entrance. A group of people immediately surrounded her outside the company.

The people surrounding her were both male and female. As soon as they saw Jane getting out of the car, they immediately surrounded her and then began to accuse Jane.

“You’re the one who fired my daughter, right? You blackhearted boss, what did my daughter do wrong? You want to force my daughter to death.” A middle-aged woman stepped forward and accused Jane.

“It’s all because of you. If it wasn’t for you, my sister wouldn’t have killed herself,” Another man stepped forward and scolded Jane.

“Blackhearted boss. You don’t have a reason to do it. It’s fine to squeeze the staff, but there’s no reason to fire the staff and force my niece to death. Come and see, there’s no reason...”

The scene became chaotic quickly. In addition to the few people who surrounded Jane at the beginning, they immediately attracted the attention of others on the street.

And many people picked up their phones and secretly took videos of this scene.

Jane felt that something was wrong when the first person rushed up to accuse her, but before she could react, there were all kinds of insults and accusations coming her way, which made her overwhelmed.

Thea protected her, but she could not resist the people who came to trouble Jane

“Miss Bentley? Was it the same company that was reported to the court after that accident last time?”

“Yes, yes, isn’t it that Miss Bentley!”

“Who in Silverbourne doesn’t know about the Warner Group? That’s the richest man in Silverbourne. I just didn’t expect it to be a company that squeezes its employees to death.”

There was a lot of talk from passersby. They once again brought out the negative news that the Warner Group received last time.

Chapter 434

Seeing that the people on the street became more and more abusive, and there were more and more comments and criticisms, Jane understood that the matter was out of her control.

All of this must have been fueled by someone behind the scenes.

As for who it was, she had just finished dinner with Adam and discussed the matter of the four major families in Berlin.

Thinking of this, Jane's face became gloomy as she stood at the front of the crowd.

"You need to pay attention to evidence. The police have not yet come to a conclusion about your daughter's death. How can you say that I killed her?" Jane argued.

"Don't deny it. We already have the exact information. You fired my daughter. If it weren't for your firing her for no reason, how could my daughter commit suicide?" The woman argued back.

"Then, do you know why I fired her?" Jane stared at the woman and said coldly.

Hearing Jane's further questioning, the woman was stunned for a moment, then coldly snorted, "Who knows why you want to fire my daughter? You unreasonable bosses can find any reason."

"For this job, my daughter can't get the least bit of compassion from you capitalists."

After listening to the woman's words, many of the migrant workers around felt that what the woman said was right.

After all, everyone was a part-time worker and felt the same way about them.

"Oh, how did I pay her? Her abilities are not worthy of the salary I'm paying her. Why can't I fire her?" Jane asked coldly.

Immediately, she continued, "Besides, there is something wrong with her lifestyle. She has hooked up with many people, which has seriously affected the company's image. For this, I have the right to fire her.”

“As for her death, I deeply sympathize with you. However, the police have not come to the conclusion that she committed suicide. Why do you think she committed suicide?”

Jane’s series of rhetorical questions left the woman speechless, not knowing how to refute them.

At this moment, the man who had just yelled at Jane for killing his sister stood up again and continued to confront her.

“Stop talking nonsense. My sister is not that kind of person at all. If you spread rumors about this, I’ll sue you.”

“My sister is already dead, yet you still slander her like this. Are you still human? Sure enough, none of you rich people are good.”

“The Warner Group is led by someone like you, so how good can they be?”

“I’m not talking nonsense like you. I have evidence. Your daughter, Alison, has hooked up with a married man. I have pictures here.” Jane held up her phone and pointed at the man while talking loudly.

Seeing Jane’s confident appearance, the man was a little flustered, but when he thought of the people behind him, he immediately straightened up again.

“Stop talking nonsense, you just want to shirk the responsibility, so you slandered my sister.”

2124%

Chapter 434

“Everyone, look. The manager of the Warner Group is actually a liar. Not only did she kill her own employees, but she also used all kinds of cleverness to shirk responsibility.”

“Boycott the unscrupulous capitalists and get the Warners out of Silverbourne!”

Following the man's roar, many people in the crowd agreed.

Although there were only a few people, when the man shouted once, even more people followed.

Many people follow the rhythm. Most of them choose to believe him and then a small number of people will follow. This was the herd mentality.

Seeing that everyone around her was attacking the Warners, Jane knew that this matter had not been handled well today.

Immediately, she took out her phone and called the current mayor of Silverbourne, asking him to find a way to solve the matter.

The mayor of Silverbourne now only relied on protecting Drake to rise to the top position

Jane had just gotten through. Before she could say anything, the man took a step forward and slapped Jane's phone away.

The phone fell to the ground and was broken upon impact. The anger in Jane's eyes was completely lit up.

♡(1)