

Chapter 1247 Open The Door

Eddie was flushed with excitement. He indulged in various flights of fancy, thinking of the good life he could have after being promoted by Richard.

Unbeknownst to him, Trevor looked at him meaningfully. No sign of fear or panic could be seen on his face.

Things were going smoother than Trevor had anticipated.

Since Eddie called the police, claiming that there was someone involved in drug dealing, the police paid special attention to the case. Even Justin had personally shown up to handle the case.

Justin participated throughout the entire raid on the warehouse by the docks before, so he was able to recognize Trevor.

Moreover, he was a senior police officer, and one of the few people who knew that Trevor was a member of Klein.

"Ahem!"

Upon seeing Trevor, Justin cleared his throat.

He wondered if it was necessary for someone from Klein to be dealing with drugs.

He then turned to Eddie, frowning at the latter.

Justin waved his hand and said, "Men, guns down! It's fine. This is all just a misunderstanding."

He then gave Trevor a respectful nod and remarked, "Sorry to have troubled you."

Having heard their captain's order, the policemen put their guns away immediately.

"Huh?"

Eddie's face turned pale. He was suddenly awakened from his daydreaming. He couldn't figure out what was going on. The dream of getting on Richard's good side and having a bright future had dazed him.

Losing his composure, he blurted out, "How could you be so hasty? You're policemen! Are you really going to shield a criminal like him?"

Trevor burst into laughter when he heard Eddie.

If Justin really intended on aiding and abetting a criminal, the first thing he would do after hearing Eddie's remark would be to shoot and kill him on the spot to keep it a secret.

Clearly, Eddie didn't think of the things coming out of his stupid mouth.

Justin snorted, glaring at Eddie.

Had they not received the call, he wouldn't have made such a dumb mistake.

Justin had already said that it was all a misunderstanding, and yet Eddie dared to claim that they were being too hasty. Naturally, Justin would be even more annoyed.

Justin gestured at Eddie one more time and grunted, "Enough! I believe that this gentleman won't commit a crime."

Considering how prominent Klein was and how high their degree of confidentiality was, there were many things that Justin couldn't say about the organization in public.

He couldn't let Trevor's identity be known to anyone.

"What? Are you seriously telling us, the police, what to do?" Justin grunted, still glaring at Eddie.

Eddie felt uneasy when Justin was glaring down at him.

He was even nervous that his plan to set Trevor up had been exposed. In the end, he just scratched his nose awkwardly and looked away.

Eddie pressed his lips, fell silent, and backed away.

Suddenly, someone spoke from behind the policemen.

"Justin, I'm afraid it's not wise to tell our men to withdraw so hastily. It's against protocol."

Out of curiosity, Trevor turned to the man who spoke.

He wanted to know which of these policemen had the balls to disagree with their captain.

It was then that he saw Edlin.

Trevor was surprised that this idiot appeared out of nowhere.

Not long after, he noticed that Edlin's lips was swollen. It looked like he had been beaten up recently.

He wondered if Richard used Edlin as a punching bag.

Trevor shook his head as he looked at Edlin with discontent.

He thought that it must've been humiliating for Richard that he managed to block his punch. Perhaps Richard vented his anger on Edlin after their fight.

Edlin didn't dare to fight back against Richard and instead came to make trouble for Trevor.

How truly pathetic!
