

Chapter 1314 Hijack

It was purely bad luck.

Trevor was annoyed. He met such an unreasonable person on the plane.

He didn't try to reason any further with such a woman and turned just his head away.

It was impossible to reason with such a person, and Trevor knew that.

He turned to the people around him and said seriously, "Guys, please be my witness. This lady was absentminded while walking and bumped into me just now. I tried to get out of her way but failed."

The passengers around were still awake and many of them saw clearly what had just happened. Therefore, they sided with Trevor.

"That's right. The lady was playing with her phone while walking."

"How dare she make trouble now when she was the one who caused the incident? What a shame!"

"I saw it too. It was this lady who bumped into this gentleman. Man, it's not your fault at all. I can testify for you!"

Trevor spread out his hands and asked Vienna, "Now, do you have anything else to say?"

Vienna was crestfallen. She was terribly ashamed after hearing all the passengers' remarks about the incident.

In the past, when she was involved in a similar incident, she would force the other party to apologize.

But now, everyone sided with Trevor and blamed her.

"Damn it! Don't be so arrogant!" Vienna roared, stamping her feet. She was so angry that her face turned red. "Just wait and see! I'll ask my boyfriend to deal with you! He will avenge me! You jerk!"

After saying that, she ran back to her seat like a mad woman and pulled up a man seating there.

Trevor watched the scene with a frown.

When he saw the man Vienna brought to back her up, he couldn't help but raise a brow in surprise.

What a coincidence!

Trevor knew the man.

It was his cousin, Terrance Sanderson!

Terrance wore a pair of big sunglasses that covered almost half of his face.

Trevor first had trouble recognizing him due to his outfit.

There was something that bugged Trevor. This flight was from Mayfield to Zayden.

What on earth was Terrance doing in Mayfield? That was a remote city, definitely not the kind of place someone like Terrance would go to.

However, Trevor didn't have time to think it over. Holding Terrance's arm, Vienna was screaming like crazy, "Honey, that man bullied me. You must help me teach him a lesson! Not only did he bump into me and refused to apologize, but he even forced me to apologize to him. What nerve he has! It's so annoying! You are a Sanderson. Tell him who you are. He would be so scared that he would kneel and apologize to me."

Before Vienna could finish her words, Terrance quickly covered her mouth.

Terrance looked around. Although the sunglasses covered his face, it was still obvious that he was nervous.

"Shut up! Go back to your seat!" Terrance said in a low voice as he pulled Vienna back to her seat. Vienna was confused and kept struggling. However, Terrance pressed her in the seat.

Trevor was a little surprised.

From what he knew of his cousin, Terrance was arrogant and liked to make trouble.

It was so unusual that he refused to take the opportunity to show off when his girlfriend asked for help.

Besides, Terrance looked a little nervous.

Trevor touched his chin and seemed thoughtful. Terrance's reaction was really suspicious.

It didn't look like he was going on a trip.

Trevor was thinking long and hard about the whole matter.

Suddenly, there was a commotion in the cabin.

A group of burly men wearing black masks suddenly appeared, brandishing pistols and backing orders at the passengers.

"Now listen, you all! Don't move! Everyone, cross your arms over your head! And stay in your seats."

Some crew members also put on masks and took off their nameplates. Then they rushed to the cabin.

It was a hijack!

A deep frown appeared on Trevor's face. He didn't expect to experience such a thing.

"Ah! Help!"

The passengers in the cabin screamed in panic.

"Don't move! Do you want to die? Don't move! Anyone who stands up will be killed!" one of the masked hijackers shouted.

The passengers who had just stood up in fear were pulled back to their seats.

"I'll say it one last time! Don't move!"

The men were ruthless and didn't hesitate to violently beat up some of the passengers who tried to resist.

In a short time, the masked men controlled the plane.

They then started to check the passengers carefully, starting from the front. It was as if they were looking for someone.

Each passenger was carefully checked. The gunmen removed the passengers' hats, as well as anything that might obscure their faces. They even pulled the passengers' faces to make sure their faces were real.

The whole plane fell into dead silence.

The passengers covered their mouths in horror, not daring to make a sound for fear of infuriating the armed hijackers.

Chapter 1315 Glareder

Trevor suddenly noticed a hijacker that was dressed in a uniform breaking into the cockpit.

This was immediately followed by the sound of two gunshots.

The man had just murdered the pilot and the co-pilot.

The plane was now controlled by the hijackers.

Trevor's pupils narrowed.

These hijackers were ruthless. They took decisive actions and executed them mercilessly. They even had professional flight crew.

There was no doubt that they were not ordinary hijackers!

But why did they have to hijack the plane? What did they hope to achieve?

"Ah!" Vienna's face became pale after she heard the gunshots. She covered her ears and screamed.

What an idiot!

Trevor's heart skipped a beat as he turned his attention back to the cockpit.

Sure enough, a fierce-looking masked man was coming in their direction.

"Bitch! Why did you scream?"

He raised his hand and smashed the butt of the pistol on Vienna's head.

"No... Ah..." Fresh blood dribbled down the side of her head.

Then Vienna fell over and became unconscious.

There was a dark expression on Terrance's face as he glanced at Vienna's limp body. He trembled uncontrollably and lowered his head, not daring to say a word.

The masked man pointed his gun at them. "If you keep making trouble for me, I will kill you!"

All the passengers around remained silent and bowed their heads in fright.

The atmosphere was tense and uncomfortable.

Trevor observed the situation carefully.

He was yet to figure out what the hijackers really wanted, so he didn't act rashly.

The hijackers in the front of the cabin checked the passengers one by one. When they came across beautiful female passengers, they harassed them, causing the ladies to scream.

A frown appeared on Trevor's face as he thought about how to get out of danger.

He was very good at observing situations. He noticed that the hijackers were carefully searching the passengers and were even pinching each passenger's face and checking their skin.

This was going to be problematic because Trevor was wearing a simulation mask!

If his face was pinched, it was difficult to guarantee that the mask would not come off.

If his identity were to be exposed...

Trevor's heart pounded fast as he thought about it.

Anyway, it was not a good time for his identity to be exposed.

If Mobius knew that he was still alive, they would come after him with everything they had. This was not what Trevor wanted.

The hijackers were getting closer as they continued to check each passenger.

One of the hijackers made his way toward Trevor and was ready to check.

Clenching his fists, Trevor was determined to give him a desperate fight.

This was a plane.

They were ten thousand meters high!

And the enemies were heavily armed with guns!

Even Trevor wasn't sure that he would be safe, but at this point, he had no other choice.

But at that very moment, one of the hijackers exclaimed, "I found him!"

The hijackers relaxed and gathered around the hijacker that made the announcement.

Even the hijacker who was walking toward Trevor left him to join the other hijackers.

"No, you have the wrong person! Please leave me alone! I'm begging you! Don't kill me! I can make it worth your while. I have money! Lots of it! I can give you a lot of money if you let me go! Please, just leave me alone!"

A man's voice was filled with fear. He panicked and begged for mercy at the top of his voice.

Trevor breathed a sigh of relief and glanced over to get a better view of what was happening.

When he saw who the hijackers wanted, he was shocked.

Terrance?

These hijackers had gone through all that trouble only to catch Terrance!

Terrance was dragged down the aisle by a hijacker. He struggled helplessly, but the hijacker's grip on his collar was firm.

He cried and continued to beg for mercy.

Trevor remained silent.

No wonder Terrance refused to help Vienna when she asked for help. As it turned out, he was in big trouble.

Trevor breathed a sigh of relief. The only good thing was that he was temporarily out of danger.

But he couldn't say the same for Terrance...

At that very moment, a fierce male voice boomed from the plane's broadcast system.

"Listen, everyone. You won't be going to Zayden. If you cooperate, I can send you to Glareder and everyone will be fine. But if you dare to make trouble, we will make everyone suffer!"

Glareder!

Trevor's eyes narrowed. They were going to be taken to Glareder!

They were going to Glareder.

The announcement from the broadcast came like a bolt from the blue, and the passengers in the cabin were in shock.

"What? Glareder? Isn't that the capital of sin? No way! I won't go there! I can't go there!"

"They are taking us to Glareder? They are going to kill us!"

"I'll give you guys a lot of money, but please don't take me there!"

The billionaires in the first-class cabin had somewhat heard of Glareder.

The knowledge about this place was enough to give them goose bumps.

They knew better than ordinary people that Glareder was a cruel and merciless city!

"What the hell are all this screaming about?"

The hijackers were angered by the screams of the passengers and they became even more violent.

They began to hit the passengers violently with the butts of their pistols.

The passengers who were screaming and asking for help earlier were badly beaten to the point where their skulls were bleeding.

Trevor felt strange.

He would be going to Glareder too. But there was no way he was going there as a hostage.

He planned to sneak into Glareder as a member of Mobius, taking the identity of Raven. But now was not the right time.

If he went to Glareder as a hostage, chances were he wouldn't come back alive.

"That's not good," Trevor whispered, squinting.

He had kill these hijackers! Otherwise, his plan would be destroyed, and worse, he would certainly lose his life.

Trevor looked at the men again. They could kill people at any time. Trevor hated the feeling of sitting still waiting for death.

Having made up his mind, he slightly moved his shoulders, waiting for an opportunity to make a move.

Meanwhile, Terrance screamed in horror as he was being dragged.

"I know you guys. You are from Hidden Assassins, right? Please let me go! I have money. I can give you as much money as you want! Who sent you to get me? Which of my family is it?"

Terrance struggled and screamed like crazy.

His face was distorted with fear, anger and hysteria.

He desperately tried to guess who was behind this hijacking.

"I have money. I'll give you one million each! No, ten million! Please let me go. I don't want to die!" Terrance begged. However, no matter how hard he struggled, he couldn't break free from the masked men.

One of the men lowered his head and sneered, "It seems that you are really rich. But unfortunately for you, our employer pays better."

The man then looked at Terrance's crotch and laughed loudly. "Ha-ha! It seems that you're so scared you peed on yourself!"

Hearing the man's sneer, the other hijackers turned and saw that Terrance's crotch was wet and his trousers dyed dark.

"Ha-ha!"

The surrounding hijackers also burst into laughter. However, there was no joy in their laughter and it rather sent chills down the spine of everyone who listened.

Trevor, who was watching the scene silently, frowned.

It seemed that the Sanderson family had lost its backbone since his grandfather disappeared and there was an intense power struggle within the family.

The members of the Sanderson family waged a fierce war for power and they even went so far as hiring killers to assassinate each other.

It seemed that the situation of the Sanderson family was not better than that of the Murray family.

However, it was not the right time to think about all that.

The opportunity Trevor had been waiting for was right in front of him.

All the hijackers around were busy making fun of Terrance and they lowered their vigilance.

Trevor clenched his fists and decided to take this opportunity. He would go for broke. He had to kill those hijackers as soon as possible.
