

Chapter 1376 Something Happened To Terrance

Terrance?

Trevor was a bit surprised when he heard Terrance's name roll off Collen's tongue.

It was not surprising that Collen knew Terrance. But judging from Collen's words, something terrible must have happened to Terrance.

What could have happened?

Before Trevor could gather his thoughts, the burly man was already right in front of him.

The man raised his right hand up menacingly.

"You bastard!" He roared and was about to slap Trevor in the face.

The power of the slap was clear for all to see.

Everywhere was silent save for the whirring sound of the wind.

There was an expression of excitement on Collen's face. He was delighted by what was about to happen.

Everyone present there thought that Trevor was going to be beaten.

Saniya and the other ladies clasped their hands over their mouths, with expressions of terror.

However, Trevor's expression remained unchanged. Just as the man's hand was about to hit his face, he moved.

Clap!

Trevor grabbed the man's right hand in one swift movement.

"No way!"

The smile on Collen's face faded away and was soon replaced by an expression of shock. His mouth hung open in awe as he stared at Trevor.

The strapping man was also very shocked. He struggled to remove his hand from Trevor's firm grip but it ended in futility.

"I don't have any inappropriate thoughts for Nola. Please don't misunderstand me," Trevor said in a calm voice.

However, the man's eyes were blazing with fury. He felt ashamed by the way Trevor grabbed his hand right in front of so many people. There was a look of anxiety on his face as he glared at Trevor.

"Fuck you! I don't believe a word coming from you! Let go of me now! Get your filthy hand off me!"

Even though his right hand was still in Trevor's grip, his left hand was still free.

He used his left hand to try and slap Trevor again.

Clap!

Trevor quickly grabbed the man's left hand. His movement was swift and accurate.

Seeing that that man didn't want to talk peacefully, Trevor exerted more pressure on the man's hands.

"Ouch! Let go of me! Bastard! You're breaking my hands!"

The man cried out in pain. Although he had been working out, he was still no match for Trevor.

Trevor's grip was so painful that he almost cried.

For a moment, the entire hall was silent and only the painful cries of the man could be heard.

Everyone stared at Trevor with shock.

"Get lost!"

Trevor released the man. It was not appropriate to make a scene here.

Saniya, who had ignored Trevor earlier stepped forward and said, "Do you know Terrance?"

Trevor nodded and asked, "What happened to him?"

A frown appeared on Saniya's face.

"He is in a very critical condition. He was involved in a car accident and is consequently in a coma. The doctor said that he might be in a vegetative state for life."

Trevor's eyebrows raised when he heard what Saniya just said.

A car accident?

A vegetative state?

This was probably not a car accident. Perhaps, it was a setup to take Terrance out of the way.

Trevor's heart sank as he thought about the Murray family.

When the Murray family was under the control of Mobius, Ferrell and his followers tried to eradicate disobedient family members.

They even launched sudden attacks on Bess and Asho.

Terrance's accident was just the same as what had happened to the Murray family.

Was Mobius also behind the internal strife of the Sanderson family?

The very thought of this made Trevor very worried.

If Mobius was influencing the conflict in the Sanderson family, the situation would be even more dangerous than he had imagined.

Trevor had initially foiled Mobius' plans to take control of the Murray family.

If Mobius took over the Sanderson family, there would be grave consequences.

"I'm sorry. I have to go. I want to visit Terrance," Trevor said, making to leave the party.

If he went to Terrance instead of staying here, maybe he could find more clues about Mobius.

He needed to be better prepared before sneaking into Glareder.

He couldn't let Mobius control the Sanderson family!

"Wait!"

As he turned, Saniya's voice suddenly sounded from behind him.

"I'll go with you!" Saniya said, putting down her half-full glass of champagne and quickly picking up her purse.

Surprised, Trevor turned back to look at her but didn't say anything.

They left the manor together.

Collen was in the hall, livid and gritting his teeth angrily, but he dared not say a word.

Trevor and Saniya drove to the hospital.

Saniya looked at the hospital gates and said in a low voice, "Terrance has a lot of friends, but you are the only one who is willing to visit him after the accident. Thank you on his behalf."

Trevor said nothing.

He could tell that Saniya and Terrance had a good relationship.

They entered the hospital and soon made their way to the Terrance lay in the bed, most of his body wrapped in bandages, a tube inserted into his arm.

It was a miserable sight.

Trevor shook his head and sighed.

Terrance used to be an arrogant and domineering young man. But here he was now, lying in the bed, unconscious.

Trevor asked in a low voice, "How serious is his condition? How did such an accident happen?"

Saniya sighed and replied, "The doctor said that he is out of danger. Whether he regains his consciousness or not depends on luck. As for the accident... It was very strange..."

Saniya's expression darkened as she said this.

"Two days ago, when Terrance was driving along a cliff, his car crashed into the guardrail. If the guardrail hadn't been strong enough, the car would have dived right off the cliff!"

Trevor narrowed his eyes, doubtful.

Something was wrong.

As far as he knew, Terrance didn't like racing.

He would have slowed down near the cliff. How had he hit the guardrail at such a high speed?

There was a conspiracy somewhere in this.

Moreover, there had been an attempt on Terrance's life on the flight from Mayfield to Zayden.

The accident was definitely not an accident.

"Alas, the world is full of surprises!"

Trevor sighed and sat down on the edge of the bed, reaching out to touch Terrance's wrist.

He looked like he was sad at his friend's misfortune.

But truth was that he was making a diagnosis using the medical skills of the Scott family.

Trevor could feel the pulse and diagnose the patient's condition through it.

Saniya stood to the side and chattered on, trying to wake Terrance up by narrating tidbits from their shared childhood.

But Terrance didn't respond.

Trevor's eyebrows shot up as he came to a conclusive diagnosis.

There was hope, after all.

Terrance's physical condition was in terrible shape, but he could be treated. It would be difficult, of course.

Trevor estimated that with the acupuncture skills of the Scott family, there would be a chance for Terrance to temporarily regain consciousness.

Acupuncture was complicated, and Trevor was not sure if he would succeed. But he had to give it a try.

Before that, he had to ask Saniya to leave.

Trevor withdrew his hand and thought about how to make up a reasonable excuse so that Saniya left them alone.
