

Chapter 1491 A Surprise For Gunter

The next day, Trevor gave Ape the task of watching Gunter.

He needed to get as much information as possible to determine what kind of action Gunter intended to take.

As for Trevor, he went to the hospital to bring Luisa home. She would recover better at home than in the hospital.

Trevor's treatment worked and Luisa recovered quickly. She already planned to go back to the company and resume her work.

However, Trevor thought it wasn't a wise decision and tried to persuade her. "There's no need to rush to get back to work. You have just recovered and if you force yourself to go to work, you will not be at 100%. In addition, there is a risk that you will have a relapse of the disease. You should just stay at home and have a rest for a couple of days. Once you fully recover, you will be in a better position to resume your duties as CEO and support the company in its growth phase."

Luisa had initially wanted to insist on returning to work, but after thinking about the medical prowess Trevor had shown before, she was ready to take his advice.

Seeing that Luisa had accepted to take some time off work, Trevor smiled slightly and drove her back to her apartment.

Initially, he planned to take advantage of this to get closer to Luisa. However, Ape suddenly called him, thwarting his plans.

Trevor had to answer the phone.

When the call was connected, Ape's lazy voice rang out. "The guy you asked me to watch is now in a luxury gift shop and he

Upon hearing that, Trevor was startled and raised a brow.

He immediately understood what Gunter was up to. Trevor knew that Gunter wasn't giving up and since Luisa was sick, he wanted to use this as an excuse to harass her.

He quickly thought of a way to teach Gunter a lesson.

Gunter probably didn't know that Luisa left the hospital today. In that case...

Thinking of something, Trevor chuckled and said, "Ape, I have a plan. I want you to go to the hospital. You'll lie in the bed and pretend to be the patient!"

Ape felt silent for a while. He was obviously very upset with the plan.

"Hey! Raven! You're asking too much of me. How can you ask me to pretend to be a woman? I'd rather you get me a gun so I can kill that motherfucker directly!"

Trevor smiled and explained softly, "I have to deal with him slowly. Only like that will it be interesting. Once I am done dealing with him, I will reimburse all your expenses in the amusement arcade. What do you say to that?"

Hearing Trevor's offer, Ape hesitated for a while. "Well..."

Before he could speak his mind, Trevor raised his voice and said coldly, "Ape, don't forget you were sent here to assist me. I hope we can cooperate well."

He couldn't be too polite with the members of Mobius, or they would think he was easy to bully.

Upon hearing that, Ape was so angry that he wanted to throw his phone away.

Of course, Trevor didn't expect such a threat would succeed in making Ape agree to his plan. So, he softened his tone and said gently, "If you agree to my arrangement, I will sponsor you for a few more game coins today, and I can introduce you to other amusement arcades."

The words "game coins" and "amusement arcades" did the trick and Ape's irritable mood immediately subsided.

Finally, he agreed albeit reluctantly.

"Okay, I'll listen to you this time. But I have to tell you that I will never do this again."

Trevor was satisfied with that and he hung up the phone with a smile.

Thinking of what would certainly happen next, his smile broadened.

"That must be very interesting!" Trevor murmured to himself.

Chapter 1492 Gunter's Visit To The Hospital

---

At four in the afternoon, Trevor saw Gunter in the hospital.

He sneered and murmured, "This guy is a real heel. He still hasn't given up! Well then, get ready to be surprised."

This time, Trevor did not intend to stop Gunter directly. He was looking forward to what was going to happen.

Gunter entered the hospital with a gift in his hand. He craned his neck to look at a specific chair in the corridor and found it empty. After he confirmed that Trevor was nowhere to be seen, he sighed in relief.

An arrogant smile appeared on his face.

"Dragon is just a rich young man who hides his identity. Maybe he only wants to pursue Luisa for fun and isn't serious about her at all. It was only the second day of her illness, and he's already nowhere to be found. Well, it's justified. The best he could do for a woman is to be a security guard. He can't guard Luisa at all times!"

Gunter then straightened his collar and tie. He looked like a gentleman.

According to his many years of experience being around beautiful women, he knew that they were at their weakest psychologically when they were sick.

Now would be the best time to seize the opportunity and get close to Luisa.

It would be easy for him to win over a female CEO of a small company with his outstanding appearance, personality, and perfect fake identity, wouldn't it?

Gunter confidently strode to the ward and knocked on the door.

However, there was neither any response nor sound from inside.

He frowned slightly. Was Luisa asleep?

Without any hesitation, he pushed open the door and entered the room.

Gunter was worried that if Trevor suddenly appeared, he would stop him from meeting Luisa.

Trevor saw Gunter enter the ward from his hiding place. He immediately walked silently to the door and listened attentively.

Gunter saw a figure lying in the bed. The patient was covered with a white quilt with their back facing him.

He frowned in confusion as he studied the figure.

Was Luisa so broad? She seems to be bigger!

But the next moment, he thought the hospital quilt was too thick, which exaggerated Luisa's figure.

Gunter cleared his throat and walked toward the bed with the gift in one hand. He asked in a gentle and articulate tone, "Luisa? Luisa, wake up. I've come to see you. Are you feeling any better?"

However, the figure in the bed trembled slightly and didn't respond.

Gunter thought Luisa was sobbing in pain.

He felt this was a great opportunity. Luisa's sobs proved she was dejected, and it would be easier for him to win her heart.

Gunter moved closer and commented, "I don't see Dragon anywhere. I knew he wasn't a very reliable person! You're sick, and he's nowhere to be seen. I'm willing to take care of you. Luisa, do you understand what I'm trying to say?"

Ape, who was in bed, was disgusted by Gunter's words.

He couldn't help but turn around and slap Gunter hard across the face.

The entire ward echoed with Ape's roar of anger.

"Get the hell out of here!"

Chapter 1493 Trapped

Gunter was taken aback. He was not expecting this.

Shouldn't Luisa be the one lying in bed? Why, then, was a middle-aged man in her place?

However, before his mind could put all the pieces in place, Ape's broad palm came at him.

Gunter could feel the air made by the movement of Ape's palm.

It was powerful!

If he were hit by Ape's palm, his face would definitely be swollen. It could even end up breaking his neck.

"Fuck!"

Gunter broke out in a cold sweat. He raised his left hand in an attempt to protect his face.

Clap!

The sound of skin and skin colliding was quite loud in the ward.

Ape's slap connected with the back of Gunter's hand.

However, with Gunter's hand serving as a buffer, his face suffered little damage.

Gunter couldn't help cursing furiously, "Damn it! Who the hell are you? What are you doing in Luisa's ward?"

He shook his hand vigorously, trying to relieve the pain.

Ape's slap connecting with the back of his left hand had left the hand red, and the pain made his hand tremble uncontrollably.

He could guess that the injured part would soon take on the color of livid red in a short while.

The slap had not hit him in the face, but he felt humiliated that he, as a member of Mobius, could be caught off guard.

Gunter's right fist clenched in anger, his eyes burning with hatred.

He couldn't believe this. Ever since he joined Mobius, no one dared to hit him.

Gunter was so angry that one could see his veins popping out of his neck. His fist clenched, and he looked ready to attack.

However, at that moment, the door to the ward opened.

Trevor pushed the door open with a big smile and asked, "What are you doing here? Do you still want to harass Luisa? Unfortunately for you, she has been discharged and has gone home to rest. I'm sorry you had to come here in vain."

Trevor glanced at Gunter's left hand. Feigning surprise, he said, "What's wrong with your hand? You seem to have injured yourself. The back of your hand is quite red. However, not to worry, we are at a hospital. I could call you a doctor if you need one."

A murderous look appeared on Gunter's face. "You bastard!"

Trevor's appearance was a giveaway that something was wrong.

The sarcasm made Gunter realize he had been fooled by Trevor and the middle-aged man.

It was all a setup.

The realization of this hit Gunter like a punch.

Humiliation!

He had been completely humiliated!

He could defend himself against the middle-aged man.

However, the main insult from the whole setup by Trevor was the downplaying of Gunter's intelligence.

"How dare you make a fool of me?" Gunter said, clenching his teeth so hard he almost broke them.

Trevor just shrugged, pretending to know nothing about the whole thing.

He neither admitted nor denied anything.

Ape stood up from the bed, curiosity in his eyes as he stared at Gunter.

He had not expected that his sudden attack would be repelled.

Although Gunter had taken damage, Ape had not expected his reaction to be that swift. This proved that Gunter was no pushover.

Trevor smiled and said, "Gunter, if you had kept your promise, what just happened wouldn't have happened, would it?"

The expression on Gunter's face was terrible to behold as he listened to Trevor.

He stared venomously at Trevor for a while before turning to stare at the middle-aged man. An onlooker might have thought he was trying to commit both their faces to memory.

Gunter took a deep breath as if to calm himself. He pocketed his hands and chose to ignore the slight rather than make trouble at the hospital.

He could tell that the middle-aged man was not an amateur fighter. If he decided to fight both of them on the spot, it was certain he would lose.

His voice was thick with anger as he said, "Just you wait and see. I'll have my revenge!"

Chapter 1494 Gunter's Revenge

Trevor looked on calmly as Gunter stormed out of the hospital.

He remembered what Gunter had said but didn't worry about it too much.

Today, Trevor asked Ape to disguise himself as Luisa and surprise Gunter. The plan was to make Ape and Gunter to turn against each other.

If Gunter gave up making trouble for them, it would be fine.

However, if Gunter still wanted to take revenge, Trevor didn't mind using some more cruel methods to teach him a lesson.

Ape stood beside Trevor and looked toward the hospital entrance. Gunter was nowhere to be seen.

He said gruffly, "Raven, that guy is probably not an ordinary person. He must have had some physical training. Otherwise, he wouldn't have been able to withstand my slap."

Trevor nodded to show that he understood.

Ape shrugged his shoulders and put a cigarette between his lips.

"But that's for you to think about. As for me, I don't care. I'm leaving now. I'm going to play some games," he mumbled as he lit it.

Trevor waved goodbye.

Three days later, Trevor got off work as usual.

He left the office parking lot and was on his way to his apartment when he found something unusual.

Trevor looked several times in the rearview mirror.

He realized there was a car tailing him—a black Ford.

The driver kept some distance from Trevor.

Trevor frowned. He changed lanes and drove in a complete circle, only to find that the car was still behind him.

Now he was sure that he was being followed.

Trevor sneered and thought that it was Gunter. He must have brought Rock with him to make trouble for him.

If Gunter was alone in the car, Trevor wouldn't mind getting out and challenging him to a fight.

But Trevor knew Gunter was no fool and wouldn't come alone.

Thoughtfully, Trevor ran a hand over his jaw. He could deal with Gunter in a one-to-one fight.

But if Rock was around, it would prove difficult to handle them both.

Moreover, Trevor wasn't sure whether they were armed or not.

Suddenly, Trevor smiled and turned toward the suburb.

He went in the direction of the arcade.

He was now Raven, and he had a partner, Ape!

Since he was followed, how could he fight alone?

Within no time, Trevor drove to the arcade. He glanced behind him and saw that the black Ford was parked not far away.

Trevor pretended not to notice the other car. He quickly looked away and walked into the arcade.

The arcade was dimly lit, and a large group of people were gathered around Ape.

"Wow, awesome! Ape, you're amazing!"

"Ape, let me light you a cigarette!"

Trevor looked in the direction of the shouts and found Ape at the center of it.

Ape sat in front of a game console and was surrounded by a rowdy crowd who kept cheering him on.

Trevor smiled and walked over. "Ape, I need your help to deal with someone."

Ape was stunned for a moment. He narrowed his eyes and took a long pull of his cigarette before crushing it. "I see. Guys, come with me!"

In an instant, the facial expressions of all the men around changed, and they followed Ape.

Trevor was amused. He hadn't expected Ape to become a ring leader.

Of course, Gunter and Rock were oblivious to that.

They parked the car and immediately followed Trevor.

However, when they rounded the corner, a large group of people suddenly rushed out and surrounded them.

Gunter looked around and smiled. "Well, well, well. Do you think you can fight us?"

He and Rock belonged to Mobius, which was one of the deadliest groups in the world. How dare a group of two-bit gangsters surround them?

Trevor and Ape walked to the front of the crowd.

"So, you knew we were following you?" Rock asked indifferently as he raised his chin and narrowed his eyes.

They didn't take Trevor seriously at all, and that was why they

Gunter grinned. "So what if you knew? Do you think you can rely on these hooligans and escape?"

Trevor also grinned.

Escape? No way! This time he would make sure Gunter and Rock were doomed.
